"A German attack which had for its object the recapture of the village of Neuve Chappelle had a successful beginning,' said the official statement, "but our forces encountered superior English forces, therefore the attempt was not continued."

"The English are showing great activity" in this district, the war office stated. British aviators are flying over the German positions, hurling bombs and mapping the gun positions. Three English air pilots have been brought down by German riflemen and captured within the last 48 hours.

THE EASTERN QUESTION

LONDON, March 13.—The Daily Chronicle's correspondent telegraphs from Petrograd: "Events as they continue to develop at the front in Poland take on more and more the character of the preparation by the Germans for decisive action. The Russians in timely counter attack in the Pilica region have paralyzed that part of the German offensive plan, forcing the Germans to act on the defensive."

A writ has been issued by James Akey, claiming $500.00 damages from the municipality of Otonabee by reason of their opening a trench across a road and failing to post the usual lights and barricade. The occurrence is reported from last Fall. Mr. Akey was driving his auto along the road and ran full tilt into the excavation. Mr. G. N. Gordon is acting for the plaintiff.

A COMPLETE COCOANUT

Mr. Roland Denne, Provision Merchant, George Street, received this morning an interesting consignment by parcel post. It was a cocoanut enclosed in the outer shell, as it fell from the palm, sent by his brother, Mr. T. H. G. Denne, who is at present holidaying at St. Augustine, Florida.

The successful dealer gives his customer, promptly, the articles asked for; but there are many always trying to substitute something that shows them a larger profit, that is why bulk tea and other packet teas are often foisted on the consumer in place of "SALADA."

Recent Consignment Sent to Major Bennet for the Peterboro' Boys

The Women's War Fund committee recently sent one hundred and sixty-one pairs of socks and several scarfs to Peterborough boys at the front. This splendid consignment was sent direct to Major Bennett for distribution among the local boys. Seventeen of the 161 pairs of socks sent were knitted by the ladies of Bridgenorth. It is needless to say that the Peterborough young men at the front will deeply appreciate this gift from the War Fund committee.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND ENLISTING.

It looks as if both unemployment and the necessity of enlisting would be fairly lasting conditions. The war drags its way slowly, and unless there comes a sudden onrush not yet strongly indicated, there will be fighting for a long time to come. Canada is with Great Britain in the fight, and has signed for service to the end. We have, for us, a fair sized Canadian army on the battle lines, and we shall need to keep up its strength; we are begining to realize what war means when be begin to get casualty lists. The Canadians eliminated from the actual fighting ranks by the fortunes or misfortunes of war, have to be replaced if we are to keep up our fighting contribution to a reasonably effective point.

To do this we must keep recruiting going at home. There can be no harm but a good deal of good in keeping recruiting up to, or in advance of actual demand. In the first place the recruits will be undergoing the necessary drill and setting up, and will be all the more ready in case unexpected demand is made. We shall be able to arm and equip them with more deliberation, and therefore more effectively. We shall not need to rush orders for clothing and other supplies, boots, etc., and shall not be forced to send soldiers into the field, not only badly equipped in the matter of clothing, but with their health and lives in danger. Recruiting well in advance will have many advantages in regard to Canada supplying the best fighting forces by national equipment, of courage and stamina, but the best fighting men in the matter of military training and complete material fitness in the way of arms, munitions, clothing and supplies of all kinds.

Another advantage will be the relief of the unemployment situation. Cases are not unknown, (elsewhere than in Peterborough, where men out of employment have sought to enlist and have been unable to do so. There have been cases where enlistment has been a last resort in case of unemployment; and there are families in this very city living in comparative comfort upon the income derived from the pay of the head of the family now in the ranks and on active service. It may be argued that enlisting for the sake of employment is not the highest type of patriotism or loyalty. It is a mighty higher sort of patriotism than that that does not enlist at all, from any reason; and it shows that the recruit is a good citizen—if he can't get a chance to serve his country in the way of productive employment, he is willing to serve it in protective employment. As a matter of fact he helps solve the home unemployment problem. His withdrawal from the ranks of the unemployed leaves one more chance to another unemployed—one less vacant place to fill. It would seem wise to keep enlisting active. By so doing we shall be doing a better service for Canada and the Empire on the fighting line, and give Canadians a chance to be doubly heroes—to fight for their country and fight for a living for those who would be otherwise dependent upon the benevolence and charity of their more fortunate fellow-citizens.

THE CITY GARDEN.

We are in the middle of the first spring month and almost before we realize it the season of growth, the season of planting and seeding, will be upon us; and whether we farm on a large scale or aim to cultivate a little city garden plot, we must, in order to do either successfully, begin betimes.

Farmers assert, from experience as well as by exercise of common sense, that the earlier seed can be got properly into the ground—into a well-prepared seed bed—the better the prospects for a good crop.

There are farmers that always, or nearly always, have good crops, because they provide the conditions that insure good crops. They prepare thoroughly; they plant in time with a resulting growth of a strength and stamina able to withstand the vicissitudes of subsequent dry weather or other unfavourable conditions, that pulls the crop through seasons of drought or other adverse conditions. This is the class of farmer that generally has good crops.

There is another class of farmers that gives the good Lord a good deal of trouble, that exact from Providence a special seed time. They are always behind — their seed is not ready, their soil is not ready, their implements are not ready, or the seed time comes and they are not ready for it. Of course, as a rule, these farmers are failures; have poor crops.

There are many things to be foreseen if a citizen proposes to have a little city garden and make a success of it. He must be ready for planting the moment seed time comes. To insure this the earliest moments must be seized for putting the ground in condition—digging, enriching, etc. With proper care and watchfulness this can be done after snow goes before proper time for planting seed comes. All the easier if in the autumn the plot is surface drained to insure the earliest possible off-flow of surface water.

Then the seed must be selected and quantity decided upon. In this regard there is abundant opportunity for neighbourly helpfulness. A man, in many ways ignorant of the way to go about growing a little city garden, will have some neighbour who knows; and this neighbour will be proud and glad to give advice, to suggest the best varieties to plant on the given space; the best time of planing, and the best mode of planting, as to depth and distance of plants, etc.

There is no need of argument to show the individual advantage of growing a little city garden. What there is need of is to get the owner or occupant of a little plot going—to get him to make a beginning.

It would seem to come within the functions of the Horticultural Society to help in such a work. It is composed of the most successful growers of horticultural products in the city. If the society would issue a little booklet giving details of the best mode to deal with a little plot for gardening purposes—to generally indicate what vegetables, etc., can be grown to the best advantage upon the average garden plot, a great impulse would be given to a very important condition of domestic food supply not only of money value, but of quality, of freshness, tastefulness and wholesomeness, that cannot be provided so early in the season by even a liberal expenditure of money.

The matter of a city garden, with its economic aspects is one that might engage the attention of the City Council and Board of Trade. There are many vacant lots that at present are useless and worse than useless—for many, if not the most of them, are a paradise for noxious weeds, that spread to neighbouring lawns and gardens. Nearly every owner of such presently useless vacant lots, would no doubt permit the use of them for a garden. Such use would not injure the lot for building purposes, but would benefit by destroying the weed crop which does not thrive under the cultivation a garden demands.

Then the city itself owns considerable vacant property. This might be turned over to some citizen, or citizens who, by growing so many dollars' worth of food, would be adding to the wealth of the city, even if he did not raise more than enough in money value to reduce his tax-bill by a good round percentage.

Mother earth is the natural source of the nourishment of her children; and it seems something like an economic crime, that there should be in the aggregate, hundreds of acres in the cty lying idle that, with proper cultivation could be made to raise hundreds of dollars' worth of nourishing, tasty food. Would it not be well for our leaders of thought; our leaders in civic life and interprise; our leaders in philanthropic work; our leaders in aesthetic culture; our leaders in the way of developing God's gift of fertile soil into the production of beauty and usefulness in flower and plant—would it not be well for these to take a practical interest in the promotion of the idea of the city garden.

This idea successfully carried out would not only improve our quality cit izenship in the way of personal culture, but would have an economic and financial value that would represent an elevation of the level of comfortable living and help to the solution of the pereninially difficult problem of making both ends meet.

IS PROGRESS OF CANADIAN RECRUITING SATISFACTORY?

In an official statement issued at Ottawa by the Prime Minister on November 21 it was announced that the Government would "immediately increase to 50,000 the number of troops in Canada under arms and training for active service." This 50,000, Sir Robert Borden added, would be additional to the 8,000 men engaged in garrison and outpost duty. The words of the official announcement of November 21 were:

"The Canadian forces thus organized for active service will be as follows: Forces already despatched (including the regiment garrisoned at Bermuda), nearly 32,000; forces engaged in garrison and outpost duty in Canada, about 8,000; forces under training in Canada, 50,000; total, 91,000.

"As soon as the second contingent goes forward, a further enlistment of 17,000 men to take its place will be made, bringing the total up to 108,000.

"Thereafter the forwarding of further expeditionary forces will be followed by the enlistment of men to take their places as arranged in the proposals made public on October 19."

What were the proposals made public in a statement by the Prime Minister on October 19? He stated that in addition to the first contingent in England a force of 20,000 men would be recruited at once in Canada; that 10,000 men of the second contingent would probably be despatched in December, and new men recruited in their stead. One clause in the statement of October 19 read as follows:

"It is anticipated that the first force of 10,000 men will be despatched in December, and thereafter at regular intervals similar forces will be continuously sent forward as rapidly as they can be armed and equipped."

In another clause this purpose was emphasized with the words, "a steady stream of reinforcements will go forward." A month later it appeared from the statement of the Prime Minister on November 21 that these plans, although they had not been carried out, were not large enough and comprehensive enough, and that "immediately" forces not of 30,000, but of 50,000 men would be recruited.

How far have these plans been carried out? The 10,000 men of the second contingent were not despatched in December, and no similar forces have "gone forward" at "regular intervals." Instead of 10,000 in December, 4,000 went forward at the end of February. The 50,000 men, in addition to the 8,000 on garrison and outpost duty who were to have been "enlisted forthwith" on November 21, what about them? If not 50,000 do they even come up to the smaller proposal of October, which was for a force of 20,000 men of whom one-third would be sent away at regular intervals and the ranks recruited to strength again. It was not militia Sir Robert Borden was talking about, but forces for service overseas.

The large promises this country made five months ago and four months ago through the Prime Minister are not being kept. There has not been the recruiting that was to occur forthwith, and the troops have not been despatched in the numbers proposed.

It may be that the Canadian army actually in training in this country is doing as well as it would if training anywhese else, and it may be that the War Office has been in no hurry to call for the transport of the men across the Atlantic. But Canada is behind with her schedule; the recruiting that was announced has not been done. The force of 108,000 men has not nearly been raised.

It is not the fault of the young men of the country. They have been ready. Some newspapers urged men to recruit and used the appeals that are made in Great Britain—although the fact is that in many Canadian centres men anxious to go to the front have been unable to find. even by searching and by going from one city to another, an opportunity to enlist. Quite a few men have paid their own fare to England in order to get enrolled. Many men from points in Ontario came to Toronto during the winter and unable to support themselves here indefinitely, had to give ut up and go back home. In some rural districts the number of men called for have not responded, but the fact remains that, taking the country as a whole, more men have been available than the authorities have made room for.

Great Britain has been straining to make a supreme effort, getting ready tremendous armies, and whatever Canada is going to do ought to be done with energy. Now is the time. Everything depends on what is done in these spring days. If great armies can be poured into France and Belgium—if armies great enough are at Kitchener's disposal—the enemy can be overwhelmed. The larger the British forces are the better; the larger they are the more successful they will be; the larger they are the quicker will come the result. If great armies take the field more British men will be alive in the world when the war ends than if smaller armies have to fight a more protracted war.

Being in this thing, Canada ought to do her part in it, without dilatoriness or trifling. Because troops are assembled in all our large cities, giving an air of soldierly activity to the times, people are disposed to think that there is much doing. But the Calendar shows that in nearly half a year of war Canada has but sent 4,000 men after the first contingent and that the total recruiting announced by the Prime Minister in November has not been carried out.—Toronto Star.

MAKING WILLS.

The interpretation of a will caused Judge Lennox, Toronto, last week to make the following comment: "There is no difficulty in constructing the will or administering the estate. There is a growing tendency to come to court for directions and advice upon points which present no difficulty for any solicitor who will read and think."

The greatest difficulties are presented when a will has not been made at all. The making of a will is one of the most simple and at the same time one of the most important duties of every man and woman. There are reputable lawyers and trust companies who will see that a will is properly made and that an estate is properly administered. Endless worries and troubles are caused by neglect to make a will. It is a matter for to-day.— Monetary Times.

MURDERED IN MEXICO.

Death of American Citizen Evokes Prompt Message From U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 13. — Encouraging advices telling of the relief of the food famine in Mexico City through the evacuation of the capital by the forces of Gen. Obregon, the Carranza commander, were beclouded yesterday by the news that on the entry of the Zapata troops, John B. McManus, an American citizen, was murdered—shot down in his home, the door of which had been sealed with the coat-of-arms of the United States, and over which flew the Stars and Stripes.

Instant demand was made by the Brazilian Minister on behalf of the United States Government for the punishment of those guilty. Secretary Bryan yesterday telegraphed a demand for reparation. The Minister was instructed to insist on the early punishment of the offenders.

Britain Buys Up Indigo.

DOG'S SAGACITY SAVES LIVES OF SIX PEOPLE

Special to The Examiner.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 13 — Six persons attribute the saving of their lives here early to-day to the sagacity of a pet dog that lost its own life as a result. The dog, a French poodle, belonged to Charles and Samuel Hill, twelve and fourteen years of age, respectively, living at No. 2,-416 Wadsworth Street. During the night the dog smelled burning wood, and first went to the bedroom of the two boys, jumped on the bed and pulled the clothes from them, awakening them. He then ran to the bedroom of Samuel Wade and wife, and barked at the bedside until they awoke. The cries of the latter aroused George Hill and wife, in another apartment, and the six escaped to the street, but the dog was suffocated, his body being found after the fire was extinguished.

SITUATION ALTERED.

British Operations at Neuve Chapelle Gave Allies Big Advantage.

LONDON, March 13.—A report of the recent activities of the British army in the field from the headquarters of Field Marshal Sir John French —one of the semi-weekly communications recently arranged for by the Government—was given out yesterday by the official information bureau. It is dated March 11, and describes the fighting which led to the capture of Neuve Chapelle, announced Thursday, as follows:

"Since my last communique the situation on our front, between Armentieres and La Bassee, has been materially altered by a successful initiative on the part of the troops engaged. Shortly after 8 a.m. on the 10th of March these troops assaulted and carried German trenches in the neighborhood of Neuve Chapelle.

"The co-operation between the artillery of all branches and the infantry was very good, with the result that the losses incurred were not great in proportion to the results achieved."

Mining In Belgium Recovering.

BRUSSELS, March 13.—(Via Berlin.)—According to Privy Councillor Bornhardt of the economic commission, appointed by the German Government to promote Belgian business interests, progress is being made toward normal industrial and transportation activity. It is stated that 107,-000 miners are working half time in the coal mines, as against 145,000 who operate the mines normally. The daily production of coal has reached 35,000 tons.

The iron industry has been more backward in resuming work because 35 per cent. of the product previously was exported and at present the export business is almost at a standstill.

France Sequestrating Alien Wealth.

PARIS, March 12.—Aristide Briand, Minister of Justice, in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, told of the sequestration of the property of Austrians and Germans by the Government, a fear having been expressed by several deputies that the law was not broad enough. M. Briand defended the idea of sequestration and the measures that had been taken by the Government in the premises.

He added that a total of 8,000 Austrian and German houses had been sequestered up to date.

WAR-WEARY FRENCH SOLDIERS TRANSFORMED AT HOSPITAL

After Two Weeks at Epernay They Emerge With Strength Restored---Sick Are Carefully Looked After in Different Hospitals.

Special to The Examiner.

PARIS, March 13—There is a French sanitary base at Epernay. Soldiers who succumb to the war in any way whatever are assembled here for treatment. They are distributed according to their form of suffering in the typhoid hospital, the great hospital for the seriously wounded, the hospital for the exhausted or one of the hospitals for the sick and slightly wounded. Some of these establishments I was permitted to visit and will try to describe.

The beds in Epernay, as in all the hospital bases close to the front, must be cleared out as quickly as possible to prepare for emergencies. Therefore, the sick or wounded who are strong enough to stand travel, are shipped to towns far in the rear—Lyons, Orleans, Bordeaux, Nice. As a result sanitary trains are continually running back and forth over the railroads.

I went through one of these trains. Patients able to sit up rode in passenger coaches. For the rest, ordinary box cars had been cleaned and painted beyond recognition and fitted along each side with a framework, from which could be swung a double tier of stretchers.

Each train had its doctor, its corps of nurses and its kitchen, cozy with a big range and rows of glowing brass utensils. As I walked forward through the aisle which runs from end to end of the train, I met a group of nurses serving soup and coffee to the burly invalids who lay under coarse blankets on the stretchers. To see their placid contentment as the hot liquid began to warm their insides was a joy.

Women Meet Every Train

So little is needed to give pleasure to these helpless soldiers! Most of them, being well enough to be taken on a train, are well enough to have healthy appetites. The Red Cross society has found this out and has supplemented the work of the train kitchens by establishing canteens in every considerable town.

When a load of wounded pulls in, devoted women in white caps and aprons go out to meet it with tea, coffee, chocolate and sandwiches. At the same time they ascertain if any of the men lack adequate clothing, for it is they who have charge of the distribution of the hundreds of woolen socks, undergarments, caps and mufflers knitted by the women and children of the community. The Epernay canteen, which is in the railway station, also supplies to all soldiers who have recovered and are on their way back to the front tiny vials of tincture of iodine, so that they can themselves disinfect any wounds they may happen to receive.

Turcos a Pitiful Sight.

As I was leaving the Canteen a Red Cross automobile backed up to the curbing. From under its cover there clambered down into the cold, drizzling rain half a dozen as miserable looking beings as I have seen in many a day. They were Turcos, fresh from the trenches, fagged out. The quantity of coats, sweaters, and mufflers in which they were swathed gave them a robust appearance which their limping gait, bowed shoulders, hollow brown cheeks, and dull or glittering eyes belied. They accepted some cigarettes from a bystander with dumb gratitude, and went into the station to huddle about the stove.

These men were what the French call "eclopes"—that is, broken down, lame, rheumatic, or otherwise unfit for service, without being actually ill. For such cases, as I have said, there is a special establishment in Epernay. I visited it.

In one of the buildings of the new barracks which have been turned to this use I saw a group of soldiers—dirty, sodden, utterly weary — who looked as if they could not be good for anything. Their muddy garments were being stripped from them, and one at a time they were being shoved under a shower bath. Presently they would receive fresh clean clothes, and march off to comfortable, warm quarters, where for a whole fortnight they would have nothing to do but sleep, eat, and regain their strength of body and mind.

Great Change in Two Weeks.

There is a barber shop at their disposal and a canteen where they may have all the tea or broth they want, day or night. This regime works wonders. All their worries disappear. Two weeks is the normal period of sojourn. Those still unfit to rejoin their regiment at the end of this time are subjected to another medical examination. There is usually something physically wrong with them.

From the "hospital des eclopes" I went to the group of large buildings comprising the typhid hospital. One of these was given up to cases merely suspected. In another there were the convalescent, sitting up in their beds, pale and thin, but cheerful, amusing themselves as best they could. For them, as for the "eclopes" charitable women send around bas-kets of dainties, while others come each day to read and talk to them.

But I also tiptoed through wards where reigned the silence of death. The men who lay upon the cots, along the grey walls, were themselves as still as death, while at intervals in the broad aisle a wimpled Sister of Mercy presided, seated quietly with her sewing, calm as eternity.

The most interesting hospital of all was that of the seriously wounded. Here indeed I seemed to breathe the wild spirit of war, for here under my eyes were its frightfully maimed victims, strong men struck down in their strength, some never more to rise from these narrow cots. This hospital is in the girls' high school, a fine new edifice admirably suited to its present use. About half the beds were occupied.

Russians Cheered by Own Tongue.

In our party was a Russian journalist. A nurse led him to a cot on which lay a lad not more than 20 years old—a Russian who, happening to be in France at the outbreak of war, had enlisted in the French Legion. His tired eyes shone with delight when my colleague addressed to him the first words of his native language he had heard in five months There was a bullet in his groin. He will recover. A few beds farther on a woman sat embroidering beside a soldier, evidently her husband. From time to time they spoke to each other, very softly. It was a touching symbol of the ties of a tenderness which connect the steel swept trenches with virtually every home in France. This woman was fortunate. She was one of the comparatively few who have been able to reach the bedsides of their beloved wounded.

Get Ready for the Easter Parade

The "fixing up" idea which absorbs more or less of our attention as the Easter season approaches should not be confined entirely to the matter of clothes. The thought to make oneself as attractive as possible is not at all inconsistent with our Lenten duties and suggests that at least a reasonable amount of attention be devoted to the hair.

Any scheme of adornment to be complete must include the use of Mustn't Fly Dutch Flag.

Another Church Shot to Pieces

LONDON, March 9.—With the sole exception of a crucifix, which was untouched, everything in the church at Messines, a Belgian town six miles south of Ypres, was destroyed as the result of fire following a bombardment of that place by heavy guns, according to a report of the "eye witness" with the British Headquarters' Staff, whose report this week includes a description of the remarkable resistance of mediaeval buildings to shell fire.

Great blocks of masonry were blown off the Messines church, the belfry was shot away and the interior was burned out, but the framework, though irregular in outline and full of gaping holes, is still standing, the writer says, defiant amid the surrounding ruins. The saved crucifix is life size and made of plaster. It was in the centre of a very fine oak screen.

Clothing can be made resistant to fire by dipping in a solution of a pound of ammonia phosphate to a gallon of water.

A NEGLECTED COLD WILL VERY OFTEN TURN TO CONSUMPTION.

Never neglect what at first seems to be only a slight cold. Perhaps you start to cough, a little irritation in the throat ensues, then it gets lower down, settles on the lungs and bronchitis sets in, and you start to raise phlegm of a greenish, yellowish color, and you cough persistently.

If you let the simple cold run it will surely develop into something very serious, and perhaps consumption.

On the first sign of a cold or cough go to your dealer and procure a bottle of

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

A few doses will convince you that it is just the remedy you require.

Mrs. J. W. Pearsons, Amherst, N.S., writes: "Some time ago my daughter had a very bad cough which settled on her chest. She had no rest day or night. I gave her everything I could think of, but without doing her the least bit of good. At last I thought of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle for her. She had not taken half of it before she got relief, and with the remainder she was completely cured. Now when any of the family have a cough we always know what to get for it."

Dr. Wood's is 25c and 50.

BURHAN EDDIN SLAIN.

PARIS, March 13. — The Balkan Agency has received the following despatch from Sofia, Bulgaria:

"Advices received here from Constantinople say that Mohemmed Burhan Eddin Effendi, favorite son of the former Sultan Abdul Hamid, has been found strangled in his bedroom.

"Despite the reserve of the Turkish police, it has been confirmed that the prince was killed by political enemies."

Prince Burhan Eddin Effendi was 29 years of age, and the fourth son of Abdul Hamid. He held the rank of lieutenant in the Turkish navy. During his father's reign he was fourteenth in line for succession to the throne, according to the Shereefian system, but it was said that Abdul Hamid designed to elevate him over his thirteen seniors and make him the next Sultan. In 1909 when Abdul Hamid was dethroned Prince Burhan Eddin was kept under surveillance in the palace for a time, charged with being concerned in a conspiracy for the restoration of absolutism.

Mrs. Newlywed says : "I've heard of 'Eddy's' Indurated Fibreware. What's the difference between Fibre and Woodenware ?"

"Fibreware is made from compressed fibre baked at extreme heat. All in one solid piece, it cannot warp or fall apart. No chance of splinters, wears much longer, looks better and is light to carry. The latter point you should always take into consideration," concludes Mrs. Wiseneighbour.

Ford

Sam and Charley Dilate On The New Ford Automobile

THE $590 FIVE PASSENGER TOURING CAR THAT YOU'LL FIND IN EVERY LAND

"Say, Sam, have you seen this year's Model T Ford Car?"

"No, why?"

"Well, I went down to the Duffus Garage the other day, and looked it over, and I think it is an epoch-making car now."

"In other words, you think it speaks for itself?"

"It surely does. But it's the new features which distinguish it this year that interested me; such as—(1) The new cowl dash; (2) the straight wind-shield, without any braces; (3) the new style lamps and electric headlights; and (4) new curved fenders on the rear wheels."

"Well, I hardly thought there was room for so much improvement on a Ford that sold at such a low figure."

"They certainly are a successful bunch—those Ford people. But you know, what has given the Ford the long lead it has is its characteristic construction, and the degree to which the possibilities of a car at such a moderate price has been developed."

"Well, I hadn't sized up the construction quite as critically as you appear to have done. But I may tell you, Charley, that I was going to buy a bigger car. And yet it looks to me as if it would be foolish to throw away so much extra money, just to humour a little pride, when I can do so much better with the Ford people. It's bad enough to let pride run away with one's best judgment, but when it runs away with your money, too, it's time to wake up."

"Right you are, Sam. Do you know, too, that when I was in the Duffus Garage I was talking to Eddie Collins, who has charge of the repair parts; and he tells me he has a stock of no less than $2,500 worth of Ford parts. So that you can easily get any part you want, big or little, on the spot. That's a big advantage. I know that when I happen to need a piece for my car all I have to do is to go to Eddie, and he will hand it out to me—and an expert mechanic to do the repairing, if I want one."

"Well, $590 is certainly setting a lively pace for this car; and leaves a big gap between it and all other competitors. Besides, if I remember right, buyers of Fords this year are to have a chance for a rebate off this price next fall."

"Not only that, but I believe one can get along with less than half the expense in tires, gasoline, oil and general up-keep, to say nothing of depreciation."

PROSPECTS FOR THE HIRED MAN

Demand For Help in Peterboro County is Beginning to Manifested Itself

Carrying a delapidated looking suitcase that might have survived a harvest excursion to the Northwest and back, a well developed looking individual glanced around the market for the farmer who a few hours previous had induced him to cast off the shackles that bound him to the city and become "a hired man." Having located his man, the owner of the suitcase dumped his worldly possessions into the buckboard and awaited his new found master's pleasure to transport him over the winding concession lines to an objective that will either prove itself a home or a place of detention until such time as the contract may expire. The amount of satisfaction that each of the parties will derive as a result of the contract will be as an inverse ratio to the expectations that form in the minds of the parties concerned.

"Hired Help Problem."

The aforesaid mentioned individual is only one of many who has sought communion with the cows and chickens. They are leaving Peterborough almost every day in ones and twos. Such an exodus though it is small is sufficient in the course of a few weeks to make itself felt. Families that have occupied a place in the meterphorical bread line have vanished with their husbands and are now serving the Empire in a way that is much to the liking of the agricultural authorities who have been advocating increased crop production. The "hired help problem" has always been the one common alibi out of which the farmer adduced an excuse for not producing a maximum amount of farm produce. This year the "hired help problem" is minimized to some extent by the depression that the war caused in other lines of industry so there should be sufficient men to meet the requirements. This is the time of the year when the average farmer begins to consider his needs in the way of labour and from now on until harvest time there should be a steady demand for farm labour, both finished and in the rough. Another important point that is noticeable in Peterborough County is the suspension of immigration so that any demand there may be will be available to those who are unemployed, locally.

CHEEPS ARE EXPENSIVE.

Germans Fine City of Lille $100,000 For Cheering Prisoners.

BERLIN, March 13. — (Via London.)—Because the inhabitants of Lille, a city in France occupied by the Germans, made a demonstration in honor of a group of prisoners of war bought into the city, the German military authorities in control imposed a tax of $100,000, to be paid by the city before March 20. The people of Lille also were forbidden to leave their houses between five o'clock in the evening and seven o'clock in the morning.

France Calls 1916 Class.

PARIS, March 13.—The Chamber of Deputies yesterday passed a bill calling out the 1916 class of recruits. These recruits will not be sent to the front, however, until after the men of the older classes are utilized.

A despatch from Paris, March 5, said the instruction of the class of 1915 recruits had progressed sufficiently for them to go into the active army and that M. Millerand, Minister of War, had introduced a bill in the Chamber which would give him the authorization to send them to the battle line at his discretion.

Big French Budget.

PARIS, March 13.—Deputy Albert Metin, reporting for the budget committee in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday upon the bill authorizing the Government to raise the issue of national defence bonds to 4,500,000,000 francs (approximately $900,000,000), announced that the subscriptions in France to these bonds already has reached 3,603,000,000 francs ($600,600,000). This amount added to the foreign subscriptions, Deputy Metin said, made a total of 3,654,000,000 francs ($730,800,000).

Maeterlinck Compares Modern Soldiers With Ancient Warriors

It is An Heroic Age, Says Belgian Writer--Real Courage of the Human Race Only Recently Revealed

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 13.—Maurice Maeterlinck, in an article in the Daily Mail, contrasts the heroism displayed in the present war with that of previous conflicts, saying that 'one of the consoling surprises of this war is the unlooked for and so to speak, universal heroism which it has revealed among all the nations taking part in it."

"We realize with amazement,' he continues, "that until to-day we had but an incomplete and inaccurate idea of man's courage. We looked upon it as an exceptional virtue and one which is the more admired as being also the rarer the farther we go back in history."

Of Homer's heroes M. Maeterlinck says:

"These models of antiquity, the first professors, the first masters of bravery, were not really very brave. They have a wholesome dread of being hit or wounded, and an ingenuous and manifest fear of death. Their mighty conflicts are declamatory and decorative, but not so very bloody; they inflict more noise than pain upon their adversaries; they deliver many more words than blows.

"The defensive weapons—and this is characteristic—are greatly superior to their arms of offence; and death is an unusual, unforseen and almost indecorous event which throws the ranks into disorder and most often puts a stop to the combat or provokes a headlong flight that seems quite natural. . . . This kind of courage is that of all antiquity more or less."

Courage Different To-day.

In the great wars of the Empire M. Maeterlinck seeks a courage which begins to resemble that of the present day, but with notable differences. The troops engaged were solely professionals, and never, as to-day, embracing every man between the ages of 18 and 50 capable of bearing arms.

"Again, and above all," he continues, "every war was reduced to two or three pitched battles; that is to say, two or three culminating moments; immense efforts, but efforts of a few hours or a day at most, toward which the combatants directed all the vigor and all the heroism accumulated during long weeks or months of preparation and waiting. Afterward, whether the result was victory or defeat, the fighting was over; relaxation, respite and rest followed; men went back to their homes.

"Nowadays everything is changed, and death itself is not longer what it was. Formerly you looked it in the face—you knew whence it came and who sent it to you. It had a dreadful aspect, but one that remained for man. . . . At present, to all these horrors, it adds the great intolerable fear of mystery. . . . It is always ready always on the watch, everywhere present, scattered, intangible and dense, stealthy and cowardly diffuse, all encompassing, innumerous, looming at every point on the horizon, rising from the water and falling from the skies, indefatigable, inevitable, filling the whole of space and time for days, weeks and months without a minute's lull, without a second's intermission. Men live, move and sleep in the mesh of its fatal web. They know the least step to the right or left, the head bowed or lifted, a body bent or upright, is seen by its eyes and draws its thunder.

Nerved to Face Death.

"Hitherto we had no example of this preponderance of the destructive forces. We should never have believed that man's nerves could resist so great a trial. The nerves of the bravest man are tempered to face death for the space of a second, by not to live in the hourly expectation of death and nothing else. . . . And so, at the very moment when man appeared more exhausted and enervated by the comforts and vice of civilization, at the moment when he was happiest and therefore more selfish, when, possessing the minimum of faith and vainly seeking a new ideal, he seemed least capable of sacrificing himself for an idea of any kind, he finds himself suddenly confronted with an unprecedented danger, which he is almost certain that the most heroic nations of history would not have faced nor even have dreamed of facing; whereas he does not even dream that it is possible to do aught but face it.

"It is not man's life that is at stake but the idea which he forms of the honour, the happiness and the duties of his life. To save his life he had but to submit to the enemy; the invader would not have exterminated him. We are not therefore speaking of a heroism that would be, but the last resource of despair. . . . No, it is heroism freely donned, hailed deliberately and unanimously, heroism on behalf of an idea and a sentiment in other words, heroism is the clearest, purest and most virginal form, a disinterested and whole-hearted sacrifice for that which men regard as their duty to themselves, to their kith and kin, to mankind and to the future."

WAS DEVOURED BY A SHARK

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 13.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance three years ago at St. Augustine, Fla., of John B. Mooney, was cleared up to-day when his son, Edgar J. Mooney, received word from Miami, Fla., that the upper portion of a human skeleton, which is thought to be that of J. B. Mooney had been found in the stomach of a shark caught near there early this week.

The shark was caught a few days ago by Henry Sanford, of Richfield, Conn., wintering at Miami. It was one of a catch of ten made off Soldiers' Key, fourteen miles below Miami, and was the largest of the lot. When the shark was cut open there was found in the stomach the skull, shoulder blades, thigh bone, upper arm bone and finger of a human being. The teeth furnished the clue.

ANNUITY IS APPROVED

TORONTO, March 13.—In recognition of the services which the late Sir James Whitney rendered his province during 25 years of public life, the Ontario Legislature will vote to Lady Whitney an annuity of $2,000 per year during her lifetime. This step was agreed upon in the House yesterday on motion of Hon. W. H. Hearst and the leader of the Opposition giving his hearty approval. The annuity will date from Sept. 25, 1914.

The Mortgagers' and Purchasers' Relief Act, familiarly known as the moratorium, passed the committee stage in the Legislature yesterday. An hour was spent by the members in discussing contentious clauses held over from the last hearing, and with some important amendments made, the bill was advanced. One vital point settled upon the judges concerned the right to fix rates of interest in actions where capital payments could not be met.

The Attorney-General stated that the bill was not designed to include corporations issuing bonds on mortgages, an amendment excluding them from its scope was passed.

T. Herbert Lennox (N. York) was appointed chairman of the public accounts committee at its initial meeting.

What Cures Eczema?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription, can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbours unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription. All druggists have D.D.D., 25c, $1.

Drop into our store to-day, just to talk over the merits of this wonderful Prescription. Ask also about D. D. D. Soap.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

ARE YOU ONE OF THE MANY hundreds who have visited the Cressman store during the past few days—the occasion of the Formal Spring Opening? If so, you will assuredly agree that here is one store at least that can boast without the slightest degree of exaggeration "Business as Usual".

Under existing conditions bringing about such a favourable state of business affairs has been far from an easy task. It means that we have striven and are still striving for the newer, better and superior merchandise and service—in other words we keep ourselves in a restless state of progress all the time, the whole thought of the management, buyers and staff being centred on serving the public satisfactorily.

It has been a hard tussle from start to finish to make our usual comprehensive showing of new Spring merchandise, but success has crowned our efforts. This in itself is quite an achievement, for when you pause to realize that the great textile manufacturing centres of France and Belgium have been devastated by the war now raging and that the English mills have to devote a great deal of their time to government orders, the task has been far from an easy one.

These facts emphasize the advisability of our customers making early selections, for whilst the stocks are at present complete we are confident that in a few short weeks many lines will not be again obtainable for several months to come.

In order to supplement some of the stocks, Mr. Harry Cressman has just made a most successful buying trip to New York. He reports that he has made large important purchases of Spring and Summer merchandise; these new lines will be on display during the next few days.

BRITISH CRUISER BAYANO TORPEDOED ON PATROL DUTY

Remainder of Crew of Two Hundred Men and Fourteen Officers Are Presumed to be Dead. Another German Submarine is Reported Sunk by Fouling Trawler's Ropes in North Sea.

LONDON, March 13.—The Admiralty issued an official statement last night reporting the loss of the auxiliary cruiser Bayano while on patrol duty. Evidence points to her having been torpedoed by a submarine. But 27 of the Bayano's crew of probably more than 200 are known to survive Fourteen officers, including the commander, are presumed to be dead.

The Belfast correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says the Bayano was torpedoed Thursday morning at nine o'clock off Corsewall Point, Wigtownshire, Scotland, and that nearly 200 lives were lost, as the cruiser sank almost immediately. The vessel had a crew of about 216 men on board.

Wigtownshire is the southwesternmost county in Scotland. It lies on the North Channel, which leads into the Irish Sea from the Atlantic.

The loss of the Bayano is the heaviest blow yet struck by the German submarine since the announcement of the blockade of the British coast on Feb. 18, the ship being practically new.

The Bayano was a steel twin screw steamer of 5,948 tons. She was built in Glasgow in 1913, was 410 feet long, and equipped with all the latest submarine signalling apparatus. Before the war she was owned by Elders & Fyffes.

In its statement of the disaster the Admiralty says:

"On the 11th of March wreckage of the Bayano and bodies were discovered, and circumstances point to her having been sunk by an enemy torpedo.

"Eight officers and eighteen men were rescued, but it is feared that the remainder of the crew perished.

First news of the disaster was brought to port by Captain McGarrick of the British steamer Castlereagh, who stated that his ship on Thursday morning passed through a quantity of wreckage and bodies strewn thick in the water, some still floating limp on pieces of the wreckage.

Capt. McGarrick stopped his ship and attempted to prosecute a search for possible survivors; but was prevented by the appearance of a German submarine, which chased the Castlereagh. Those saved drifted from the scene of the sinking Bayano on wreckage, and were picked up by other passing vessels.

The sinking of another German submarine was reported to the Admiralty yesterday by the owners of the trawler Alex. Chastice. They telegraphed from North Shields that the submarine was fouled by the ropes of the trawler in the North Sea and foundered in twenty minutes with all on board.

Reports which were current in London last night to the effect that the King had signed an order-in-council embodying the British policy of reprisals appear to have been based on a misapprehension. One or two papers, for instance The Daily Mail, accepted the reports as authoritative, and it is understood that these were cabled to America as a statement of fact. The misunderstanding doubtless arose from the circumstance that there had been laid before the Privy Council for his Majesty's signature an order-in-council which appeared in last night's Gazette respecting additional contraband.

WOOL NOW FORBIDDEN

LONDON, March 13.—The British Government, it was announced yesterday, has added the following articles to the absolute contraband list:

Wool, woollen and worsted yarns, wool tops, tin, chloride of tin, tin ore, castor oil, paraffin wax, copper, iodine, lubricants, hides, and all kinds of leather suitable for military equipment, ammonia and its salts, urea, aniline and its compounds.

Food stuffs for animals, heretofore on the conditional contraband list, are broadened to include oleaginous seeds, nuts and kernels, and animal and vegetable oils and fats, other than linseed oil, suitable for the manufacture of margarine cakes and meals.

The announcement that wool has been made contraband probably will result in an alteration of the arrangement whereby wool was consigned to American banks and held to the order of the chairman of the Textile Alliance, for release to American mills.

CHILDREN ARE BURNED

One is Dead and Another Dying as Result of St. Thomas Fire.

ST. THOMAS, March 13.—Lillian, three-year-old daughter of Leonard Catchpole, of St. Thomas, was burned to death in her home yesterday afternoon, and her two-year-old sister was so severely burned that no hopes are held out for her recovery. It is believed the children were playing with matches.

Mrs. Catchpole was called to the bedside of a sick neighbor, and she left the children in the house alone. In a few minutes flames were seen bursting from the windows, and the mother, rushing back, tried to enter the burning house to rescue her children, but was driven back by the flames.

A fireman later entered by an upstairs window and found the remains of the three-year-old girl lying on the floor and the younger unconscious in the corner of the room behind a door, where she had hidden to get away from the flames.

Japan Will Forego Demands.

PEKIN, March 13. — Having already agreed to the Chinese counter-proposals to discuss Manchuria and Mongolia separately, the Japanese representatives have now verbally informed China that they will forego completely several of their demands.

Furthermore, Japan is prepared to modify the proposed clauses concerning the Hanang, Tayeh and Ping-Siang mining concessions and revise her requirements concerning Japanese residents and traders in Manchuria and Mongolia.

Would Commandeer Food.

LONDON, March 13.—Under the auspices of the Workers' War Emergency National Committee, Arthur Henderson, M.P., presiding, a mass meeting was held in London yesterday to discuss the prices of food and fuel. A resolution urging the Government to commandeer the stock of wheat in the country at a fair price for re-sale to the public was adopted The price of these re-sales should not exceed 40s. per quarter.

Approaching Completion of Trent Canal Should Awaken Interest of Peterboro People

Mayor Buller dreams radials these nights, and under the searching light of day examines his fairy structure with many questionings as to when it will take form. A year ago he hopped on the Hydro-radial waggon and ever since has been gradually hitting up the pace until it has almost caught his breath, as the boys say. And every citizen is hoping that his roseate scheme will be realized to the full.

Mr. Burnham has another idea which he voiced at some length toward the end of last summer. Conversations with some of the electorate doubtless brought home to him that the average ratepayer had assumed the attitude that the Trent Canal "would never amount to anything anyway." Hence, they did not concern themselves as to whether the canal was completed or not, or whether it became useful.

But Mr. Burnham takes the other tack. He sees the completion of this waterway in the near future, and if it is to be an asset let Peterborough get busy, appraise it, discover its possibilities, but first of all stamp it with the name "Peterborough."

He first suggested that this city should arrange to commemorate the opening by a big event in this vicinity. He wrote to the Federal representatives of the various ridings along the canal route, soliciting their co-operation and in practically every case received an encouraging answer. That was last autumn. Spring is approaching, and Mr. Burnham's vision returns with all its original embellishments.

Peterborough is the largest municipality along the canal, and will have a dry-dock somewhere along its water-front. It has everything to gain from any utility the canal may offer. The imagination leaps to the Burnham vision of barges laden with coal, grain, lumber, general merchandise passing up and down this waterway. But apart from dreams, the canal is soon to be completed, and its potentialities, especially to this city's welfare, are undiscovered.

Hence, Mr. Burnham is anxious that the citizens awaken to his view of the future. When the canal is in operation along its whole route, everybody who knows of it should also associate Peterborough with it. For example, manufacturers should know that this city has easy and cheap communication with Lake Ontario, in short that it is practically a lake port. This is the advantage Mr. Burnham desires to emphasize. He states that the canal will be entirely open this year for light draught vessels, and next year will be fully completed. The opportunity seems at hand, but the preparations for it must be undertaken by the citizens.

Kaiser Serious, Calm and Reverent in Field Church

MUNICH, March 13.— An impressive picture of the Kaiser at divine services is given by Ludwig Ganghofer, the well known Bavarian author, who called on Emperor William at great headquarters. In the Munich Neueste Nachrichten he writes the following:

"In the little city which harbours the great headquarters a large room has been transformed into a church, and here divine services are held for the Kaiser and the garrison of the headquarters.

"It is the hour for service. The large room is filled with rows of soldiers—soldiers of the line, reserves and landstrum — strong, sturdy figures, with healthy, calm, bearded faces, and also the small cavalry troop of the royal guard, which is formed from all the cavalry regiments of the German States.

"In their pews officers and musicians stand awaiting the Emperor. A command is given, and the click of the soldiers' heels sounds like a blow of iron. On the board floor next sounds the quiet but steady tread of a single man. Through files of soldiers the Kaiser strides to his pew.

"An ancient hymn now swells from 2,000 throats in a mighty wave, thrilling all who hear. It vibrates with the fervour of faith. The hymn ends, and we are now to hear the sermon.

"The preacher reads from the gospel of the Epiphany the story of the wise men of the East, who, led by their star, journeyed forth devoutly seeking Christ. In a manner appealing to the most critical intellect and yet comprehensive to the most simple, the preacher interprets the Biblical story.

"From it he draws the parable of the eternal human helmet, the restless straining of early hope toward higher and better ideals. He then pictures our nation, striving, longing, trusting in God; a nation which set out in countless numbers with consecrated weapons, leaving hearth and home, to struggle, to preserve its liberty. Led by the star of German hope, fortified by truth and fidelity, this nation, he says, will progress through conflict and trial toward a period of fruition and harvest and will then put all malice to shame. And those who fight will return to their homes, their souls strengthened with a firm belief in God's power and justice, their hearts filled with joy, their banners decorated with laurels of victory.

"As the inspired promise rings out from the altar across the wide room two thousand soldiers' hearts warm with joy. The song of thanksgiving thrills with reverence and trust in God—ardent longing for home, tender thoughts of the sons of the fathers and mothers, eager dreams of love.

"Now, as the hymn dies away, every thing grows perfectly quiet. There is no shuffling of feet, no clearing of throats, but absolute silence. The Kaiser has risen and has taken his helmet from his head. His face is happier, his eyes are brighter than when he came. With his face raised to the cross the Emperor prays in silence. Only one hears his prayer, but we Germans who know him know what it is. He prays as a father for wife and child, as a human being for all the people, as ruler for home and nation and army. I could not take my eyes away from him. I am filled with sentiments of awed reverence and confidence. I am still filled with the inspiration and courage received as outside in the sun I watch the troops forming to file past the Kaiser to the sound of file and drum."

Scene From "Tipperary" Coming to the Grand

Gus Hill's "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" catches on in Canada! Will be seen in this city at the Grand Opera House Thursday night, March 18th.

It is unlikely that any play of American origin has ever received the unique distinction the Press of Toronto has given to Gus Hill's production of "It's a Long Way to Tipperary."

"If the Territorial Government had produced the play for the purpose of encouraging recruits, the appeal could not have been stronger."

"'It's a Long Way to Tipperary' contains just those ingredients that the public want. A triumph of the stage mechanics art. A realistic production of what we have been reading about in the daily despatches, since last August. There's nothing far-fetched in the whole play."

"There's extraordinary efficiency in the cast. It is stirring in its appeal and should attract large audiences throughout the length and breadth of Canada. If the play is enacted in American theatres exactly as it was shown here last night, the sympathies of the people on the other side must unmistakably be Great Britain, because the British sentiment is delightfully strong."

INQUIRY AGREED TO

Public Accounts Committee Will Hear War Supplies Charges.

OTTAWA, March 13.—After some discussion the House of Commons yesterday afternoon referred to the public accounts committee practically all the charges of extravagance and graft in relation to the purchase of supplies for the first contingent. A. K. Maclean (Halifax) moved that all the correspondence between the Auditor-General and the Militia Department be referred to that committee for investigation. The main part of the correspondence appears in the annual report of the Auditor-General and has already been published.

Sir Robert Borden said there was no precedent for referring the expenditure of the current year to the public accounts committee, but he would not oppose the motion as the Government desired the fullest investigation. Some of the correspondence related to the purchase of medical supplies from a Chicago firm through a Mr. Powell of Ottawa and in that connection the name of Mr. Garland, the member for Carleton, had been mentioned. In justice to Mr. Garland the inquiry should proceed without delay.

The return asked by Hon. Dr. Pugsley regarding B. C.'s purchase of two Chilian submarines was brought down by the Minister of Naval Affairs. It contains a statement by Sir Richard McBride, in which he shows that the submarines were inspected and approved by officers of the Naval Department. They were proclaimed thoroughly modern and seaworthy, and in view of the fact that German cruisers were in the vicinity of the Pacific coast, the British Columbia Premier deemed their purchase in the national interest.

Sir Richard vigorously denies that there was any commission, and demands an investigation into the whole transaction by a Parliamentary commission.

In making out the order-in-council for the payment of the submarine there was a clerical error of $100,000. This error is explained in the return.

The matter will come up for investigation in the public accounts, and Sir Richard McBride may be called to give evidence.

HOW TO CURE RHEUMATISM

The Disease is Always Rooted in the Blood, Which Must Be Made Rich and Pure

There are still many people who imagine that rheumatism can be cured by liniments and rubbing, overlooking the medical fact that the trouble is rooted in the blood. Rheumatism can only be cured by cleansing and enriching the blood, thus driving out of the system the poisonous acids which cause the rheumatic pains. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure the most obstinate cases of rheumatism because they go straight to the root of the trouble in the blood. Every dose helps to make rich, red blood, and this new blood expells the poisonous acid, bringing health and comfort to the tortured victim. Do not waste time and money in liniments and outward applications. Give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and thus drive the disease out of your system. Here is proof of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can do in cases of this kind. Mr. Richard Palmer, Wroxeter, Ont., says: "For months my life was made miserable through a combined attack of rheumatism and sciatica. The rheumatism seemed to settle in all my joints and the sciatica pains were so great that I could scarcely hobble about. I am a farmer, and so you can understand that in my condition I was unable to do my ordinary work. Neither doctors nor various remedies I took did me any good. Finally I was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and for this I have much to be thankful for, as after taking a few boxes the pains began to disappear, and by the time I had taken nine boxes every twinge of both the rheumatism and the sciatica had disappeared and I was able to go to work again as usual, and have not lost a day through illness since. I am thoroughly grateful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me and hope my experience will benefit some other sufferer."

It is the curing of just such cases as these that has given Dr. Williams' Pink Pills their worldwide popularity. You can get the Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

OXO CUBES

within sound of the guns

An interesting letter from a sergeant in the above regiment:—

"At last we are where we wanted to be, and are contented with our little lot. We had a fairly good Christmas dinner, which consisted of bully beef and biscuits, and whatever we could forage. My friend and myself did not do so badly, as we had one carrot, one-half turnip, two leeks, one onion, TWO OXO CUBES and twelve ounces of bully beef, with three hard biscuits, all mixed up and boiled in a beef tin.

"To-day we had our Christmas pudding, one-half pound to a man, one pound tin of jam between four men, and a small bottle of wine, also between four men.

"We are all in good spirits, and also within sound of big guns."

Winter weather is OXO CUBE weather. What could be more invigorating and sustaining than a steaming, delicious cup of OXO, which gives that rich, strengthening beef-nourishment the body needs to withstand cold and fatigue?

OXO CUBES beat all the old ideas for food-quickness. Simply drop an OXO CUBE into a cup of hot water—stir—and it's ready.

THE PLEASURES OF READING

By F. M. DELA FOSSE

Speaking entirely according to my own judgment, I believe that there is no reading so serviceable to the ordinary human being with no pretensions to deep scholarship or literary culture as reading of a miscellaneous character. The man or woman who goes in for a special course of study and makes that the chief aim of literary research is not going to be of any particular value in ordinary life. The philosopher, for example, is not generally noted for business acumen, however highly he may be rated in the intellectual world, neither is the professional men, outside of the legal fraternity. But the man who dips here and there for his reading, taking pleasure it a few draughts of Natural Science one day, of Fiction the next, and of History or Biography the next is bound to get a more extended view of me and its requirements than the man who has only one brand of reading in his repertory. This thought came very forcibly to my mind on looking through a compilation by Harold Begbie, entitled, "The Red Book of Happiness," which has just been added to the Library. One can well understand, on reading his introductory remarks that he found it a work of great difficulty to get together within its fairly voluminous covers a selection of extracts suitable to all tastes and without the faintest suspicion of uncleanness in any of them. It is most enjoyable to come across specimens of the work of Calverley and of Austin Dobson, both of whom in days gone by wrote the most pleasing light verse that one could wish to read. Calverley was probably the cleverest parodist of the Victorian era and one could almost wish sometimes that he had put his splendid powers to more serious use, as his poetical gift was very great. Take the following example for instance.

Motherhood.

She laid it where the sunbeams fall
Unscann'd upon the broken wall,
Without a tear, without a groan,
She laid it near a mighty stone
Which some rude swain had haply cast
Thither in sport long ages past,
And Time with mosses had o'erlaid,
And fenced with many a tall grass-blade,
And all about bid roses bloom
And violets shed their soft perfume.
There, in its cool and quiet bed,
She set her burden down and fled:
Nor flung, all eager to escape,
One glance upon the perfect shape
That lay, still warm and fresh and fair,
But motionless and soundless there.

No human eye had marked her pass
Across the linden-shadowed grass
Ere yet the minster clock chimed seven:
Only the innocent birds of heaven—
The magpie, and the rook whose nest
Swings as the elm-tree waves his crest—
And the lithe cricket, and the hoar
And huge-limbed hound that guards the door,
Look'd on when, as a summer wind
That passing, leaves no trace behind.
All unapparrelled, barefoot all,
She ran to that old ruin'd wall,
To leave upon the chill dank earth
(For, ah! she never knew its worth!)
'Mid hemlock rank and fern and ling,
And dew of night that precious thing!

And there it might have laid forlorn
From morn till eve, from eve till morn;
But that, by some wild impulse led,
The mother, ere she turn'd and fled,
One moment stood erect and high:
Then pour'd into the silent sky
A cry so jubilant, so strange,
That Alice as she strove to range
Her rebel ringlets at her glass—
Sprang up and gazed across the grass;
Snook back those curls so fair to see,
Clapp'd her soft hands in childish glee;
And shriek'd—her sweet face all aglow,
Her very limbs with rapture shaking—
"My hen has laid an egg, I know;
And only hear the noise she's making."

I have taken this specimen of Calverley's work to show the lighter side of the book. There is a good deal of the light side, but there is also the more serious side represented by scores upon scores of authors; pieces not too short to be disappointing, nor too long to be burdensome.

One other extract, from Horace Walpole's celebrated letters, will serve to show us that even in his day people were beginning to theorize and put into practice in a crude way the ideas that to-day are exemplified in our many varieties of air-craft. "But I chiefly amused myself" he writes, "with ideas of the change that would be made in the world by the substitution of balloons to ships. I supposed our seaports to become Deserted Villages; and Salisbury Plain, Newmarket Heath and all downs arising into dockyards for aerial vessels. In those days Old Barum will again be a town and have houses in it. There will be fights in the air with windguns and bows and arrows; and there will be prodigious increase of land for tillage, especially in France, by breaking up all public roads as useless. "Walpole wrote when the Montgolfier Brothers' pioneer attempts as balloonists were creating excitement in England.

THE BOARD OF TRADE NEEDS YOU!

Annual Meeting Will Be Held To-night in the Council Chamber and a Large Attendance is Hoped For

The annual meeting of the Board of Trade has been arranged for this evening, and if there was ever a time when this organization needed the support of the citizens, it is now. If you look up and down the Province you will find in almost every case that the Board of Trade is a barometer of civic progress and enterprise. But it matters not what other communities have done nor should the objective of a Board of Trade be to merely emulate the efforts and accomplishments of others. As far as Peterborough is concerned such a body should build its own structure, fix its aims upon some definite work and steadily adhere to them with sufficient flexibility to consider contingent concerns.

The past weakness of the Board has not been in its members, but rather in its lack of members. Its past shortcomings have not resulted from inclinations to accomplish too little, but rather to attempt too much. The members gazed along the entire horizon of possibilities, instead of centralizing their attention upon one point. It may be argued that the Board of Trade should not confine its efforts to one or two objects. On the other hand, if sailing with a free rudder has led nowhere in particular, possibly something might be done if the slack gear were tightened.

As an illustration, consider the city's Patriotic Fund campaigns. The first was begotten in a muddle and remained in the self same muddle. The second attempt was set out with sails trimmed under a particular guiding star, and the result was a most satisfying success. The incentives were the same in either case, but there was a plus element in the latter which assured accomplishment.

The man on the street will tell you that the Board lacks "pepper"; extremists suggest that it is merely the shade of an interred weakling long since dissolved into dust. Discounting the latter expression, one might conclude that the dearth of enthusiasm is attributable to either of two causes or to both.

The deficiency may lie within the membership, in which case it might be advisable to pass the microscope around to locate the bacillus. However, it is generally admitted that a general cause of the Board's incapacity is that there are not enough of the citizens affiliated with it. It is regarded with indifference by those who should be on its lists and actively engaged in outlining some work to be undertaken.

This may be adduced as the Board's real difficulty. On the other hand, however, the weakness may lie in the lack of objective. If the Board of Trade could determine upon some work worth attempting, it would surely engender in the members an enthusiasm which would soon enlist the assistance of those who stand aloof. The mere existence of the organization should impel every public-spirited citizen to rally to it. And these are the very men who will refuse to waste their time discussing trifles. Hence, it seems doubly imperative that the Board should have a well-defined objective.

For the present, it is important that there should be a good attendance at to-night's meeting. On the surface it would seem an easy matter to select some project for the city's good which would arouse the interest of the citizens. There is no room in these few remarks to suggest different matters that are pending and in which the public should be deeply concerned. It is sufficient to register a reminder that those who are willing to help should do so now.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

What's Doing in Civic Circles—Items of Interest Concerning Municipal Administration

The Board of Works Department have a number of men employed in the opening up of the catch basins and water courses throughout the city in anticipation of a thaw.

Clean Up Campaign.

With an early spring in prospect there is a tendency among many householders to clean up their back yards, and thereby assist the authorities in making Peterborough a better place to live in.

The Health Department.

Sanitary Inspector Spence will soon start on his spring inspection of backyards, and such other places that are apt to be overlooked in respect to sanitary arrangements.

Tax Rate.

A meeting of the City Council will probably be held some time next week when the question of striking the tax rate for the current year will be disposed of.

SPIRIT OF BRITAIN IS VERY SANGUINE

the Balkan States of the coming fall of Constantinople expressed last week will come true. By the time fall approaches all the Balkan countries will be in the war on the side of the Allies. The delay on the part of Greece in entering the conflict is almost certain to bring Bulgaria in.

At home there is a welcome change in the labour situation. The strike on the Clyde so shocked the people that the strikers were forced to bow to public opinion. Similarly, I was able to end the strike of the coal heavers at Liverpool, by appealing to the patriotism of the strikers. The public there, as elsewhere was quick to condemn any strike for higher wages at a time so critical.

Sweeping Powers.

In the meantime the government has taken with the full assent of the public, and almost without discussion, powers that are sweeping in character. Their last measure giving the government the right to commandeer any or all works which they may think are necessary to arm, feed and equip the military and naval forces, was accepted unanimously. Some see in this measure an intention on the part of the government, in case any armament firm threatens to close down, owing to labour disputes, to take over that business, the government handling itself the question of wages and runing the business along military lines.

The tranquil surface of the House of Commons was disturbed this week by the sudden squall over the Welsh dis-establishment bill. The Welsh Liberal members were all in revolt because of the concession to the Tories, especially complaining that they were not consulted regarding the measure. There will be a big protest next week, and it is doubtful whether the compromise bill proposed by the government will pass by a majority. On the whole, I incline to the expectation that the pressure of the war will eventually compel the Welshmen to submit, although they may succeed in postponing acceptance of the bill until after the Easter vacation.

The German Atrocities.

The committee appointed some weeks ago under the presidency of Lord Bryce, which included several eminent lawyers as members, to investigate the charges of atrocities against Germans in Belgium and France, will probably not report for three or four weeks. However, it has leaked out that this body of keen, critical and even sceptical men, are astounded and horrified at the conclusive evidence of the absolute truth of the charges against the Germans. Some have openly expressed their horror and surprise at the revelations made in connection with stories of the violation of women in Belgium. There are now added similar horrors in connection with like tragedies in France. Thus passion between the warring nations grows fiercer every hour. As victory becomes assured for the Allies their rage increases.

I have talked with important emissaries from France who have come to England to negotiate concerning certain outstanding questions. They are even more sanguine over the outcome than English soldiers who have just come from the front. They report France transformed as much spiritually as from a military viewpoint. The French, who hated war, now regard it as a blessing in disguise, as giving the nation under the most favourable circumstances the certainty of relieving future generations of their race from the terror of a German invasion and Prussian arrogance.

Volunteer Demonstration.

The chief event in Ireland this week was the big volunteer demonstration in Belfast. More vigorous efforts are being made to complete arming the force. Easter Sunday will see a big demonstration in Dublin. Volunteers from all parts of the country will take part to help the new recruiting campaign started by England last week.

John Redmond will speak at Manchester to-morrow, and meetings will be held in several other English and Scotch towns. As Irish Great Britain has already sent more than a hundred thousand to the front, nearly twenty per cent. of the entire male adult Irish population, it will be difficult to find more, but we hope to gather four thousand more to complete the Irish Brigade now training in Ireland.

THE BRITISH NAVY AND ITS GREAT WORK

Interesting Lecture by Mr. Cecil G. Williams, Ex-Gunner.

One would get the impression that Peterborough people were not very vitally interested in the British navy, judging by the number who turned up at the Collegiate Institute last night, for the address by Mr. Cecil G. Williams, a reservist and ex-gunner of the navy on "The British Navy and Its Work." The hall was only about half filled, and the many empty seats did not indicate a deep interest in the wonderful organization that is keeping back from British homes the devastation that has swept over Belgium and part of France.

Mr. Williams proved a most interesting speaker. He has a fine grasp of the English language and its possibilities, and his word pictures held the audience from start to finish. In his preliminary remarks he graphically described some incidents in the everyday life of the navy, and then passed on to discuss the navy as it is today, going into detail into Lord Fisher's policy of centralising the fleet so that when the time came it was ready. The speaker showed what the British navy has already accomplished, keeping the sea highways open, and driving the German commerce from the seas. Not a soldier had been lost in the course of transportation. "Of the men handed over to the British navy to protect," remarked Mr. Williams, "not one has lost his life."

The lecturer gave many figures about the navy that were new to his hearers and altogether his address was a most interesting one.

A vote of thanks, moved by Mr. John Crane, and seconded by Mr. Wm. Madill, was tendered the speaker. Lt.-Col. D. Walker was chairman.

During the evening Miss Dorothy Allan sang very effectively the recruiting song 'Your King and Country Need You," and Mr. Douglas Carlisle was heard to good advantage in the solo "His Majesty the King."

The proceeds were donated to the Patriotic Fund.

HOME GUARD COMPETITION VERY CLOSE

The Home Guard competition for the Nicholls Trophy will finish to-night at 10 o'clock and the result will be bulletined in front of the Examiner. It is understood that the contest is decidedly close and that only one point separates the two leading companies, while five men are tied for the individual first place.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE VICS---O. H. A. CONTROVERSY STILL GOING ON MERRILY

TORONTO, March 13.— When the Victorias lost their standing with the Ontario Hockey Association, Manager Reade gave out the information that they had been assured of the support of the Canadian Association in the establishment of a city league in Toronto, independent of the O.H.A. The Ontario Hockey Association was well aware that this was pure boncombe, since a city or local league can have no status or recognition from the Canadian Association, which deals only with Provincial bodies. The O.H.A. had a large hand in the building of the Canadian Association, and it was not built that way. The plans did not provide any perches on which 'grouch leagues,' or fly-by-night organizations of any kind, might roost. Control of their territory was given to the Provincial bodies, and then this clause of the constitution took effect:

The O.H.A. Inquires.

It was plain that Mr. Reade's statement was incorrect, or that he was being deluded into the belief that the thing could happen. Such a wanton disregard of the Ontario Association's control of its territory by the Winnipeg officers seemed so incredible that Secretary Hewitt immediately sent the following wire to Secretary Robinson of the Canadian Association:

"Reported here in statements from Reade and by President of Victorias that you and Dr. Taylor, gave Vics. assurance of support for a city league in Toronto next season in opposition to O.H.A. Please confirm or deny, as we mean to bring matter before Winnipeg meeting and wish to instruct our delegate."

The President's Predicament.

"We told them if they formed a city league they would become members of the C.A.H.A. through the O.H.A. In the event of the O.H.A. refusing to recognize they would probably be considered by C.A.H.A."

Plainly President Taylor had set no limit to the length he was prepared to go in his frantic eagerness to force or delude the Victorias into games with Melville. It was not a matter of the slightest real moment to the C.A.H.A. whether the Vics. defaulted to Melville, or were beaten by the Saskatchewan team, and it is hard to understand the fever that is indicated by the admission in Dr. Taylors' reply. The promise to the Vics. could not possibly be carried out, and any suggestion of such a thing displays either woeful ignorance of the very origin and composition of the C.A.H.A., or else a determination to waive that part of the constitution as well as the residence clause. The Victorias appear to have been "jolly well humbugged" as soon as they abandoned the control of the O.H.A., and swallowed every yarn that was offered them.

Will Maintain Provincial Rights.

The O.H.A. is thoroughly incensed over the course of the Winnipeg officials, and will make it plain at Monday's meeting that the President and Secretary cannot play fast and loose with the regulations and expect the members to submit. The President was elected to administer the rules as he found them, and has no authority to vary them. The Secretary was appointed by the President, as the rules provide, and is not even a member of the executive. These are some of the things that will be dwelt on when their high-handed disregard of the rights of members is under discussion on Monday.

Eastern Canada Solid.

President Farquharson and Secretary Hewitt left last night for Winnipeg, and were accompanied by Dwight J. Turner, who represents President Jupp of the Inter-collegiate Hockey Union as a member of the Executive A Quebec representative is expected to join en route, and all the organized hockey east of Port Arthur will be lined up in opposition to any improper assumption of authority by the President, and any interference with the constitutional rights of Provincial associations. Support for this position is also anticipated from Alberta and British Columbia when the issue is made clear to them, but, no matter what happens, the O. H. A. will not haul down its flag. Knowing something of the difficulties attending the application of rules in new and small communities, it is prepared to extend every possible consideration to the younger Provincial bodies, but can make no compromise on the elementary principles that must be the basis of the C.A.H.A., the amateur and residence requirements.

Lawyers Profit More Than All Others in Baseball Struggle

Anybody who thinks that the Bar Association of America—the lawyers who use that title, that is—does not owe a vote of thanks to the Federal League, is invited to send to Secretary Bruce of the national commission, for a copy of its annual report, just issued. By browsing through it he will learn that two attorneys alone —Ellis Kinkead and John Galvin of Cincinnati — the regular attorneys for the National Commission, took down $10,427.8, and didn't have to work very hard for it either. They got $1,500 each as salary. There is $7,427.68 pickup.

Real legal fighting did not begin until comparatively well along in the year. And the biggest money bag cleaner of all, the case before Judge Landis, was not started until after the report closed. Other lawyers are credited with receiving $1,95.71, and Jresident Johnson was paid $1,800.40 in attorney's fees. As he is not a lawyer, he probably was given this to transmit to some one not named.

That's about $14,000 that you can trace as paid directly by the commission in lawyer's charges. It doesn't include anything that either league, as such, may have paid out or that the various clubs of the two majors, a number of which plunged into the legal battling, may have spent. Neither does it include salary and expenses of Robert McRoy, whose chief duty last season was to watch the Federals for the commission and keep it posted. Other expense items cannot be traced decisively.

When they get through paving the expenses of the Lands hearing and other procedures of this spring it is probable that enough money will have been handed over to others employed in the fight against the Feds. to give a $500 raise to every one of the 200 men that the eight clubs of the American league legally can carry this season.

J. E. A. FITZGERALD AND ARCHIE MOORE PLAY INTER-RINK FINALS

The inter-rink finals will be played at the Curling Rink to-night, with Archie Moore and J. E. A. Fitzgerald the contenders. This winds up the schedule games which have been running all winter. The rinks were divided into two groups. Mr. Moore made the best showing of the entire club, returning ninety points. He was listed in Group No. 1, in which Dickson Davidson was second, with a total of 80 points. In Group No. 2 Mr. Fitzgerald and Dr. Wightman were tied with 80 points each. They played off last night on good ice, Mr. Fitzgerald winning, 15 to 5. The score, by ends, was as follows:

Wightman	0120001010000— 5

To-night's games will find Mr. Moore and Mr. Fitzgerald playing for first honours and Dr. Wightman and Mr. Davidson playing as runners-up.

This will practically wind up the curling season. Angus McIntosh shuts out the sub during the day time and was able to present a good sheet last night, and it should also be in good condition to-night.

JUNIOR CHURCH LEAGUE CHAMPS

Knox Church Team Banqueted by the Sunday School

Last evening the Junior Hockey Club of Knox Church, Champions of the Junior Church League, were banquetted by Knox Church Sunday School. The tables presented a very attractive appearance and the boys and their friends did full justice to the good things provided by the Committee in charge.

Following the banquet a short programme was rendered, consisting of speeches by Rev. J. A. MacKenzie, B.A., B.D., Pastor of Knox Church, and Mr. H. J. McCannon, President of the hockey club; solos by Misses Eva Bartley and Mabel Penrose and Mr. Gerrard; a reading by Mr. Clark and short speeches by a number of the boys, expressing their pleasure at winning the championship, and thanking the ladies for the feast provided.

The boys then organized for baseball and a very pleasant evening was then brought to a close.

MELVILLE LOSES THE ALLAN CUP

MELVILLE, Sask., March 12—Battling as they never battled before, the Monarchs of Winnipeg won back the Allan Cup when they defeated Melville here to-night by the score of 4 to 2. Being one goal down at the start of the game and being out-scored 2 to 1 in the first half, the challengers went into the second half two goals to the bad on the round. But they fought a desperate battle and were finally rewarded. The teams:

Referee—Caldwell. Judge of play—Sexsmith.

The Junior All Star Game On To-Night

TORONTO, March 13—The hockey season, so far as Toronto is concerned, closes to-night with the annual ing, Phillips and Shirk of the West game. This fixture brings together the best of the junior ranks. The players and the teams for which they played during the past season are:

East—Goal, Earl Hayton (Simcoes) defence, J. Sheldon, (U. of T.); Robt. H. Ferguson (Kingston C. I.); rover, W. Cook (Frontenacs); centre, Henry E. Watson, (St. Andrew's College); right wing, W. W. ("Gamey") Stratton (U. of T.); left wing, A. Carew, (Lindsay).

West—Goal, Chilton Childs (Woodstock); defence, A. H. Parker, (Hamilton R. C.); Armos Arbour (Victoria Harbour); rover, Reg. Noble, (Collingwood; centre, Dalton P. Meeking (Barrie); left wing, Allan Shirk (Berlin Union Jacks); right wing, M. J. Phillips (Western University of London).

Referee—Lou Marsh.

Sheldon, Ferguson and Carew of the East, and Childs, Noble, Meek-O.H.A. junior all-star East v. West are all eligible for the junior ranks next season.

The Western team will be managed by W. A. McCord of this City, while James T. Sutherland of Kingston will manage the Easterners. Two new players have been added to the teams —Wilfred Schnarr of Berlin to the West, and Roper Gouinlock of University of Toronto to the East. Both are forwards and will be used to make frequent changes in the respective forward lines.

NO BIG SALARIES FOR BALL PLAYERS IN PRESENT YEAR

According to advices from Marlin Manager Gansel did considerable talking with John McGraw, about baseball conditions on Thursday. He is reported to have said that "any player who wants more than $2,000 for next season is out of my class. We can't pay those fancy salaries in our league this year. It's tough on the boys, but with us it's a case of reducing salaries or going out of business.

"I never saw such hard times in baseball before. The country is full of ball players who are either unattached or dissatisfied with their contracts. In our league we have men who measure up to big league standards, but we cannot pay them the money they are worth. A very few can better themselves by going to the Federal League, but salaries have been cut everywhere, and already the army of unemployed players is a big one.

"I need pitchers, infielders and outfielders; in fact, I need a new ball team, but under the circumstances I guess I will have to start the season with young players who are willing to work for a wage that will permit us to live. If we can't do that we will have to go out of business. I signed only recently myself, and I am taking a gamble on the club's business. I always drew good money as a minor league manager, but I am working for less than I ever did this year. Maybe we can bet by a bad season and things will improve.

"In other days the Rochester club paid high prices for players turned back by the big leagues and gave them fancy salaries. This is a thing of the past now. Fifteen hundred dollars will be a good salary in our league this year.

"A certain big league club owner offered us several players as a gift, stating that we had been the big losers in the fight with the Federal League and that we deserved a helping hand. I fancied one man, but when I inquired about his salary he wanted $2500. That kind of assistance is too expensive for us."

Old Country Football Notes

Big Team Will Come Together in the Cups Re-plays

Two fourth-round replays feature to-day's British football programme, and both games are bound to attract considerable attention. As the cup competition narrows down, interest increases. The draws of a week ago but intensify that interest, and four struggles can be expected in the bouts to-day for the right to enter the semi-final of the F. A. cup. In drawing with Chelsea in old London last week, Newcastle have greatly improv- their position, the game now falling to be replayed in the north. We named Chelsea as probable semi-finalists last Friday, and still adhere to the choice, though the task ahead at St. James' Park will be of a sterner nature than a week ago. A second draw will not be a surprising result.

Sheffield United ought to accomplish to-day what they failed to do last Saturday. Oldham, however, have many fanciers and will not want for support. The grim struggle for the league flag may have its effect on the Lancashire club, and only on their best form can a win be expected.

With four teams engaged in cup ties, four first division games have of necessity been postponed. The big games in the league will be served up by Sheffield Wednesday and Sunderland and Everton and Blackburn. The first and last two clubs are well in the running, and with Oldham engaged outside the league, the leadership may perforce change hands. The tailends, Tottenham, have little prospects of points at Bradford. Notts County at home to West Bromwich are likely to add a valuable point at least. Neither Tottenham nor Notts can hope to escape relegation.

Unlike the English leagues, the Scottish league has been wonderfully free from postponed games this season, and the schedule is rapidly nearing completion, the absence of competition for the Scottish cup being responsible for this. Only a few teams will be engaged for points on April 24th, the majority being through by April 17. Herast and Celtic, first and second, respectively, have each six games to play, three at home, and three away. The former have the stiffest programme ahead, and may yet be overhauled by Celtic, in fact many look for the teams mentioned to finish equal in points, as did Rangers and Dumbarton, the year following the institution of the league. As goal average does not count in Scotland, we may have something unusual in joint champs this year. Hearts have something hard before them at Airdrie to-morrow, but should pull through all right with both points. At Dens park Celtic pretty often drop a point, and are very likely to leave one with Dundee to-morrow. An Edinburgh victory, coupled with a whole or partial success for Dundee, would put the Celtic out of the running for the present The usual complement of games is scheduled in the second and Southern leagues.

St. Patrick's Day, March 17, St. Peter's T.A.S. will present the beautiful Comedy Drama, "A Bit O'Blarney." First class specialties between acts and during progress of play. Plan opens March 15. Tickets 25c, 35c and 50c. 4d-0

Eggs Are Lower In Price

Were Selling This Morning at Less Than Twenty-Five Cents a Dozen

"Thirty-five cents a pound but I think I will have to come down some," remarked a well-nourished looking farmer to a conversation buyer. With that he extracted a dirty-looking toothpick from his pocket, plunged it into the product and lay in wait for his next victim. Sanitary Inspector Spence has tried in vain to discourage the use of the toothpick except in its conventional form. Toothpicks have long been in favour as a means with which to sample butter, but they will soon be in the same category as the stone age and other such antedated events and customs. The prevailing price for butter this morning, was thirty-three and thirty-five cents. The supply was limited and unequal to the demand.

Eggs were vary plentiful this morning. They sold all the way from twenty-three to twenty-five cents a dozen with plenty of buyers.

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs will appear in Canadian Grocer this week:

Office of Publication, Toronto, March 11.—It lies between flour and new-laid eggs as to what shall occupy the centre of the stage in the markets this week. The egg situation is interesting. There has been a good deal of talk, time and again, against the way in which United States eggs are getting a good deal of business in Canada. Now is the time for the position to be faced. New-laids are rolling into the market now, and the price at this writing is 29 cents. Authorities agree that there is no reason why the farmer should get more than 20c for his new-laid eggs when they are as cheap as they are at present. If the price does not approximate this, the American will get the business. In a letter from an authority in the United States, it is said that the production of eggs is going to be 8 to 10 per cent. larger than last year. The letter concludes: "We would not be surprised if fresh eggs go as low as 18c during the next two or three weeks, but at any rate we look for 16c to 17c prices at some points before storing begins." So that, even when duty is tacked on, United States eggs will be cents, cheaper than the domestic product unless the merchant gets the price down to around 20c.

Winter wheat flour is down thirty cents, which is nothing to be surprised at in view of the way in which wheat has been on the toboggan on both the Chicago and the Winnipeg exchanges. Apparently buyers don't think that the reduction was sufficient, but as we pointed out last week, flour prices have never been figured on the basis of wheat at $1.60, an outside price. They were figured—at most—on $1.50 wheat, and the thirty-cent reduction in flour is, millers claim, adequate enough, particularly when it is remembered that though wheat broke to $1.28, it is already back at $1.47, which is nearly the price on which higher flour quotations were figured. Russian wheat, we suppose, is a week nearer being on the market, and all is going well at the Dardanelles. At the same time those sixty-five million bushels are not within reach yet, no matter how near they may be. A miss is as good as a mile. And when they do get through, ther are so many buyers that it is likely that wheat will be reduced to anything like the extent which is prophesied. Sixty-five million bushels is not a plethora, when Portugal, Italy, Great Britain, as well as countries this side of the Atlantic are eager buyers. We shall be surprised if flour is lower than present levels for some little time.

YOUNG MEN'S CLUB OF BRIDGENORTH GAVE ENJOYABLE CONCERT

BRIDGENORTH, March 12.— The young men's "Go-ahead" Club of the Methodist church gave a fine concert last night in the basement of the church. They gave the entire programme themselves, most of the members making their first appearance in public. The club was formed a few months ago, and the president, Mr. Noble Kelly, has made it very interesting and helpful to the young men. Their choruses were well rendered and the whole programme was much enjoyed. Mr. Kelly in his address as chairman, made a good impression, and the people of the village look forward to future events arranged by the new club. After the programme refreshments were served and the evening concluded in a social way.

VISITED THE SMITH ST. BRIDGE

City Council Will Endeavour To Effect a Settlement.

A civic deputation comprising His Worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen Stratton, Duffus, Edgar, Weir and Green visited the Smith Street bridge this afternoon, with a view of investigating the claims of Mrs. A. Gagnon and John Murphy. The latter claim that their property has been injured by reason of the high approach to the Smith Street bridge. The Council will in all probability indemnify the property holders rather than make any changes in the approaches. City Engineer Parsons and City Clerk Armstrong accompanied the deputation.

To-morrow's special services will be held at the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, in the interests of Education. At the morning service Rev. KITCHEN SHOWER

A number of friends of Miss Bessie Logan gathered at the home of Miss Nellie Brady, Douro Street, last evening, the occasion being a kitchen shower to Miss Logan in honour of her coming wedding.

The evening was spent with music and games. After refreshments were served the singing of the National Anthem and Auld Lang Syne brought a very pleasant entertainment to a close.

Voice of The People

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly allow me space in your worthy paper to endeavour to erase a wrong impression that has gained currency in certain papers recently, in commenting on the failure of the so-styled "Householders'" Co-operative Society of Toronto, good intentioned but badly informed reporters have confused this fake concern with the real, true, Co-operative Movement of Canada, and of which the Peterboroug Co-operative Society forms a part. The movement throughout the Dominion is governed by the Co-operative Union of Canada, whose supreme head is Mr. George Keen, of Brantford, one of the greatest living co-operators, both as an authority and exponent, both. The Union and the individual societies affiliated with it, are strictly under government supervision, and are chartered accordingly in order to protect the shareholding public. Under such charter each shareholder has a voice and a vote in the management of the society, and is supplied periodically with a balance sheet showing the correct position of the business. The fakes can easily be detected on application to the Provincial Government for their charter. Such concerns do not allow the shareholders to have a voice in the management, neither do they give any protection for the money invested. The Co-operative Union of Canada has dissipated the Toronto concern continuously through the public press, and no doubt this has helped the timely winding up of the spurious co-operative imitation, out for personal gain; whilst true co-operative efforts is out for the great benefit of the people. Objects as follows:

Objects of the Union—(1) The recognition, by affiliation with the Union of all bona-fide Co-operative Associations in the Dominion of Canada, in order that the public may be able to distinguish the same from institutions which are now or may hereafter be organized with a Co-operative title for purposes of personal or private admantages or profit. (2) The propagation in the Dominion of Co-operative principles to the end that the practice of truthfulness, justice and economy may be secured by the abolition of false dealing. (3) Conciliating the conflicting interests of the capitalist, the worker and the purchaser, through the equitable division among them of the fund commonly known as profit. (4) Preventing the waste of labour now caused by unregulated competition. (5) Cultivating a spirit of mutual service by self abnegation expressed in the Co-operative Motto: "Each for all, and all for each," and to promote, by the same means, moral, educative and refining enterprises designed for the improvement of the people generally.

Yours truly,
W. G. ROGERS.

The German Cruiser "Dresden" Has Been Sunk

Turks Preparing to Defend the Bosphorous

CREW WAS RESCUED AND NO BRITISH CASUALTIES

Fighting Lasted Only Five Minutes When "Dresden" Flew the White Flag—Last Score Against German Squadron Paid Off.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 16.—The Admiralty announced last night that the German cruiser Dresden was sunk Sunday morning near Juan Fernandez Island, in the South Pacific, off the coast of Chile. Thus the sole survivor of the fleet that routed Admiral Cradock and was in turn routed by Sturdee was destroyed, and on all the waters of the world save of Germany itself there now remain at liberty but two of the Kaiser's war vessels, the Karlsruhe and the Kronprinz Wilhelm.

Three British cruisers comprised the squadron that finally caught the elusive raider after a chase that has lasted up and down the west coast of South America, in the Straits of Magdalen, and on the Pacific since December 8, when the vessel got away from Admiral Sturdee's fleet only by showing her heels to the Glasgow, which finally helped to corner her. Once caught there was no escape, for her speed had vanished in months of cruising and her guns were no match for those of her pursuers. The Glasgow alone could have sunk her and with the powerful Kent, carrying 14 6-inch guns on board, the argument was short and decisive. The Admiralty report of the engagement follows:

"On the 14th of March, at 9 a.m., H.M.S. Glasgow, Capt. John Luce, R.N.; H. M. auxiliary cruiser Orama, Capt. John R. Seagrave, R.N., and H.M.S. Kent, Capt. John D. Allen, C.B., R.N., caught the Dresden near Juan Fernandez Island.

"An action ensued, and after five minutes' fighting the Dresden hauled down her colours and displayed the white flag. She was much damaged and set on fire, and after she had been burning for some time her magazine exploded, and she sank. The crew were saved. Fifteen badly wounded Germans are being landed at Valparaiso.

"There were no British casualties and no damage to the ships."

This is the first time in the present war that a German warship has struck her colours. The Gneisenau, the Scharnhorst Leipsig, Emden, the Nurnberg and the Bluecher went down fighting. The crews of several submarines have surrendered, but the code of naval ethics differs for them.

The spot where the Dresden was sunk shows the great distance she has travelled since December 8. The Juan Fernandez, small rocky islands, about 400 miles west of Valparaiso, are more than 2,200 miles on a straight line from the Falklands, and the ship, doubling back and forward, and in and out, must have gone nearly five thousand miles during that time. Her feat is the more remarkable, in that she was not once able to make more than cursory repairs nor to go into drydock. Recent reports received here from crews of neutral ships she had spoken, said that she was short of provisions and ammunition. She was obviously in no shape to give battle and for a long time it was evident that her career was rapidly nearly the only possible end—destruction.

The story of the Dresden is a parallel of that of the Emden, and British naval authorities believe that the same tale will do for the Karlsruhe within a short time. Apparently the British squadron, under Captain Luce, of the Glasgow, stood out of range and hammered the German cruiser to pieces. There is generally expressed satisfaction at the thought that British sailors have again proved themselves generously humane and have saved the lives of courageous adversaries. When she started out on her raiding career Capt. van Koehler, the commander of the Dresden, had a crew of 350 men under him. Probably the complement has been reduced, but the British certainly rescued more than 300 Germans, of whom only 15 were wounded. The one-sided nature of the encounter is evidenced by the fact that not a single man on the British ships was even wounded and that none of the fleet was damaged at all.

The Admiralty so far has received only the news given out last night. It is now presumed that the cruiser had gone to the Juan Fernandez Islands because of the fact that a small German colony is located there. The probability is considered to be that the British fleet simply went from one possible hiding place to another and routed the Dresden out, then stationed a ship at each place so that it could never again serve as a refuge. Several weeks ago Capt. von Koehler's ship was reported off the south coast of Chile.

The announcement of the sinking of the Dresden came to London after nightfall, but the news spread quickly through the theatres and restaurants, and there was much rejoicing that this commerce raider, whose whereabouts have been a mystery since her escape after the Falkland Islands' engagement in December, had at last been sent to the bottom.

The fact that all the crew of the Dresden were saved sets a new record for rescue after an action at sea, and a naval battle of five minutes' duration is probably another record.

SISTER OF THE EMDEN.

The Dresden was a sister ship of the Emden, which was sunk off Cocos Island, in the Indian Ocean, by the Australian cruiser Sydney after an adventurous career. The sinking of the Dresden leaves at large on the high seas so far as is known only the cruiser Karlsruhe, last reported as operating in the West Indies, and the auxiliary cruiser Kronprinz Wilhelm, which is thought to be in the South Atlantic.

The Dresden's armament was comparatively light. She carried ten 4.1-inch guns, eight 5-pounders, four machine guns and two torpedo tubes. She displaced 3,600 tons, and was 395 feet long. Her complement was 321 men. Of the British ships engaged in Sunday's fight, the Kent was a sister of the Monmouth, whose sinking the Dresden had witnessed in the battle of November 1. The Kent has fourteen 6-inch guns, eight 12-pounders, ten pom-poms, three 3-pounders and two torpedo tubes. The Glasgow has two 6-inch and ten 4-inch guns, and four machine guns.

Juan Fernandez Island, near which the Dresden was finally run down, is a Chilean dependency in the Pacific Ocean, about 400 miles off the mainland. The Chilean Government protested to Germany in December against alleged violations of neutrality by German warships in Chilean waters, and three destroyers were sent by Chile to Juan Fernandez Island. The solitary residence on Juan Fernandez Island, for four years of a Scotchman named Alexander Selkirk is popularly supposed to have formed the basis of DeFoe's tale, "Robinson Crusoe," though many literary critics are convinced that the real Crusoe's Island is Tobago, off the coast of Trinidad, in the British West Indies.

Four touring automobiles there has been invented a bed to be carried under the top of a car and lowered into position for use when desired.

A telescope with two parallel barrels, to permit two persons to see the same object at the same time, has been invented by a Swiss optician.

Wheat Prices Are Higher

Millers Are Willing to Sell—Domestic Trade is Slow

Examiner Special:

CHICAGO, March 16—With Chicago wheat prices up to within about six cents of their recent high level, and Winnipeg climbing in proportion Toronto cash prices are following their lead steadily. No. 1 northern wheat jumped 2 1-4c yesterday, selling at $1.66 1-2, with No. 2 at $1.65 1-2 and No. 3 at $1.62 1-2. A moderate trade was done yesterday.

Western cast followed wheat in a smaller advance of 1-4c, No. 2 being quoted at 71 1-4c, No. 3 at 69 1-2c and No. 1 feed at 68 1-2c. Business was dull.

Grain Trade Dull.

Taken as a whole, the grain trade was exceptionally slow yesterday. The attitude of would-be buyers is to wait. They were caught so recently buying high wheat that they have grown cautious.

Quotations on winter wheat flour diverged yesterday, some men announcing they could secure it at $5.95 seaboard, while others claimed they could pay $6.10 for it, seaboard, and make profit on cables. Millers are willing to sell but want to make some thing out of holdings, but both cables and domestic trade are slow.

Dealers are quoting Ontario wheat at $1.45 to $1.48, probably more in accordance with advances in northerns than because mills will pay the price.

BLOCKADE EFFECTIVE

Great Britain "All Set" To-day for the First Attempt to Force Her Blockade of Germany

BACKS UP MOVEMENT

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 16.—Great Britain was "all set" to-day for the first attempt to force her blockade of Germany. Before many hours, it is certain, a neutral vessel will feel the weight of England's "starvation decree."

Convoyed into port by British warships her case will be the first test of the strength of the neutral protests.

The greatest activity was displayed about the Admiralty to-day. While the next of the order-in-council issued yesterday studiously avoided the use of the word "blockade." The fact that Germany actually is to be cut off from the world if the British programme is to succeed, was admitted.

Admiralty officials unconsciously used the word "blockade" in discussing the decree, and asserted that enough British and French warships will be on duty off the German coast to make the blockade effective.

Public sentiment in England, as voiced by the British press to-day, unanimously backed up the Government's blockade. The same support came from Paris newspapers. Despatches from Paris, however, reported that one edition of the Temps was suppressed for using the word "blockade," in describing the British decree.

All morning papers were positive that neutrals would make strong representations to the British Government. They were equally positive that the Government would not back down from its position.

QUEEN ELIZABETH SAID TO HAVE BEEN DAMAGED

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

ROME, March 15.—The Italian Minister of Posts and Telegraphs to-day issued an order suspending exchange of telegraphic money orders with Austria, also an order suppressing travelling post offices on trains for Austria. This was taken as a forerunner of war by the authorities here.

BERLIN, March 15.—The British super-dreadnought Queen Elizabeth was badly damaged by fire from the Dardanelles forts, says an Athens despatch. Other ships being damaged, the bombardment is discontinued for the time being.

WASHINGTON, March 15. — The German Ambassador Bernstorff this afternoon notified Secretary Bryan that the Prinz Eitel Fredrich is part of Germany's naval force and desires repairs. No intimation was given of internment.

CANADIANS AGAIN IN HEAVY FIGHTING

In the Neighbourhood of Thirty Wounded Have Arrived in England Since Sunday—British Commander-in-chief Has Commended Individual Cases of Valour at Neuve Chapelle.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 16.—The Canadians have lately been in more very heavy fighting near Neuve Chapelle, behaving with splendid courage. Several cases of great individual heroism in the division have received the warm commendation of General French. In the neighbourhood of thirty wounded have arrived in England since Sunday.

The latest news of the Battle of Neuve Chapelle shows that the Canadians played a prominent part. It will go down in history as one of the finest feats of the Canadian army. Several battalions were in hand-to-hand fighting, capturing trenches at the bayonet's point.

The Canadian artillery continues doing magnificent work. Describing the bombardment before the capture of Neuve Chapelle a Canadian officer says:

"The doomed German trenches shook and quivered under the blast of lyddite, while leaping earth clods and thick whirling smoke showed where the shells dropped. The gunners leisurely located their positions; then the lyddite fairly rained down on the precise position indicated. It was a veritable Hell. The earth spouted in leaping columns of mud and smoke; it hung in gigantic heaps, and before one heap settled it was again hurled high.

"Soon the German trenches were obscured by billowing clouds of dense smoke, out of which huge lumps of earth, sandbags and timbers spun, and through which came flashes of bursting projectiles. Over all was the deafening roar of detonations. The sight was wonderful though terrible."

Lieut. Douglas, of Chatham, Ont., is doing well in hospital here. He was accidentally shot in the thigh by a man cleaning a revolver. Two Canadians have been killed by a shell in the street of the village where they were billeted.

Allied Expeditionary Force Is Proceeding Against Smyrna

Special to The Examiner.

ATHENS, March 16.—The Turks are making feverish preparations to defend the Bosphorous against an attack by the allied fleet bombarding the Dardanelles or by the Russian Black Sea fleet, reported cruising less than 100 miles from Constantinople. Private advices received here to-day said that big guns are being mounted on the heights near Scutario and on other elevated positions along the Bosphorous. These are to supplement permanent fortifications. Reports have gained circulation here that part of the allied expeditionary force are said to have landed in Asia Minor is proceeding against Smyrna. No word has come from Tenedos Island for 24 hours regarding operations against the Dardanelles forts at Smyrna.

TO REDUCE THE POLISH FORTRESS OF OSSOWETZ

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, March 16.—A determined attempt to reduce the strong Polish fortress of Ossowetz has been begun by the Germans, according to despatches from the battle front today. The Germans apparently plan a terrific smash there, simultaneously with an expected assault upon Przasnysz. "The enemy is bringing batteries closer to the forts of Ossowetz," an official statement from the War Office admitted to-day. "Fighting at this point continues to our advantage." This is the first time since the German movement against Ossowetz began that the Russian general staff has admitted a German movement in front of the forts. The War Office insisted to-day that despite most savage attacks by the Austrians attempting to relieve Przemysl, they had gained no ground in fighting north of the Uszok Pass in several weeks.

LOSS OF ARMY HORSES 15 PER CENT

LONDON, March 16.—Since the opening of the war the loss in horses has been at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum, said H. J. Hennant, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for War, in a discussion of the army administration in the House of Commons. He compared these figures with a loss of between 55 and 60 per cent. of the horses in the South African War, and said it indicated a great advance for the army veterinary authorities. The loss of army horses is due chiefly to pleuro-pneumonia.

Swindler in Khaki Sought by Police

Police of Ontario towns have been notified by the Chief Constables of Toronto and Peterborough to arrest a man going by the name of Harry D. Kirby, aged about 26 years, 5 feet 9 inches in height, and weighing about 160 lbs., dressed in full military khaki suit, with one star on his shoulder strap. This man represents that he is a lieutenant in the third overseas contingent, and a member of the 13th Scottish Rifles of Cavanville. Kirby is charged with fraud, his method being to issue worthless cheques on the Bank of Commerce, for more than the amount required, so that the merchant will give him change. His chief pets are book stores, jewelers, fur dealers, and dry goods merchants. He also calls himself Kincade or Lindsay. There is no authorized rank in the Canadian regiments that wear one star, so that any one with such a badge is an imposter.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

"THE GRELL MYSTERY"

By Frank Frost

"Before I could buy a paper, another newspaper chap comes along. He stared at me as if I was a ghost.

"'Hello!' he says. 'Don't you know you're lost? Every pressman in London is looking for you.'

"'Am I?' says I. 'How?'

"Then it all came out. Since then I have been very careful in dealing with newspaper men."

Sir Hilary laughed and nodded. "Is there anything more?" he asked.

"Yes." Foyle had grown grave once more. "I handed over the cipher that we found at Grave Street to Jones, to see if he could make anything out of it. He's an expert at these kind of puzzles. Well, he's just reported that the thing is simple as it stands though in other circumstances it might be difficult. The translation runs:

"This will be the best method of communication with E.M. if L. supplies her with key. Her 'phone number 12845 Gerrard."

CHAPTER XXIII.

Unless the case is elucidated within a day or two of the commission of an offence, the first hot pursuit resolves itself into a dogged, wearisome but untiring watchfulness on the part of the C.I.D. A case is never abandoned while there remains a chance, however slight, of running a criminal to earth. And even when the detectives, like hounds baffled at a scent, are called off, there remains the gambler's element of luck. Even if the man who had original charge of the case should be dead when some new element reopens an inquiry, the result of his work is always available, stored away in the Registry at Scotland Yard. There are statements, reports, conclusions—the case complete up to the moment he left it. The precaution is a useful one. A deathbed confession may implicate confederates, accomplices may squirrel, a jealous woman may give information. There have been unsolved mysteries, but no man may say when a crime is unsolvable.

Heldon Foyle had many avenues of information when it was a matter of ordinary professional crime. The old catchword, "Honour among thieves," was one he had little reason to believe in. There was always a trickle of information into headquarters by subterranean ways. The commonplaces of crime were effectively looked after. Murders are the exception in criminal investigation work, and while other crimes may be dealt with by certain predetermined if elastic rules, homicide had to be considered differently. Yet Foyle had cause to think that there might be little harm in setting to work the underground agencies which at first sight seemed to have little enough in common with the mystery of the rich Robert Grell. These spies and informers would try to cheat and trick him. Some of them might succeed. It would cost money, but money that might not be wasted.

Four of the five chief detective-inspectors who form the general staff of the C.I.D. were in the room, among them Wagnell, who had passed a quarter of a century in the East-end and knew the lower grades of "crooks" thoroughly, collectively and individually.

Foyle shut the door.

"I wish some of you would pass the word among our people that we will pay pretty handsomely for any one who puts us on to the gang mixed up in this Grell business. Word it differently to that. You'll know how to put it. You might get hold of sheeny Foster, Wagnell, or Poodle Murphy, or Buck Taylor. They may be able to nose out something."

"Buck was sent up for six months for jumping on his wife," said Wagnell. "I haven't seen Sheeny lately, but I'll try to get hold of him, and I'll have the word passed along."

So, having made the first step in enlisting a new and formidable force of guerillas on the side of the law, Foyle went back to his office to revolve the problem in his brain once more.

His thoughts wandered to Sir Ralph Fairfield. Here was a man whose services would be invaluable if he could be persuaded to help. Grell knew him; trusted him. Foyle was a man who never neglected the remotest chances. He deemed it worth trying. True, so far as their encounters were concerned, Fairfield had not been encouraging. He would probably need delicate handling. Foyle wrote a note, scrutinised it rapidly, and, going out, gave it to a clerk to be sent at once by special messenger.

"Mr. Heldon Foyle presents his compliments to Sir Ralph Fairfield, and would be obliged if he could see him at his office at six o'clock this evening, or failing that, by an early appointment, on a matter of urgent importance."

That was all it said: Foyle never wasted a word.

At five minutes past six that evening, Sir Ralph Fairfield was announced. He ignored the offer of a chair which was made by the superintendent, and stood with stony face a few paces from the door. Foyle was too wise to offer his hand. He knew it would not be accepted. He nodded affably.

"Good evening, Sir Ralph. I was hoping you would come. I could not have troubled you but that I felt you would like to know how we were getting on. You were a friend of Mr. Grell's."

"Well?" said Sir Ralph frigidly. "I am here, Mr. Foyle. Will you let me know what you want to say and have done with it?"

His manner was entirely antagonistic. There was still a lingering fear of arrest in his mind, but his attitude was in the main caused by the fact that he believed he had been suspected by the other. The superintendent partly guessed what was passing in his mind.

"I want your word first, Sir Ralph, that what I tell you shall not be spoken of by you to any living soul," he said. "Then I will tell you frankly and openly the whole history of our investigation, and you can decide whether you will help us or not. No—wait a moment. I know how loyal a friend you were of Robert Grell's, and it's in the light of that that I am going to trust you. He is not dead. He is in hiding. It is for you to say whether you will help us to find him. If he is innocent he has nothing to fear."

He was watching the other closely while he sprung the fact that Grell was alive upon him. He wanted to know whether it was really a surprise, whether in spite of the vigilance of the C.I.D. men Grell or his companions had managed to communicate with Fairfield. The baronet had opened his mouth to speak. A flicker of colour came and went in his pale cheeks, and he fingered his stick nervously. Then his jaw set, and he strode to where the superintendent was sitting and clutched him tightly by the arm.

"What's all this" he demanded hoarsely. "Do you mean to say that Grell is not dead?"

"As far as I know he is as alive as you or I at this present minute," said Foyle. "If you want to hear about it all, give me your word and sit down. You're hurting my arm."

"I beg your pardon," said the baronet mechanically, and, stepping back, seated himself in a big armchair that flanked the desk. He passed his hand in a dazed fashion across his forehead and his composure came back to him. Staggering, incredible as the statement seemed, there was that in Foyle's quiet tones that gave it the stamp of truth.

"Of course, I'll give you my word," he said.

Foyle was satisfied that the baronet knew nothing. There was a deeper policy behind the pledge he had exacted than that of preventing a leakage of confidence. Fairfield would not go behind his word. In that the superintendent had judged him accurately. But the pledge would also tie his hands should Grell or his companions eventually manage to communicate with him. Even if he decided not to help the police, he would find it difficult, without going behind his word, to assist the missing explorer.

From the beginning he traced the trend of the investigation, Fairfield leaning forward and listening attentively, his lips tight pressed. As Foyle brought out the points, the baronet now and again jerked his head in understanding. The detective slurred nothing, not even the accusation and resolve of the Lady Eileen Meredith. The baronet choked a little.

"You think she really meant to kill me?" He waved his hand impatiently as Foyle nodded. "Never mind that. Go on. Go on."

Foyle finished his recapitulation. Sir Ralph's eyes were fixed on a "Vanity Fair" cartoon of the Commissioner of Police hanging framed on the wall. He was trying to readjust his thoughts. From a man who believed himself under deadly suspicion he had suddenly become a confidant of Scotland Yard. He had been released of all fear for himself. And Bob Grell was alive after all; that, he reflected, was the queer thing. What did it mean? Where was the reason for this extraordinary tangle of complications? Grell always was deep, but, so far as his friend knew, he was a man strictly honourable. How had he come to be involved in an affair that looked so black against him? There was Eileen to be considered, too. In spite of himself, he could readily believe the story of the pistol. She had believed him guilty of the murder. Her mood when last he saw her had been that of a woman who would stoop to anything to compass her vengeance. But she knew he was not guilty now. That might make a difference to his course of action. Should he throw in his lot with Foyle and assist in bringing Grell within the reach of the law?

"What do you say, Sir Ralph? Will you help us?"

He shook himself a little and met the detective's steady gaze.

"If I do, will it mean that you will arrest Grell for murder?"

"I have been quite open with you, Sir Ralph. I don't know. As things are at present, it looks uncommonly as though he had a hand in it. He is the only person who can clear himself. While he remains in hiding everything is black against him. We have managed to keep things quiet until the resumption of the inquest. When that takes place we shall not be able to maintain the confusion of identity. With things as they stand, the jury are practically certain to return a verdict of murder against him. If he is not guilty, his best chance is for us to find him. Understand me, Sir Ralph. If he is innocent you are doing him no service by refraining from helping us. Every day makes things blacker. If he is guilty—well, it is for you to judge whether you will shield a murderer, even if he is your friend."

To another person, Foyle would have used another method of persuasion, talking more but saying less. He had staked much on his estimate of the baronet's character, and awaited his reply with an anxiety of which his face gave no trace. Very rare were the occasions on which he had told so much of an unfinished investigation to another person, and that person not an official of Scotland Yard. Often he had feigned to open his heart with the same object—to win confidence by apparent confidence. The difference now was that he had given the facts without concealment or suppression.

Fairfield fingered his watch-chain, and the big office clock ticked five minutes away.

"I will assist you as far as I can, but you must allow me to decide when to remain neutral," he said at last.

"Agreed," said Foyle, and the two shook hands on the bargain.

Saskatoon Detective Arrested.

SASKATOON, March 15.—W. H. Springer, senior detective of the city force, under suspension during the investigation which concluded last week, after having run on since the middle of January, was placed under arrest Saturday by the provincial police. He is charged with inciting Burton and Pearson, convicts now at Edmonton, to crime.

Four Boys Killed.

NEW YORK, March 15.—The explosion of a large oil tank adjoining the Long Island Railway freight yards, in the East New York section of Brooklyn, shortly after noon Saturday, killed four boys and seriously injured seven other persons.

Four men, employes of the Drew Levick Co., who owned the tank, were reported missing.

The tank was partly underground and was said to have contained 11,000 gallons of oil. The force of the explosion shattered windows for a radius of several blocks.

The four boys killed were playing near the tank and met instant death. Those injured were passersby in the street, who were knocked down.

German Street Names Stay.

LONDON, March 15.—The London County Council is not encouraging the changing of German street names. Despite the face that the borough council of Stoke-Newington requested that Wiesbaden road should be re-named Beatty road, after the naval hero, the local government committee in its report, which will be submitted to-day, says it is not satisfied that sufficient cause for the alteration has been made out. Recently the county council decided to take no action with regard to renaming Berlin road Catford. Suggestions have been made by many citizens to change the name of Hanover square and St. Petersburg place.

Is 83 Years Old
And Her Heart Does Not Bother Her.
Thanks to MILBURN'S Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. J. McLaren, Commanda, Ont., writes us under date of February 9th, 1914. "Sixteen years ago I took bad with my heart and nerves, and was not able to do anything. I tried a good many doctors, but they did me no good; in fact one doctor gave me up to die. I heard about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I thought I would give them a trial, and after using a couple of boxes I saw that I was improving. I kept on using them for quite a long time. I am eighty-three years old and my heart does not bother me at all.

"I am raising a little girl who was never very strong, and the doctor said that she had palpitation of the heart, so I started to give them to her. She is now twelve years old, and they are doing her more good than I can possibly tell you. I would advise anyone who has a weak heart to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, as they have done wonders for us."

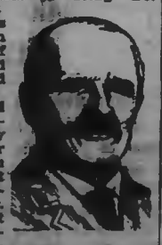
But the Writer of This Letter Resolved to Try Dr. Chase's Ointment First and Was Cured.

This is not an isolated case, for we frequently hear from people who have been cured of piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment after physicians had told them nothing short of an operation could bring relief and cure.



MR. BEAUVAIS.

If you could read these letters, coming as they do, day after day and year after year, you would realize what a wonderful curative agent Dr. Chase's Ointment really is. Few ailments are more annoying or more persistently torturing than piles, and when this suffering is promptly relieved by the application of Dr. Chase's Ointment there can be no doubt as to where credit is due. Friends and neighbors are told of the results and so the good word spreads, and Dr. Chase's Ointment is becoming known far and wide as the only actual cure for piles or hemorrhoids.

Mr. Charles Beauvais, a respected citizen of St. John's, Que., writes:—"For 14 years I suffered from chronic piles or hemorrhoids and considered my case very serious. I was treated by a well-known physician who could not help me, and my doctor decided on an operation as the only means of relief. However, I resolved to try Dr. Chase's Ointment first. The first box brought me great relief, and by the time I had used three boxes I was completely cured. This is why it gives me such great pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to everybody suffering from hemorrhoids as a preparation of the greatest value."

Committed to the Mimico Hospital

Lindsay Man Possessed of Strange Hallucinations

LINDSAY, March 15.—Mr. Geo. E. Cavanagh was committed to the Mimico Hospital for the Insane by County Magistrate F. D. Moore, K.C. Cavanagh is a Somerville farmer, and laboured under various hallucinations. He accused certain parties of giving him dope which caused him to commit strange acts at times. This was one of his troubles, but as this dope has lasted for over six months, and still affecting him, a physician remarked that he would be pleased to find out what sort it was and he would purchase some of it.

The unfortunate man cried when the magistrate's decision was made known to him by Governor Balfour. He has a wife and family. He is still in the county jail.

"What Might Have Been"

By EDWARD BOLTWOOD

I.

Emma Saxon tremulously pressed backward against the partition of her employer's private office and steadied her suddenly throbbing palms on the cool glass.

Beyond the partition, in the workroom of Miss Gardner's typewriting agency, the girls had closed their machines for the day. They chatted softly and gayly while they adjusted incredible hats over miraculous coiffures. From the lavatory drifted the faint, clean odor of perfumed soap.

"The name—did you say the name was Mrs. Franklin Trent?" faltered Emma.

"Yes, yes," Miss Gardner replied from her desk. "You must have noticed the name in the newspapers. This Mrs. Franklin Trent needs another social secretary for awhile. She will see you at 6. The house is on Fifth avenue, and here's the address and your stage fare."

Emma's slender fingers shook a little when she picked up the coin and the card, and Miss Gardner frowned impatiently.

"Now, for heaven's sake, Emma, don't get rattled!"

"But, if you please, Miss Gardner, I can't—I would rather not go."

"What do you think I pay you for?" snapped Miss Gardner. "You bet you'll go or else"—

"Very well, I'll be there at 6," murmured Emma Saxon.

"I guess I made no mistake in sending Saxon on this job," remarked Miss Gardner to her blotting pad. "If all you hear about Franklin Trent is true his wife wouldn't be keen about having any chatty young piece of dress goods around the house. Poor old Emma's over forty and the best hand in the shop at that."

Emma sidled into the elevator, packed at this hour with noisy clerks and giggling stenographers. She had worked in Miss Gardner's agency for half a year, but she had made no acquaintance elsewhere in the building. Her cold, tired face, with its pathetic traces of former beauty, somehow kept people from her.

Broadway was aglow and flashing. Emma glanced at an illuminated clock and knotted her coin thriftily in a handkerchief. The pavement was slushy with melted snow, and her shoes were worn, but 10 cents meant a breakfast, and she had time enough to walk.

Finally a cross town street led her to Mrs. Franklin Trent's magnificent new house on the avenue. Emma had never identified it before. The ornate front of the stone mansion, a jumble of costly carving, was an architectural joke, but Emma did not seem to be amused. Her lips shivered strangely as she climbed the broad steps.

For the house would have been her own if she in her father's orchard twenty years ago had whispered a "yes" instead of a "no" to young Frank Trent on the night when he left their Connecticut village to seek his fortune in the western copper mines.

II.

"If you please, I—I have an appointment here at 6," said she, and offered Miss Gardner's card.

"Other entrance," said the footman.

"One minute, Mr. Hibbs," she interposed, scanning the card. "Madam expects a—oh, yes! I will bring her to

BRONCHITIS

If Neglected Will Surely Turn Into PNEUMONIA.

Bronchitis comes from a neglected cold. It starts with a short, painful, dry cough, accompanied with rapid wheezing, and a feeling of oppression or tightness through the chest. At first the expectoration is of a light color, but soon becomes copious and of purulent character.

You have, no doubt, wakened up in the morning and have had to cough half a dozen times before you could raise the phlegm from your bronchial tubes, and when you do succeed in doing so you find that it is of yellowish or greenish color, and you get some relief right away. When this happens to you, you may rest assured that you have a touch of bronchitis, and if not cured immediately it will sooner or later develop into pneumonia or some other more serious trouble.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

Mrs. Rebecca Hare, Mahone Bay, N.S., writes: "My little boy, aged six, was always troubled with bronchitis, and when he had whooping cough he was worse. Doctors advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It gave him instant relief, and positively cured him."

radium. It will be quicker so."

The maid crossed the lofty hall, and Emma followed, with shoulders bent, as if the luxury of the house oppressed them like a burden. Mr. Hibbs yawned, examining his finger nails.

At a door near the head of the staircase Emma's guide pressed the concealed knob of an electric hannunciator. A second maid opened the door silently, pinced the card on a silver tray and left Emma waiting behind a half drawn portiere of rosy silk.

Beyond the curtain was an octagonal room paneled in rose Du Barry brocade. The furniture was covered with Gobelin tapestry, and on a couch reclined a lady whose flowing gown had the color and sheen of morning cobwebs in a dewy garden. Another woman, soberly dressed in brown, sat at a marqueterie desk, but Emma looked only at the lady on the couch. Never had she looked at such a beautiful creature.

"Madam will receive you," said the maid.

"Is that Mrs. Trent—on the sofa?" gasped Emma.

Emma advanced into the room. The lady raised her graceful, tawny haired head from the heap of pillows, and her voice was kind and musical.

"This is Miss Saxon?"

"My name is Saxon, ma'am. I am from the Gardner agency."

"Yes," said Mrs. Trent. "I shall need a secretary for a few weeks to assist Miss Vosper," and she indicated, with a jeweled hand, the woman at the desk.

Mrs. Trent's good humored smile was very winning.

"I am sure of that, but a pen writer is what I need," she rejoined quietly. "My correspondence, I fear, is too trivial to be typed. So may I trouble you for a sample of your handwriting? That is the whole point, you know."

"Certainly, ma'am," Emma said.

Miss Vosper arose, and Emma seated herself in the desk chair. An angle of the wall was between the desk and the couch. She heard Miss Vosper reading a concert program to Mrs. Trent.

Emma found a blank sheet of crested paper underneath a manuscript list of charitable hospitals on the desk. She selected one of the mother-of-pearl penholders, consulted the jade inkstand and wondered what she ought to write. Then she turned her perplexed glance, and it met the pictured face of Franklin Trent. She had not seen him for twenty years.

Middle age had marked him but slightly. Framed by a wide band of gold, the masterful, handsome face was that of the boy who had vainly implored Emma to love him. It almost seemed that he was imploring her now, so perfect was the portraiture and so vivid was her remembrance.

As she gazed at the photograph she became a girl again. She fancied that she was aware of the pure fragrance of apple blossoms, the sleepy twittering of nested birds, the timid luster of early stars. The lurking dread slowly vanished from her eyes. That queer shadow of apprehension which had darkened them for an hour was lifted. A resolute, eager light replaced it. She was like one lost in a dreary swamp, who suddenly finds a safe path homeward.

"I beg your pardon," Emma acknowledged, and she wrote the names of the months on the sheet of paper and submitted it to Mrs. Trent.

The lady examined it with regretful scrutiny. Emma's handwriting, in fact, was the commonplace script of an old fashioned copybook, devoid of distinction and character.

"I'm so sorry," decided Mrs. Trent gently, "but really I fear—I'm so sorry to disappoint you!"

"It's only an ordinary workaday hand, ma'am, and, if you'll excuse me, I'm not disappointed."

"Not disappointed?" murmured Mrs. Trent. She smiled thoughtfully at Emma, vaguely impressed by some elusive change in the bearing and voice of this gray, shabby woman.

Mrs. Trent sighed without knowing why and moved petulantly among the velvet pillows.

"Are you going back to the agency this evening, Miss Saxon?"

"No, ma'am. I am going—somewhere else."

"I shall take care that your employer doesn't criticise you because I sent you away. Miss Vosper shall attend to that in the morning. Good night."

"Thank you, ma'am, and goodby," said Emma, smiling tremulously.

III.

The supercilious maid led Emma haughtily down four stairs to the servants' entrance, but Emma was untouched by the slight or by the grim mockery of such a departure from the house which might have been hers. The determined smile was still upon her face. She walked erect now, with her shoulders squared. In the street she turned her back on the glare of the splendid avenue and set off at a brisk pace toward the east.

With lips parted expectantly and firm chin pointed upward Emma hurried on, like one speeding to a goal.

A blue cloaked and bibe bonneted girl emerged from a saloon jingling an alms box of the Salvation Army. Emma tugged a coin from her knotted handkerchief and dropped her pittance in the box.

"God bless you for it!" muttered the girl.

Emma did not pause to hear the benediction. She turned the corner into a side street. It was a street of old brick houses converted into tenements. Beyond the distant end of it, under the lights of a towering bridge, was revealed the sullen current of the river.

The shadowy street would have been quiet had it not been for the countless children, but over sidewalk, curb and doorstops they swarmed like frenzied bees. A desperate bandit of seven years triumphantly caught and held Emma's skirt as she passed. She bent down to loosen the clubby fist and found that for lack of breath she could hardly speak.

She waited for a minute among the children, with a hand on her leaping heart. Then she went into the tenement house and up the sagging and narrow stairs.

The humble room which Emma entered was poorly furnished, but very neat and clean. A man sat beside the lamp, reading a book. He looked up pleasantly—a tall, powerful man, although he had the bleached face of an invalid. One of his arms was in a sling.

"Why, Emmy," said he. "What is it?"

She stared at him with shining, brimming eyes. The breath caught again in her throat, and she could not speak.

"What's the matter?" he demanded, rising with quick anxiety. "I've such glorious news, Em! The doctor swears that I'll be back at work within a month! Thank heaven, you won't much longer have to—why, Emmy, Emmy, lass, whatever has come to you?"

Emma clasped him in her embrace.

"Oh, my husband!" she cried brokenly. "I was afraid—afraid—but I have seen without envy what might have been, and it has been proved to me—proved that I could never have cared for any one but you. And, John, I love you so—I love you so!"

The New Home Treatment For Ugly, Hairy Growths

(Boudoir Secrets)

Here is a simple, yet very effective method for removing hair and fuzz from the face, neck and arms: Cover the objectionable hairs with a paste made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. Leave this on for 2 or 3 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. No pain or inconvenience attends this treatment, but results will be certain if you are sure to get real delatone.

How To Make the Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind and You Save $2. Fully Guaranteed

This home-made cough syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Its promptness, ease and certainty in conquering distressing coughs, chest and throat colds is really remarkable. You can actually feel it take hold. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, 16 ounces of better cough syrup than you could buy for $2.50. Takes but a few minutes to prepare. Full directions with Pinex. Tastes good and never spoils.

You will be pleasantly surprised to note how quickly it loosens dry, hoarse or tight coughs, and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, be sure and ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and don't accept anything else.

Catches Boy Baby On Moving Train

PITTSBURG, March 15.—An escape from death without precedent occurred here to-day on the Pennsylvania Railroad. Walter Betle, four years old, was playing on the bridge at Thirty-third Street, near where the flooring was being repaired. He stumbled at a hole and started to fall to the tracks twenty-five feet below.

A freight train was within a few feet of the bridge, running at high speed. On the roof of the first boxcar Richard Roundtree, a brakeman, saw the boy stumble through the bridge. He braced himself and managed to catch him as he fell. Roundtree staggered dangerously near the edge of the roof, but managed to keep his footing until the train was stopped.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Common Sense Advice by a Distinguished Specialist.

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach, and leading to probably nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble from which people suffer. Ordinary medicines and medicinal treatments are useless in such cases, for they leave the source of the trouble, the acid in the stomach, as dangerous as ever. The acid must be neutralized, and its formation prevented, and the best thing for this purpose is a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, a simple antacid, taken in a little warm or cold water after eating, which not only neutralizes the acid, but also prevents the fermentation from which acidity is developed. Foods which ordinarily cause distress may be eaten with impunity if the meal is followed with a little bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist, and should always be kept handy.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

School dresses should be first simple and second pretty, rather a close second, too, for both qualities often go hand in hand, and when they are not associated they should be. Little girls wear lighter dresses to school than formerly, when serges and woollens of all kinds were considered the thing. Perhaps heavier coats are worn these days, or the winters are less severe. The dress illustrated is made of gingham and trimmed in a contrasting color and, like the ideal school dress, combines simplicity with becomingness.

There is a tuck each side front and back and a big square collar that meets revers in front. The sleeves can be made either elbow length with turn back cuffs or full length with wristbands. The skirt is a straight plaited one attached to the waist and opening at side-front. This design could be made up in challis, cashmere or similar fabrics. The pattern, No. 6,966, comes in sizes from four to twelve years.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

For Freckled, Rough or Spotty Complexions

The freckling, discolouring or roughening to which delicate skins are subject after exposure to wind or sun, often appearing in early spring, may readily be gotten rid of. Mercolized wax, spread lightly over the face before retiring and removed in the morning with soap and water, completely peels off the disfigured skin. Get an ounce of the wax at any druggist's. There's no more effective way of banishing freckles or other cutaneous defects. Little skin particles come off each day, so the process doesn't even temporarily mar the complexion, and one soon acquires a brand new, spotless, girlishly beautiful face.

Wrinkles caused by weather, worry or illness are best treated by a simple solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel. Bathing the face in this preparation a truly marvellous transformation.

Voice of The People

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Some time ago I read with not a little amusement, the letter in your columns from the manager of the "Tiz-It" and "Red Mill" theatres, offering $1.00 for suggestions that would tend to improve the programme offered to the patrons of those houses. I will not discuss the Red Mill—I have not attended that theatre for a long time; but I have visited the "Tiz-It" several times since it reopened, and I want to say right here that I have never yet came away from that theatre pleased with the programme. And without making any bid for the manager's dollar, I wish to make one suggestion which, if acted upon, will make the "Tiz-It" the best theatre in the city, and assure the management of crowded houses every night. The pictures are excellent, the theatre is comfortable; but the whole performance is spoiled by one bad practice on the part of either the manager or the operator—the practice of putting on the same picture twice before completing the advertised programme. I have never yet visited this theatre but what I have either been forced to come away without geting the promised 8 or 6 reels (or whatever the number happens to be, or else had to sit and see the same pictures over twice.

I went to the "Tiz-It" Saturday evening, going in at 10 minutes to 8. At the supper table I read a list of the pictures in The Examiner advertised for that night. When I entered the theatre the film, "The Lust of the Red Man," was just starting. I enjoyed the picture very much. At the end of this film, "The Trey of Hearts" was put on. I enjoyed it likewise. At the end of two reals of this serial, Mr. Editor, I was, as usual, disgusted by the re-appearance of "The Lust of the Red Man." I had my choice—either sit and see three reels over again or miss the rest of the "bill" which I had expected to see. I chose the latter and came out.

Now I can name a score of people on my street who are very much annoyed at this practice besides myself, and I guess there are many others I do not know of.

May I address a little suggestion to the manager. Success in any business is only obtained through fair-dealing, and if the manager of the "Tiz-It" wishes to make a success of his splendid new theatre, I would respectfully suggest that he see to it that the practice I have complained of be stopped, and he will soon gain a reputation that will assure him steady patronage.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain,

Yours truly,
"MOVIE FAN."

HARD ON THE FLASK TRADE

Sale Over Counter in Liquor Shop May be Barred—Will be Fewer "Dead Soldiers"

TORONTO, March 16—A man, said to be on the inside on the proposals of the Ontario Government to further curb the liquor trade, stated that a very effective and unique plan has been evolved to stop the bottle and flask trade.

He says that it is ready to be sprung. The Government and the liquor men alike, agree that the bottle and strong drink is the worst evil in the trade.

As it stands now, no hotel can serve a customer with a bottle or flask.

The outline of the proposal is to make it against the law for any shop license man to sell over the counter. It would do away with the evils of carrying flasks to places of public gatherings.

The purchaser of liquor in bottles would have to leave his order, and have the bottles or flasks delivered at his house. He could not, pay his money across the counter and carry his bottle away with him; he could not rush in for a flask to take on an excursion with him.

The idea is to prevent the carrying of flasks, to stop as much as possible the drinking of strong liquor elsewhere than in the home—and that is the place where the least is consumed.

This is of course, but one feature of the proposed measure, the shortening of the hours of sale; the raising of the licenses of shops being others.

250,000 IRISH ARE FIGHTING

Nearly 100,000 of Those at Home Have Joined the Colours

MANCHESTER, March 16.—John F. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalist party, in a speech to five thousand persons here yesterday, pointed out that he had often addressed meetings of Irishmen in Manchester, but never before an assemblage of Irishmen and Englishmen "firmly united in a common purpose.

"Ireland has been admitted to her proper place in the British Empire, with which she had as much to do in building up as England," Mr. Redmond continued. "She has already taken her proper place, with perfect and absolut good faith and loyalty." Official figures covering the period up to February 15, he said, showed that 99,700 Irishmen from Ireland had joined the colours, 115,000 from other parts of the United Kingdom, and enough more from the dominions to bring up the total to a quarter of a million. Furthermore, the recruiting of Irishmen was proceeding steadily.

"Ten years ago the Kaiser might have found a divided Empire," he said, "but he had forgotten the march of events. The rule of the people has been substituted for the rule of classes, and the Empire is united on the sure foundation of liberty. In fighting for the Empire Irishmen are fighting for Ireland."

WASHING WON'T RID HEAD OF DANDRUFF

Dissolve It, That's Best Way.

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everyone notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

79 Canadians Died From Disease

Special Cable to The Examiner:

Tennant, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for War, in reply to a question by Will Thorne in the House of Commons, to-day, as to the number of deaths in the Canadian contingent between October and February, stated that 46 had died at Salisbury and 33 elsewhere, while 3,948 sick had been successfully treated in the hospital.

ALL THREE HAVE SUNK.

British Vessels Did Not Survive Torpedo Attacks.

LONDON, March 16.— The British steamers Florazan, Headlands and Hartdale, torpedoed by German submarines, all have sunk, according to an announcement made by the British Admiralty to-day.

Earlier reports hold out the hope that these vessels, attacked within the last two days by German raiders, had not been destroyed and might be brought into port.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmasy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, bristle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

IMPORTANT GAINS FOR BOTH BRITISH AND FRENCH

British Forces After Recapturing Village of St. Eloi Have Taken Trenches Both West and East of the Position While the French Have Reoccupied All the Trenches Lost to the Germans in the Champagne District.

FOE LOST HEAVILY AT NEUVE CHAPPELLE

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, March 16.—(French official.)—Important gains for both the French and their British allies were claimed in the official communique from the war office this afternoon. The British after retaking St. Eloi, to the south of Ypres, recaptured a row of trenches southwest of the village. Their commanding position at this point forced the enemy to evacuate other trenches southeast of St. Eloi, under heavy artillery fire. The French in the Champagne region retook several rows of trenches captured by the Germans early yesterday, near Souain and in the Lepretre woods, after first exploding mines under the enemy's earthworks. The French have recaptured a trench near Reichackerkohf, in the Vosges.

HEAVY GERMAN LOSSES

LONDON, March 16.—(British official.)—The German losses in the three days of the fighting around Neuve Chappelle total 17,000 to 18,000, General French reported to the war office to-day. In addition the British have taken 1700 prisoners. The British commander confirmed the previous reports of continued progress for the British troops, including the capture of Lapinette. He asserted that none of the captured ground had been retaken by the enemy. British aviators destroyed a German railway junction at Don, east of Arras, blowing up a train. South of Ypres the Germans took several trenches, General French admitted, but the greater part of these were re-captured yesterday.

RUSSIANS ADVANCING

BURCHAREST, March 16.—The Russians are again advancing into northern Bukowin, according to despatches to-day from Burdujeni on the Moldavian frontier; in two days battle near Novocielitza, the Russians finally carried the Austrian trenches at the point of the bayonet, the Austrians retreating with heavy losses. Heavy snows are hampering the Russian advance.

OFFICIAL CASUALTY LISTS

COPENHAGEN, March 16.—The last eight official casualty lists issued at Berlin add 33,142 names to the previous lists, according to Berlin despatches to-day. The grand total of all Prussian losses in killed, wounded and missing since the war began is 1,050,029. The totals to date for the Bavarian, Wurtemberg and Saxon land forces, and for losses in the German navy, are not available.

LONDON, March 16.—The loss of the cruiser Dresden was a great shock to the German Admiralty, the Exchange Telegraph's Amsterdam correspondent cabled here to-day. The news while known in Berlin last night, had been withheld from the public until to-day. The British Admiralty this afternoon had no further information to make public regarding the five minute naval battle off the coast of Chile.

CONTINUE RACING

LONDON, March 16.—The Jockey Club, England's supreme racing authority, to-day decided to continue racing throughout England for the coming season, although the meeting at Epsom Downs and Ascot will be somewhat curtailed. The Jockey Club's refusal to suspend the racing season and permit the use of some of its buildings for military purposes, has aroused bitter criticism.

YOU HAVE A CHANCE TO JOIN 57TH TO-NIGHT

Rangers Will Hold Their Weekly Drill This Evening—Large Number of Recruits Hoped For

BUSY SEASON COMING

The weekly drill of the 57th Regiment will be held to-night at the Armouries and it is hoped that every member who is on the roll will be on hand, while all new recruits will be gladly welcomed. With the coming of spring weather the Regiment is planning an active and interesting season, and the young men of Peterborough should have a part in this activity. Up in Brantford a successful campaign is under way to raise the membership of the Dufferin Rifles to 800. If Brantford can furnish half a century of militiamen so can Peterborough. When 600 local men have enlisted to go to the front from here, surely there should be no lack of applicants to join the Regiment for home defence and military training. A little less attention to sports and more to military affairs is what is needed in Peterborough just now, and a large turnout of recruits to-night will be a great encouragement.

Shamrock Day Totalled $839.97

It was learned to-day that the Shamrock Day efforts totalled $839.97 instead of $769 as first reported. A recount of the money brought out this face and it is believed the ladies in their eagerness neglected to mark down the returns from several boxes. This is the only explanation that seems possible.

FORMER LINDSAY RESIDENT KILLED

SECOND BRIGADE, C.F.A.

Accidentally killed—Paddon, Gunshot. Next of kin, J. H. Paddon, St. John's, Nfld.

The above from the "Roll of Honour" published in connection with the Canadians who have fallen in battle, refers to H. A. Paddon, son of Mr. J. H. Paddon, of St. John's, Newfoundland, and a former manager of the Bank of Montreal at Lindsay. His son attended the public school while residing in Lindsay, and the news of his death will be received with regret by many friends of the family. Mr. Paddon was succeeded as manager of the bank by Mr. Montizambert.

A SHARP PROTEST

According to Washington—Advices Will be United States Answer to Great Britain's Latest Proclamation

OFFICIALS TALK

Special to the Examiner.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The sharpest protest yet published as a result of the European war will be the answer of the United States to England's latest "Right of Might" proclamation. Inspection of the text of the British "order-in-council," and the realization that her reply to the suggestion that foodstuffs for the non-combatant population of Germany is a curt refusal, has caused in Government circles an opinion that part of the latest order is for home consumption, but an open attempt to make the United States a party to the starvation of Germany by having it guarantee that none of its productions shall reach Germany or Austria, is characterized by high officials as "impudent assumption." While it was emphasized both at the White House and at the State Department that there was no undue haste in dealing with this latest problem in international relation, officials were unanimous in asserting that Britain's latest order will be characterized by the United States officially as flagrant violation of all the principles in international law, and a direct attack upon American trade that must be considered even more unfriendly.

BUILDING DESTROYED BY FIRE

An untenanted frame house on McGill Street, the property of Mr. Bigelow, was totally destroyed by fire between 12 and 1 o'clock this morning. The building, which had been vacant for some time, was outside the city limits and as there was no water supply available, the fire brigade was unable to do anything. An alarm was sent in from Box 13 and the brigade responded promptly. As soon as he realized the situation Chief Howard sent the hose outfit back to the station, while the ladder truck remained on the scene with a supply of chemicals to prevent the fire spreading. The fire must have been of incendiary origin. The loss will be about $400.

The Appeal Was Allowed

The appeal by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company from the judgment of Mr. Justice Britton of November 2nd, 1914, awarding the father of the late Thomas L. Sharpe $1,000 and costs, was allowed. The appeal was heard yesterday in the Appellate Division of the High Court. The appeal was allowed and the action dismissed with costs.

The appeal arose out of an action that was instituted by the father of the late Thomas L. Sharpe to recover $5,000 damages for the death of his son, alleged to have been caused by the negligence of the defendants.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, of Peterborough, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. J. D. Spence, of Toronto, for the railway company.

LIBERALS IN CAUCUS

OTTAWA, Ont., March 16.— The Liberals were in caucus this morning and though nothing was divulged at the conclusion of the meeting, it is understood that the chief question discussed was the investigation in the Public Accounts committee provided for last week by the adoption of a resolution referring to the committee correspondence between the Auditor General and the Militia Department concerning expenditures under the War Appropriation Act. The caucus, it is understood, decided what purchases made by the Militia Department should be investigated in committee and the length of the session will depend on developments.

Major Mills, Capt. Greer and Other Soldiers at the Front Give Graphic Descriptions of the Canadians' Baptism of Fire in France.

SOME NEWSY LETTERS

The mail just received from Europe contained, as was expected, many letters from Peterborough boys at the front, and a number of them, the contents of which, will be found interesting, are given below. These are the first to come since the Canadians reached the firing line, and give many details that were not known before:

CAPT. GREER FIRST

Medical Officer of 2nd Battalion First Peterboro' Man in Trenches

In a letter to Mr. Paul Trebilcock, written on Feb. 23, Capt. Garnet Greer of Peterborough, Medical Officer of the 2nd Battalion, First Contingent, in which are the 57th Regiment boys, gives some graphic details of the Canadians' baptism of fire. Capt. Greer says:

"We left Salisbury Plain rather in a hurry and went to a place from which troops had never embarked before, though the transport and supplies went from there. Our transport was an Indian freighter running from England to Calcutta and as we had no cargo to speak of you can imagine how she rolled and pitched. We took a rather round-about course and were three nights and two days on board. The saloon was about the size of your dining room and it was very funny to see about twenty of us sleeping on the floor, benches, table, or anything one could find, and when the ship rolled, well a football scrimmage is what things looked like.

Anyway, in spite of the Kaiser's boast that the Canadian contingent would never reach France, we arrived safely in the port of ——. We were given about three hours to unload and then entrained for——. It was a very tedious journey of two nights and one day and a half. I slept on some straw in a cattle car. Great sport. When we reached —— we were billeted and remained there for a few days, resting. We could hear the guns and see the shells bursting towards ——, about twelve miles away. Like a bolt out of the blue the order came to move, and here we are. We marched to ——, and were attached to the — Regiment of British regulars. I never hope to meet a finer set of officers. After a night's rest we moved on to the trenches and the platoons went in at intervals; then, companies as a whole. The troops relieved at ——, but the staff went out earlier. My "dressing station" is a little farm, about 400 yards from the first line of trenches. I was the first person from the old home town to get into the trenches. Col. Rogers got in the previous night, but he is not a Peterborough man. Anyway, we are both from the 3rd (Prince of Wales Dragoons).

I shall never forget my first trip from the farm to the trenches. The communicating trenches are full of water, so we had to go overground. I went in company with Major W—, 2nd in command of the Regulars, a fine man D. S. O. etc. He tells me that the snipers were more active that night than he has experienced for months. Probably they knew the Canucks were making their debut in the trenches, as it were. They turned a maxim gun on the road twice, and it would have made a pretty picture to see the Major and the M. O. scrambling into a ditch. The bullets made a fierce row going by and the feeling the first time is indescribable. But they say the ones you hear never hurt and it must be right.

The "Jack Johnsons" were bursting in the field all around the farm on Saturday and they put the fear into one I can tell you. But you get accustomed to anything and I don't mind them much now at all. The other day one came through the roof of the farm, and a few burst in the yard, but no damage to amount to anything was done.

"I have collected some nice souvenirs of the "Boches," fuses of "Jack Johnsons" and some bullets picked out of the wall of the room in which

1000 PETERBORO MEN VOLUNTEERED FOR THE FRONT

No Lack of Applicants for Active Service Here—A Half Hour Added to Dry Period by Regimental Orders

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Since the outbreak of the war over 1,000 Peterborough men have offered their services to the Empire for duty at the front. This figure may surprise those who have not been following the recruiting closely, and may seem large, but it is a very conservative estimate. Over 600 have been accepted, the remainder being rejected for physical defects. Major. G. S. Cameron, A.M.C., has examined nearly 900 men himself, and others have been examined by other doctors.

In spite of the large draft recruited by the Mounted Rifles and 39th Battalion, 60 men have endeavoured to enlist with the 26th Overseas Battery and 34 of these have already been accepted.

Capt. Spencer, commanding officer of the local detachment of the 39th Battalion, left this morning for Wilberforce, where he has been called by the serious illness of his wife's mother. Lieut. C. R. Cameron is in command at the Armouries.

A provisional school for the instruction of non-coms. and officers will be held at Belleville, commencing on April 1st, and continuing for six weeks. The announcement was read to the members of the 39th Battalion this morning, and a number of the Peterborough men will take in the class.

Another half hour has been added to the "dry" period. A regimental order by Lt.-Col. J. A. V. Preston, officer commanding the 39th Battalion, received this morning, decrees that hotels and liquor stores are out of bounds for members of the battalion except between the hours of 6 and 9.30 p.m. Hitherto the men have been allowed in the hotels as late as 10 p.m.

Probably no member of the Third Canadian Contingent has had a longer training than Sergt. R. W. A. Stevens, who is acting sergeant-major of the local detachment of the 39th Battalion. Sergt. Stevens served twenty-three years and 287 days with the 28th "Old Braggs" (1st Gloster Regiment), and has seen much foreign service, including fourteen years in India, spent at various stations between Poona and the North-West Frontier. He was in the South African War in 1899-1900, for which he has the Queen's medal and two clasps, and was afterwards stationed for two years in Ceylon, guarding Boer prisoners. Sergt. Stevens, who lives on Elm Street, has resided in Peterborough for two years.

Pte. Robert Koss, of the 8th Mounted Rifles, who has been dangerously ill with pneumonia, is now convalescing

COUNCIL MAY LEVY ONLY SEVEN TENTHS OF MILL

For Garbage Collection Instead of One Full Mill—This Will Make the Total Tax Rate About 25 1-5 Mills on the Dollar

RATE WILL BE LOWER

This time to-morrow the ratepayers should have a fair idea of what the tax rate is to be for the current year.

The Finance Committee is detained to meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock, and put the finishing touches on the estimates. Their efforts may result in a reduction of nearly two mills on the dollar, making the total tax rate in the neighbourhood of twenty-five mills for the general rate and seven-tenths of a mill for garbage collection. The so-called war tax will bring the rate up to twenty-six and one-fifth mills, which will be lower than last year's rate by four-fifths of a mill, including one mill for garbage collection. The different committees have met from time to time, and the result of their labours is to be seen in the estimates which have been stripped of everything but the tail feathers. Despite the reduction in the appropriations the different departments expect to undertake as much civic work this year as was accomplished last year. The increased assessment will net the city about thirty-seven thousand dollars in the form of taxes.

A Souvenir of The Past

PETERBOROUGH'S WATER SUPPLY

The report of Dr. A. W. McPherson, M.H.O., concerning the water supply for the past month, would indicate that Peterborough has been favoured with a supply of pure water throughout the month. His report contains the following observations:

"The weather was very cold the first ten days. After that it turned mild, thawing through the day very frequently. The snow almost disappeared at the end of the month. The water has been constantly pure throughout the month."

The water was tested on six different occasions.

IRELAND AND FIGHTING.

On the eve of St. Patrick's day, it is not amiss to call attention to Ireland's part in this great war for civilization's highest interests. It is stated that in proportion to population, liable for service in the army, Ireland has furnished more recruits to the British army in the present war than any of the British Isles. Not only that but Irishmen are pre-eminent in the ranks of high command. We have at the very head and front, Lord Kitchener, not only the greatest living soldier, but the greatest organizer of armies and of victory of any age. When a great naval victory is scored we have Admiral Beatty, an Irishman, on the bridge. Now we have another Irishman, Admiral Carden, forcing the Dardanelles, and opening the gates to greater victory. He is a Tipperary man; but he is not headed for Tipperary now, but for Constantinople, and he'll "get there," as Irishmen have a way of doing. It seems to be something more than accident that brings Irishmen so prominently to the top in times of imperial crisis. The freedom of Europe, the life and future of the Empire, rested upon the shoulders of two Irishmen a hundred years ago, and what Nelson and Wellington did in their sphere then, other Irishmen are doing on shore and sea to-day, in the interests of European civilization and the integrity of the Empire. There must be something in the Irish character that develops greatness of initiative and action, and creates the man for the hour. A noted feature of Irish conversation and literature is the Irish "bull," but in practical life, in the battle line, on sea or shore, it's a dangerous thing to "take the bull by the horns." Erin Go Bragh!

BROUGHT HOME TO US.

We read with pardonable pride of the splendid valour and military effectiveness displayed by the Canadian troops now at the front and in the fighting line. They have, however, done no more than we expected of them. We felt confident that in military resource, in courage, in dash, and in enthusiasm, they would be worthy of the traditions of Canadian soldiers, and of the traditions of British valour they inherit. With all this national satisfaction and pride, we have forced upon us the sorrowful significance of the line of Gray's Eligy—"The paths of glory lead but to the grave." Our soldiers in even victorious fighting cannot do so without meeting the fortunes of war. We must be prepared to hear of many deaths, of many wounded. This also we had to expect; this also we must brace our souls to meet—with as much courage, in our way, as our gallant lads show on the battlefield, when they meet death and wounds. Our soldier lads face the foe unflinchingly, and it is not too much to ask ourselves to meet with equal courage the consequences of their desplay of courage in the discharge of duty. And we have our duty presented to us in a new form or with more direct insistence. While our soldiers were in the training camps we had only to provide for the comforts that contributed to their bodily welfare. Now that the harvest of battle has begun to be reaped, our soldier boys with wounds and other disabilities of battle will need, in an increasing degree, the attention which the Red Cross work represents. In doing this work heretofore we have been true to an idea; now we must face facts and prepare to uphold and strengthen the sterner and more direct work of the Red Cross in catering to the healing and comforting work for our soldiers disabled by wounds, and the incidental disasters of conflict. Our duty thus comes more closely home to us, and our women cannot roll a bandage without knowing that there is a place for it on the body of a wounded Canadian soldier. Having our soldiers in the battle line brings many things home to us with new intensity.

THE CITY GARDEN.

Good sense and practical knowledge and experience, are a strong trio; they are conspicuous in the letter of Mr. Young on the general subject of the "City Garden," published in this issue on this page.

It is to be noted that Mr. Young recommends the strengthening of the membership of the Horticultural Society. Here is a practical idea that can be made the basis of the success of the "city garden." There is no doubt that the city garden idea can be made a success and a very important factor in contributing something tangible to the substance and comfort of living—being made an important means of addition to the home bill of fare.

Now is the time to put the idea of enlarging the membership and the extending of the influence of the Horticultural Society into effect. We are living in an age of organization for specific objects designed to help in the war. We have scores of little and great organizations all working earnestly, and, albeit, modestly, with success. Why not throw a little of the spirit of push into the Horticultural Society to the end of making it a factor in regard to promoting improvement of the conditions, created or, the interests affected by the war.

Unemployment is one of the direct results of war conditions; and though intenser activity and enlarged organization of the society may not directly affect employment, it can contribute to lessen and ameliorate the hardships and privations consequent on unemployment.

In hundreds of cases the city garden, with the needed hedp and encouragement, can be made to yield an equivalent to the income cut off by idleness.

There needs, however, a little educational work, a little work of encouragement and inspiration; there needs to be a propaganda to impress upon all the importance of the city garden in the scheme of domestic provisioning.

No agency can be more effective to this end than the Horticultural Society, with its specific organization, with its influential membership, and with its past achievements as a certificate of effectiveness.

It may be urged that the society is not organized so much to encourage growth of vegetables as flowers. The latter may be its specific object; but out of that grows a larger responsibility. Its object is to make things grow, to use the earth to produce "herbs for the use of man."

In encouraging the city garden the society will be encouraging the spirit of growing things; and, with the cultivation of the useful, the spirit of production will come and there will be a vast widening of the realization of the chiew end of man on earth to glorify God in the fruits of the soil he has provided for our culture.

There is no greater, higher and holier earthly object than to use of gifts of God to grow things for the use of man from the dust of which we are made.

The Horticultural Society converted into an engine of practical usefulness in encouraging and promoitng the growth of things, can be an instrument of the greatest civic uplift and help.

There is a spark of sound sense and the germ of good fruit, in the suggestion of Mr. Young, that the City Council should turn over some of its functions and duties to the Horticultural Society, with its better qualification for specific work.

If certain work in the way of horticulture, floriculture, arborculture, etc., were turned over by the city to the society with some substantial ways and means provided, we should have far better results.

We commend the reading of Mr. Young's letter to the public, and entreat a careful consideration of its practical suggestions. We only need a few such men to take an interest in the matter of city gardening, and the general and wide associated interests, to insure success; to insure a practical benefit to the mass of the population—a benefit large and inclusive compared with the limited cost; and a benefit not confined entirely to material results; but including moral culture, added to physical and productive culture.

Intensive farming is the keystone of the greater production urged by the government as a test of patriotism; and intensive gardening represented by the little well-tilled city plot, is, in all senses, a measure of the highest kind of patriotism—the benefit of peaceful citizens earnestly fulfilling the individually trivial, but collectively, great, duties of ordinary life.

Mr. W. H. Young And The City Garden

A Sensible and Important Communication Written by a Thinking, Practical Man

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I again read with interest, your notes in Saturday night's paper on the "City Garden" and what interested me was the suggestion that the Horticultural Society might issue a booklet giving information on what to grow in and how to cultivate a city plot.

There are lots of things our Society could do if we could only get the encouragement from increased membership. You take the society of St. Thomas, Ontario. They have about 1,200 members, while in Peterborough we have less than 400, yet our population is greater than theirs.

Perahps we have not been energetic enough in arranging displays of flowers and vegetables, but this has been under consideration by the Directors and may bear fruit this season. If we could get a membership of over 1,000 we would have some money to spend on booklets and other things as well.

I quite believe we have that number of citizens who are interested in flowers and able enough to afford a dollar if we could only get them.

You mention in your notes that the City Council and Board of Trade might take an interest in the city garden and I agree there; especially the council. Any idle land they hold could be staked out into good-sized gardens and given to men if they care to take it up, who have only been having casual employment, recently. They could grow enough stuff to keep themselves for a good part of the year They could do the necessary work when not employed otherwise, the Council to provide deserving cases with seed and help, as far as possible The benefit derived would be twofold.

I noticed in this year's appropriation the Council had a sum apportioned for pruning trees and cutting weeds. It struck me at the time that the sum set aside could have been added to the Horticultural Society's rant, and let them undertake this work. They engage a man to look after the Parks, and sometimes have to get additional help. With a little more work added they could perhaps keep two men going, but perhaps this might be better left, until we have a Parks Commission.

Might I suggest that The Examiner undertake to run a gardening column on their own account—say on Friday night, for Saturday's work. It is always an interesting part in any paper and would catch the attention of many people who would not pick up a magazine devoted entirely to gardening and read it.

Thanking you, I remain,

Yours truly,

Wm. H. Young.

Peterborough, March 16th.

ARE MOTHERS GUILTY OF KILLING BABIES?

Most mothers love babies, but it is a strange combination of love and ignorance on the part of mothers that causes twenty-five per cent. of our babies to die before they reach one year of age. Mothers frequently and with the best intentions feed and dress their babies in a manner that, for the sake of a better term, is simply "killing the babies with kindness."

What is the meaning of the world-wide interest in Child Welfare to-day?

It means that sociologists, philanthropists, eugenists, all thoughtful women and men, are discovering that the welfare of the child holds such an important place in our social and national life, that no longer can this study be neglected.

There is a God-given instinct in every decent man and woman that cries out for protection for the children. The world can look with comparative composure at dead men in trenches and shattered cathedrals; but maimed, naked, starving children is a sight it cannot bear without passion and amazement, and a strong desire to do things.

The mortality among children is dreadful. If a like death rate should take place with our cows, horses, or pigs, the Government would at once take action and see to it that the cause was removed. The cause of this enormous mortality among children is ignorance—the ignorance of parents—compulsory education; and the one thing needed for the perpetuation and welfare of the human family is not in the curriculum.

The conservation of human life—the knowledge that will lessen the number of tiny graves in the cemeteries, and the saddened hearts of loving parents—this is the information the Better Canadian Bibles Bureau is trying to diffuse.

First of all it ought to be the child's privilege to be born right, of healthy parents having no history of mental disease, malignant troubles, tuberculosis, or alcoholism. The child does not select its parents, and it is a tragical situation if, as the child grows up, it learns to deplore that such is the case.

Pre-natal influences and their effect upon the mental and physical condition of later life might be profitably studied by prospective parents. In fact, if the same care and common sense used in the management of the domestic animals were applied in the rearing of children it would be a great improvement on the present methods.

Mothers have it in their power to see to it that there are "Better Canadian babies," and as a natural result there will be more of them.—"Better Babies."

The market for wheat futures was fairly active and in sympathy with a firm Liverpool market prices advanced further on wheat. May oats advanced, while July declined. Flax made considerable advances over opening points. Nearing noon the market was dull and values holding about the high points.

In cash circles the demand all round is exceptionally keen, but little actual business is being carried thru, owing to the abnormal scarcity of offerings.

Wheat futures closed 1⅝c to 2⅝c up, cash 1⅜c to 3c up, oats 1⅛c to 1⅜c up and flax 5c to 6⅛c higher.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, March 15.—Business in grain over the cable today was dull, there being no firm cables received from foreign buyers. In sympathy with the advance in prices for oats in Winnipeg, a stronger feeling prevailed on spot, and prices were marked up 1c to 2d per bushel, but the demand from all sources was slow and trade quiet. The tone of the market for spring wheat flour is stronger, and the prospects are that if present prices for wheat in Winnipeg are maintained values will be advanced in the near future. Millfeed is in fair demand. Butter quiet and easy. Cheese firm. Eggs easy and slightly lower.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, March 15.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.56⅞; No. 1 northern, $1.55⅞; No. 2 northern, $1.48⅞ to $1.51⅞; May, $1.53⅞; July, $1.47⅝.

The daily ration of a Japanese soldier in the field consists of three little bags of rice and a bunch of dried vegetables.

A SERIOUS REVERSE IN THAW CASE

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, March 16.—(Special to Examiner.)—Harry K. Thaw suffered a serious reverse in his battle for freedom. Supreme Court Justice Page denied the motion of Stanford White's slayer to be returned to the state of New Hampshire following his acquittal Saturday on a charge of conspiring to effect his release from Matteawan. Anticipating an attempt to kidnap him and rush him back to Matteawan, Thaw to-day obtained a writ of Habeas Corpus on Warden Hanley of the Tombs, commanding him to hold Thaw until March 16. This forestalled the possibility of removing Thaw from the Tombs when advised of the verdict given to-day.

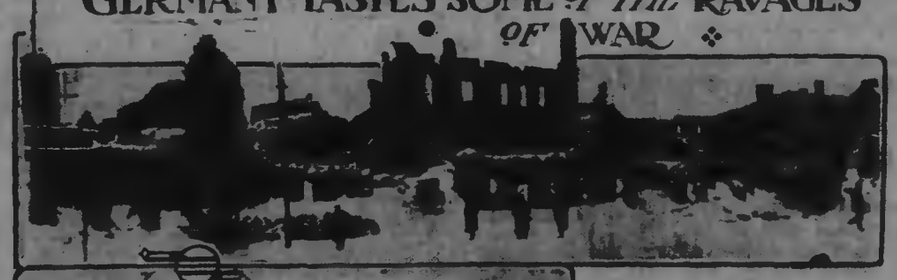
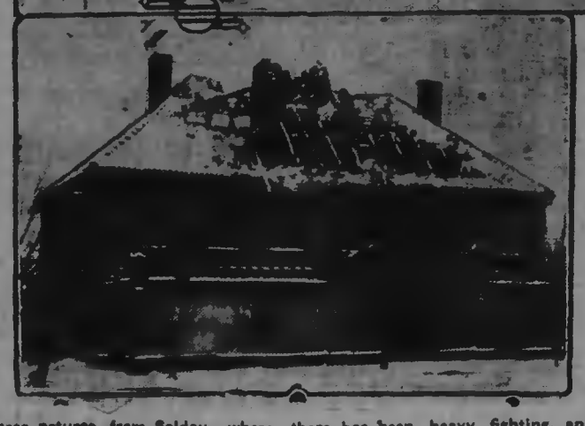
GERMANY TASTES SOME OF THE RAVAGES OF WAR





These pictures, from Soldau, where there has been heavy fighting, and where the Russians inflicted heavy damage on the Germans. They show the remains of military houses.

A Little Nonsense Now and Then Is Relished By the Wisest Men

A remarkable article has appeared in Maclean's Magazine giving what purports to be the inside story of reasons why the Princess Pats were taken off the steamer Megantic at Quebec on August 29th last and detained at Valcartier along with the other Canadian troops for another month before being sent cross the Atlantic.

The story is written by C. Lintern Sibley with an air of the most intimate knowledge of all that happened, and of the words and even the unspoken thoughts of the chief actors, who are Hon. Sam Hughes and a mysterious lady, with Sir Robert Borden in a minor third role.

It appears that on August 28th Hon. Sam Hughes was dining at the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec. He was alone with his thoughts and the menu. That is to say, he was unattended by any of his staff, but at the same table was seated a lady, refined, beautiful, but pallid. Let us, however, follow the example of Major-General Hughes, and scrutinize the lady more closely, for the author, Mr. Sibley, says she made a great impression on the Minister.

"The striking pallour of her face was its most striking quality, seeming a tint rather than a shade. Blending into a delicate brownness at the throat, it bespoke healthy vitality. The heavy coils of her hair were black, and her eyes, seriously and vaguely tragic as they were, yet glowed with warmth and animation. She was slender, but every move was a study in grace. The curves of her figure all low, yet there was no suggestion of angularity. Indeed, her figure suggested strength and suppleness beyond the ordinary."

The reader can now picture the twain—the grim soldier and the refined, beautiful but pallid lady with vaguely tragic eyes. Before she left the table she accosted him. He was munching an olive at the time. She warned him that she had news for him—news which if he valued the welfare of his country, he must know about. He must meet her alone on the Terrace at the far end under the citadel at 9 o'clock.

Well, if you had been in his place what would you have done? Remember that this man quietly munching an olive when he received the warning was at the head of the Canadian forces, and the country was at war. The cares of the country were on him. He needed all the news he could get. He decided to meet the refined but pallid lady on the far end of the Terrace at 9 o'clock, and to meet her alone. And he did.

They meet. She tells him she is of the British Secret Service; she knows all about the arrangements for sending the Canadian contingent away; she says the Germans know it, too, and unless the plans are changed not a man of the 33,000 Canadians will ever be heard of again once the ships leave shore. She tells him that the Germans have a Zeppelin in the Quebec mountains and mean to sink the troop ships with the Canadians on board. She begs that the Princess Pats be taken off the Megantic at Quebec next day, and that no troops be sent away until flying machines have located and destroyed the German Zeppelin.

What could Hon. Sam Hughes do in view of this warning? Could he risk letting the men go? Even while he talked with the lady, she suddenly squeezed his arm. A man approached. Ha! They were shadowed. So they engaged in banter and airy persiflage until a man in rubber boots passed by. What was the Minister of Militia to do? Was he to heed the warning? According to the published story, he did heed it, ordered the Princess Pats off the Megantic next day, to the surprise of all Canada, and left that regiment and all the others for another month at Valcartier while flying machines searched the Laurentian wilderness for the hang-out of a German Zeppelin. Then one day, on September 27th, a flying machine lit at Valcartier while Hon. Sam Hughes was conversing with Sir Robert Borden, a hurried message was given by the airman, and the Minister of Militia gave instant orders for all troops to pack up and make sail for England. Evidently the enemy Zeppelin had been found and destroyed, and the Canadian Armada saved.

Now what about all this?

It purports to be true. It is written in the most intimate way, as if the writer had his information from the principals. It appears in Maclean's Magazine, which is published by Col. John Bayne Maclean, a well-known military man. Not only is the Minister of Militia the principle figure in the story, but the Prime Minister is brought into it as the one and only confidant of Gen. Hughes.

Is this story true, or is it a hoax? The country ought to know. Did Major-General the Hon. Sam Hughes order the Princess Pats off the Megantic on August 29th and keep them kicking their heels at Valcartier until September 27th because of a warning he received from a refined, beautiful, but pallid, lady while he munched an olive in the dining-room of the Chateau Frontenac?

Did the warning of the mysterious lady have the effect of keeping the first contingent of thirty-three thousand Canadians a month longer in Canada than they would otherwise have been?

If so, what proof was found on or before September 27th that the story told by the mysterious lady was a true one? Was the Zeppelin found? Where? When? Can the wreck of it be put in the national museum at Ottawa?

No story quite so sensational as this, and with dates and names given in so definite a way, has been made public in Canada since Col. Hughes returned from the South African War. It is a whale of a story. It makes the wildest of recent works of fiction look tame and, we may add, pallid.

What is Hon. Sam Hughes going to do about it? Will the Prime Minister explain to Parliament? Or will the mysterious lady come forward with further particulars of the affair? —Toronto Star.

The Scarcity of Spelter

May Cause a Shortage of Galvanized Ware—The Local Situation

Although tin plate and ingot tin have advanced in price slightly during the past few days the dealers in tinware and lanterns in this city are not very much disturbed, but are worrying somewhat over the great scarcity of spelter. It is practically unprocurable, according to the manager of a local tinware establishment, and although no immediate increase in prices will go into effect, an increase may be looked for if the situation is not relieved before the stock on hand is exhausted. The lack of spelter affects all galvanized goods. If the situation is not relieved before the stock on hand expires tin goods will replace the galvanized materials.

The Advance in Tin-Plate.

The price of $3.20 per box on tin-plate in New York dating from last Monday, is the result of the high price reached by pig tin in the last several weeks. The metal is now quoted at 47c per pound compared with 36c two wekes ago, and 41c one week ago. On March 11 last year it sold at slightly over 38c.

Tin plate selling at the recent price at $3.1 per base box was the lowest in about fifteen years, and little profit was allowed to makers.

The product should in normal times sell at $3.60 to $3.60 per box. Last summer, shortly after the war started, tin plate was quoted at $3.70 per box when pig tin sold at 60c per pound.

MUNITIONS ARE NEEDED

Secretary for War in Speech in the House of Lords Says Greater Efficiency Must Be Secured in the Manufacture of War Supplies

DRINK TO BLAME

LONDON, March 16. — "Our progress in equipping the new armies has been seriously hampered by the failure to obtain sufficient labor and the necessary plant for the supply of war material," said Lord Kitchener, Secretary for War, in the House of Lords last evening.

Lord Kitchener held excessive drinking partly to blame for this condition, which, he said, was causing him "serious anxiety."

He urged the passing of a bill authorizing the Government to take over factories for the production of war material, and recommended that men who had served their country in making this material receive field medals like the soldiers at the front.

"Notwithstanding our great efforts," he said, "we have unfortunately found that the output of munitions of war does not equal our necessities and does not fulfill expectations. A very large number of our orders have not been completed on the dates for which they were promised.

"The supply of material for the next two or three months is causing me very serious anxiety. The enormous output which we require to place our troops in the field thoroughly equipped and with sufficient ammunition is undoubtedly possible, but can only be obtained by careful and deliberate organization. We must develop all the resources of the country and enable each competent workman to utilize in the most useful manner possible all his energy in the common object that we all have in view, which is the successful prosecution of the war to a victorious termination."

Referring to the Canadian division the speaker said:

"They have shown their mettle and received the warm commendation of Field Marshal Sir John French for the high spirit and bravery with which they have performed their part."

Still a Member of The Council

Ald. Johnston's Resignation Has Not Been Formally Accepted

Ald. Johnston still continues to be a member of the City Council. His membership will hold good until the Council undertakes to relieve the north ward alderman of his responsibility by formally accepting his resignation. This they have declined to do until it could be ascertained whether Ald. Johnston would reconsider his decision. Failing to accomplish this it remains for the Council to regretfully accept the resignation and set about to prepare naturalization papers for a successor. Machinery for this is provided in the Municipal Act and will be put into motion as soon as the necessary formalities are complied with.

The formal acceptance of Ald. Johnston's resignation will be followed by a bye-election. In event of a member of the Council resigning within the last two months of the year it is not necessary to fill the vacancy.

MRS. J. WILSON
372 George Street 'Phone 35

Mr. J. K. L. Ross

To be born the son of a very rich man who has made a name for himself as wide as the country in which he lives is about as severe a handicap as Providence can impose. So that it was with this handicap that John Kenneth Leveson Ross began the life of a young man in Montreal a few years ago. The late James Ross, the father of young Ross, was a pioneer of the Canadian Pacific, and, in fact, built one of the mountain sections. He was considered a man of great ability and force of character even among his associates of a day when these qualities were not rare. He was a big man among big men. Jack Ross began well. It was in 1897 that he left McGill with the right to add B.A.Sc. after his name. But the young College graduate gave early and convincing indications of his intentions to become a real man. He went from McGill to the car shops of the Montreal Street Railway and began to "dig in." In a little while he was assistant to the General Manager of the Montreal Street Railway, then acting manager of the City of Birmingham Tramway Company, then assistant manager of the Central London Railway. Then he came back to Canada and dived into coal mines as he had dived into railways elsewhere. James Ross was a "coal" man and it was not long before "Jack" turned up as Assistant General Manager of the Dominion Coal Company. Then he became Commercial Manager of the same big industry. Now we find him described as a "capitalist" in various volumes of the "who's who" variety. The list of his financial connections is a long one, comprising among many others, directorships of the Dominion Bridge Company, the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, Monklands Limited, Cote St. Luc Realties, and last, but by no means least, of the Canadian Pacific Railway; and Mr. Ross is the youngest of the C. P. R. directors.

And there is one thing to be noted about these directorships—they were not accorded him as compliments to his distinguished father. If "Jack" Ross has a weakness that almost amounts to a vice it is his love of deep sea fishing. In 1911, when his yacht was anchored at Picton, N.B., one of the natives remarked, "Belongs to some crazy Montrealer, who spends all his spare time tryin' to cath a tuna. He'll never land one if he hooks it." Which shows that the native in question didn't know Ross. He had been after a tuna with hook and line for three summers, and he was going to get a tuna if it took three or thirty summers more. Whereupon a regular whale of a tuna consented to take his bait and see which was the better man. The struggle lasted about five hours, which was very quick work indeed. It was the biggest fish ever landed in Canada anyway, if not indeed a record-breaker for the Atlantic. That tuna won him an honorary membership in the Tuna Club of Santa Carolina, California.

The death of James Ross left the son one of the wealthiest men in Canada. It was when war broke out that Mr. Ross' splendid generosity was most notably shown. It not being possible for him to go to the front, he gave one-half million dollars to the common cause—perhaps the largest private cash donation at one time given by a British subject. But if Mr. Ross could not go to the firing line he could do, and did, the next best thing. He "did his little bit" to make a Canadian port a safer place for British and Canadian commerce. Mr. Ross has a very powerful and swift motor cruiser, the "Tuna," and the "Tuna" with its master on board went into the service of the Admiralty forthwith and she is now an invaluable patrol boat. The late James Ross was a collector of paintings and objects of art of more than average discernment. Gradually there accumulated in his magnificent home on Peel Street a collection with but few rivals in Montreal, if indeed in America. Of this home and this collection J. K. L. Ross is now the master.

MR. CYRIL DEVEY'S ORGAN RECITAL

Port Hope Guide Makes Flattering Reference to Local Boy

Mr. Cyril H. Devey, of Peterborough who presided at the organ in St. Paul's Church, Sunday, made quite a favourable impression. He has unusual musical talent for one of his years, and should have a good future before him. In the short recital, given at the close of the evening service he elicited much favourable comment. Mrs. McCarthy, always a favourite, sang very sweetly the solo "My God, My Father, While I Stray."

The following was the programme rendered:

1. (a) Overture to Thanhauser—Wagner.
(b) Forget-Me-Not—McBeth.
2. Solo, "My God, My Father, While I Stray."—Mrs. McCarthy.
3. (a) Angels' Serenade—Braga.
(b) Fanfare in B Flat—Dubois.
(c) National Airs. — Port Hope Guide.

TENDERS FOR THE MARKET PRIVILEGE

Will be Opened This Evening by the Property Committee

The Property Committee of the City Council will meet this evening to consider the tenders that have been received for the market. A number of tenders have been presented, including one from ex-Ald. Brown, whose contract will expire on April 1st. It is understood that the contract price will be somewhat lower this year as the revenue from the market has decreased to some extent. Some days the proceeds would not exceed forty or fifty cents a day, yet the successful tenderer must expect to pay between eight and nine hundred dollars a year for the privilege.

Few, if any of the holders of the market privilege have ever been known to exact more than a fair living out of the job. The city awards the concession each year usually to the highest tenderer.

After experimenting for 30 years a New York man claims to have perfected a synthetic gold made from copper and aluminum.

FIRST FATALITY IN PETERBORO' of the Year From Spinal Meningitis —Boy 14 Years of Age

The first fatality of the year in the city from spinal meningitis occurred last night, when Stanley Armstrong, the 14 year old of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Armstrong, 139 Douro Street, passed away. The deceased boy has been ailing for about three weeks and previous to his illness he attended the King George school, where he was preparing to try his High School Entrance examination next mid-summer.

Stanley is the fifth son Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong have lost. They also lost one daughter.

His parents, three brothers, Messrs. Edmund of Cuba, Ernie of Toronto, and William of Peterborough, and two sisters, Misses Ethel and Dorothy at home, survive.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon from the family residence, 139 Douro Street, at 2.30 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery.

All Aboard For the Street Railway Men's At Home Wed. Night

The Street Railway men repudiate any connection with a certain item which appeared a few nights ago in regard to their warm friends the postmen. The postmen took the jolly in good part, feeling that if the item referred to an alleged fact they could say something very pertinent about their moonlight excursion, who were there and who were noticeably absent. However, they refused to do anything of that nature. They accept the asserted innocence of the railway men and decided any of their members can attend they will do so. The railway men have everything arranged for a most enjoyable evening. Something might be suggested in the way of new dances to be demonstrated such as the "Flat Wheel Hesitation," "The Conductors Glide" or "The Collide Tango." Something might be said in this regard, but they're a mighty touchy bunch, especially about the class of their At Home. Any suggested innovations would be frowned upon, and Harry Smith, Fred Roseboro and the rest of them would blow in with a suit for defamation of character. It looks like a big evening.

Miss Arnoldi to Art Association

The following interesting letter has been received by Miss Neill, of the Peterborough Branch of the Women's Art Association, from Miss Arnoldi of the Canadian Field Comforts Commission:

The Vicarage,
Amestury, Wilts,
January 7th, 1915.

Dear Miss Neill,—Please accept our hearty thanks for the generous cheque sent us by the Peterborough branch of the Women's Art Association. We are very glad to see the fund grow, for the men do now need many things, and as time goes on the need will grow. They have had a great deal of discomfort and have borne it all so cheerily and uncomplainingly. Things are worse at the present moment and we are having awful floods, and more than half the country is under water. One of our poor fellows was drowned the other night. The flood is very strong and in some places and I hear he got caught under a tree trunk. The continuous mud and wet has caused much illness. It is very hard for men to die in bed before they have had a chance to fight for the cause they have so bravely espoused.

I am glad to say that a goodly number of the men are now being billetted, as they should all have been from the first. The poor horses have suffered sadly, and I am thankful that they are now getting some shelter. Will you convey our best thanks to your Association for their generosity. I hope if they are able to, they will help our work again later on.

With best wishes for the New Year,
Yours sincerely,
Jean L. Arnoldi,
C.F.C.C.

BRINGS SUIT AGAINST WIFE FOR HIS WAGES

Received Envelope For 25 Years—She Has Eloped.

BINGHAMPTON, N.Y., March 12.—Rial H. Walker brought suit against his wife, Mary M. Walker, in the supreme court, for the recovery of his wages, which he has, according to his complaint, been turning over to her for 25 years, and which she now refuses to let him share, although she has eloped with another man.

He alleges that the total amount given to her is many thousands of dollars and that the wife invested the money in various securities and real estate.

Peterboro' Boys Tell of Their, etc.

I sleep. I must get a helmet, and then I shall be happy. We have been in the trenches for the past four days and came out to-night, for I don't know how long. The first brigade are the only Canadians in the trenches so far. I have had very few casualties and nothing serious at all among the Peterborough boys."

In a P.S., Capt. Greer adds: "There go the big guns again; until now they have been silent to-day."

A ROUGH VOYAGE

Gunner Joseph O'Toole Writes Interesting Letter From France

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O'Toole have received a letter from their son, Gunner Joseph O'Toole, with the first Canadian contingent now in France. In part he says:

"We are doing gun drill all day long and guard duty pretty nearly every other night. We are in a place where they won't let any lights on at night, so it is very inconvenient to do anything after a day's work.

We left England a couple of weeks ago and had a very rough voyage across the English Channel. Nearly everybody was sick, including myself, but we were all better when we landed in France. I saw a lot of the Peterborough boys, including Gordon Fallon and the Wyatt boys passing through here this morning. I don't know whether they were going to the front or not. We don't know when we go up to the trenches. Some of our officers and men were up for four days.

People are very quiet here on account of the big fight which took place here last October. There are graves all over. Every place you look you see a cross, where may be one or fifteen English soldiers are buried. Occasionally one sees a German grave, but these are not marked at all.

The weather is something great. Just like May weather in Canada. We get fairly good grub."

SHELLS INTOLERABLE

Pte. Dingman of 2nd Battalion Says Canucks Do Not Mind Rifle Fire So Much

Mrs. R. D. Snelgrove, 544 George Street, has received an interesting letter from her brother, Pte. W. A. Dingman of Belleville, who is in the same battalion as the Peterborough boys in the first contingent in France. He says:

"We just came out of the trenches a couple of days ago and came back to our billets to recuperate. Our trenches were only eighty yards from the Germans, and believe me it was rather exciting. The boys do not mind the rifle fire very much. It is the shells we do not like. They are intolerable. It is a shame to see the beautiful places that have been destroyed. The Germans will stoop to anything and believe me they are getting it back on themselves and will get far more than they bargained for before they get through with the British.

The Canadians have certainly had good luck, if there is such a thing as luck, and the British officers speak very highly of us. They all displayed pretty good judgment while in the trenches. The last day we were in we had one killed and one wounded out of our platoon and I am sorry to say it was really their own fault (carelessness.) It was a foggy morning and Crickedon, the wounded boy, went over the trench and got a German helmet, getting back safely. Then not being satisfied he went forward again and ran against some cans, making a noise. They caught sight of him and of course got him."

BRUCE MILLS INJURED

Slight Wound Over the Eye in the Trenches—With the North Staffords

Mr. Basil Hall has received the following letter from Major Jos. Mills, written somewhere in France. It is one of the newsiest letters shown to the Examiner, and will be read with deep interest:

Flanders, Feb. 22, 1915.

Here we are in foreign lands and fighting over the famous territory known as Flanders. Where we are and how we got here, we are not at liberty to tell, but it was very tiresome, and the night we left Salisbury Plains we will never forget. It just rained in torrents as its goodbye to us. Then there was the long march through the mud to the train, a ride in cold cars, then on the transport, which had no accommodation for either officers or men, then into freight cars with no seats or lights; so we were glad when it was over, but are pleased indeed to be away from Salisbury Plains. We then marched to our billets some 14 miles from this place. After a few days' rest we were ordered to the front. It was a long march over rough cobble-paved roads, which were hard to walk on. Then we went into the trenches, a half battalion at a time, with the North Staffords and the Rifle Brigade (Regulars.) Bruce (Major Mills' son), got a wound over the eye, but he did not stop shooting until he emptied his magazine. Then he got his eye dressed and is, I am happy to say, all right. The officer of his platoon is greatly pleased with him.

We lost two men killed in action and our Colonels' servant was killed by a dug-out caving in on him, so we did not come out of our first action too badly. A shell dropped near us when we were getting supplies, with the result that two horses were killed. It is an unpleasant job of our drivers that we had to replace him. Your first thought is of duck when you get the first shell near you and after a few you don't mind it. The night before the Peterborough boys went to the trenches, I visited them and all were very keen for the work, and none showed the white feather.

We leave this place to-morrow morning at 6.30 for the place we were billeted for at first, and after a few days we will be sent somewhere else. I am writing this in a beautiful mansion, where I am billeted with some of the officers of the North Staffords. To-morrow night I will have the best bed in the humble home of a poor villager.

These French people are very kind to us and do all they can for us. They have to house us. We provide the rations, and everything we want to buy from them, the price is reasonable, which is quite different from Salisbury. We will all appreciate Canada after this and will be perfectly satisfied with the climate and everything else.

"Joseph Mills."

TWICE IN TRENCHES

Not a Nice Place to Be But It's For the Country's Sake Says Pte. McKinlay

Pte. Sam. McKinlay of the 57th detachment in the first Canadian contingent, in a letter to his mother, Mrs. S. McKinlay, 295 Wolfe Street, city, says: "I have been in the trenches twice. It is no nice place to be, but still it is all for our Country's sake. May say we have had a — casualties in the 2nd Battalion, but none in our Company. It is a certainty we can't all come back. I have secured a German watch and coin which I am going to try and send home as souvenirs. It is very cold here just now and is snowing to-day. We marched fifteen miles yesterday, and my ankle is very sore. There is no use of asking me where I am in France, because I can't tell you, as I am not allowed to. I saw one Sergeant in the trenches get his brains blown out. He lived for four hours afterwards. It is awful to hear the bullets whizzing around you all the time."

A GERMAN SPY

Miss Blewitt, Peterboro' Nurse With First Contingent, Tells of Capture

Mr. Colemen Blewett received several cards and a letter from his daughter, Miss Beatrice Blewett, a nurse with the First Contingent at the front. One of the post cards was from the old service and stated she was well.

She describes the hospital where she was stationed for a time. It was formerly the Grand Hotel, a magnificent building at Wimereux, and in addition has about 100 huts surrounding it that are used for contagious diseases. These huts look like Canadian boat houses.

An accident that occurred in the hospital is worth repeating to show the resourcefulness of the German spy.

A lady was arrested in front of the hospital. She was taken and searched. She was found to be wearing a wire mast, protector in which she had concealed a carrier pigeon. The message on the pigeon was an important piece of news about the non-arrival of soldiers at that city and no doubt would have been on it's way to German head-

BRITISH FORCES RECAPTURE ST. ELOI NEAR YPRES

Centre of Many of the Hardest Engagements of the War is Now in the Hands of the Allies

PARIS, March 16.—St. Eloi, from which the British army had been compelled to fall back before German attacks, was recaptured with almost all the neighboring trenches yesterday afternoon despite several stubborn counter attacks of the enemy, while the advance was in progress. St. Eloi is south of Ypres and has been the point where some of the heaviest fighting of the war has taken place. The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry were in the trenches for several weeks at this village and it is believed that they took part in this engagement.

Fifty dead Germans were left on the ground as a result of an attempt to capture a redoubt near Lombaertzyde in Belgium which had been taken from the Germans a few days ago. The French losses in repelling this attack were insignificant.

Three lines of trenches were captured by the French infantry in a brilliant attack on German positions north of Arras on the spur of Notre Dame de Lorette. The French troops have now reached the edge of the plateau in this region. In this action they took 100 prisoners, several officers, destroyed two machine guns, and blew up an ammunition store. Further south of this point they blew up several German trenches near the road to Lille at Ecurie and Rocklincourt.

The Germans exploded a mine under a French trench near Carnoy, Albert district, and occupied the position, but were driven out. They came back and were driven out again, and the French troops have since firmly established themselves on this ground and put all their defensive works in order.

Near Vassens, in the Aisne Valley, two German companies (500 men) were caught by French fire and suffered heavy losses.

Ground was gained in the woods northeast of Souain and northwest of Perthes, in the Champagne district, by French soldiers, who also repulsed two counter-attacks on a bridge northeast of Mesnil, where a trench mortar was captured and the position extended.

A blockhouse was demolished near Bagatelle, in the Argonne region, and the site occupied by French infantry, who also repulsed two attacks by the Germans. Two attempts of the Germans to take the French lines between Four de Paris and Bolant were also checked, as two others earlier in the day had been.

The infantry in the French army operating near Vauquois succeeded in an attack on that village, and last night occupy the western part of it. They took a considerable number of prisoners in the fighting.

"The sudden offensive of the allies, from Champagne to the sea, resulting in gains at many points, seems to have taken the Germans wholly by surprise.

"A convincing indication of a partial or temporary demoralization of the troops which bore the brunt of these five days of successive onslaught is the arrival at Ghent and Brussels, for trial by court-martial, of parties of soldiers sent under escort from the trenches for having failed to respond to the order to make counter-attacks with sufficient enthusiasm, in some cases, it is said, they even failed to advance at all."

Austrians Harassed By Storms.

PETROGRAD, March 16.—All the middle Carpathian passes are still locked in a snow blizzard and the Austrians are making desperate efforts to extricate themselves from the choked ravines among the river sources flowing into the valley stretching to the region of Przemyal, the Stryj river and Lemberg which are stormswept in this region also. The Russians promptly seized their advantage amid the hurricane and snow to charge into the chief eastern defence of Przemysl, only three miles from the heart of the fortress. The position here is held by a strong force of infantry and artillery, but the vehemence of the Russian onslaught was such that an entire battalion surrendered at the first charge. The others maintained a confused resistance, frequently shooting their comrades. Then they fled in a panic, leaving many guns imbedded in the snowdrifts. The siege ring is now drawn much tighter.

The Germans in the north evidently dread the possibility of a thaw. Their forces on the border of Poland have been practically halted. The weather would permit of a general battle with the movement of artillery and heavy cavalry, but the season has reached the time when a complete thaw is probable. This would prove a disaster, if it caught the Germans in a half-developed movement near the swamps near north Narew.

W. E. LECH - 266 GEORGE STREET NEAR SIMCOE ST.

HE REGRETS THE TAX

Sir George Foster Insists, However, That Budget is Neces ry

OTTAWA, March 16.—In the budget debate in the Commons yesterday Sir George Foster was the chief speaker, and his contribution to the discussion occupied the greater part of the sitting.

For the present financial situation in Canada Sir George argued that no person nor any Parliament party was entirely responsible. The situation would have to be squarely faced, however, if Canada was to do her part in the present struggle, and the people in this country must realise that they could not save Canada and the Empire without some increase in taxation.

It was ridiculous, he said, for the Liberals to oppose additional taxation by suggesting "economy and retrenchment," which were virtues preached by the Liberals in opposition but never practiced by them in power.

Referring to the charge that the tariff changes would not produce revenue, Sir George said that last year goods entered Canada free of duty valued at $208,000,000. Upon similar imports under the new budget we would collect duties at the rate of 5 per cent. on British imports, and at the rate of 7 1-2 per cent. upon foreign imports. The British goods would have a preference.

Sir George said he regretted placing a tax on raw material and regretted the necessity for any increase in taxation, but the people of this country must realize that they could not save Canada and the Empire without paying anything.

Mr. Carroll (Lib., Cape Breton), who represents an industrial community, complained that the new budget bore oppressingly upon the consuming classes. He took issue with Mr. White's statement that the Canadian manufacturers had agreed not to raise prices in consequence of the tariff increases, and to prove his contention, quoted from circulars sent to the trade by various manufacturers, announcing higher price for their products in consequence of the tariff changes.

J. A. Descarries (Jacques Cartier), Mr. Hughes (King's, P.E.I), and Mr. Lafortune (Montcalm) also spoke.

POLAND'S PLIGHT IS MUCH WORSE THAN BELGIUM'S

Half a Million Homeless and 2,000,000 Are on Verge of Starvation

Special to The Examiner:

WARSAW, March 16. —Poland is gutted, ravaged, razed, turned into a waste. Almost in sight of this city is a desert of flame. If one goes at night a few miles west to the Wolo or Czysto suburbs one can see behind the sunset an unfading afterglow. This is the reflection in the sky of conflagration. Flame consumes everything.

Half a million Poles have lost their homes. A hundred thousand houses have been burnt or blown to bits. Forty thousand men and women are huddling in sheds, in tents, in holes in the frozen ground. Families number together 2,000,000 have on an average food for only a month, and there is no way of getting more food. Twenty thousand square miles of the best land are put out of cultivation.

Two thousand civilians have died of hunger and exposure, and tens of thousands are threatened. All the cattle having been requisitioned, there is no milk, and a quarter of the newly-born children die within a week.

Fruit of Six Months' War.

That is the fruit of six months' war for the kingdom of Poland. As the war is probably not a quarter over nothing at all will be left when the decision comes. The victor will gain a waste, without men, houses, food, cattle, forests, or tillable fields. "Finis Poloniae" will be a fact.

Devastation has almost reached Warsaw's walls. What the Germans have not yet got must be destroyed for military reasons by the Russians themselves. The flourishing villages outside the forts must be razed. I saw the destruction of Mozsiska, a village of 2,000 inhabitants in the marshes to the northwest.

Ten minutes before I arrived there a party of sappers and engineers had come to the office of the "gminde" headman and given half an hour's notice to the population to clear out. The engineers made some surveys. Out of their cabins tumbled the villagers, and out of the back yards were brought carts. The carts were loaded with clothes, bedding, kitchen utensils, and the lighter furniture. These were rushed to the bank of a stream and left there in pouring rain.

Houses Set on Fire.

The destruction of the village began. Sappers set fire to the roofs of the wooden houses. The wet thatches would not light. The matches were laid to curtains inside, and the houses blazed. At the end of the village were three brick cottages with common dividing walls.

A big dynamite cartridge was buried deep under the floor of the middle building. The explosion destroyed all three cottages. Next the villagers were given crowbars and ordered to break down the brick chimneys and the remaining fragments of brick wall. The women wept; the children looked on and applauded.

Around Warsaw and around Lods 200 villages have been destroyed in order to clear a trajectory for artillery projectiles.

Battle Havoc Worse.

This is nothing to the destruction caused by fights for villages; by artillery duels; by burning for reprisals. In part of central Poland not one village is left. Of the twelve nearest villages to Skierniewice ten have been burnt. In Petrokow province, in the southwest, 300 villages have been burnt or battered to fragments; also 700 isolated farms.

All villages and isolated houses on the Bzura river, between its confluence with the Vistula and its confluence with the Rawka, have disappeared. Worst of all is the destruction ber and December. In a patch of country ten miles square only two houses are left.

The Polish peasant refuses to run away at the right time. When he hears that a battle is raging fifty miles away he takes everything portable and, with his family, makes for Warsaw. The battle, he discovers, stays for weeks on the same spot. He assumes that it will not move any further, and he returns to the village and pays no heed to further warnings.

Destruction Comes in Night.

Then the Russian defence recedes; war and flame advance; and in the middle of the night destruction sweeps over the village. Shells explode and set the thatches aflame. The villagers rush from their beds. If lucky, they escape. If unlucky, they may find their village occupied at both ends by contending infantry.

There is a mad rush, infantry volleys are fired, civilians fall as thick as soldiers; the women and children dash back into their cabins, and the whole village goes up in flame. Those who have escaped tramp in their night clothes, along the sodden snow covered roads to the next village east, and a few days later, at the point of death, they are taken into Warsaw hospitals.

Polands nobles have lost their children. Some of the chateaux have been shelled; some purposely burned because they interfered with firing; some pillaged and then burned by marauders. In south Poland are 5,000 brigands, in small bands, who plunder and murder. Most were formerly honest peasants. Hunger and immunity have driven them to brigandage. Russia's military justice has summarily hanged fifty marauders. In the Lysa Gora hills around Kielce, flourishes "Tchorno Stanislas"—Black Stanislas— and a band of thirty brigands. Black Stanislas has murdered dozens of men and carried of ten women or girls. He rules a little independent state and does good business by spying for both Russians and Germans.

Everything Taken For Army.

Everything that escapes shell and flame is taken for army use. Bread grains, stock, and winter clothing have disappeared. The Germans requisition even the peasant sheepskin "tulups." Their sentries wear these on cold nights. Food to the value of $36,000,000 has been requisitioned by Germans and Russians since the beginning of October.

Requisitioning Poland's food supply means hunger now, and, a few months hence, it means famine. Poland's fields can no longer be cultivated. Much of them is swallowed up in roads. As the old roads cannot be traversed the transport columns march across the fields.

SWITZERLAND'S HUGE MAIL

Postal Service Has Lost $1,800,000 by Aiding Prisoners of War.

BERNE, March 13—The Swiss Postal Service shows a deficit of 9,000,000 francs ($1,800,000) for the period since the beginning of the war. This is due entirely to the free transportation of letters, postcards, packages, and postal orders for prisoners of war in France and Germany.

In February there was a daily average of 136,000 letters and postcards and 16,000 parcels thus carried free. Of the packages, an average of 10,000 daily weighed about eleven pounds each. The daily average of money orders was 6,500.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES

The Government icebreaker Lady Gray reached Three Rivers yesterday after cutting her way through thick ice from Quebec to that port.

A despatch from Sydney to the Reuter's Telegram Co. says that in order to lower prices the Australian Government purposes to nationalize the bread industry.

"It is reported that the German general headquarters moved Friday night from Lille across the Belgian border to Tournai," says a despatch to The London Daily Telegraph.

John R. Lamb, manager of the Winnipeg branch of the Bank of Toronto since 1905, left yesterday for Toronto, where he becomes superintendent of all branches of the bank.

P. Malakoff, sentenced to hang in Winnipeg Friday for the murder of a fellow-countryman, has been reprieved until June 9th, the date upon which Jacob Kusin is also due to hang for the same murder.

A pledge to the allies that Greece would place at their disposal 9,000 men for the Dardanelles expedition had been made to the chancellors of the triple entente by former Premier Venizelos on March 4, says The Petit Parisien.

Antonio di Lena, convicted of murdering Giuseppe Greco at Cedar Rapids, on Sept. 1, was refused a new trial by the Court of Appeals yesterday, and will be hanged on March 26, unless the Minister of Justice should grant clemency.

AFRAID OF SPIES.

German Port Officials Take All Precautions to Preserve Secrets.

WASHINGTON, March 16. — Extraordinary precautions adopted by German port authorities to prevent foreigners learning anything about their coast defences, or havens of the German navy, are described in a communication which Washington officials have just received from an officer of an American steamer.

The official states that before entering the port of Bremerhaven his vessel was boarded by about sixty Germans, who took complete command of the ship, sending the captain and everyone of the officers and crew down below, where they were shut in with closed ports until the vessel was at its berth.

The movements of both officers and crew afterwards were closely restricted as long as they were in port. Nevertheless this officer speaks of the extraordinary number of submarines he saw, some of them very much larger than anything he had ever seen in this country. He says he was told also that the Germans were turning out these vessels at the rate of one a day.

Sank Thirteen Ships.

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 16.—Thirteen merchant-ships have been sunk by the German auxiliary cruiser Kron Prinz Wilhelm, since she began her career as a raider, according to information received here yesterday. There are 500 German sailors on the Kron Prinz Wilhelm. Information of the activities of the German ship was received from passengers of the French steamer Guadaloupe, which was sunk by the Kron Prinz Wilhelm off the eastern extremity of Brazil.

Thaw Judgment Reserved.

NEW YORK, March 16. — After hearing arguments on the motion to return Harry K. Thaw to New Hampshire, from which place he was extradited to New York to be tried on the conspiracy charge on which he was acquitted, Justice Page in the Supreme Court yesterday reserved decision.

Cutting Off From Austria.

ROME, March 16.—(Via Paris.)—The Italian Minister of Posts and Telegraphs yesterday issued orders suspending the exchange of telegraphic money orders with Austria-Hungary.

Orders also were issued suppressing the traveling postoffice on trains bound for the Austrian frontier.

THE CITY MUST PROVIDE A FUND

Sufficient to Meet the Needs of the New Compensation Act

One of the contingencies that will have to be provided for in the estimates for 1915 is a Workmen's Compensation Fund. A committee has been appointed to look into the matter and determine if possible the needs of the municipality. The city may decide to create a fund of its own or award the business to an insurance company. One company has made the Utilities Commission an offer of three per cent. on the pay-roll. It is understood that most of the companies prefer to limit their liability, whereas the Workman's Compensation Act demand that the city compensate the dependents of those who might be killed or injured while in the city's employ to the extent of providing for each child until it reaches the age of twenty-one, and the widow for the remainder of her life.

Some of the aldermen are in favour of a scheme whereby the city will provide a fund of its own and spread the cost of such fund over the various works under which the employees come.

Park Street Choir At the S. A. Temple

Baptists Gave Very Pleasing Musical Programme Last Evening

The concert given by the Park Street Baptist Choir in the S. A. Temple, last evening, was a huge success. The programme itself was very tasty and appropriate and the rendering of every number elicited great applause from an audience which filled the building.

The Quartette and Miss E. M. Hill, perhaps, deserve special attention, as also the leader, Mr. Harry Hill, who has worked so hard and faithful with the Choir.

On behalf of the Temple Corps, Adjt. McElhiney expressed heartiest thanks to Mr. Hill and the choir, and wished Mr. Hill God speed in his new sphere of action as organist and choir master at Orangeville, Ont.

At the close of the service the Songster Brigade of the Temple Corps gave the choir a luncheon.

German Phrase Book For "Invaders" of England Gives Comic Touch to War

LONDON, March 10.—The following, dated "Northeast France," from the Glasgow Herald, is one of the most remarkable of the revelations that have come with the war:

"One of the most interesting souvenirs of the war, which has come into my possession through the courtesy of the Rev. G. Anderson Wells, Church of England Army Chaplain with No. 2 Canadian Hospital, is a little red book entitled "Tornister Worterbuch Englisch.' This means an English dictionary for the knapsack, and it constitutes overwhelming evidence of Germany's preparation for the war, and of a still more interesting fact not hitherto revealed—namely, the existence of an expeditionary force especially designed to land on our shores. For this book has not been issued to all the German troops. Others have been given a Franco-German dictionary of words and phrases constructed on similar lines.

"The particular copy that lies before me was the property of a German corporal wounded in the recent fighting near La Bassee. He was too badly hurt about the head to talk much, but he insisted on presenting the book as a souvenir to the chaplain and added that there had been issued to other army corps similar dictionaries not only in French but in Russian.

"This little work is another good example of German thoroughness and forethought, coupled with that cocksureness which has been followed by so many disappointments. Of the 4,000 or more words in the actual dictionary more than half of them apply solely to naval and military operations, and there are two chapters of phrases for invading troops which, if they had come to the notice of any British publicist before August last, would have almost infallibly precipitated the world's strife.

Apparently of Recent Date.

Probably the book was issued from the secret storehouse of the German War Office after war broke out, but there is intrinsic evidence that it was printed in 1912, after the Agadir crisis. The Worterbuch, which gives the English pronunciation, phonetically starts with a list of place names, in which figure most points of military importance in the United Kingdom. Then follow two maps, one of the British Isles, another of London, and equivalent in coin and weights and measures.

Next we find seven pages devoted to the uniforms and marks of rank of officers and men of the British army and navy. All these details about uniforms are headed "Stand von 1912."

A key to English pronunciation and grammar precedes the dictionary. One is immediately impressed with the large proportion of words that would have to be known to a visionary German army of occupation in Britain We at one get unsaddle, repel and attack, cut off the retreat, shoulder strap, aide-de-camp, aeroplane, set on fire, take aim at, etc. Later we even see putties—Wickelgamaschen.

The troops of the German expeditionary force knew the English to "disembark' and to "run aground" (not an improbable event at the outset) and to "disband" (quite a likely proposition for those lucky enough to escape Davy Jones' locker,, to "fix bayonets" and to "mutiny" (if the other fellows with the bayonets come too close.)

If they are in difficulties the Worterbuch tells them what to say to unarmed English fishermen to make them "set sail" ("auslaufen aus dem Haven") for the Vaterland. Every German synonym for that sinister word "Requisition" appears, as well as the words "booty" and "plunder," which recent happenings have associated so intimately with the German soldier.

Shows Military Knowledge.

Evidently the producer of the book—it might have been Bernhardi himself—knew a great deal more about modern military and naval developments than is vouchsafed to the ordinary lexiconeer. "Geisel" (hostage) is a hint that a German army would operate in Britain in the same genial way that they have behaved in the territory they have invaded on the Continent, i.e., by taking hostages and shooting them if a drunken German soldier caused an alarm by discharging his rifle. There is plenty of the gospel of frightfulness in this little manual if not set out in quite so unblushing a form as in the better known book recently dealt with by Professor J. H. Morgan.

The Germans are told the English for "hand to hand fighting" and extended formation" for neither of which they have shown any particular liking so far. Even the dictates of gallantry are not forgotten, for the phrase, "Give me a kiss" is set out especially for their benefit. In any illustration of the use of proportion of time or place London is always chosen for the example, e.g., "London liegt an der Themse." We read that "Mord" means "murder, and "Mordbrenner" means "incendiary"—words the Germans might think about. The grade invaders of England are instructed in the phrases to "cry quarter" and "no quarter" and "flag of truce."

Finally they are told that "Volker recht" signifies international law or the law of nations, but the meaning of "Zerstbrung"—destruction— seems to have been much more apparent to the German perception

Consideration for Invaders.

Now we come to Gesprache (conversation), and Das Quartiermachen —i.e. billeting. What is not in the interrogative is in the imperative, as will be seen from the following representative extracts taken textually from the little red book, each sentence being followed by the phonetical spelling:

Where does the Mayor (head local authority) live, Show me to him! Send him here!

Give me billets for 5 officers, 200 men and 2 horses.

Send somebody with me who will show me the room for the officers.

Is that room for the officer?—Dont you have a larger room? The rooms must be heated to-morrow. Put clean sheets on the bed.

See that the captain may have lunch immediately after arriving.

Have any sick horses been in this stable? Take that cow away!

Give notice by the drum that the inhabitants will have to furnish the food for the soldiers quartered with them.

Every soldier will be entitled to 1 1-4 pounds of meat—in addition to that a pint of beer. For the night every soldier must have at least a straw bed, a pillow and a blanket.

Take care that my orders are strictly obeyed. I shall hold you responsible for that.

Any resistance will be severely punished.

The community (or municipality) will have to pay a heavy contribution.

Whoever makes an attempt on one of my soldiers will be condemned to death.

The village will be rased.

The Mayor certainly will be shot.

You will answer with your life for their safety.

In Tone of Command.

Thus having shown us terror stricken British something of the rigours of a German occupation, the Manual tells the triumphant soldier what to say after his billet has been dictated to him:

Show me to my room! That dirty hole? What do you think!

What? You have no other room in this big house? Open the doors? I am going to choose a room myself. Here I shall say. Take these things out of the room!

Quick! I should like to have something to eat. A light refreshment will do for the present. Bread, butter, cheese and some meat. Some wine, a bottle of beer, a glass of milk. I am very thirsty.

See that I am not disturbed! Don't make any noise! Now I want to sleep for an hour. At two o'clock you will have dinner ready. Call me when dinner is ready.

Then comes praise indeed and a touch of politeness,

The food is well cooked. May I ask for a little more beer? Don't you have a better sort of beer?

Next a strange request for an English housewife:

Will you give us some matches and a bootjack?

To-morrow morning we must have breakfast in due time. We should like to have coffee or a milk soup.

Make some sandwiches for us to take along with! Fill this bottle with coffee.

After a section dealing with stabling of horses we arrive at the section "Auf Vorposten und Patronille"—on outpost and patrol duty. Several forms of challenge lead up to the following:

Halloo! What are you roving about here! Come here! You will come with me to the picquet.

Walk in front of me! Be silent! You have only to answer my questions!

You seem suspicious to me. Show me your pocketbook!

You will stay here until further notice. If you make any attempt to escape you will be shot.

To Question Peasants.

A series of queries with regard to roads and distances, and then imagine a dum-founded East Anglian peasant, with bayonets in unpleasant proximity to his ribs, being obliged to submit to the following catechism:

Is that village occupied by troops? When did the troops arrive there? What number of men do you think are there? Well? About two or three companies? How many officers were with them? Was there any artillery? How many guns? Did you see any cavalry?

Speak the truth; a lie could cost your life.

Has the village been prepared for defence? Are there any barricades at the entrances? Is there a Church in the village? Is there a castle or any strongly built house?

Where are the enemy's outposts? Didn't you see any hostile patrols in that part?

How strong was the patrol? Where did it come from, and in what direction did it ride on? Was it commanded by an officer?

Keep close by the side of my horse! On the first attempt to escape, or if you take me the wrong way, I shall shoot you!

So our unjoyful peasant will know what to expect if he does not guide the invaders to his fellow countrymen's camp.

Stay here! I will call the miller myself. Hello, miller! Have any hostile troops marched through this place?

You do not speak the truth. Here are distinct and quite new traces. I am sure there must have been a bivouac here.

The Sherlock Holmesian Deutscher does not proceed to order the miller's instant execution, but plies him with further questions.. Then apparently the reconnoitring party ride on and take a British despatch rider by surprise.

Halt! Surrender! Don't move, or you will be shot at! Dismount, and put down your arms! What is your mission? Give me your message or letter! You are a prisoner! Mount again and give the reins of your horse to that hussar!

For seizing Supplies.

At last we have reached the chapter on Betreibung—requisitioning. Subjoined are salient passages which our local Mayors should take to heart in order to be ready for "Der Tag":

Mr. Mayor (or Sir): I have orders to carry out a requisition of food and forage in this place. I hope you will not compel me to apply force.

Within an hour you will have to furnish on the spot — head of cattle —hundredweight of oats, flour, hay, — hectolitres of wine, potatoes.

In case of refusal you will be arrested. I shall cause my soldiers to take the articles required where I shall find them. You see your refusal would be of no use. Any resistance of the inhabitants would be severely punished.

You will get a receipt for the articles furnished. By virtue of this receipt you will be compensated later on.

Take a resolution! I have not much time? You will not be able to call for assistance. All exits are watched.

Well, you force me to take myself what I need. It goes without saying that I shall start in your house.

You have a lot of fowls; you will furnish 300 eggs! Your fowls do not lay? Well, then, we will take these useless creatures with us and slaughter them. Eggs or fowls! You may choose!

So much for German requisitioning in perfidious Albion. Next chamber is Gefangenen-transport—transport of prisoners of war—and doubtless not a few of our fighting men now incarcerated in Germany have themselves heard such phrases as the following:

Demand for Silence.

Silence! Nobody is allowed to talk! Away with the pipes (cigars)! Take your hands out of your pockets!

When I speak to you you have to assume a military attitude.

Every insubordination and every breach of discipline will be severely punished.

All orders given by men of the escort will be strictly obeyed. Whoever makes an attempt on one of them will be punished with death.

Whoever makes an attempt to escape will be shot at. It is forbidden to speak to any person passing by.

If you want to talk, do it softly. It is forbidden to speak aloud.

In the restaurant military severity is relaxed, though the cloven foot peeps out now and again. The German invader asks:

Which is the best hotel in this place?

He gets there and orders a substantial meal with a bottle of claret. He is a trifle impatient, however, and cries:

Waiter, make haste! We don't like to wait a quarter of an hour for every glass of beer.

Sir, the attendance is very bad. The waiter is too slow. He seems to be obstinate.

We want another waiter. Otherwise we shall send for some soldiers to attend on us.

Tell these people to keep quiet (behave properly). Otherwise they must leave the room.

Then we come to the refreshing passage:

I want to pay (or, my bill, please). Supper, one brandy (whisky) and three glasses of beer. Here are five shillings (is a crown).

Here we will leave the Worterbuch with the observation that the corporal who owned it had precious little chance of using it at all, as apparently the German Expeditionary Force to England has had to be utilized to meet French's "contemptible" army over here.

WOMAN FRANCHISE AND TEMPERANCE

Special to the Examiner.

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, Toronto, March 15—One salient reason for the collapse of the artificially fostered Hearst temperance boom is his unyielding and undefended hostility to the extension of the Municipal franchise to, married women. Mr. Proudfoot summed up the situation in a few words and left the Government decidedly disconcerted. He pointed out that in 1913 the Government, through Mr. McDairmid, then a private member, made the greatest pains to rush a married women's franchise bill before the Liberals could get one tabled, but even at that time the pressure of the liquor interests was too strong, the Conservative bill was withdrawn and the Liberal bill was killed.

"Why are the liquor men opposed to the giving of the vote to married women," asked Mr. Proudfoot, and he answered it by showing that the granting of such a right would mean the carrying of local option in a large number of additional municipalities and the extinction of a large number of licenses.

The next question Mr. Proudfoot asked was equally direct. "Why," he asked, "does the Government have to do what the liquor men want? It is because the Government knows and the general public is realizing it more every day, that from one end of the Province to the other last June the Government had the active support of the liquor interests and that to-day Mr. Hearst and his colleagues are under such an obligation to them that they dare not act for temperance in spite of their professed temperance principles."

The Government's refusal to grant the married women's franchise is another example of what Mr. Hearst himself admits to be his zig-zag course on the temperance question.

Scheme For Workless

Hon. Jas. Duff Will Conduct a Search for Jobs Among Farmers.

TORONTO, March 16. — With a view to approaching the unemployment problem from a new angle Hon. James Duff will send special departmental representatives to different parts of Ontario to bring the farmers into close touch with working people in the cities. The first of these men will leave this week for London, and by a special system of advertising will endeavour to find agricultural positions for many of those now unemployed.

These officials will have an accurate knowledge of the number of positions available and will come into direct contact with the situation. Concrete propositions will be offered and contracts will be made.

An endeavor will be made to find places for mechanics who have had practically no farming experience, although those who have done work in the field are necessarily more in demand.

GERMAN DIPLOMACY OLD AND NEW.

Where Bismark isolated France and then easily crushed her, the German statesmanship of this later time drives practically all Europe into alliance with France, and then blindly, bravely, but hopelessly, battles against the combined host. A more vivid demonstration of the stupid incapacity of the men whom the Kaiser has called around him could not be had or asked for than by a comparison of the Berlin diplomacy of July 1914, with this exposition of the profound statecraft of the men who were his father's advisers. The old chancellor was no more worthy of honour and respect than these later men. He was militarist, he was blood and iron, he was brutal, he was a Prussian, all Prussian. He was altogether without scruple in the working out of his great purposes, German unity and Prussian domination. But he had astuteness, he had brains. How he overtopped the Prussian pigmies of to-day.—New York Times.

THE PARSON AND THE BOOTS.

The boots supplied to the Canadian soldiers continue to be a subject of lively interest, which is not confined to the investigation that is taking place before the committee of the House of Commons of Ottawa. In Halifax, a few days ago, an eminent Presbyterian clergyman, the Rev. Andesson Rogers, had a few words to say which were of a very emphatic character. He took for his text the words from Ephesians vi., 15, "And your feet shod with the preparation of the Gospel of Peace." "I wish you men and women of this congregation," said the reverend gentlemen, "were constituted a jury to try the men who supplied the boots to the First Contingent. This action was worthy of death itself." The clergy can use strong language at times. But was it not General Hughes who said the same thing?

Presentation of Prizes.

To the winners of the local bonspiel—Cut glass water bottles to A. N. Allison, F. Brownscombe, M. C. Tooley, H. R. H. Kenner (skip).

Second prize—Cut glass sugar bowls and milk pitchers to W. J. Koster, W. J. Padgett, Alex. Kay, Dr. Wightman (skip).

The prizes to the winners of the inter-rink games were casseroles to J. J. McCabe, W. B. Sloan, Geo. Hill and Archie Moore (skip).

Second prize—Safety razors to E. V. Warne, Ross Dobbin, W. D. Campbell, and Ray Best (skip. This was J. E. A. Fitzgerald's rink, but on account of illness he was unable to play the last two games.

The prizes to the runners-up were: First prize, pocket knives to C. G. Graham, Dr. Tennant, W. H. Collier and Dr. Wightman (skip).

A Great Year.

Last night's meeting terminated the most successful year in the history of the Curling Club. Looking back over the playing season one fails to find a single essential which the officers overlooked. Everything seemed to have been foreseen and provided for. The direction of the club left nothing to be desired, and no room for improvement, and it was the unanimous expression of the members that the success of the past year was to a large extent the result of the efficient administration of Mr. Kenner, who retires from the presidency in favour of Mr. Fitzgerald, the 1914-1915 vice-president. The members did not depreciate the efforts of the other officers, valuable as they were, nor did they probably overlook their own cordial co-operation. It was simply the consensus of conviction that the passing year stands out most prominently in the long and happy annals of the club. There is the testimony of Mr. W. G. Ferguson and Mr. Adam Hall, local patriarchs of the game, who themselves have contributed largely to the upbuilding of the enviable reputation held by the Peterborough Club in this province and elsewhere, and who are to-day worthy examples and patient guides to the younger members. The latter bubbled over in their appreciation of the curling they have enjoyed and in the associations around the rink. Those of intermediate membership simply swelled the chorus. Mr. Kenner has been with the club some twenty-one years, and his most recent service has added in a large measure to its lustre.

The members of the various committees—Club management, open bonspiel, local bonspiel, scheduled games, and so on, gave the president, also the vice-president, Mr. Fitzgerald, generous support. And above all, the other memebrs have offered harmonious co-operation at all times.

On and off the ice there has been a fine spirit of camaraderie which, if possible, has been more noticeable than ever this year. But the guiding hand, as Mr. John Cameron expressed it, was Mr. Kenner's. It is a long time, he said, since we have had a president who has taken a more active interest in the welfare of the club than our president of the past year. You will all bear with me and say that in every part of his work promptness and punctuality have been his motto.

Mr. Cameron remarked that when a meeting was called for a certain hour, Mr. Kenner was always there and the business begun and transacted with despatch. Speaking of the inter-rink games he was pleased to know they had been so successful this year. He believed he had been the first to call attention to the need of inter-rink matches.

Presented New Cup.

Mr. Kenner presented the club with a beautiful silver trophy donated by Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald and himself, to be played on New Year's Day every year to the winners of the President and Vice-President's games.

Mr. Felix Brownscombe accepted the trophy on behalf of the club, adding an appropriate speech for the occasion. The new cup would start the future seasons with a vim, and get the members together early. He expressed the club's gratitude to the donors and said he hoped they would long be spared to play for it.

In replying, Mr. Kenner reviewed the past year mentioning the successes achieved on the ice. He congratulated the club upon its development of new curlers and mentioned a few of this year's set—Walter Fitzgerald, C. G. Graham, J. J. McCabe and Mr. Wilson. Mr. Kenner thanked the executive committee for the very cordial manner in which they had carried on the work of the club. Mr. Kenner named Mr. Fitzgerald, Mr. Ferguson, Mr. W. H. Taylor, Mr. W. D. Campbell and a few others.

On motion of R. J. Sturgeon, seconded by Adam Hill, it was decided to secure a framed picture of the president to be hung in the assembly room.

Tribute to Volunteers.

On the suggestion and motion of Mr. Kenner, seconded by Mr. Giroux, it was decided to place in the minutes an expression of appreciation of the patriotic spirit shown by Skip S. T. Medd and Skip Ross Cameron in volunteering for active service. The members also supported Mr. Kenner's proposal that pictures of these two military skips in their uniforms be purchased and hung in the club rooms.

Thanks to Angus.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Angus McIntosh for his faithful services. It was moved by Adam Hall and seconded by R. J. Sturgeon. "From one end of the province to the other he is one of the very best ice makers," Mr. Kenner remarked. Mr. McIntosh acknowledged the tribute in a little speech of appreciation.

Of course, to last night's meeting there were many humorous touches too numerous to mention. Having won the local bonspiel, Mr. Kenner could not very gracefully present himself and his rink with the prize. He called on Andy Webb of the bonspiel committee to officiate and Andy more than made good. In receiving the first prize for this competition Mr. Kenner said he had played on Jan. 1st and barely won out on the last end. Hence he concluded he was overtrained and rested up until the local bonspiel.

Mr. Tooley admitted that he was not particularly elated when he learned he was on Mr. Kenner's rink. The latter had played only one game and won by a narrow margin. "However," Mr. Tooley remarked, 'I played as well as I knew how. I had to do a lot of kickin' to keep them on the game and we won." So it went, with everybody enjoying the fun. Only the members could appreciate the significance of the remarks, anyway.

Mr. Webb called upon the following to make the different presentations: J. H. Ferguson, Robt. Neill, Rev. Jas. Rollins, W. H. Taylor, W. D. Campbell.

Curling Notes.

Everybody has been delighted with the curing season.

Among those missed this winter have been Jas. Connal and A. Mowat.

Louis Bowes, where was he?

Andy Webb rose to the occasion in great style. He showed a facetious turn that surprised a few of them.

The Fitzgerald-Kenner trophy is a splendid addition to the cabinet. It is all of silver, representing a curling stone resting on four brooms.

Mr. Fitzgerald's name is the first inscription on the new trophy as the 1915 winner.

Mr. Brownscombe presented a very satisfactory financial statement.

Mr. Adam Hall and Mr. W. G. Ferguson joined the local club on the same night, away back in the days of the old rink in Ashburnham.

Last night's prizes were well worth winning.

"We are fortunate in having a secretary than whom there is none better in the province,' asserted the president, and those who know Mr. Brownscombe fully endorse this assertion.

The present season opened on December 19th.

Archie Lang paid Mr. Neill a neat compliment when he mentioned the latter's encouragement to the new players.

A vote of thanks was tendered the press on motion of Mr. Brownscombe seconded by Dr. Tennant.

Ack Hunter to Appear Before the O. H. A. Executive

TORONTO, March 15.—A meeting of the O.H.A. Executive will likely be held Thursday. At this meting the request of Peterborough players suspended with the club over the Moines-Tetrault case for reinstatement may be brought up. Captain Ack Hunter is anxious to get permission from the O.H.A. to play with Wesley Church team in the Weston tournament finals if they defeat Woodbridge to-night. Hunter says that he was deceived and he thought Tetrault's real name was Moines, as he announced.

John L. Sullivan Squandered Big Fortune But Recovered Himself Before 'Twas Too Late

NEW YORK, March 15—Just think of a professional boxer who could not walk the streets of any large city in America without the crowds who were eager to catch a glimpse of him causing a congestion of traffic. If you can picture this man to yourself you have the choice of the best heavy weight ever developed in this country.

Twenty-five years ago it was freely asserted that if John L. Sullivan were to walk up Fifth Avenue on one side and some great notable was to go down on the opposite side there would be more people following the then heavyweight champion than the notable. Such is hero worship. And te assertion was often proven to be true.

Had to Ride in Cab.

Owing to this constant adulation Sullivan rarely could walk from the railway station to the hotel nor could he go shopping from store to store the same as any other human being. He always was obliged to ride in a cab. What was the magnet that so attracted mankind to Sullivan?

What were the attributes of character tht so endeared him to the sportsmen of America? It was because John L. Sullivan was always on the level. He always fought to win. And in the twelve years which he held the championship title the money which followed him generally came back doubled.

Manly in Defeat.

On September 7th, 1892, when he was virtually beaten down by James J. Corbett after having been a target for the California bank clerk's blows for more than an hour, he pluckily struggled to his feet, tottered to the side of the ring, and clutched the ropes. As soon as he was able to speak he made one of the manliest speeches ever uttered by a beaten boxer.

With his lips quivering, he said: "I have been defeated fairly and squarely, but I am glad that my title has been won by an American."

Sullivan never fought thereafter. He realized that the pace of the Marquis of Queensbury code had so quickened that he was unable to keep up with the procession. He gracefully retired. Humiliated by his defeat and troubled because those who had such confidence in his ring ability had lost thousands of dollars in wagers. Sullivan said he would never fight again. "No one will ever lose a cent on me again," he added firmly.

Had $20 After Fight.

The next morning after the great battle, with the late Thomas J. Ryan the writer sought Sullivan in the Turkish baths of the Young Men's Gymnastic Club in New Orleans. Later the little party was joined by Jack McAuliffe. We were the solitary visitors to the defeated man. Corbett, the new champion, had the crowds. Sullivan, so confident of his ability, fought for all he possessed. In fact, the winner took all.

Sullivan's only asset was a $20 note, and his heart was so big that he was willing and even eager to spend that on his trio of friends. That was the real man. He valued friends and they valued him. His financial distress was not of long duration. On his return north a benefit was arranged and Madison Square Garden, New York, was crowded to the roof to pay homage to the man who had so honoured the American ring. He was again started in life. No matter what mistakes Sullivan made, he was the chief sufferer and he was always the idol of the American sporting public.

Man of Great Will Power.

Sullivan was a man of great force of character and will power. Seven years ago, when he was approaching 0 years of age, he looked back over his varied and, I shall say, checkered career, and determined to cut out the drink. "As strong as I am, I cannot handle it," said Sullivan. From that day began his restart in life.

With Frank Hall, who also made the vow with Sullivan, he began a tour of the country. The 'Big Fellow' as he has frequently been alluded to by his legion of friends, retired last year.

Earns $3,000,000 in Ring.

It is roughly estimated that in his twelve years as a ring title holder Sullivan made more than $3,000,000, but he squandered it all. At 50 he began to collect again. This time, as he earned he garnered and to-day he is comfortably rich, enjoying the autumn of life on his New England farm.

PARIS, March 15. — The Havas Agency publishes a despatch from its correspondent at Athens reading as follows:

nicely. He was unable to accompany the squadron to Ottawa.

Ottawa, March 16.—There will be another tented city soon at Valcartier Camp. It is the intention of the Minister of Militia to again mobilise Canadian troops there as soon as navigation on the St. Lawrence River has opened, and the transports can pull out from Quebec. The big camp which was the second of the mobilisation of the thirty-three thousand men who are now at the battle front, has been vacant since they left, but as soon as the snow has cleared from the ranges the finishing touches will be put upon troops which during the winter have been in training at the various military division and district headquarters throughout the Dominion, and manœuvres on a larger scale than has been possible at headquarters will be carried out.

Kingston, March 13—Four recruits arrived in the city on Friday from Deseronto for the 26th Battery of the 7th Brigade of Artillery that will be sent overseas with the third contingent. Twenty-three men also arrived on Friday afternoon from Peterborough. These men will be housed in the old Regiopolis College building. Major Hall and Captain Carruthers will establish an office in this building immediately.

The Kingston Whig says: It is not thought likely in militia quarters that the mobilization of the third contingent will be at Petawawa. At present there are a large number of Austrians interned in the concentration camp there and they occupy all the available buildings. If the third contingent battalions were to be mobilized there new buildings would have to be erected and as there are already splendid buildings in Kingston, Belleville and Ottawa for the purpose it is thought highly improbable that Petawawa would be used.

HOW ABOUT YOUR SIGHT?

These are days when a person needs every faculty that he has trained to its greatest efficiency, if he is going to make a success. And yet, how many people are there who are struggling along with the handicap of defective eyesight. Some, because they do not realize what is the trouble; some, with a foolish sentimental objection to wearing glasses. How can a person do efficient brain work who is troubled with headache, and still eighty per cent. of headaches are due to defective eyes. The Tait Optical Co. is th place to get relief. 1d-63

Boy Scouts Used In British Navy

LONDON, March 16.— Boy Scouts are now engaged in the navy for signalling and are receiving more pay than midshipmen. More than twelve thousand boy scouts have entered military service of one kind or another and two thousand men, who are nearing the age of enlistment, are in training.

At the outbreak of the war the boy scouts by thousands guarded telegraphs ,telephones and bridges, served as messengers and performed countless duties of value to the War Office and the Admiralty. More than 5,000 medals have been given to boy scouts who performed not less than twenty-eight days' service. About fifty thousand boys have served a fewer number of days.

The sea branch of the movement volunteered to carry out the duties of the coast guardsmen recalled to the fleet and they were detailed to duties on the East coast. This required more boys than this branch could supply and the land scouts joined, and now 1,000 boys are employed, in patrols of eight under their own leaders and with their own equipment.

ACTIVITY IN THE GROCERY LINE

Prospects For Spring Are Encouraging—The Sugar Market

There are no complaints forward regarding business in groceries, which, although not by any means heavy, shows prospects of opening activity for spring. This is the encouraging factor in the market. Collections and remittances as far as the country districts are concerned are holding up well.

Orders for sugar are nothing to boast about and any that are coming forward are only in a jobbing way, reflecting the needs of the retail trade. In consequence, there is very little news developments of the past week to report. Consumption at this season of the year is never large, and too much cannot be expected of the market for the time being at least. American refiners appears to be holding off on raw sugars. The price in New York has fallen off to 3 3-4 to 3 5-8 cents, and at which it is holding steady. The fact that the crop movement is active tends to make buyers conservative. The announcement of the probable early removal of the embargo placed by the United Kingdom upon imports of sugar should act as a sustaining influence. If England is to centre the market for raws and refined to protect herself against future needs, keen competition will be found. There will, however, be none of the sensational features of the campaign of last summer, when the British forced the market up sharply upon themselves.

The tea market continued to be a most interesting one. There were some market advanced announced, among which was Lipton's lines, the cheapest grade of which has been withdrawn from the market. The other brands will advance possibly a few cents per pound. There is an enquiry from the country trade which in the aggregate is considered very satisfactory for this time of the year. Distributers are replenishing depleted stocks in the expectation that the prices will go high. Black teas were still a feature, though the high price of Indi'-Ceylon keeps the inquiry at routine dimensions.—Journal of Commerce.

TWO MORE BRITISH STEAMERS HAVE BEEN TORPEDOED

ALLIED FLEET FORCED THE TURKS TO WITHDRAW

TURKS FORCED TO ABANDON ATTEMPT TO MOUNT NEW GUNS

French Warships Co-operating With British Landing Party Force Turks to Withdraw---British Cruiser Penetrates to Narrowest Point of Dardanelles.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 17—The allied fleet continues its operations in the Dardenelles and off Smyrna, but no official report of the progress of the warships has been made for some days. The public is depending on reports from Athens for information. One of these reports says that the British cruiser Amethyst has penetrated the straits as far as Nagara. The cruiser is said to have been hit by three shells, there being a number of casualties among the crew.

The Athens despatch says: "The British light cruiser Amethyst on Sunday made a dash into the straits, notwithstanding the mines and the gunfire from the forts and penetrated nearly to Nagara, the narrowest point, when she was hit by 22 shells.

Twenty-eight of her crew were killed and 30 wounded.

"Notwithstanding the fact that three of the shells penetrated below the water line, and that she was making water rapidly, the Amethyst succeeded in getting back to the fleet and anchored near the Tenedos Lighthouse. The object of the exploit is not known.

The adventure of the Amethyst occurred after the allied fleet had discovered that mobile Turkish batteries were taking positions in the neighbourhood of Kum Kale and the Gulf of Saros with a view to preventing the allies from making a landing. The fleet bombarded the position for three hours, and apparently reduced the batteries to silence. Immediately after this had been accomplished the Amethyst darted ahead.

"On Sunday evening the vessels of the allied fleet half-masted their flags and tolled their bells in memory of the victims among the crew of the Amethyst.

"On Monday two French water-planes flew over the straits, and in the evening two British battleships entered them. The French units of the fleet have left for Smyrna."

The Amethyst is undergoing repairs.

Cruiser "Dresden" Was Not Sunk in Neutral Waters

Special Cable to The Examiner:

VALPARAISO, Chile, March 17.—In the first detailed story of a naval battle off Robinson Crusoe's Island, Lieut. Commander Fielding of the British auxiliary cruiser Orama, to-day denied that the German cruiser Dresden had been sunk in neutral waters.

"The Dresden was about seventeen miles off Point of Juan Fernandez Island when we sighted her," said Fielding. "The story that she was sunk in Chilean waters is nonsense. That can be disproven by locating her hull. The German wounded from the Dresden who were brought here, praised the English ship commanders for their work of rescue, but asserted positively that the cruiser was sent to the bottom within less than half a mile of the island.

ENEMY'S MOVEMENTS IN POLAND IS INTERRUPTED BY THAW

Russians Take the Offensive---Have Occupied Positions on Roads to the North-east of Przasnysz---Germans Fail to Advance.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 17.—The German offensive against Przasnysz having failed to materialize, probably owing to the thaw which set in, the Russians have themselves undertaken the offensive, and, according to their own account, are advancing successfully along both banks of the Orzyc River and have occupied the village of Stegna, which is on one of the main roads leading to Przasnysz from the north-east. At this point they repulsed a determined counter-attack.

The Germans, however, say that the Russian attacks have been repelled, and that they captured 2,000 Russians. A Petrograd despatch to Reuter says that in February 48,000 German and Austrian prisoners passed through Kiev.

CLOSE TO PRZEMYSL.

The official Russian communication issued last night in Petrograd contains the interesting statement that the Russian besiegers now occupy positions within rifle shot of the Galician city of Przemysl. "The artillery fighting at Przemysl has been continuous," the communication says, "but our troops on the eastern front of the city have carried the heights, within rifle shot of the forts protecting the town."

Along the ridges of the Carpathians and in Eastern Galicia the Russians report a series of successes against the Austro-German armies, which, despite the deep snow, have kept up almost continuous attacks in the Baligrod region and in some of the central passes, in the hope of relieving Przemysl. The Russians are closing around the fortress and their infantrymen are within rifle shot of the northern forts. From unofficial sources it is learned that the Russians have resumed the offensive in Bukowina, and a battle is now in progress near the Bukowina frontier along the Stanislau-Kolomea railway.

In the Caucasus, too, the Russians are again on the move, and, according to all accounts from Petrograd, are pushing the Turks back along the coast of the Black Sea and are threatening the safety of the Turkish army at Olti, on the Russo-Turkish border. According to a Reuter despath, it is announced in Petrograd that the Turks, have recently lost several important points in the region of the Tcheruk River. The Turkish Armenia, have completely abandoned their positions to the Russians.

PREVENTED TURKS' MOVEMENTS.

LONDON, March 17.—French war ships, co-operating with a British landing party, have prevented the Turks from mounting new guns near the Dardanelles entrance to replace those wrecked by fire from the allied fleet, Athens despatches reported to-day. A flotilla, standing just inside the entrance to the Strait, raked Turkish positions east of Kum Kale with shell fire for several hours. The Turks finally abandoned the attempt and withdrew.

Wild Duck Laws May Be Changed

TORONTO, March 17.—There is a possibility that after this year no wild ducks will be offered for sale in public markets of the province. A recommendation to this effect will be brought before the fish and game committee of the Legislature which convenes this week. In addition there are several other radical suggestions which will be canvassed with a view to incorporation in legislation. One of these would make provision for a gun or general game license, the fee to vary from $1.00 to $5.00, and the age limit to be fixed at 16 years. The use of the pump or repeating shotgun would be abolished.

During late years the fish and game committee has been counted one of the lesser ones connected with the House, but this year a large number of important matters will be considered. Game protective associations and individuals throughout Ontario have forwarded recommendations which will be discussed at the initial meeting to-day.

May Change Season.

One of these would change the bag size from the 200 now allowed duck-hunters, to 100 per man. The open season dates from Sept. 1 to Dec. 15 in the northern district, and from Sept. 15 to Dec. 15 in the southern, may be changed into a regulation season from October 15 to December 31 for all. Whereas the act now allows shooting between sunrise and sunset it is suggested that it be forbidden between 5 p.m. and 8 a.m.

Among the entirely new suggestions are some setting the bag limit for quail at 6 per day and 25 for the season allowing the capture of hares during the close season for other game by any means but shooting; trappers' licenses for residents; provision for sale of imported game or that raised in captivity; permits to take game for propagation purposes; for taking game or birds in Rondeau Park for stock reasons; for making the district division line the Canada Atlantic division of the G.T.R. from Parry Sound to Pembroke for duck shooting instead of the C.P.R. entrance to Ontario at the east, to Toronto, to Goderich.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN THE TRENCHES

LONDON, March 17.—St. Patrick's Day was not forgotten in the trenches in Northern France and Flanders. Thousands of sprigs of shamrock were forwarded to the front a few days ago, and were distributed to the British soldiers to-day.

In London thousands of men, including many of the nobility, headed by the Countess of Limerick, were on the streets, in shops and at railway stations disposing of three hundred thousand shamrocks. The proceeds are to be used to buy articles for British soldiers at the front.

Captured Seamen Complain of Treatment by Germans

Captains of Four Vessels Sunk by the Prinz Eitel Friedrich Reached New York—Food and Water Insufficient Aboard Cruiser, They Declare.

NEW YORK, March 17.—An entirely different account to that given out in eNwport News of their treatment on board the Prinz Eitel Freidrich was related by the officers and crews of one Russian and three French vessels which had been sunk by the German cruiser, on their arrival on board the Princess Anne, of the old Dominion line, from Norfolk.

In the party were Captain V. LeRoux and twenty-three of the crew of the French bark Jacobson, Captain Trenchant and twenty-four of the crew of the French bark Pierre Loti, Captain Axmar Erickson and thirteen of the crew of the Russian bark Isabella Brown, and seventy-four of the French steamship Floride. Representatives of the French and Russian Consulates were on the pier to take charge of them pending the steaming of the Niagara to-morrow, on which they will be sent to France.

A protest was drawn up by the officers of the Floride, the Isabella Brown, the Jacobson and the Pierre Loti during the voyage of the Princess Anne to New York, and this copy was given out on their arrival here:

"The officers of the four captured vessels of different nationalities protest against the articles published in the daily press saying we were treated 'royally' by our conquerors. They are absolutely untrue. Captain King, of the steamship Invercoe, was responsible for them, and his statements originated solely from a desire to curry favour with the Germans.

"We were maltreated, but we received no consideration from the Germans. The food was detestable and insufficient. Water was lacking, and what we did receive was brackish. There was no segregation of the ill from the well. While in a warm climate we suffered greatly from lack of air, and while in a cold climate the heat was insufficient."

Captain Axmar Erickson, of the Isabella Brown, said the Prinz Eitel Friedrich was sighted on the night of January 26. It was about midnight, with the moon shining brightly, when the German vessel bore down on him like a spectre, all but her navigation lights being out.

"After learning our nationality we were told to reef our sails, as they did not want the canvas spread because it would retard the Isabella Brown from sinking rapidly," said Captain Erickson. "We chopped the canvas from the yards, whereupon a charge of dynamite was exploded in the foreshold and the bark disappeared from sight at eight o'clock the following morning."

For the first four weeks, said Captain Erickson, he was kept in the forward part of the Prinz Eitel Friedrich, with other officers from captured vessels, and was not allowed to exercise on deck. During the two weeks previous to the arrival of the German vessel at Newport News four hours' exercise was allowed each day.

1914 WAS DRIEST YEAR ON RECORD

According to the Records of the Ontario Agricultural College

The Ontario Agricultural College reports that the crop year of 1914 was the driest on record in Ontario. The precipitation from harvest 1913 to harvest 1914 lacked 5¾ inches of being up to the average. This is a shortage of almost 20 per cent. The College has often stated that tile drainage was effective in a dry season as well as in a wet one, and last year it was able to prove this in a most practical way. Since 1912 the College has been installing practical drainage demonstration plots in parts of the province where little or no drainage has been done. The plan is to drain half a field, leaving the other half undrained for comparison. Both parts are sowed in the same kind of grain and the crop from each part threshed separately. Nine plots were drained in 1914. The average of the nine fields showed that at market prices at threshing time the drained half produced $12.12 more per acre than the undrained half, and that in the driest year on record. In an average season, the average increase due to drainage is over 320 per acre, and in a wet season even more.

For a number of years the Agricultural College has been making drainage surveys for farmers free of charge, except for travelling expenses. This offer is again renewed. Farmers having drainage difficulties may secure assistance by writing the Department of Physics, O.A.C., Guelph, for information and regular application forms.

SOLDIERS' LETTERS FORWARDED FREE

Letters Are Held at the Post Office Until Stamped With Canadian Stamp

Many people receiving mail from the front are surprised to find that it is held at the Post Office until it has been stamped with the Canadian stamp. This is because the Government has extended to all the Canadian soldiers the Parliamentary privilege of mailing their letters and cards without stamps.

Monday's mail from the front was the first to be received in ten days, and was the largest soldiers' mail received this year. In quite a few instances two were for the one address, as the delay in the mail brought two letters written at different dates.

Two More Steamers Were Torpedoed

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 17. — Two more British steamers were torpedoed by German submarines, the Admiralty announced to-day. The steamer Atlanta was torpedoed off Inishturk, and the "Fingal" off Northumberland.

FIRST TURKISH PRIZE IS SOLD

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, March 17.—The first steamer captured from the Turks, the Bimbashi Riza Bey, 1,398 tons gross, was offered for sale at public auction and sold for $65,256 to a Liverpool owner.

Three German sailing vessels attracted spirited bidding from Norwegian and British buyers, and good prices were obtained. The Urania was sold for $82,500 to a British owner. The Melpomene brought $26,250 and the Viganelle $17,500, going to Norwegian buyers.

To such an extent has the Admiralty taken over steamers that many of the regular lines have had to charter outside vessels to keep their regular service going. Several of the North Atlantic lines have chartered vessels for their service to the United States. Some of the regular sailings have been dropped and others have been arranged "subject to Government requisition."

No Passport Bread in Vienna

Examiner Special:

VENICE, March 17.—The Jewish population of Vienna, augmented by 50,000 Galician fugitives, is greatly exercised over the question of Passover bread, which, owing to the war, has not been prepared in accordance with the Hebrew ritual.

The chief rabbi has induced the Government to consent to a wholesale distribution of potatoes to orthodox Jews during the Feast of the Passover, and 200 tons have already been given.

Germans Enquire About Canadians

"Have They Arrived Yet?" Yelled Kaiser's Men Across Field

Special to The Examiner:

KINGSTON, March 16—In a letter from the front to Dean J. C. Connell of Queen's Medical College, Lieut.-Col. A. E. Ross of the First Canadian Field Ambulance, says:

"We went a week ago to the very front for instruction with seasoned troops. Eight officers of No. 1 and No. 3 Field Ambulances went up and took in all the workk. Of course, the officers did not realize we had a good organization, and so started in to teach us work that we have been doing for the last six months. However, we gained by experience. The medical men are doing excellent work. You may talk about your big medical men in such a war, but the man who can give Tommy a hot bath does more for him than all else. The day after we got to the trenches, the Germans called out "Have the Canadians arrived yet? We will give them some fun when they come." This was to the Middlesex Regiment. The Middlesex men did not know that we were coming."

No Time To Talk of Problems To Follow War

Special to the Examiner.

BERLIN, via London, March 16.—A declaration that Geramny cannot yet discuss in detail all the questions that must be solved at the conclusion of peace was made by the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, in replying to a letter from a friend who wrote regarding the discussion of peace terms at the present time.

"At a time when the struggle is still progressing toward the object of war, the defeat of our enemies, and while Germans in the field and at home are ruled by a single purpose, to win, we cannot yet discuss in detail all the questions which must be solved at and after the conclusion of peace," wrote the Imperial Chancellor.

"May the day soon come when the fetters shall be struck off from a free conflict of opinion. For that will be, at the same time, the day on which the bloody conflict ends.

"For the present, however, let us prepare in the spirit in which our folk will have to work together in creating conditions of future life. Of course, the strife of parties will be resumed, but as all classes rightly have learned in the hour of need now, internal political conflicts also must be governed by a mutual respect, which includes all classes from prince to workman."

By Frank Frost

Dutch Fred changed his seat to one less conspicuous and farther up the tramcar. He felt that his luck was dead out, that life was a blank. And that Heldon Foyle of all men should have chosen that particular tramcar had, as Fred would have expressed it, "absolutely put the lid on." Fred knew very well how to circumvent the precaution taken by order of the police that public vehicles should have the back of the seats filled in to prevent pocket-picking. Instead of sitting behind a victim, one sat by his side, with a "stall" behind to pass the plunder to. A "dip" of class—and Dutch Fred was an acknowledged master—never keeps his plunder on him for a single second longer than necessary. But with Foyle on the car it was too expensive to operate, especially single-handed. Therefore, Fred felt the world a dreary place.

He had boarded the car alone and without thought of plunder. Had it been in professional hours, he would have had at least one "stall"—perhaps two—with him. As chance would have it, a portly business man, with a massive gold chain spanning his ample waist, had seated himself next the operator. And Fred had decided that the watch on the end of the cable was worth risking an experiment upon. Besides, the appearance of prosperity of the "mug" spoke of a possible "leather" stuffed with banknotes. Decidedly, even in the absence of a "stall," it was worth chancing. And then Foyle got on and spoilt it all. If any one on the tramcar lost anything he would know who to blame.

For Heldon Foyle had spoiled one of the greatest coups that ever a crook had been on the verge of bringing off. Fred, immaculately clad, with irreproachable references, had approached Greenfields, the Bond Street jewellers, with a formula for manufacturing gold. He had discovered the philosopher's stone. "Of course, I don't want you to go into this until I've proved that it can actually be done," he said airily. "See there. I made that handful of gold dust myself. You test it, and see that it's all right. Now, I'll sell you the secret of making that for £100,000. I don't want the money till I've given you a demonstration."

So an arrangement was fixed up. The jewellers, with a faith that long experience had not destroyed, believed in Fred. Nevertheless, they took the precaution of calling in Foyle, then unknown to Fred save by name. In a little room in Clerkenwell the experiment took place. With ingenious candour, Fred prepared a crucible in front of his select audience after the various ingredients had been submitted to strict examination. Then he placed it on the fire, and stirred the contents occasionally. At last the process was finished, and at the bottom of the crucible was found a teaspoonful of undoubted gold dust. Then, while Fred, with a broad smile of satisfaction, awaited comment, the detective, who had noted the strange fact that he had kept his gloves on while stirring the crucible, stepped up to him and deftly whipped one off. In the fingers were traces of gold dust—enough to convict Fred and get him three years at the Old Bailey.

Out of the corner of his eyes, Fred watched the detective presently stand up and pass along the deck of the car towards him. The operator's face was bland, and he smiled with the consciousness of one who has nothing to hide as the superintendent sat down beside him.

"Hello, Mr. Foyle! I am glad to see you," he said, with a heartiness that he knew did not deceive the other. "It's a long time since we met."

The detective returned the greeting with a cheerfulness that was entirely unassumed.

"It's a piece of luck meeting you, Freddy," he went on. "But there, I always was lucky. You're just the man in the wide world I've been wanting to see."

"What's on?" growled Freddy, with quick suspicion.

"Oh, you're all right," the detective reassured him. "I want you to help me. Let's get off at the next stopping-place and have a drink."

His fears allayed, Freddy followed the detective off the car. They were professional enemies, it was true, but as a rule their relations were amicable. It was policy on both sides.

In the saloon bar of an adjacent public-house, Freddy unburdened himself fully and frankly while he sipped the mixed vermuth.

"I'm glad you struck me—on my word I am," he said earnestly, while his active wits were wondering what the detective wanted. "That bloke was carrying a red clock, and, though I was going for it, I had a feeling I should get into trouble. If you'd been a minute or two later, you'd—"

"Why talk of these unpleasant things, Freddy," said Foyle, with a deprecatory wave of the hand. "You know how I'd hate to have to do anything to disturb your peace of mind." He drew him to a secluded corner of the lounge. "Come over here. Now, listen. Do you know Goldenburg or any of his pals?"

"The chap that did in Grell. I knew him a bit," he said cautiously. "He was in a different line, you know. Mostly works alone, too. I can't say that I know much about him. There's Charlie Eden, he was in with him once—I guess he's in town. And Red Ike, he knew him, too. Perhaps there's some more of the boys who had some does with him. But he always was a bit above us common crooks. I only went for big game once,"—his gaze lingered on Foyle's ring—"and then it didn't come off."

"Never mind about Eden. You keep your eyes skinned for Red Ike, or any one else that knew Harry, and give me the office. It'll be worth your while. You can come to me if you're hard up. Have a shot at —— and —— and ——" He named several public-houses which are known rendezvous for crooks of all classes. "You see what you can pick up. And if ever you're in trouble, you'll know the wife and kid will be looked after."

Freddy grinned cynically to hide a real appreciation. He knew that Foyle would do as he said. And in the criminal profession, however big the makings, there is very rarely anything like thrift. For a man who at any time might find himself doing five years, it was something to know that those left outside were in no danger of the workhouse. For even "crooks" have human instincts at times.

"That's all right, Mr. Foyle," said Freddy. "What you say goes. Who'll I ask for if you're not at your office?"

"You can talk to Mr. Green."

Freddy swung out into the dusk, whistling, for he had an assignment with his "stalls" outside one of the big theatres. Foyle waited a few moments to let him get clear, and himself stepped into the street.

To the surprise and disgust of the rest of the "mob," Freddy early relinquished the evening's expedition, although his deft fingers had captured no more than a silver watch (hung deceptively on a gold chain, which he had left hanging), a woman's purse containing fifteen shillings in silver, and a pocket-book, inside which were half-a-dozen letters. It was a poor haul, and Micky O'Brady, who was one of the "stalls," frankly expressed his disgust.

"What's the use of chucking it at this time o' night? It ain't nine o'clock yet. There's the lifts at the Tube that we haven't worked for weeks. 'Struth; what did you want to fetch us out for at all? The stuff you've got won't buy drinks.'"

Freddy's lower jaw jutted out dangerously. He was a small man, but he had a hair-trigger temper. He always made a point to be unquestioned boss of his gang. Discipline had to be maintained at all costs.

"See here, Micky," he said tensely. "I've had enough to-night, and I'm going to give it a rest. So you'd better shut your face. I'm the man who's got the say, so here. You just bite on that."

Micky, an Irish Cockney, who had never been nearer Ireland than a professional visit to the Isle of Man, clenched his fists with an oath. He was a recent ally, and had not fully learned his position in Freddy's scheme of things. In just two minutes, he was sitting gasping on the pavement, trying to regain his wits after a tremendous punch in the solar plexus, while his fellow "stall" was explaining to a constable that it was all an accident, and Freddy had quietly melted away in the direction of the Tube station.

LITTLE DAUGHTER VERY DELICATE

Mother Tells How Vinol Made Her Delicate Child One of the Healthiest.

Fayetteville, N. C.—"My little daughter was in delicate and very poor health and had so little strength it caused us a great deal of uneasiness. I noticed an advertisement of Vinol and decided to try it. The results were simply marvelous as her appetite improved at once, she gained so much in weight and looks that my friends all commented on the change. She is now one of the healthiest children in town and does not need medicine of any kind. All mothers who have delicate children should try Vinol."—Mrs GORDON JESSUP, Fayetteville, N. C.

Vinol is a wonderful appetizer and you can see delicate, ailing children improve day by day under its use, for it is the tissue building and medicinal elements of cod's livers, aided by the blood making, strength creating properties of iron which makes Vinol so superior to other tonics to build up health and strength for delicate children, feeble old people and weak, run-downs, nervous debilitated men and women.

We wish every mother who has a delicate child would try Vinol on our agreement to return their money if it fails to give satisfaction.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hinz, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

Hospital Ships To Straits.

PARIS, March 16.—Telegraphing from Athens the correspondent of the Havas Agency says the French hospital ship Canada has arrived to take on provisions, and that she will leave immediately for the Dardanelles.

It is reported that there are 30 convalescents on board the Canada, but none from gunshot wounds. In this connection the statement is made here that since the beginning of the fighting in the Dardanelles not a single French sailor has been struck. It is a fact, nevertheless, that the aim of the Turkish gunners is improving.

From several sources news is reaching Athens, the correspondent continues, that the agitation by the Musselmans against the Young Turks and the Germans is increasing.

Thirty Thousand Japs For China?

TIEN TSING, March 16. — Pekin is considerably alarmed and excited by reports that thirty thousand Japanese, under convoy of a naval squadron, have left for China. There is nothing in the diplomatic situation to justify the despatch of troops at this juncture. Indeed, such a movement may precipitate international troubles in China, where feeling reaches a dangerous pitch.

Plans for Stricken Cities.

PARIS, March 15.—A commission of French architects, comprising building experts from the cities and towns destroyed by Germans, some of which are called like Rheims, Arras, Senlis and Roye, the "assassinated towns," have already drawn up plans for rebuilding on new, larger and better scale.

Hon. Mackenzie King at White House

WASHINGTON, March 16. — Hon. Mackenzie King, ex-member of the Canadian Parliament and formerly Minister of Labor at Ottawa, conferred yesterday with Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor. Later Secretary Wilson said the meeting was purely for an exchange of views on labor questions generally and that "there was no particular matter up."

British Bombard Coast.

PARIS, March 16. — Violent cannonading is going on at a point to the northeast of Dunkirk, according to a despatch from that seaport to the Havas News Agency. The belief in Dunkirk is that a British squadron is bombarding the sand dunes around Nieuport.

U. S. AS GO-BETWEEN.

Britain Needs Neutrals to Take Presents To Prisoners In Germany.

LONDON, March 16.—Baron Newton suggested in the House of Lords yesterday that the American Government be asked to make enquiries concerning the treatment of British prisoners in Germany.

Earl Beauchamp, Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, speaking on behalf of the British Government, said there was reason to hope that the German Government would sanction this Government's proposal that United States officials should supervise the distribution of relief provided by Great Britain for British prisoners in Germany That, he thought, would constitute a better guarantee of proper treatment being accorded British prisoners than would the cursory inspection by American officials of the detention camps in Germany.

Canadians Discriminated Against.

BERKELEY, Cal., March 16.—Officials of the University of California denied yesterday the charge made by William Gray, member of the Canadian Parliament, that 28 professors and instructors in the university here were unable to receive their salaries because they were not American citizens.

The university officials said their legal advisers had instructed them that the recent opinion of the state attorney-general, to the effect that it is illegal for aliens to draw state funds as teachers, did not apply to the university. It was said all Canadians and other aliens have received their salaries regularly.

COULD NOT GO TEN STEPS FOR THE PAIN IN HIS KIDNEYS.

When you get a pain in the back you may rest assured that it comes from derangement of the kidneys, for were there not something wrong with the kidneys the back should be strong and well.

Doan's Kidney Pills regulate the kidneys, and there is no further excuse for any kidney trouble to exist. What more needs to be said? While Doan's Kidney Pills are not a "balm for every ill that flesh is heir to," they are a positive, never-failing remedy for every disease that has its inception in the improper action in those delicate little filters of the blood, the kidneys.

Mr. Adelard Cleroux, Eganville, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with my kidneys for four years. They were so bad, at times, I could not go ten steps for the pain they caused me. My doctor could not do me any good. A friend advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills. I bought five boxes, and now I have been cured for over three years. I will recommend them to whoever may be suffering from kidney trouble."

MRS. PEACOCK.

You can read Mrs. Peacock's letter and take courage, for she has proven that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a complete cure for these troubles. So pleased was she with the results obtained that she wants other women to know about this food cure.

Mrs. Thomas Peacock, 28 Hiawatha street, St. Thomas, Ont., and whose husband is conductor on the Wabash Railway, states:—"I was quite run down in health, was very nervous, did not sleep well, and had frequent dizzy spells. It entirely freed me of the symptoms stated above, built up my health generally, so that to-day I feel that I am quite well again."

In a more recent letter Mrs. Peacock writes:—"Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done me a world of good, and I would be pleased to tell everybody so."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

GLEAM OF SUNSHINE

Story Concerning an Automobile Accident, Kidnaped Man and Stolen Heart.

By MILDRED CAROLINE GOODRIDGE.

"A pretty girl," mused Arthur Perry, and his heart warmed at the radiant smile bestowed upon him for such a mere trifle as restoring to the superior being in question a shopping list she had dropped.

It was on the main street of the bustling little city of Wellston. The young lady had a companion who seemed to be an elder married sister. The latter led a little child of four by the hand. As they paused to glance into a show window the younger lady gave the child a pretty toy of a ball to engross its attention. In doing so the scrap of paper in her hand fluttered away in the breeze. Arthur recovered it. Hence the grateful smile and his present reflective mood.

"But," soliloquized Arthur, "I had better get my mind on something more practical than pretty girls, although that one was a gleam of purest sunshine. I wonder where I am going to get a chance to eat my dinner?"

In his neat, though well-worn suit, and with that classic, intelligent face of his, he did not resemble a tramp, and yet here he found himself in a strange town without so much as a single cent in his pockets.

Two years previous, an expert linguist, Arthur had graduated from college. For a year he lectured in two institutions of learning. Then he had temporary charge of the foreign correspondence of a large importing firm. They failed, and with all his splendid education Arthur had been unable to secure a new position. He had learned that a large manufacturing concern in the city he was now in needed a man of his capabilities. He had spent his last dollar for railroad fare to find himself stranded, the prospective position having been filled.

He sighed as he gave a last thought to the pretty girl. He smiled as he glanced at the little cherub-faced child playing at the curb. The combination suggested home, love and happiness—what strangers to him during two lost, lonely years!

"Look out, there!"

Of a sudden the warning cry rang out shrilly. The driver of a cab standing at the curb uttered it. And then Arthur Perry awoke into action with all the agility and skill of his splendid athletic training at the call of courage amid peril.

"Man Your Automobile Ran Down."

What had happened had come so quickly that only a practiced eye like that of Arthur could take it in at a glance. The little child had dropped the ball and it had bounded over the curb and rolled to the middle of the stone-paved street. Naturally the child had followed it. As the warning of the driver rang out the little one was stooping over to regain the pretty toy, all unconscious of hovering danger. Just at that moment an automobile whisked around the corner headed direct for the helpless being directly in its course.

The turn of a second might have seen the little one crushed to a shapeless mass, for the chauffeur of the auto had not time to check the machine. It was not three feet distant when on a slide, rather than a run, Arthur Perry reached the child. There was just one thing to do, and he accomplished it. With a rough, heavy push that caused the little one to cry out with fright and pain, he drove the imperiled infant almost to the opposite curb and then—a shriek from the pavement, a sickening blow and the intrepid rescuer knew no more.

It was perhaps two hours later when Lillian Trevor reappeared at the scene of the accident. She had turned from the show window in time to see the stricken man seized quickly by the chauffeur of the auto, lifted into it and flashed away before any one could interfere. Then there was the haste and excitement of getting the rescued child and her hysterical sister home. And now of her own volition, her mind full of that white, silent face, she had glimpsed for a passing moment, Lillian was urged on to find this noble rescuer of her little niece and thank him.

She spoke to the policeman at the corner, to proprietors of several street stands, but it was only when she addressed an old cabman that she gleaned the information she desired.

"Yes, ma'am," said this individual, "I saw the accident. It was a flash, a pick-up and away they went. Kidnaped, ma'am."

"It was a rich man's machine that hit the brave young fellow, for I saw its number. You see, there's so much of this knocking down and hurting people nowadays that there's a regular system of spiriting the injured person away, mending him up and giving him a little money so as to get out of a big damage suit. See?"

Lillian did see, and her tender heart beat more pitifully than ever for the handsome young fellow made practically a prisoner, shut away from loving friends. Then her eyes brightened, and a brave resolution came into her fair face as she learned from the cabman the name of the owner of the automobile that had so nearly killed her little niece.

It was about ten o'clock the following morning when Lillian rang the door bell of the palatial home of Robert Barr, a retired city merchant. He looked puzzled as she was shown into his presence.

"Mr. Barr," she said plainly, as he courteously asked the object of her call, "I have come concerning a young man whom your automobile ran down and spirited away yesterday afternoon."

"I—I hope," he finally spoke in a guarded way, "that you have not come to make any trouble. I will be frank with you. I am having the injured young man given the very best of care in my own home, to avoid publicity and some preposterous damage suit, for my doctor says that he is not seriously injured."

"I am so glad to hear that," said Lillian, with a great breath of relief. "I imagine you must be the young lady he was constantly referring to in his first delirium," insinuated Mr. Barr. "The great burden of his thoughts seemed to be a beautiful miss with a little child."

"It—it could not have been myself," demurred Lillian, but she flushed faintly. "May I call each day, nurse him if I may, at least bring him flowers, fruits, books, so he may know grateful friends are thinking of him? Oh, sir, he risked his life to save our dear little one!"

"You must be some mystic fairy, Miss Trevor," said Mr. Barr a few days later to his now welcome caller.

"How is that?" inquired Nellie.

"It was through you that young Perry came to me and now I find him an indispensable treasure. For years I have been seeking some expert in the languages to classify my large foreign library, and here he is at my hand, well and happy."

"Oh, that was a double deed that eventful day," declared Miss Trever.

"You mean?"

"That you had already kidnaped his heart."

And pretty Lillian flushed, and knew it was so within the ensuing week, and was glad of it.

OWES HER LIFE TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Cured Both Stomach Trouble and Headaches

PALMERSTON, ONT., June 20th, 1913.

"I really believe that I owe my life to "Fruit-a-tives"." Ever since childhood, I have been under the care of physicians and have been paying doctor's bills. I was so sick and worn out that people on the street often asked me if I thought I could get along without help. The same old Stomach Trouble and distressing Headaches nearly drove me wild. Sometime ago, I got a box of "Fruit-a-tives" and the first box did me good. My husband was delighted and advised a continuation of their use.

Today, I am feeling fine, and a physician meeting me on the street, noticed my improved appearance and asked the reason. I replied, "I am taking Fruit-a-tives". He said, "Well, if Fruit-a-tives are making you look so well, go ahead and take them. They are doing more for you than I can".

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N.B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat trouble, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

HOMING PIGEONS FOR WAR PURPOSES

Vast Flocks of Them Attached to Armies of all European Nations

The practice of keeping carrier pigeons in England without a license just now is very dangerous. How necessary is this precaution will be gathered from the following extract in a journal recently:

"A carrier pigeon was seen to alight on the roof of the artillery barracks at Dorchester, where over a thousand German and Austrian prisoners are quartered. A sentry shot it, and under its wing was found a letter written in German!"

Continental armies have long availed themselves of pigeon posts. The best "homers" are of Belgian origin, and come from the type known as the "pigeons-voyageurs." Such birds are a cross between the smerle and the Antwerp cumulet. They were first introduced to England about the year 1835, and three lofts, with accommodation for 600 occupants, were established at Dover. The majority of these birds were employed by the custom house authorities for transmitting messages along the coast.

Since Russia first set the example, the system of establishing military pigeon posts has been adopted by Germany, Austria, France, Italy, Bulgaria, Spain and Portugal. Of these countries, Germany has, perhaps, participated in the movement upon the largest scale. Thus, for years past, a sum of $15,000 a year was put aside out of the military estimates for the upkeep and development of such a service, and nearly 200,000 feathered messengers are now available to carry the Kaiser's instructions in the theatre of war.

Children's Pets Registered

Beyond these army pigeons, all trained birds belonging to civilians, even the pets of schoolboys and schoolgirls, are carefully registered and numbered, and may be commandeered by the War Department at any time. It is also strictly forbidden, under severe penalties, to sell, or send any registered bird out of Germany.

France has an even greater number of military pigeons than Germany. During the war of 1870, and especially during the siege of Paris, they were found of great value, when all other methods failed, in carrying messages to and from the provinces. The birds were despatched from the beleagured city in balloons and then set free, each message so entrusted to the pigeon post being limited to twenty words. When sent off from the outlying camps and garrisons they had to make their way into Paris over the heads of the enemy. Austria has had a military pigeon post service since 1875.

So far as England is concerned, the value of carrier pigeons is perhaps more pronounced in the navy than in the army. Some twenty years ago a loft was first established in the Royal Clarence Victualing Yard at Portsmouth, and two others were opened by the Admiralty at Sheerness and Dartmouth. The original stock comprised eleven birds. They were borne, like seamen, on the strength of the Royal Navy, and formed part of the official Naval Signalling Establishment.

Boer War Showed Value

It was not until the beginning of the Boer War that the War Office devoted any serious attention to the matter of transmitting despatches from the front by means of feathered messengers. Experiments were made and such satisfactory results were secured that a number of "Homing Antwerps" were sent to South Africa under the supervision of a military fancier. A "columbary" (the technical name for a loft) was established in Cape town in charge of an officer of the Royal Engineers. The new arrivals were soon employed on active service; several of them followed Sir George White into beleaguered Ladysmith.

Upon the conclusion of the South African War the military authorities became so impressed with the advantages to be derived from a properly equipped postal service, that a special loft was sent up at Aldershot, and expert fanciers secured to train their inmates. Officers were also sent from each unit in the camp to go through a course of instruction in the care and management of the birds.

A pigeon post is specially valuable when telegraph wires are cut or tapped, or when a garrison has been seized by the enemy.

MODERN TRENCH FIGHTING

Old Fashioned Weapons Resurrected For Present Day Use

There is an illusion, held with uncommon tenacity by the general public, that the range and effectiveness of modern arms tends to keep armies far apart. On the contrary, there is more hand-to-hand fighting to-day than at any time since gunpowder was invented.

Many weapons long since thought obsolete have come into use again. First among these are grenades, of which there are all kinds, from manufactured bombs with fuses to soda-water bottles or tin cans filled with old iron—a variety which is practically as effective. Some of them are carried in the hand, some on long poles. There are also the canister, which is nothing but a shell filled with very small shot, and the trench-mortar, meant to throw a shell a short distance straight up into the air and down into the enemy's trench. For this last purpose I have seen wooden guns used, says an observer, but I was never able to find out whether they worked on the principle of sling, a spring or an airgun. I am personally of the opinion that an improved type of trench-mortar would turn the scale in the attackers' favor.

Lances used by the British cavalry have shafts composed of ash or bamboo.

HAD DYSPEPSIA

So Bad Could Not Take a Drink of Water Without Suffering.

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure. You eat too much. Drink too much. Use too much tobacco. You make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of a short time before dyspepsia follows.

That old, forty year old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, will cure the dyspepsia and will cure it to stay cured as we can prove by the thousands of testimonials we have received from time to time.

Miss Sarah McRae, Newfield, Ont., writes: "I write to say that I have used your Burdock Blood Bitters, and have found it the best remedy I have ever used for dyspepsia. Two years ago, I had stomach trouble so bad that I could not even take a drink of water without suffering. I took six bottles of B.B.B., and have been entirely cured, and can now eat anything without any bad after effects."

Burdock Blood Bitters is an old and well tried remedy but on account of the many substitutes we would ask you to make sure that our name appears on both the label and wrapper as this preparation is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Don't Be Fussy About Eating

Your Stomach Will Digest any Kind of Food When Given the Proper Assistance.

We are prone to fall into the error of singling out some article of food and soundly berating the fiend who first invented the dish. The habit grows with some people till almost all food is put on the blacklist. This is all wrong. What is required is a little assistance with those agencies upon which scientific students for many years have set their seal of approval because they have become absolute facts. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets for all stomach disorders are recognized; they have a fine record; they are rated reliable, dependable and worthy of confidence just as the president of a big bank puts his O.K. on a depositor's check. And so you can eat what you want, whatever you like, knowing well that should indigestion, sour risings, gas formations, fermentations, or any other stomach distress arise, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in a few moments will put you right.

Coated tongue, bad breath, heartburn, belching, flatulency, bloat—all the symptoms of digestive troubles disappear quickly when these tablets are used. They are not a cure for anything but dyspepsia and kindred complaints. But they have brought relief to more sufferers from digestive diseases than all the patent medicines and doctor's prescriptions put together.

The stomach does the heaviest work of any of the bodily organs, yet it's the one we treat with the least regard. We eat too much of the wrong kind of food at any time. The patient stomach stands such treatment as long as it can and then it rebels. You get notice of the rebellion in the shape of the gases and pains caused by undigested, fermenting food.

HOW MURPHY FACED THE MUSIC

Murphy was an ardent lover, and a practically penniless lover. It was St. Patrick's Day. In his hand he bore a pot of real Irish shamrock.

"They were raised in the ould sod," he said, as he presented the pot to Kitty, "raised in the ould sod of Ireland."

"Shure, now, Murphy," cried his lady in delight, "how realy sweet of ye it is. How perfect they are and how fresh. Shure I believe that there's a little dew on 'em yet."

Murphy flushed slightly. "Begorra I know there is," he reluctantly confessed, "but plaze God it'll be paid to-morrow."

GERMANS LOADING CAVALRY AT LODZ FOR ATTACK ON WARSAW.

Italian Officers and Men Reach New York To Hurry Supplies

NEW YORK, March 16. — Fresh evidence that Italy is pushing preparations to enter the European war was given yesterday when fifty Italian cavalrymen and six officers arrived here on board the Europa, of the La Veloce line. They have come to aid in the shipment of 10,000 horses and vast quantities of war munitions purchased here.

When the Europa reached her pier, at Thirty-fourth street and Hudson River, the cavalrymen were drawn up on the forward deck for inspection by Lieutenant Count Allessandro Marazini, of the Umberto First cavalry, the crack regiment of Italy.

Dressed in khaki riding breeches, with feather putteed, six button coat of civilian cut, and with gayly coloured mufflers twisted about their necks, the men presented a striking sight. They are all about five feet six inches in height, dark of complexion and wiry of build, and each is twenty years old. They were chosen for their mission because they are regarded as the most expert handlers of horses in the Italian army.

Bonds Closer Between Allies

LONDON.—(Special.)—It is believed here that the first period of the war has ended and the second begun. The hour of hasty, frantic preparation has passed, and to the French as to the British leaders the autumn days when the armies of Von Kluck, Von Buelow, and Von Hausen were sweeping inexorably onward to Paris must seem like a vanished nightmare.

The last few months have revived all the best military qualities of the French and have given British adaptability (a quality on which British Governments have always relied with full justification) the eagerly grasped opportunity to put into practice the lessons taught by the war.

Though the Kaiser's birthday developed "a certain liveliness" in the flooded plains of Flanders and among the forests of Alsace, it is abundantly clear that both in the western and in the eastern theatres of war the belligerents have reached something very like a stalemate.

DESCRIBED BY SUBALTERN.

A subaltern of Highlanders whom I met on his way to spend ninety-six hours' leave in Aberdeen put the situation in a nutshell:

"I have been out there for two months now," he said. "Where I am with my company we are only forty rods from the German trenches. If the Germans are willing to sacrifice ten men to our one, they can capture our trench; probably we could capture theirs, but also at a terrible price. So we just wait and snipe!"

If God is on the side of the big battalions, Fortune in this war is on the side of the most men and the most guns. It is the clear realization of this that has made the French a little querulous at the seemingly slow progress of the British in throwing into the field those fresh troops known as Kitchener's Army.

It has called forth criticism—not in the press, for there the censor will have none of it—but in the lobby of the chamber, in the political and service clubs, and in the trenches, where most French politics are at present made.

MILLERAND IS SUPRISED.

The visit to London of M. Millerand, French Minister of War, was the upshot of these strictures. He came to inquire; he remained to praise; and finally returned to Paris "simply astounded," as he expressed himself, at the steady, sterling work which is being done in the training of Kitchener's million.

M. Millerand's visit was followed by the visit of M. Augagneur, French Minister of Marine. M. Millerand had protracted conferences with Lord Kitchener and M. Augagneur with Winston Churchill. Both the French statesmen had an opportunity for a frank discussion of the whole situation, military and diplomatic, at dinner parties given in their honour at the French Embassy.

Lord Kitchener, Lord Fisher, Mr. Churchill, Lord Crewe, and Sir Edward Grey were present on both occasions, and from one who was there I know that the note struck in all the conversations was one of complete and absolute confidence.

I may seem to attach undue importance to these flying visits, which, in view of the importance of the personal equation in military matters, appear to be sufficiently explained by the desire of the French Ministers to have a personal meeting with those in charge of Britain's national defence.

Entente Cordiale Still Closer.

The fact is, however, that, as a result of these visits, the Entente Cordiale has become even more closely knit, and the collaboration between the two nations with Russia and Serbia for the conduct of the war even more firmly established than before.

Until M. Millerand came to London there was some misunderstanding in France as to the role this country was playing and was going to play in the land operations.

The city slogan, "Business as Usual," grated on French ears, for the "purification" of French soil of the German invader is such a sacred obligation to the Frenchmen who remain at home that they are physically incapable, as they frankly confess, of carrying on their normal avocations. They have only recently begun to realize that the "Business as Usual" placards which are stuck up in the London warehouses and shops are a reflection of that dogged Mark Tapley temperament which refuses to be "down-hearted," even in such a Gehenna as the retreat from Mons.

Furthermore, the stolid silence of Lord Kitchener regarding the results of the recruiting campaign and the—to the French—inexplicable delay on the part of the British Cabinet in introducing compulsory service have combined to puzzle, even to depress, the French temperament, which always insists on going to the bottom of everything.

Gave Chance to Explain.

Criticism is the finest sign of vitality in a partnership. M. Millerand's visit was welcomed by everybody, as it has given Lord Kitchener the opportunity he desired of explaining clearly to the most competent French authority his policy regarding the British reinforcements.

Whether the great German general staff miscalculated the value of the small British expeditionary force as the German newspapers did remains to be seen when the history of the war is written, but it is certain that they who have certain scales from which they can calculate the maximum effort of men of which France and Russia are capable have nothing by which they can reckon the numbers or efficiency or ages of the new British armies. That is Lord Kitchener's trump card. That is why he has resisted the strongest possible pressure in Parliament and declined to give recruiting figures, for in war the deciding factor is the unknown.

Recruiting is Satisfactory.

In point of fact recruiting in Britain at present appears to be satisfactory. Foreigners are apt to be misled by the intensity and varying forms of the ubiquitous recruiting posters. They think that the never-ending stream of fresh bills is a sign that recruiting is falling off.

It would be as great a mistake to argue from a great advertising campaign, to push some commercial object that the article did not find a sale.

We know this to be untrue. The pictorial side of the recruiting campaign in Britain is in the hands of a first-class advertising expert, and it is being run on purely advertising lines, utilising every current of thought, every development of the situation, every popular catchword to realize its object, namely, to get men for the Army.

The British are a slow-minded race, slow to realize, slow to decide, slow to act. Men, small tradesmen, artisans, and the like, who have taken six months to make up their minds and wind up their affairs, are steadily rolling up to the recruiting offices, prepared to enter on a new life to which everything in the old is opposed.

Women are Heroic.

If you talk to them they do not indulge in rhetoric about their duty. Often you will find it is their women who have sent them, these poor working women of Britain, who with the women of the aristocracy are the heroines of the war.

A party of Welsh miners arrived at a recruiting booth the other day, an entire shift who had volunteered in a body. With them they brought an extraordinary little gnome about four feet high and broad in proportion, strutting sturdily on stumpy bow legs. The recruiting officer would not look at him. The Welshmen were indignant. "Not take our Jem?" they said. "Why, Jem's our mascot! Naw, we won't go without our Jem!" And Jem went along with them, not as a recruit, it is true, but in some humble camp follower capacity.

At Epsom and at Aldershot M. Millerand saw thousands of these men who are now in training from Land's End to John o' Groats. And he was "simply astounded" at their numbers, their good equipment, the advanced state of their training.

He has returned to France with the knowledge that the men are there; that their training is proceeding methodically and swiftly; and that when the call comes they will be ready. And when they take their places in the firing line they will be, if training and forethought can make them so, the equals of the men who won the respect of the Prussian Guard at Ypres.

THIN PEOPLE CAN INCREASE WEIGHT

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and such any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat-producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive.

Leading druggists in Peterborough and vicinity sell it in large boxes — forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

THE GALLANT SIKHS

Natural Soldiers Who Fear Nothing—Several Distinct Clans

In several respects the Sikhs form a unique fighting force. In the first place they fill one-third of the rank and file of Britain's native armies in India. Unlike the Gurkhas, however, they do not belong to a single race. There are several types of Sikhs, the force being divided into clans. There is what is known as the "Khattaries," or "Kshatriyas," clan, consisting of representatives of the old military caste of the Hindus. They are not such big men as the "Jats," another Sikh clan, consisting of tall, stalwart fellows who are a distinct contrast to the Masbis, who are short, rather inclined to be stout, and have very dark skin and irregular features.

All the clans, however, are noted for their great powers of endurance, fighting qualities, and skill in handling a gun and bayonet. Indeed, it has often been said by military experts that there is no more cool and effective soldier in the world than the Sikh, who takes to drill like a duck takes to water, soon becomes a sharpshooter, and masters the use of the bayonet probably better than the soldiers of any other nationality.

So cold-blooded and invincible, indeed, are they in a bayonet charge that it frightens even the most fearless fighters, who lose their nerve when confronted by the merciless steel in the hands of these dauntless and determined Indian troops.

Although, however, there are various racial differences between the clans of the Sikhs, there is one link which binds them together, and that is their religion, which is called "sikhism." Without going into details it may be said that this faith disdains idolatry, inculcates the worship of God the Father and preaches the doctrine of the Brotherhood of Man. The religion of the Sikh makes him proof against "caste prejudices"—that is to say, unlike the Hindu, he is not required by his creed to refuse to break bread with anyone outside his own little clique, or decline to eat food cooked by foreigners. A tenet of their faith to which they strictly adhere is not to use tobacco in any form. Few of them partake of liquor of excess.

The Sikhs make equally good cavalry and infantry men. In pioneer work—that is to say, in clearing forests, cutting roads, making bridges, sinking wells to provide water for the army, laying and neutralising mines, etc., they cannot be beaten for the courage they display in facing difficulties which would daunt the stoutest hearts.

CHILDREN HATE OIL, CALOMEL AND PILLS

"California Syrup of Figs" Best For Tender Stomach, Liver, Bowels.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realise what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful give to-day saves a sick child to-morrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

ARE NOT OF MOORISH BLOOD

Moros, Fanatical Fighters of the Philippines, Though Mohammedans, Belong to Malayan Race.

It is rather curious about those "Moros" that we are fighting in the Philippines. "Moro" means Moor, and the name was applied to these people by the Spanish for the reason that, like the real Moors of North Africa, they are Mohammedans. To the mind of the Spanish settlers in the Philippines, any people who were also warlike were necessarily Moors.

As a matter of fact, these Moros are pure Malays. They came originally from the Malayan islands, further to the south and west, and their ancestors were converted to Mohammedanism by missionaries of that faith who wandered to Malaysia from India. They possess all the fierceness of their brethren, the Malayan head hunters of Borneo; and it is well known that the Mohammedan religion has never had the effect to reduce or tame the native fierceness of any people. These Sulu Moros are among the most fanatical Mussulmans in the world. Centuries of force on the part of the Spaniards has had no effect whatever upon them.

The same rule which the Spaniards followed in calling these Malays Moors, they also applied in the name they gave to the pagan inhabitants of the Philippines, whom they called "Indians," after the natives not of India, but of Peru and Mexico, from which countries the Spanish invaded these distant islands. The Peruvians, Mexicans and natives of the West Indies were called Indians. They were brown, wild and pagan. Consequently, in the opinion of these conquistadores of limited ethnological knowledge, these people were Indians. And "Indios" the pagan and Christianized natives of the Philippines have remained to this day to the Spaniards. We call them Filipinos, and in our spelling of this word, though not in that of the name of the islands themselves, we pay a tribute to the simplified Spanish orthography.

Marksmanship and Fine Discipline Excellent in Recent Heavy Fighting Say Despatches From Belgium---Canadians Were Engaged in the Terrific Battle at St. Eloi

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

LONDON, Eng., March 17.—The despatches from Belgium to-day emphasize the splendid work of the Canadian artillery in the recent heavy fighting. Their markmanship and fire discipline is excellent. The Princess Pats and other Canadian infantry were engaged in the fighting mentioned in the following despatch to-day to the Mail: The German wounded at Bruges declare that desperate fighting continues south west of Ypres. The fight for St. Eloi was bloody and determined. Every common was a fort and every corner a death trap. The dead were piled so high in the streets that they served as barricades for the living. The British fought most stubbornly against heavy odds being however well supported by their artillery which was placed on a small hill near Helmet. The Germans were mowed down in swaths, but sheer weight of numbers prevailed. The British fell back but were later reinforced and carried the village at the point of the bayonet.

LONDON, Eng., March 6.—(via mail to New York.)—Two German submarines are long overdue at Cuxhaven. If the British public knew why, they would have solved the new mystery of how Winston Churchill and the English navy are fighting the German under water boats. Now it is a naval secret not publishable in England. It won't be until after the war is over that the secret will come out. The English pubilc until that time will not even know this secret in the great game of hide and seek between the British navy and the German submarines. If the British can help it, the Germans themselves will never know why certain submarines failed to come home.

The general opinion is that the Admiralty has rigged a huge mass of chain nets which have been trailed through the waters of Channel by big dreadnoughts. The public fancy pictures the dreadnoughts making hauls of 800 ton German submarines, like giant fishermen. The idea is that the net does not bring the submarine up like a fish but tangles her propellor and rudder and renders her helpless.

The Admiralty officers laugh when they hear the pubic talk about submarine hunts and mysterious ways of dealing with the Von Tirpitz raiders, but there is a growing belief here that as time goes by more and more submarines will be "over-due" at Cuxhaven.

THE ITALIAN SITUATION

ROME, March 17 — Rumours of important developments in the Balkans to-day divided attention in diplomatic circles with reports that Austria and Italy are nearing a break. Anti-Austrian demonstrations were again reported from a number of Italian cities to-day. Unquestionably the warlike utterances of that portion of the press favouring the allies is stirring up a strong sentiment in favour of war. On the other hand the leaders who have constantly urged the maintenance of Italy's neutrality, have not been without some success.

TORONTO, March 17.—The movement of troops in the Niagara Peninsula to-day caused the spread of alarming rumours to far distant parts of Canada, hinting at a German invasion from the United States. While the militia officers will not inform the public in regard to the matter, it is generally believed here that it is simly a concentration of the Welland Canal guard forces for tactical purposes.

SOUTH SHIELDS, Mrach 17.—That Germany is attacking English commerce from over sea as well as under sea was demonstrated this morning when a German aeroplane dropped bombs on two British freighters in the North Sea, killing one man and injuring four on the steamer Blonde.

A SERMON FOR ST. PATRICK'S DAY

If ye listen, avic, sure to tell you I'll try,
The manin' of all that the Preacher did say;
Do ye mind how he told us to hold our heads high,
Since the feast of a nation we're keepin' to-day?

There are countries that boast of a saint more or less—
And 'tis not condemnin' their pride I will be,
For sure even wan is a prize to possess,
And I'd never begrudge them a lone two or three.

But in Ireland, avic, there are saints by the score,
Though most of their names in no book you will find,
And I don't mane the monks and the hermits of yore,
Though I truthfully say we had lots of that kind.

And I don't mane the Doctors, the Nuns, and the Priests,
Though the Lord knows how gladly we gave of our best,
And, in troth, if we minded of keepin' their feasts,
He should lengthen the year to make room for the rest.

But the sons and the daughters of Erin's green Isle,
Unschooled and unlettered, who laboured for God,
Whose pure hearts were never polluted by guile,
And whose feet left a blessin' wherever they trod.

Sure these are the saints that I'm manin', asthore,
Who kept the old Faith that St. Patrick first brought,
And who sowed the good seed far from Erin's green shore,
And new glories for God and St. Patrick wrought.

Though we're proud of the saints that in glory are crowned,
Of Patrick and Brigid, Columba and Gall,
We are prouder of those that no mention have found—
Faix I'm puzzled how heaven finds room for them all.

No nation has ever walked closer to God;
'Tis only an Irishman knows how to pray;
Sure the next thing to heaved is Erin's green sod—
That's the reason we're proud of St. Patrick's Day.

A. B. THOMAS GASH, of H. M. S. Cornwall.

PTE. ALBERT JOHN GASH, British Army Service Corps.

The three pictures above show the husband and two brothers of Mrs. A. Cripps, 525 Romaine Street, City. Her husband, Pte. Cripps, is training at the Armouries with the 39th Battalion. He is a veteran of the South African war and has served his full time on the reserve. Her brother, Pte. A. J. Gash, was living in Peterborough when war broke out. He was a reservist of the Army Service Corps and left at once to rejoin his old regiment. The other brother is on H.M.S. Cornwall and was in the battle off the Falkland Isles. Some verses he wrote in regard to the battle are printed in to-day's issue.

GOOD TURNOUT AT PARADE OF 57TH REGIMENT

Campaign to Build Up Rangers is to be Inaugurated—Some of "B" Squadron Rejected

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

The local company of the 39th Battalion and the 26th Field Battery recruits spent this morning in the open air route marching to the Golf Links by way of the Hunter Street bridge and East City. The signallers used their flags, and some interesting manœuvres were carried out.

The Rangers' Parade.

There was a parade state of 182 of all ranks at the weekly drill of the 57th Regiment last night and the turnout was the best since drill was resumed this spring. A number of new recruits presented themselves and many more will undoubtedly come in next Tuesday. When the regular time for beginning spring drill arrives in April the Rangers should be back to normal strength.

Lt.-Col. Walker and his officers are arranging for several plans to help build up the regiment. It is possible that cash premiums will be awarded the companies first reaching normal strength and also cash awards will be given members of the regiment for bringing in new members. The details of these schemes have yet to be worked out. A big patriotic recruiting concert is also a possibility and some definite announcement may be made in a short time.

In the meanwhile every officer, noncommissioned officer and man is expected to constitute himself a recruiting sergeant and to bring in as many recruits as possible. There are signs that more of the young men of Peterborough are awakening to the sense of their responsibility in this critical time and an earnest effort on the part of the present members of the regiment cannot fail to have good results. There were enough young men in the crowd which cheered the Mounted Rifles as they left for Ottawa to form three or four regiments. They have a chance now to show that there was something more behind their cheers than the mere joy of making a noise. The regiment drills every Tuesday night at the armouries.

Some Coming Back.

That some of the Peterborough squadron of the 8th C. M. R. will be sent home on account of failure to pass the last medical examination and for other reasons is the information received by the Examiner from one of the Peterborough boys at Ottawa. The regiment is well above strength and any little physical flaw in that case are enough to cause rejection. The letter says in part: "This soldier business is some life, hard work sometimes, but the boys seem satisfied, and I suppose it is just a matter of time till we get used to it. We like the life all right. There about 700 men in this building alone, and counting the Engineers there are about 1000 troops at the Exhibition grounds. All our boys went through the medical examination on Friday, and about seventeen of B squadron are going to be sent back. A lot of the boys got turned down for poor eyesight. You should get a glimpse of our boxing ring. Every night we have boxing bouts and you should see some of the old country boys go.

The commanding officer of the 39th Battalion has appointed Company Sergt.-Major Willard, of Peterborough, Regimental Provost at Belleville.

Irish Evening At Charlotte Street

Illustrated Lecture on Ireland by Mrs. I. B. Wallwin

The Irish Evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of Charlotte Street Church, given last night, in the Sunday School Hall, was an entertainment of very high calibre. The hall was appropriately decorated for the occasion and the programme was splendid.

The feature of the evening was an illustrated lecture on Ireland by Mrs. I. B. Wallwin of Toronto. Typical Irish scenes were depicted. When pictures of Killarney were being shown, a solo "Killarney" by Mrs. Hughes from behind the screen, added greatly to the effect.

Rev. J. P. Wilson, the Pastor, was chairman.

The programme was as follows:

Piano solo, Irish melodies, Miss Elliott.

Chorus by the Ladies, "Dear Little Shamrock"

For this number the ladies were suitably costumed for the occasion.

Solo, "Mother Machree," Miss Stevens.

Illustrated lecture on Ireland, Mrs. I. B. Wallwin of Toronto.

"It's a Long Way to Tipperary" was sung by Master Tom Diamond, in Boy Scout uniform, everyone joining in the chorus.

Chairman's address, Rev. Mr. Wilson.

Violin solo, Miss Elva Jackson.

Duet, Messrs. Fleming and Downie, "The Minstrel Boy".

Solo, Irish Lullaby—Mrs. Perrin.

Chorus — Members of the Ladies' Aid.

Solo, "Killarney," Mrs. Hughes.

God Save the King.

Raised $48.00 For Hospital

At a patriotic tea held by the ladies at the Temperance Hall, fourth line, Smith, the sum of $48.00 was raised for the Shorncliffe Hospital, and remitted to the Peterborough Progressive Club, who; yesterday sent a money order for this amount to Dr. Donald Armour, Shorncliffe Hospital, Kent, England.

This generous contribution was much appreciated and will prove most useful in providing comforts for the wounded Canadian soldiers, who are being treated at Shorncliffe.

Thanks Expressed

The ladies of St. Vincent's Orphanage desire to express to the public their heartfelt thanks for their generous contributions on behalf of the Orphange Fund on Shamrock Day. They wish to thank all who assisted by their monetary donations, as well as their smiles and encouragement to the collectors.

They wish also to thank the police force for assisting in regulating the crowds at congested corners and to the Street Car Company for their assistance and co-operation in the good work during the day.

FALSE REPORTS OF CASUALTIES ARE CIRCULATED

ANOTHER ONE TO-DAY

Ever since the news reached here that the Canadian troops were in action in France, there have been persistent rumours that such and such a member of the First Contingent from here has been killed. Where these stories start it is hard to say. Several weeks ago there was a report that Corp. Bert Carpenter had been killed in action. Last week the same story was circulated in connection with Pte. Tommy Parrington. To-day there was still another of the same kind that Gunner Wm. Clarke, of the 24th Battery, had been killed, and that his parents in East City had received a wire to that effect. There was no truth in any of these stories. Reports of casualties to Peterborough boys cannot fail to come and come fast enough. Why any one should be heartless enough to deliberately invent such foundationless stories as mentioned is hard to see.

SAW DUEL IN AIR

Bombardier Steele of Peterboro' Watched German and French Aviators Battle

Corp. J. Coppock, of the local company of the 39th Battalion, has received a letter from his friend, Bombardier Steele of the 4th Battery, 1st Brigade, C.F.A., First Contingent, who left here with the battery boys.

Bombardier Steele says:

At last I write a few lines to you hoping it will find you in the best of health, as it leaves me at present. Well, I guess you know I cannot let you know what part we are in, but anyway we are here all right. We are staying on farms, sleeping in lofts and anywhere we can get. We all try to get the safest spot, you bet your life on that. There is a little excitement going on out here at present. I saw an aeroplane duel yesterday that was worth seeing. It was between a German and a Frenchman, and the latter was one too many for the German and brought him down. The kitchen of the farm where I am staying is full of bullet holes, where the English drove out the Germans. You see some awful things here, I can tell you. You must excuse the scribble, as I am writing this on my saddle within sound of the guns which are popping off some.

FURTHER GAINS BY THE ALLIES TO-DAY

Belgians Advance Alopg the Yser and British Repel Attacks in Arras District--Cathedral at Rheims is Again Bombarded by the Germans and the Interior is in Ruins

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, March 17.—A renewal of the bombardment of Rheims by the German artillery men and gains by the allies at several points along the France-Flanders battle-line, were reported in the official despatches to-day. German shells have added to the work of destruction at the historic Rheims cathedral. Part of the roof has now been wrecked, and the interior of the cathedral is now in ruins. Between Dixmude and Nieuport the Belgians have made further progress along the Yser. In the fighting around Arras the British have repelled several German attacks. The Germans are again shelling Soissons, and directing part of their fire against the position held by the French north of the Aisne.

The French have made important gains in Champagne and in the Argonne. North of Mesnil the Germans have been driven back along a front nearly one third of a mile in width. In the Argonne between Bolante and Four de Paris several German attacks were repulsed. In the fighting around Mulhausen a French aviator flew over Colmar and dropped bombs on the German barracks.

GERMANS RETREATING

PETROGRAD, March 17.—Floods in the valley of the Orzec river have forced the Germans threatening Przasnysz from the northeast to retire for a distance of nearly two miles, according to Warsaw despatches to-day. Melting snow has caused the river to pass out of its banks, inundating the shallow trenches thrown up by the enemy when the forward movement was begun from Crozele. There are no Germans now within seven miles of Przasnysz. The bombardment of Ossowetz by the German 42 centimetre continues, but because of the distance at which the shelling is proceeding but slight damage is being done. The latest Austrian attempt to march to the relief of Prezemysl is apparently abandoned. The Austrians are falling back in Uszok and Pu Lupkow pass regions, after having lost several of their regiments and enormous quantities of war munitions. The Russian forces besieging Prezemysl have moved their heavy artillery closer to the outer forts, and have resumed the bombardment. Southeast of Stanislau where Archduke Ferdinand's army halted in its retreat from Dneister, another big battle is developing.

UNCLE SAM'S VIEWS

WASHINGTON, March 17.—That Britain's attempted justification of her German commerce embargo will meet with no response in administration circles, was plainly indicated in administration circles to-day. The request that this country look upon the latest order in council as a modified blockade and claim that it parallels the north's action in the civil war, is to be ignored. Conferring with President Wilson Secretary of Commerce Redfield to-day estimated that the stoppage German imports to the United States, even under existing conditions, will mean a loss in customs duties alone of more than $100,000 daily. In the protest which the United States will make to Great Britain it will be flatly stated that this government does not recognize any belligerent powers' right to establish a blockade against the commerce on the high seas.

Local Nurse Gets Important Post

Miss Gertrude Reid; 210 London Street, leaves in the morning for Kingston, where she has been appointed to take charge of the Military Hospital Training School.

Miss Reid volunteered for service at the front in August and in accordance with the regualtions she spent a month in training in Quebec with the Army Medical Corps. Military Hospital Training Schools are established at Quebec and Kingston, and nurses from Ontario volunteering for the front must spend a month in either school.

Miss Reid graduated at the Nicholls Hospital on March 17, 1912, three years ago to-day. Her appointment to this important post is an honour to Peterborough and to Miss Reid. Her name is on file at Ottawa as a volunteer for service at the front and until she is called she will have charge at Kingston.

The Hospital Training School at Kingston serves when any of the soldiers in training there are in need of hospital attention.

Miss Reid has a host of friends in the city who wish her success in her new undertaking.

Essay By Former Collegiate Pupil Wins Recognition

R. M. Fair, son of the late Geo. L. Fair, of Millbrook, and nephew of Robert Fair, recently contributed an important essay to Canadian Machinery in its issue of February 25. It was on the subject of the Grand Trunk Railway Apprenticeship System. Mr. Fair's article has created a great deal of interest in railway circles. Mr. Horning, of the Toronto passenger office of the G.T.R., for instance, has ordered 1,000 reprints of the essay. Mr. R. M. Fair is a 1915 graduate of the faculty of applied science, McGill University, a graduate of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, and a winner of the G.T.R. scholarship for McGill.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17, 1915

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

Never since Providence planted "the Eden of the west" in the inviolate sea have Ireland and Irishmen had better warrant to hail the shining birthday of her patron saint with greater gratitude and reasonable rejoicing. Ireland in more ways than one, has come and is coming to her own. The long delayed boon and right of Home Rule is virtually an accomplished fact, and in this regard Ireland can thank God and take courage; and work out her own destiny. On the soil where a few short months ago faction raised its head and threatened domestic strife and the shedding of Irish blood, faction has ceased to exercise its sway, and the whole population, from Mizen Head to Torr Heal; from Cleggan Bay to Wicklow Head, is uniting in the great struggle to preserve and give to the world the rights enshined in the principle of Home Rule and the popular freedom that makes British civilization a constitutional polity, the highest manifestation of human good, linked with the moral good typified in our essential of the three-fold cross of the three greatest nations of the world, blended in the flag that represents the greatest freedom of humanity and history.

This St. Patrick's Day can be "marked with a white stone"; not only because Ireland has come to her own in the way of self government, but she is coming anew to her own in the newer effulgence of the glory she and her sons have won in the fields and on the waters of war; when another page is being adde to the long roster of the valorous deeds of the sons of Ireland in the trenches, and with the greatest Irishman of history chief in the councils of the war chiefs, and statesman of the greatest Empire in history, Ireland's past story has a sober blend of glory and shame; but to-day a new sun-burst harbingers the dawn of a happier, greater Ireland, and so, Erin go bragh—

God Save Ireland!
God Save the Empire!
God Save the King!

FASHIONS AND FEMALES.

Some old-fashioned folk think that in this time of stress and struggle all our energies should be devoted to helping forward the interests of the war; that the frivolities and ornamental features of life should give way to the regard and performance of only stern and serious duties. But war or no war the good old world must wag on. Because the soldiers of armies are shooting, sticking and blowing up their brethren in Europe, is no reason why we should not continue to be human; because the warriors are becoming inhuman. We must keep the balance. Some old-fashioned folk think it sacrilege that women at such a time should worship at the shrine of fashion, and study short skirts and marvels or monstrosities of millinery. But, bless their innocent hearts, that was what women were made for. They wouldn't be women, and dear to us, if they had not their little harmless varieties. Not only by the right of their sex, but by their discharge of duties, they have earned the little relaxation of personal adornment or disfiguration, as the case may be. Our women are bearing their share of the burden of the war. Some are holding the home together while the head is fighting in far lands; hundreds are sewing in tears to have our soldier boys reap in joy the enjoyment of the comforts they provide. Our women are working day after day and night after night, to provide comforts for our soldier lads who may fall wounded and stricken on the battle field. They have put their hearts and hands into the work and they certainly have earned the right to put their heads into new hats and bonnets. And why not? Mother Eve, while the world was reeling and rocking from the shock of the fall, took time to study the latest fashions in fig leaves; and in the shock and waste and disturbance of war our women have an inherited right to turn their hearts to fashions. We are enjoined to do "business as usual," and why not "fashion as usual?" The most ridiculous vanity in hats or bonnets, or skirts or gowns stands for the employment, whose wage keeps many a home together, and is one of the many ways of lessening unemployment. If our women, in this great military mix-up, play the role of ministering angels, who will grudge them the incomprehensible, but real, thrill, of wearing a few frills. Then, vive la bagatelle, et ce qu'est egal, vive les femmes."

THE TWO SPIRITS.

The contrast between light and darkness is not more sharp than the contrast between the spirit that respectively animates the British and Germans—that is, the military class—in making and waging war. Britain declared war in the interests of the rights of the weak, out of respect of the claims of human freedom. Germany declared war in the interest of selfish and oppressive aggression, not in the interests of extending wider liberty and beneficient government to more people, but of rivetting on more securely the shackles of arrogant oligarchy and crushing militarism. The same spirit contrast obtains in everything. The German soldier, interpreting the evil heart of his superiors, has acted in the way of waging war from the beginning, with the most exaggerated brutality. He has treated enemy prisoners as pagans of old treated their prisoners. No regard for the sacredness of human life or the claims of humanity has influenced the actions of Germans on earth or sea.

We have had stories, ad nauseam, of the treatment of enemy soldiers by German military authority, and we have the same spirit manifest in the naval operations. A recent incident in contrast: The British cruisers hammered the Dresden into ruin, and when this work was done, there were no enemies to fight—the British took off the German officers and crew, who were made prisoners of war, and kindly and humanely treated. Before this last capture the British had made in the different ocean battles nearly two thousand prisoners, most of them consisting of men rescued from drowning after their ships had been put out of action and in sinking condition. In the seafights in which the Germans were successful no prisoners were taken; no men rescued. When they had the power they gave no quarter—they slew, or let drown, and spared not. In the seafights where the British won and sunk hostile ships the German lives lost numbered about 5,000, and the rescued, 1,700. In seafights where Germans won and British cruisers were sunk the British lives lost numbered about 5,000, and the British rescued were—not one.

Not only in this is the difference of the two animating spirits seen, but in the "blockade" declared by means of German submarines, "Kill and slay; strike and spare not" are the watchwords. Unarmed ships—neutral as well as hostile—ships carrying unarmed passengers are to be torpedoed and sunk without warning, without regard to loss of innocent lives. In the counter "blockade" declared by Great Britain it is understood and specifically asserted, that there is to be no avoidable destruction of human life; no ship is to be dealt with without warning, and humane considerations are to be superior to considerations of success. When we contrast these two animating spirits we are more proud than ever of the possibility of being at the same time Britons and Christians. We can fight for our cause without a blush, and we can pray for our cause without fear of the tongue of the blasphemer being palsied.

CHEAP AND POOR ARMY SOCKS.

The other day we described a sample pair of the socks handed out to the soldiers at Guelph, crudely put together with a ridge inside them that would, on a march, almost cut the toes off the man who wore them. The Guelph Mercury reproduces our article and says:

"The Mercury also saw some of the socks in question. They were just as described by The Star. An expert explained that they were finished in that way because it was cheaper to do so. In fact the cost would be cut about five cents by this rough work.

"Whether all the socks served to the troops were the same it is impossible to state. Certain it is, though, that there never would be socks of this kind put on sale in a store, for the simple reason that no one would buy them."

The militia authorities ought to see that such socks are not accepted and given to the men for use. It does not matter who made them, nor whether the five-cent gain from the cheap method of putting them together goes to the contractor or the national treasury—that extra five cents ought to go into the sock to make it fit to wear. The men who go to war and risk their lives will have to put up with enough discomforts of a kind that cannot be escaped, without having bad boots and bad socks palmed off on them by the people who stay at home.—Toronto Star.

BRITAIN'S PROUD REPLY TO THE GERMAN PIRATE MENACE

While the British Order-in-Council establishing a blockade of Germany leaves much to the imagination as to how that blockade will be made effective, and as to how much of the high seas will come within the war zone, it is unmistakaly definite and uncompromising in its main essential. This is that Britain, instead of bargaining with Germany for calling off the 'submarine blockade,' will take up Germany's challenge and fight her to a finish.

Germany has all along been endeavouring to make the United States a pawn in the game for the intimidation of England, and the American proposals to Britain of conditions under which Germany might be induced to call off her submarine "blockade," while, perhaps, not actually suggested by Germany, were exactly in line with what Germany was aiming for. Germany wanted the freedom of the seas for shipping to and from her ports without sending out her fleet to fight for it. She wanted Great Britain to agree not to use her fleet for the purpose of stopping war supplies being shipped into Germany and in consideration of this agreement was quite willing to call off a "blockade" by proclamation of England which she had no means of enforcing. Britain's proud reply to this attempt to frighten her has now been given. The modern version of the ancient wheeze of the bogey-man has failed to work. An absolute wrought-iron blockade for Germany is Britain's counter-move to Germany's "frightfulness."

It is, perhaps, quite to be expected that such a non-compromising reply should arouse a good deal of apprehension in the United States. It would almost seem, in fact, that official America, were more deeply concerned over the blockade announced by Great Britain than over the submarine lynch-law for combatants and non-combatants alike proclaimed by Germany for all shipping that dared to approach Great Britain. There is a reason for this. Americans interested in shipping or in trade with Europe know perfectly well that Germany's threat would only inconvenience their business. Equally they know that Great Britain's pronouncement means the instant and absolute stoppage of all business with Germany. The great concern shown by those whose outlook is almost wholly confined to the immediate business ramifications of Britain's attitude is a tribute to Britain's sea power. They know that this blockade will be what it purports to be. Germany's "blockade" they did not care a snap of the finger for; all they objected to was the possibility of American lives being sacrificed in the attempt to force it. This, however, is a blockade that will be a blockade, and that therefore must be reckoned with. Admittedly the trade of neutrals will be interfered with. That however, is Germany's fault, not Britain's. Britain is now engaged in a fight for everything that she holds dear and sacred; she is fighting even for her very existence. In that fight she is endeavouring to the utmost of her power to protect the rights of neutrals. Every fair-minded person must concede that she has shown an almost Quixotic chivalry in this respect, in startling contrast to Germany, who has taken a frightful toll of neutral shipping. But to expect Britain, at a threat from Germany, to allow an uninterrupted flow of supplies for Britain's destruction to flow into Germany from neutral countries, is to ask too much. It would be to admit defeat. Britain answers "blockade" with blockade. We shall now see which is the real factor in sea power, the submarine or the super-Dreadnought.

Farming in the Back Yard

Editor Examiner,— Your recent articles on "The City Garden" have been an inspiration to many. Your reference to a West Ender who raised vegetables worth $28 off a plot of ground less than forty feet square, and your estimate that $112,000 could thus be added to the income of Peterborough's house holders if they did the same, are eye openers.

To this might be added about $50,000, made up of savings in doctors bills, due to exercise in the open, and retrenchment in theatre money, for, would there not be "moving pictures" in every back yard.

Thinking that the experience of others along this line might be an incentive to some one to follow suit, I append the splendid results obtained by a resourceful wife, out west, who obeyed the prompting of an idea:

"Two years ago last spring my husband's health became bad, and the doctor insisted that nothing but change of occupation and open air exercise would benefit him.

"His sickness had already placed us deeply in debt and there seemed to be no possible way to bring about the necessary change for him. Then out of the cloudy sky came the idea.

"Near by us were many back yards either sown in grass or left entirely uncared for. I visited the owners of these yards myself and asked to be allowed to plant them in garden vegetables, offering to supply the families with part of the products.

"Early in the spring my husband and I began working in these yards both before and after mill hours. Our three boys, aged seven, nine and twelve, always helped; from the start it was a success.

"We raised much more than our landlords could use, but we found ready sale for it. We not only cut down our living expenses, but added materially to our finances.

"The second year was better than the first.

"The year just past my husband felt justified in taking a three months' leave of absence from the rill, and we put all our time on our backyard farms.

"He has regained his health, and we are out of debt, and have had more wholesome food than ever before; we have made our garden not only supply us with good vegetables, but they have also paid the rent and allowed us to indulge in many pleasures never dreamed of before."

—William James.

GIVE THE HOPE OF THE NATION A CHANCE

For the first few months the babe should do little but sleep and eat. It should not be tossed about, kissed and tickled, nor should it be hawked about, visiting; its feeding hours should be regular, and between times let it alone.

The persecution these little ones suffer at the hands of silly relatives and family friends is really pitiful. Leave the babies alone and let them grow.

The death rate in the first three years of child life is greatest, and after that every added year increases its safety.

The most frequent cause of infant mortality is improper feeding, and impure milk; the stomach of the new born babe is a very small, and a very delicate affair, but it is through the action of this small and delicate organ all growth comes, and the food which Nature has prepared for the babe's stomach is the mother's milk.

The wise mother will insist upon nursing her child not only for the child's sake, but also for her own. The mother-fed child is the one that escapes a hundred dangers to which the bottle-fed babe is exposed: follow Nature and it is well for mother and for child. Nature loves her own, and it is when we stray from her that infant mortality begins.

The mother must be well fed if she would feed her child; make no mistake about this. To-day we have so many other fads, and eat so many things that have really no food value that often the mother's milk is deficient in certain essential elements necessary for the child's growth.

Think of all the elements required, bone, muscle, energy, nerve (we can't live to-day without nerve) the heart, lungs, in fact all the thoracic viscera, all the abdominal viscera, the skin, the brain—all must be fed and kept growing; and the mother must through the food she takes, provide for herself and her child.

It is not difficult to understand that a most generous diet is required to meet these demands. Every food stuff should be a part of the mother's daily rations from the time of conception until the child is weaned.

There is no better resting place for a child than in a roomy carriage on the verandah, sheltered from the winds, or in the south room of the house, well ventilted, warm in the winter time.

Estimate for Supplying Power to Havelock and Norwood

Norwood Village Council Negotiating With Hydro Commission Re-supplying of Electric Power—News in General

Special to The Examiner:

NORWOOD, March 16.—The village Council met on Wednesday evening, March 10th. Those present were: Reeve B. W. Squire and Councillors S. Hendren, W. Portway and T. Morrison.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

The following accounts were presented:

Robt. Taylor, 5 hours shovelling snow	$ .75
Isaac Puffer, February salary $20, extra work $2.05	22.05
Arthur Nixon, 5¼ cords of wood at $5	26.20
E. J. Laing account, salary	15.00
Isaac Puffer account, re-taking H. T. Vandeburg to House of Refuge	6.10
W. H. Harper, repairing electric light switch	.25

Moved by Councillor Hendren, seconded by Councillor Portway, that these accounts be paid.

Mr. Wm. Nelson made application to have the dog tax rebated, as he was not the owner. His petition was granted.

Mr. J. W. Rork addressed the Council, asking for the right to instal a gasoline pump in front of the sidewalk at his store. As appliances of this nature for the use of autos are now installed in every city and in many towns, the request was granted.

A communication was read from some Havelock gentlemen re rates of Town Hall for moving picture shows one night in the week. The parties proposed paying for same on a percentage basis. The Council would not consider the scheme, and authorized the Clerk to quote the usual rates of $12 per night, with rebate of $5 per night if hall were used for a period of three months.

A communication was read re providing the 21st Battalion at Kingston with a moving kitchen, each municipality being asked to contribute $40. In considering the matter, Reeve Squire stated that some municipalities had not been asked to contribute, and he thought the fairest way was for the County Council to use one of their monthly grants towards same. It was therefore moved to leave the communication over.

Mr. Thos. Watson was re-appointed a member of the Board of Health.

The auditors' report was received on motion passed that the salaries of the auditors be paid, viz., $5 each by the Village Council and $3 each by the Board of Education. The Reeve and Councillor Portway were appointed to look after the printing of the same.

A communication re power was received from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, and some discussion given on the matter, in which it was pointed out that the amount of power being used at present for lighting purposes in the village was about 55 h.p.

As other details had to be gone into, the matter was left over until the next Council meeting.

The following is the letter received from the Hydro Commission:

Toronto, Feb. 17, 1915.

Mr. E. J. Laing, Clerk, Norwood, Ont.

Dear Sir,—We have prepared estimates on supplying power to both Havelock and Norwood from Campbellford, where we base our costs on power at $10 per h.p. per annum from the municipal system.

For transmission purposes it will be necessary for us to step this up from 2,200 volts to 6,600 volts. Owing to the small amount of business in Norwood, we have not gured on a substation in your village, believing it would be more economical to use pole type tranaformers at 6,600 volts.

The following are the various estimates made for this supply:

Proposition 1.	H.P.	Del'd Volts.	With S.F. 1.8%
Havelock (no station)	100	6,600	$32.85
Havelock	100	2,300	37.12
Norwood	50	6,600	54.06
Proposition 2.
Havelock (no station)	150	6,600	23.87
Havelock	150	2,300	32.20
Norwood	50	6,600	54.62
Proposition 3.
Havelock (no station)	150	6,600	26.22
Havelock	150	2,300	29.55
Norwood	100	6,600	36.86

You will note that these estimates are made in conjunction with Havelock, and unless that municipality finds these estimates attractive, the estimates for Norwood alone will be considerably higher.

Should you wish to go into this matter in conjunction with Havelock, we would be glad to hear from you furthem.—Yours truly,

Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

HOW SOLDIERS LIVE AND FIGHT IN THE TRENCHES.

London, March 17—When it rains the trenches are half filled with water. The cold is always of the damp, penetrating, dreadful kind that chills to the very marrow. Hot food is served three times a day to the men in the trenches by other soldiers, who scurry like rabbits through long uncovered tunnels running back from the works concealing the guns.

These men in the trenches must have good food in order that they can have good blood, and if they have good blood, they have good courage, they keep warm because their circulation is good and their extremities are warm from exercise. Many men are invalided, however, because their blood and their stomach were not right to withstand the awful hardships of this winter campaign.

When you do not properly digest your food your blood becomes thin and every organ of the body soon feels the effect. The result is—headaches, sleeplessness, nervousness and many other symptoms—due to accumulation of poisons in the body. Unless the stomach is given aid at this stage—more serious illnesses follow. Now is the time to help your weakened stomach—now is the time to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (in tablet or liquid form). It has the same power to set you right as it has been proved to have in thousands of other cases. It will help your stomach so that the food you eat will nourish and sustain you and make good reviving blood. It will enable you to get rid of the waste a sluggish liver and irregular bowels have permitted to accumulate in your system.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is composed of known native healing remedial roots and herbs with no alcohol nor narcotic drugs to give you harmful habits. It can now be obtained in tablet or liquid form from dealers, or send 50 stamps for box of tablets.

Dr. Pierce's medicines are manufactured in Canada, at the World's Dispensary, Bridgeburg, Ontario.

British Light Cruiser Has 28 Men Killed, Same Number Wounded

Leader of Five Warships Sent Toward Nagara on the Dardanelles to Scatter the Turks is Hit Twenty-two Times by Shells

LONDON, March 17.—Twenty-eight of the crew of the British light cruiser Amethyst were killed and about the same number wounded when Turkish batteries succeeded in hitting her during operations against the Dardanelles fortifications, says The Daily News in a despatch from its correspondent at Athens. Twenty-two shells struck the Amethyst.

The Amethyst was one of a squadron of five British ships sent in towards Nagara to scatter the Turks, who, it was learned, were placing movable batteries in position. The Amethyst led the squadron. The damage to the vessel has not been learned.

The damaged vessel returned to Pharnai, where she anchored. Her dead were buried at sea. Yesterday the entire fleet of warships flew their ensigns at half-mast.

It is reported here that the Turks are feverishly fortifying the Bosphorus, big guns having been placed on the heights of Cantindja and Seghutani.

Last evening a seaplane rose from the sea and disappeared up the straits. A battleship also entered the straits.

Germans in Constantinople are telling the Turks that Nagara Point has been made impassable. They state that plans have been completed that will result in the sinking of all the enemy ships that attempt to get through the Narrows.

A Reuter despatch from Tenedos stated that a British trawler attached to the Anglo-French fleet in the Dardanelles sphere of operations was blown up yesterday while sweeping up mines. Mine-sweeping operations were begun by a fleet of trawlers, under the protection of the warships.

Several batteries of Turkish field artillery posted above Kum Kale at the entrance to the Dardanelles were discovered and silenced by British warships after a bombardment Sunday, says a special despatch from Athens.

CLIMAX IS REACHED

Italy Must Show Her Hand Very Soon Now

ROME, March 17. — The political pressure upon the Italian Government to pledge Italy's course in the future, either to the empires of central Europe or the allies, has been augmented for some time and is to-day believed to have about reached its climax.

A despatch from Rome says that a large part of the Italian navy is being concentrated at Taranto, at the southeastern extremity of the country, and the point nearest the Dardanelles.

What is believed in high quarters to be an authoritative outline of the territorial demands of Italy and the position of Austria in regard to them was obtained yesterday.

Roughly speaking, Italy desires a sweep of territory to the north and east, which would extend her boundary around the northern end of the Adriatic Sea as far south as Fiume, on the eastern coast. This would include the Austrian naval base at Pola, as well as the Provinces of Trent and Trieste.

It is regarded as probable that, under pressure from Germany, Austria may be inclined to grant larger concessions than she is now willing to consider, but the belief is generally held in responsible quarters that the extreme [illegible] concessions would be insufficient to satisfy Italy.

Representatives of the allies in the negotiations with the Italian Government have united in saying that the defeat of eGrmany and Austria-Hungary is inevitable, even without the participation of Italy. In case Italy refrains from taking part, she will receive nothing from the allies when the settlements are made. They say that with the conclusion of peace, or shortly thereafter, the separation of Hungary from Austria is quite to be expected. This would lead to the absorption of the Austrian provinces of German nationality by Germany, and the extension of German-dominion to Trieste, which would never be lost to Italy. Italy would be forced to abandon Avlona and the Aegean Islands.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

SPRING MILLINERY

The millinery stores up and down the street bloomed to-day in all the glories of the approaching Spring. With the breaking up of winter, these annual displays bring a note of hope and expectation of the joys of Nature in her re-birth. And this year, above all others, the millinery creators have combined bright colours and beautiful shades to offset the gloom which struggles to overshadow the every-day affairs of the people. Hence the fashions this year are real harbingers of the joyous Springtime, and although the crase for the monotones of black and white still lingers, its influence has waned very considerably.

The new millinery shows military styles, poke shapes, and especially some of the models that were in vogue in the days of Victoria the Great's young womanhood. Space does not permit to mention them all, for instance the Chinese Chin-Chin styles, the sailors and the small hats that will en regle. It is sufficient to say that there can be scarcely a type of womanly features which do not lend themselves to the many modish shapes for this Spring.

In ladies' suits, the narrow skirts have all but disappeared. True there is some slight tendency to retain them, but the modern dances with their freedom of movement have demanded the flared skirts. When the tango's fascination spread, it soon became evident that the hobbles were an impediment to graceful movements. Some persons sought a remedy and their choice of the full skirts of the Victorian period was, indeed, a happy one.

In the following review of the local display it will be found that the local milliners are offering the newest fashions with an extensive display of all the modish shapes, trimmings and colours.

AT FAIR'S.

An extensive display of the new millinery styles is shown at Robt. Fair's store. The new military shapes prevail with small sailors, torpedo designs and other effects being included. Leghorns are prominent, ranging in shape from the bonnet to the picture hat. The trimmings favour small flowers and ribbons and fruit of all descriptions from the blackberry and raisin to the larger peach. The colours employed are of unusual brilliance, and anybody expecting sombre dun shades will have a bright awakening. Neutral shades and black and white stand first in the "colour card," but it is a long day since there has been such a glorious riot of hues. Belgian blue and King George red and purple are very prominent.

In the ready-to-wear section the suits incline to the military type and to the full skirts of 1830. Serges and gabardines in khaki, sand and Belgian blue are very fashionable. Black and white effect will also be generally used. Many of the suits show lace sleeves and flared skirts with yokes.

SPRING OPENING AT ELLIOT'S

The hat shapes have undergone a very great change this season. The hats are either quite large or quite small.

The dressy hat for swell functions will be quite large, while the utility hat will be smaller and neater than formerly.

The present military activity has much influence on the current styles. The khaki shades and soldier effects are much in evidence.

Among the prominent shades to be seen are the sand colour, the Belgian blue, the transparent nett, tricornes, and among the pretty styles are the Lisere, sailors, turbans, L'Amiral, Milan split, as well as the standard designs.

Elliot's store has adopted a new system this season. They are showing hundreds of trails, flowers of every description, foliage and fruits and buds, and many of the ladies are selecting their trimmings and shapes and trimming their hats.

The trimmers in the department were cheerfully showing the ladies how to arrange the trimming, without charge.

In this way hundreds of hats will be worn this season at very trifling cost.

When you get your trimming at Elliot's be sure and ask the young lady in charge how to arrange the trimming. She will be delighted to show you. There is no charge for this.

READY-TO-WEAR.

In this department the management has made arrangements with the more noted of the ladies' garment manufacturers to send each week, sample garments made up in the newest styles and cloths. In this way they always show something new each week, and the newest "ideas" are never overlooked.

This season's styles will be copied from the early Victorian period. The skirts will be fuller and shorter, and some of them will be trimmed.

THE TOMMY ATKINS DRESS.

A very practical little dress, made in sand coloured material. It has a yoke front and back, normal waist line. The skirt has yoke and pleats and smart little pockets on each side of the front. The waist is buttoned up to the throat and has a stand up military collar with round corners.

Among the dressier dresses the leading materials are serge, gaberdine, poplin and crepe.

In silks, taffetta is being shown in limited quantities. Crepe de chine, messaline and charmeuse are very popular.

One of the new features in Elliot's ready-to-wear department is the order department. In seven days they will deliver to your measure any shade or quality or size of dress you may be pleased to order. The ladies nd this to be a great convenience.

LADIES' WAISTS.

A big assortment of white waists are being shown. The waists are very attractive this season, as they are mostly being made up in the richer designs of the most expensive waists and yet sold at the popular prices.

The silk waists, while also shown in a big variety of materials, yet the heavy Jap silk seems to be the favourite this season.

RICHARD HALL & SON.

While the military influence is reflected in many of the millinery shapes in this department of the house of Richard Hall & Son, it is a mere incident in the new Easter and spring effects. It was inevitable that the fashions would be stirred by the soldierly habillments that have been ever before the designers in Paris and London, but their severer lines have met very strong opposition in the beautiful ideas copied from the Victorian period. In a barren season the military might have cut a wider swath, but with the graceful delicate models of almost a century ago claiming recognition the feminine choice was indicated from the first displays.

The millinery department at Hall's presents a profusion of designs, all of them showing the popular ideas of the new season. However, among those that are featured is the Shepherdess, a dainty, charming model reminiscent of those mythical maidens some painters have idealized. A very pretty hat in this design is a sand shade with tagel braid and a facing of black taffeta. The trimming of various fruits is used to good advantage. There is nothing garish about this model, which to many persons will suggest the quaintness and innocence generally associated with the shepherdess as one imagines her. The effect has been strikingly secured.

The Victorian poke is a variation of the fashions in vogue in the heyday of our great grandmothers' youth. One of these hats is of navy blue taffeta with tagel braid facing and a dainty side front trimming of pink forget-me-nots and purple violet. This model is built on smart lines and is bound to be pleasing.

The Chin-Chin Hat.

The comic opera Chin-Chin, which has been running successfully in New York all winter, has left its stamp on the millinery models. The Chin-Chin is the very newest design, and is being featured in next month's Vogue, the smart set's fashion guide. One of these models is a cute copy of a mandarin's hat. It is fashioned of black silk, with a rolling brim, trimmed with flowered applique. The Pan-san veils, favoured this spring, are also taken from a former day. In sailors, narrow brims and shallow crowns predominate. Rustic and barnyard braids are popular

Ready-to-Wear.

In this department military styles are numerous. One of those shown is of gabardine in regimental blue, with military braid. Another suit is of Belgian blue, with flared skirt and shirred girdle and waist line. The coat is a short, natty, loose style. One of the smart coats is of fancy covert cloth in a sand shade, with full skirt and Russian belt.

It might have been mentioned in connection with the millinery department that a large number of smart styles have been made at a price of from $3 to $4.

The Hall store is making a specialty of upholstering this spring. This has been undertaken to facilitate the home decorating work and to permit the complete harmonizing of interior decorations. One set of furniture in use 35 years has been recently upholstered in a beautiful colonial Chintz. The possibilities of this work are indicated in the work done on a shoe chair for bedroom use. It had been discarded, but in its old Chintz upholstering makes a pretty and useful boudoir piece. In the home-furnishing department there is a window setting of the Italian renaissance period. It is of heavy silk French velvet with a border of Italian tapestry and is designed for a living or dining room. A similar bedroom hanging is of jaspe cloth done in Louis XVI style. Colonial period, chintz is a popular drapery with bright materials for bedroom decoration, and the darker effects for the dining room.

New Imported Goods.

A large shipment from England of new silk and wool dress goods and cotton goods was being opened this morning while the reporter was present. These goods were not expected for another month on account of the shipping uncertainties, and their arrival will swell the display for the new season.

TURNBULL'S.

Something new and distinctive in the way of spring millinery and ready-to-wear openings is to be found at Turnbull's. Apart from the regular millinery opening, which in itself will consist of a wealth of the most exclusive of millinery, there will be a fashion parade. This will take place between the hours of four and five in the afternoon and eight and ten in the evening, and is open to gentlemen as well as ladies. The latest creations from the world's fashion mart will be displayed on mannequins or living models. This same method is adopted by the largest stores in the great fashion centres of the world, and it is safe to say that the latter will have nothing newer or more acceptable to show than you will find in Turnbull's. Mr. Howard Russell, the well-known baritone of Toronto, will be present, and will intersperse the proceedings with a number of vocal selections. An orchestra has also been secured for the occasion. In addition to this there will be a special exhibit of rugs and home furnishings on the fifth floor.

THE MILLINERY SECTION.

For practical wear you will find hats of the military type. These are sure to be highly favoured, and there is such a variety of styles to select from that duplication is avoided. The latest creations from the millinery marts of the world are here gathered together. With no hard and fast rule as to tone, other than the harmonious blending and artistic handling, the display is a veritable floral pageant, charming, alluring and appealing to cultured taste and sartorial refinement. Besides, the millinery experts of Turnbull's are possessed of such ingenuity and resourcefulness in fashioning different examples of silk and straw and diversifying the methods of trimming that there is no chance of the hats so produced becoming commonplace owing to over-popularity.

REID'S OPENINGS.

As is to be expected in a store that makes a feature of introducing the new styles, Reid's are showing the latest military effects in suits, coats and street costumes.

One suit that promises to be a popular model is the Kitchener style. Materials are Circassian cloth, in sand colour. As is to be expected from its name, the garment is extremely military in every part, close, braided collar, striped sleeve, and prominently adorned with polished buttons, of which there are fifty-four on the coat.

The skirt is a three-gore circular style, very neat, and completes a dressy street costume admirably.

The same model is also shown in shepherd plaids.

The season's materials are serges and Gabardines, and colors in evidence are sand, wet sand, putty, battleship grey, Belgium blue, Russian green, soldier blue, etc.

Mr. Stewart, buyer for Reid's, thinks the suit season is most promising, the changes in style being so decided, and the new models so pronouncedly in keeping with the military air that pervades the country so entirely.

The very latest advices from the seat of fashion say that coats are two to three inches longer than last season, with pointed sides and fronts, sleeves long, and set in instead of the loose kimona sleeve of last season. Belt effect has been discarded, and the waist lined ropped from high to normal. Silks are reported as scarce and very hard to get, but at Reid's the silk suit that is expected to be in big demand is being featured extensively. The Reid store has a particular clientele to cater to, and from the smart, dressy appearance of the garments shown, the establishment is living right up to its reputation as a style centre.

MISS J. HORSFIELD.

The millinery parlours of Miss J. Horsfield, 435 George Street, are stocked with some of the most attractive offerings that has been seen in this city for some time. The display includes a special showing of stylish suit hats. Then there are exceedingly smart and cleverly trimmed hats for tailored wear, quiet, dignified black hats, hats for debunantees and younger girls. The whole represent a pleasing assortment that cannot fail to appeal to the most fastidious. Prospective buyers will do well to inspect the variety of styles that will be featured at the Spring opening which is scheduled for to-day. Some of the most popular styles are the semi-trimmed hats of satin, silk, ribbon, and straw combinations, also the jaunty little hand-made sailors of Belgian blue braid, silk crown and facing in the same tones.

Miss Horsfield has a staff of expert assistans who will esteem it a pleasure to show customers some of the latest creations from the world's millinery market.

PRAISE FOR MRS. WILSON'S MILLINERY.

The preference shown for Mrs. Wilson's millinery was well emphasized in the large attendance of ladies at her show rooms to-day. The striking display of new spring hats this season is worthy of the prestige that Mrs. Wilson's show-room has gained. The millinery salon never looked so inviting with the hundreds of new spring hats so bewitchingly trimmed and displayed. The fashionable hats in vogue in the chief fashion centres were well represented and the new ideas seem inexhaustible. The pattern hats are strikingly original and close by them are excellent examples from Mrs. Wilson's own workrooms, so skilfully trimmed. It was a delightful revelation of what the new fashions in headwear are, and how they should be worn. The spirit of militarism makes it a season of many colour tones. Few of the season's creations that do not show, at least, some slight token of its widespread influence.

MISS McGIVERIN.

Miss McGiverin's parlours wore an air of readiness when visited, and patriotic shades and shapes were the order everywhere. One neat little hat was described as a high crowned Tipperary sailor, made of black straw, and almost entirely without ornament, a touch of red adding to its attractiveness. Another new shape is the Tipperary Turban, also with very little ornamentation. A novel, yet pleasing model, was made of Barnyard Braid of the new sand shade, touched with the new Melrose colour, a catchy combination. Battleship grey in silk and shapes, was also given prominence.

AT CRESSMAN'S

Although entering upon the second week of their spring tyle show, the Cressman Millinery Department is still attracting the same high pressure of interest as it did on the first day. A perfect riot of colours greet the feminine eye on entering this spacious and well-light salon. Show cases and display tables seem to vie with each other in attracting favourable comment. Such a variety of styles are shown that to say one is more dominant than the other would indeed be rash. Here one would imagine that milady would have little difficulty in suiting her own particular type of beauty without sacrificing herself to the dictates of fashion. Jaunts, poke, sailor, turban, torpedo, and the more sweeping shepherdess shapes are shown. Flowers, foliage, fruit and ribbons are used in abundance in the embellishment of these hats; this applies equally to the tailored as well as the more dressy models. There are also some notable bird and wing trimmed hats that will assuredly win admiration. These are chiefly shown in black and white, battleship grey, Russian green, Belgian and Marine blues, said, putty, purple, white and black are the dominating colours. The question of "Lids for Kids" has received just as much attention as the grown-ups. There's a superb showing of clever juvenile styles that are down-to-the-minute, and certain to meet with unlimited approval by young and old.

The Reid Company
"Where the Styles come from"

INNIS AND ARMSTRONG.

The millinery parlours of Innis and Armstrong, Simcoe street, are replete with a varied assortment of millinery offerings representing some of the best and most exclusive styles to be found on the New York and Enropean markets. Prospective purchasers will make no mistake in looking over the display which is sufficiently large and distinctive enough to satisfy the most exacting demands. The exhibit includes imported trimmed and untrimmed shapes, with the breath of Paris in every line, and combining an artistic blend of colours, the clever trimmings, and the new note—Moderation in Price.

MADAME DROLET.

This millinery parlour is the centre of some very smart styles. The stock which is exclusively millinery is well selected.

Particular attention seems to have been paid to secure very effective trimmings. The popular military shapes are the result of the times we are living in. When enjoying the pleasure of the openings this year your observation will not be complete unless you see Madame Drolet's exhibit in the Grand Opera Block.

MISS DERRY.

Another exclusive millinery parlour that is showing this season the results of well-selected shapes and materials, as well as god judgment in the matter of shades and the effect produced on trimmed hats, is that of Miss Derry, on Hunter St.—Mrs. Darnley's old stand. The latest, both in durability and appearance is being shown very effectively at this parlour.

ZACKS BROS.

At Zacks Bros., in spite of the upset condition of things while the store was being renovated and refurnished, Miss Jardine has succeeded in preparing a bright display of catchy designs. The hats are modelled after the newest metropolitan styles, and simple elegance is the ruling expression that is evidenced. There are hats for every demand, from the expensively made and trimmed models, to the modest, but pretty designs, made to meet the requirements of the economical buyer, which latter is a special feature here this spring.

AT SUKLOFF'S.

The millinery section at Sukloff's is being made one of the principle features of the store this spring, and certainly is a creditable display. The new colours are prominent everywhere, and the made shapes all show these popular shades in pleasing combination. If you mention hat to the lady in charge, the first thing you hear is Tipperary, and that means some of the new shapes you find. The colour combinations and style of shape, make many of the hats shown exclusive.

M. FINE.

Hats in all grades, from the more costly to the modest designs, prepared for the woman to whom economy is an object, are shown in the millinery department at M. Fine's dry goods store. Special emphasis has been given to the new shades and shapes to meet the popular demand for colours and styles that are military in name, and severe in their simplicity. Most of the styles are small, but larger hats of very light fabrics are also shown for those who desire them.

NEW DISPLAYS AT ABRAMSON'S.

The festival of spring fashions at Abramson's new store, attracted numerous visitors. It was the first glimpse that the ladies had of the various displays in this fine large store since being remodelled. To-day's opening display of millinery for spring proved quite attractive to the numerous visitors. Turbans with flowers in bloom; Leghorns with black satin ribbon effects, sailors, which are to be in good demand this season; Tipperary and Chow Chow hats, quite inexpensive creations, are in popular favour; the colours of the Belgian flag, red, black and yellow are featured in some new chic hats; and a new milling is the wet sand shade that promises to become popular. Mr. Abramson also featured some of fashion's latest ideas in spring tailored suits; dresses coats, and blouses, as well as a fine showing of new dress fabrics, silks and dress accesories.

SWARTZ'S SPRING FASHIONS.

The spring showing of ladies' hats, suits, coats, skirts and other outer apparel for ladies, at Swartz's ready-to-wear store was favoured with the presence of the ladies in goodly numbers. Mr. and Mrs. Swartz have been busy gathering an attractive showing of millinery for their formal opening this spring. The display of suits, coats, waists, etc., are shown in interesting variety, in which some of the latest whims of Dame Fashion for spring are prominent. It would be difficult to describe the number of pretty hat shapes in the present styles. They include military effects, such as the Glengarry Highlander, and the Sailor effects, Poke styles, and large Shepherdess ideas. The trimmings comprise profusions of flowers and long streamers, caught with garnitures of flowers or small fruits. Not even the war can stop the ingenuity and wit of the style creators, of which the Swartz Store endeavours to reflect.

Market Privilege Was Awarded

The privilege of being market clerk for the year commencing April 1st, has fallen to the lot of Mr. W. M. Savigny. His tender, which was $750, was the highest of the three tenders that were submitted. The successful tenderer of last year paid $876 for the same privilege. The following tenders were received:

James B. Brown—$500.

Walter Fisher—$601.

W. M. Stvigny—$750.

The Property Committee recommended that Mr. Savigny's tender be accepted, providing suitable sureties are furnished.

Last year Mr. A. S. Sanderson was the successful tenderer. During the season the privilege was transferred to Mr. James B. Brown, whose tender this year was the lowest of the three.

GOT USED TO IT

Pte. Phipps Says It Was Not Nice in the Trenches for the First Hour

Mrs. Phipps, 1 King George Street, has received an interesting letter from her son, Pte. A. Phipps, with the 57th detachment in the First Canadian contingent.

Pte. Phipps says: "I must say I am getting on well and feeling fine and healthy. I must thank you very much for the birthday present you sent me. I am sure it was a treat to taste a nice bit of cake once again, and it looked too nice to eat after being used to our food. The tobacco came in very nicely as we cannot get any good tobacco here. I cannot say much about the country around where we are, but I cannot say I like France. It is like England for weather, and the villages seem so old and close to one another. The night before last was my first time of being in the trenches. We were only 350 yards away from the Germans, and I must say it did not seem nice to be there for the first hour, but after that I got used to it and it seemed nothing. One of my pals alongside of me, out of some English regiment, was shot. We were only in for twenty-four hours. It is just the same out here as what you read in the papers."

Rev. D. A. Casey Lectured To Knights of Columbus

At the regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus last night, Rev. D. A. Casey of Bracebridge delivered an eloquent lecture on "The History of Irish Philosophy." There was a good attendance of members who were delighted with the lecturer's wide treatment of his subject. Rev. Father Casey received a hearty vote of thanks from the Council.

Essex Waits for Prinz Eitel.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., March 17.—The cruiser Essex has joined the squadron of British warships lying in wait off the Virginia coast for the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, which is lyng in this port. So far Captain Thierichens of the German raider, has failed to give a definite answer to questions as to the length of his stay here.

Band Grant May Be Divided

Between 57th Regiment and Salvation Army—Up to the Council

The request of the Salvation Army Band to have the city grant equally divided between themselves and the 57th Regimental Band, passed last night in so far as the Finance committee was concerned, but these is liable to be another upsetting of grants at the next meeting of the Council when the recommendation of the Finance committee is considered.

Last year the 57th Regimental Band received $560.00 and the Salvation Army Band $225.00, making a total in band grants of $725.00. The application of the former showed up on the file first and on motion of the Mayor the usual grant was made. When the Temple Band request appeared a new phase was introduced. His Worship and Ald. McIntyre got behind a motion to give the Temple Band $300.00 this year, an increase in band grants of $75.00. Alds. Duffus and Green fathered an amendment to recommend that the usual sum of $725.00 be equally divided between the two, giving each $362.50. The chairman, Ald. Stratton, being the fifth member, in the absence of Ald. Johnston, cast the deciding vote in favour of the amendment. In doing so he remarked that in view of the existing conditions he did not feel justified in voting for any increase.

His Worship thought there should be one Citizens' Band and that it should receive the bulk of the assistance. When the 57th Band is sent out of the city is goes as Peterborough's Band and if it does not get proper assistance it cannot keep up its present reputation. And there are other organizations in the city who will soon have bands, and if the precedent is established of splitting the grants, these others will soon be making application for a split in their favour and they will be entitled to it. The 57th had turned out on a number of occasions and had never refused when requested to turn out by the Mayor. This they were not paid any extra to do. He had nothing derogatory to say about the Salvation Army musicians and thought they were worthy of consideration, but not to the extent that the amendment would provide. He intimated that he would have more to say in the Council meeting and in all probability there will be some adjustment of amounts.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 17—The French official review of the war in the western theatre, from the commencement of the war up to the end of January, has been given out.

The first chapter, rather more than two large newspaper columns in length, covers the events up to Sept. 5th, explaining fully the reasons for the retreat before the German advance on Paris, and more than hints at the reasons for initial French reverses. Thus, speaking of the early advance into Alsace with the occupation of Mulhausen, it says:

"This operation was badly carried out by a leader who was at once relieved of his command.

"Again, a successful advance in Lorraine was halted on Aug. 20 by the power of the enemy's artillery, operating over ground previously carefully surveyed by them and by the default of certain of our units," and on the end: "In spite of the splendid behaviour of several of our corps,' the French were compelled to retire to the south.

"The general offensive was postponed, first by the impossibility of the British forces to arrive in time, and the difficulty in getting the necessary alignment along the front, and later by the extraordinary rapid advance of the Germans, and it was not until September 4th that the commander in chief was able to issue the command:

"'The hour has come to advance at all costs and to die where you stand, rather than give way.'"

For squeezing moisture from towels there has been invented a small lever-operated clothes wringer.

APPROPRIATION IS REDUCED

The Civic Economy Germ Claims Another in the Person of Plumbing Inspector Thompson

The Property committee endorsed Ald. Edgar's recommendation to reduce Plumbing Inspector Thompson's annual allowance for street car tickets from forty-five to twenty-five dollars. Ald. Edgar referred to the Inspector's monthly report, which showed that he had made about ten inspections throughout the month.

"When that appropriation is used up he can either walk or hire a hack," said Ald. Edgar.

The twenty-five dollars will enable the inspector to purchase about six hundred and twenty-five street car tickets which spread over a whole year will amount to about two tickets for each working day of the year.

EXPERIENCES IN TRENCHES

Graphic Description by Captain in Line Regiment

The Captain in a Line Regiment has sent relatives a description of his first experiences. He writes:

We halted at length in a Village, and my company was detached to take up a part of the front line of trenches. We stumbled out of the little black village into a perfect blaze of light and a pandemonium of noise. The German star-light showed up the flat, swampy countryside (and ourselves advancing up the road across it) with horrid distinctness. With all the bullets whizzing past overhead one felt one would have liked to have slipped forward into the cover of the trenches as unobtrusively as possible, and it felt embarrassing to be marching up a road as brightly lit as Piccadilly (in the good old nights). We stumbled through a little village that had been taken by the Germans and retaken by us several times. This ruined village, shown to us suddenly in the violet glare of one of those starlights, photographed itself on one's mind as a picture of indescribable desolation. One felt quite glad when the blackness suddenly hid it again. We stumbled through as quickly as possible (the road had become a running stream of water with occasional deep pools where a shell had landed), and at the end of the Village turned off the road into a turnip field and plunged knee-deep into a narrow, deep canal, technically known as a communication trench. We sloshed along for a few hundred yards, and then came to a broader, deeper trench twisting away on either side at right angles to us. It was faintly lit at intervals with a brazier, and standing on a ledge here and there were strange individuals peering through loopholes, with rifles beside them. They had goatskin coats, cap-comforters on their heads, a week's growth of beard on their chins, usually a cigarette behind their ears, and the lower portions of their frame seemed clothed simply in a sheath of yellow clay. They seemed uncommonly pleased to see us, these fantastic beings, who, in ordinary times are usually employed, in red tunics and busbies, marching up and down in front of Buckingham Palace, and other Royal residences I would have liked to put one of these hairy, prehistoric cold, muddy creatures into the sentry box at Buckingham Palace—it would give people an excellent insight into the conditions in which the war is being carried on at present.

Borden is Hostile and Gives Up -All Pretence of a War Truce

Long Budget Debate Came to a Close With Defeat on Party Lines of Liberal Amendment

OTTAWA, March 17.—With vigorous speeches from both sides of the House the budget debate came to an end at an early hour this morning. The Government speakers were Sir Robert Borden, R. B. Bennett, of Calgary, and Solicitor-General Meighen, while the Opposition was represented by F. B. Carvell, Alphonse Verville (Laber), and E. M. Macdonald. The Laurier amendment to the budget proposals was finally voted down on a straight party division.

The temper of yesterday's debate indicates that the truce is at an end and an early prorogation and election are freely predicted in the corridors of the House.

Sir Robert Borden, in opening, characterized the Liberal amendment as negative and destructive. It proposed no substitute or alternative, and if it prevailed it could only mean that Canada was not to take her full part in the present war.

It was late in the day, he said, for Sir Wilfrid Laurier to denounce protection. He had not only maintained high tariff duties during the lifetime of his Government, but in 1907 had increased them avowedly for protective purposes. In 1907 the Laurier Government had greatly increased the tariff upon many British imports.

Sir Robert declared the unalterable policy of his Government to be the maintenance of the national policy, so as to keep Canadian workmen in Canada with plenty of employment at living wages.

The House had been told by Sir Wilfrid Laurier that the present budget was a German conception, said the Premier, and that it would meet with approval in Germany. Sir Robert said he could not perceive any evidence of this, but he did quite clearly recollect that the policy pursued by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal party in 1913 had given unbounded satisfaction to the German Government.

Mr. F. B. Carvell, who followed, said that Sir George Foster had practically admitted the whole case for the Liberals when he declared that the Government might save by economy the thirty million dollars which Mr. White proposed to raise by new taxes. But extravagance was the excuse for increasing the protective duties. These duties were put on, not for revenue purposes, but simply to increase the profits of the Government's political friends. In the case of boots, for instance, while the Government might expect $600,000 in additional revenue, it was safe to say that there would be at least $2,500,000 added to the cost of the boots manufactured in Canada, and this would come out of the pockets of the people.

Alphonse Verville (Laber, Maisonneuve) severely scored the exploitation of the made-in-Canada propaganda. It was "one of the biggest farces the human brain ever conceived," calculated to deceive the workers, to hand the best weapon to the big corporate interests, to encourage the spread of inferior goods at top prices, and encourage unscrupulous dealers to put fraudulent stuff upon the market.

R. B. Bennett (Calgary) said that Mr. Verville misrepresented the laboring people of Canada, who were keenly interested in having everything manufactured in this country. Referring to the Opposition amendment, Mr. Bennett said that unfortunately the Liberals did not seem to realize that a war was going on and sought to make party capital by opposing the new taxes, which they thought would prove to be "unpopular."

"The Finance Minister is going about," said E. M. Macdonald (Pictou) "with stooped shoulders and anxious mien. He tells us he cannot sleep at nights because every day he has to raise a million dollars. One would think he was furnishing the money out of his own pocket. As a matter of fact every dollar of the war expenditure is furnished him by the British Government. He has not given it twenty minutes thought. Beyond assuming a portentous mien, neither he nor the Prime Minister have done anything to finance this war."

Solicitor-General Meighen said he regretted the action of the Liberals, but if they wanted to fight, fight would be carried into their country. He said the budget provided for war taxes just as the recent legislation by the United States Congress provided for war taxes.

FINE WAS PAID WITH STOLEN MONEY

Town of Lindsay Will Have to Reimburse Original Owner

LINDSAY, March 17.—Some seven or eight months ago a resident of Donald was relieved of his hard-earned savings amounting to, it is said, $500. Tony Moran, an Italian, was later on arrested when he stepped off the train at Lindsay, by Chief Short, charged with carrying concealed weapons. On his person was found a neat little automatic revolver and also a considerable sum of money. On being arraigned, the Italian was found guilty and sentenced to six months imprisonment on the theft charge and fined $25 and costs for carrying concealed weapons. The fine, the prisoner admitted, was paid with stolen money. The money found on his person, which was far short of the amount stolen, was returned to the proper owner. Later on the victim of the theft engaged Mr. G. H. Hopkins, K.C., to reclaim from the town of Lindsay the sum of $25 paid in as a fine, and the matter was brought to the attention of the town council through a letter from the town solicitor, who advised that if the case went into court no doubt the town would have to repay the fine.

Reeve Jordan spoke in regard to the case, outlining it for the benefit of the members. He claimed that the fine was paid with stolen money and should be returned. The victim had suffered the loss of hundreds and should get back all that he could.

Ald. Clark—"Many a man has paid his debts with some one else's money."

Ald. Chambers also favoured paying the money back and a motion to this effect was passed.

USE COCOANUT OIL FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greasless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Clean Up The Public Market

Is the Desire of Ald. Edgar, Also Rid the Public Lavatory of Loafers

At last night's meeting of the Property Committee Alderman Edgar called the Committee's attention to the disgraceful condition of the public market. He said, that now the market privilege had been let for another year, better arrangements might be made for keeping the market in a more presentable condition. The matter did not appear to come under the jurisdiction of Sanitary Inspector Spence, a fact which made it all the more difficult to act. Ashes and garbage were allowed to accumulate at the rear of some of the restaurants. Sanitary Inspector Spence, who was present at the meeting, said that it was difficult to fix the responsibility, as that part of the market was said to be under the control of the City Trust Commission. He thought that the police might pay a little more attention to the public lavatory, which was a stamping ground for loafers, black-listers, etc., and was also a disposal ground for "dead soldiers."

The matter was left in the hands of Ald. McIntyre, chairman of the Committee, with instructions to take the matter up with the City Trust Commission.

Collectors to Decide

Exemptions From War Tax Are Left to Local Officials

TORONTO, March 17. — Ontario's war tax will be collected by the various counties and municipalities of the province and they will themselves settle the extent of any exemptions from its application. In view of the difficulties which would be experienced in allowing for proper exemptions in different cases, the responsibility willgie at the doors of the municipal collectors. The idea is to make the tax collectable against all property except that of churches, schools and similar institutions, and one mill on every dollar's worth of equalized assessment will be expected by the Provincial Treasurer.

After brief consideration the bill was advanced into committee and the Premier conceded that the action of the municipalities might yet be made imperative. It will appear again in committee at a later date.

UNABLE TO STRIKE FLAG

CLEVELAND, March 17.—A shotten flag halyard was responsible for the death of four hundred German seamen of the cruiser Leipsig at the end of the engagement of Dec. 8 off the Falkland Islands. The German cruiser, her last shot fired, on fire and disabled could not haul down her ensign in surrender because the halyard was severed, and, massed on the tilting deck, the crew in consequence had to endure a heavy shelling from the Glasgow that left only thirty of them alive.

This tragic detail of the sea fight off the coast of Chili became known for the first time last night through a letter from Mrs. John H. Pope, of Montevideo, Uruguay, to the family of J. D. Cox, of 3,411 Euclid avenue.

Capt. Luce, of the Glasgow, told the story over a dinner table in Montevideo, where the cruiser put in to refit.

Police Court

A blacklister, two drunks and a man charged with being disorderly in a public place, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning in police court.

Garrett Allen, charged with being drunk in a public place on Tuesday, March 16th, pleaded "not guilty." It was proved that he was drunk at an unseemly hour.

"You were forcing the season," remarked His Worship, "this is the 17th of March, not yesterday."

He was fined $2.00, as was also his brother Patrick on a similar charge.

Pearce Butler, disorderly in a public place last evening, pleaded guilty. He was fined $2 to be paid forthwith.

Cyril Moher, a blacklister, found under the influence of liquor last evening, was fined $10, to be paid forthwith, and in default of payment 30 days in jail.

FIFTEEN MILES FROM HAPPYTOWN BY KNOX CHURCH YOUNG PEOPLE, WELL RECEIVED LAST NIGHT

Lecture Hall Was Filled to Capacity—Performance Was a Huge Success—To Be Repeated on Friday

Knox church lecture hall was filled to the doors at last night's presentation of "Fifteen Miles From Happytown," and a large number were turned away who were unable to get in. The play was put on under the auspices of the Young People's Guild of Knox church and it was certainly a fine production, reflecting very creditably upon the ability of the Young People of Knox church as entertainers. Those who saw the "New Minister" under the same auspices last season, which was repeated on two occasions, once in Lakefield, did not forget to attend last night and bring along their friends, expecting another treat, and they were not disappointed. The characters were portrayed in a splendid manner and the lines were interspersed with songs and catchy choruses.

The curtain raised on a part of delegates in the automobile of Dewberry Green on their way to a convention at "Happytown," fifteen miles distant. The automobile was a hay waggon made into a sight-seeing car, the idea of Dewberry Green, and for the greater part of the performance caused great trouble to the owner, who was not an expert and could not persuade it to run. It was finally decided to postpone the trip until to-morrow.

As leading lady, Iss Ethel Sheppard had an exceptionally hard role, but she handled it superbly. Her rendition of "What's in a Name," assisted by the chorus, which numbered about forty young men and ladies was received with great applause.

Upon Mr. Chester Thurber, as Dewberry Green, leading man, devolved a large part of the work and he acquitted himself in a manner which showed his ability as an entertainer. The other members looked after their various parts in good style.

The cast:

Dawberry Green, who takes the delegates over—Mr. Chester Thurber.

Prof. Luke Travers, an old choir leader, who is seeking a cure for hay fever—Mr. Sherman Preston.

Horace Hampton, Sunday School Superintendent—Mr. Ralph Hillier.

Mrs. Dela Delong, county chairman—Miss Lottie Fair.

Mrs. Van Tassel, whose husband owns an auto—Miss Dorothy Green.

Mrs. Bean, a prominent delegate—Miss Ethel Sheppard.

Her six daughters, who are obedient children—Beatrice, Miss Violet Preston; Black-eyed Susan, Miss Katchure Hall; Josephine, Miss Ethel Robinson; Mamie, Miss Lillian Thompson; Agnes, Miss Ruth Waldie; Ida Rae, Miss May Goodfellow.

Charming Morning Musicale

An "evening morning musicale" has a tang of Irish, bull, strong enough to warm the cockles of the heart of Sir Boyle Roche, and an unconscious appropriateness for the eve of St. Patrick's day, the date of the splendid annual concert of the Morning Musical Society at the Green Studio last night. The President, Mrs. Allen, welcomed the large number of guests and briefly explained the objects and aims of the organization. The programme was a varied and pleasing one in an artistic sense, presented by a catholicity of talent that included the whole range of musical interests in the city. The following programme shows the variety and musical merit of the musicale:

Piano Solo—"Soaring," Schumann. Mrs. Holden.

Vocal Solo—(a) "Who Knows," Ball. (b) "Until," Sanderson. Miss Helen McLaren, accompanist, Miss Ida Sanderson.

Piano Solo—Overture, "Rigoletto," Verdi. Miss Jean Hill.

Piano Solo—"Waltz in A flat," Chopin. Miss Ida Sanderson.

Piano Quartette—Overture, "William Teli," Rossini. Misses Gumpricht, M. Mather, M. Telgmann and L. Macfarlane.

Vocal Solo—"Should He Upbraid," Bishop. Mrs. Renwick, accompanist, Mr. I. H. Renwick.

Piano Solo—"Scherzo," Chopin. Miss Jeanette Killmaster.

At the close the programme dainty refreshments were served. The "silver collection" amounting to nearly $26 is to be placed with the funds of the Peterborough Branch of the Red Cross Society.

The "Morning Musicale" wishes to thank Mr. Greene for his courtesy and the proprietor of the "White House," who, kindly at the last moment loaned extra chairs.

The Stories That Are Not Printed

We constantly read that the real story of the war in Europe does not get into print, and that when its horrors become known there will be a universal revolt against it.

Some of these horrors come to New York in private letters; letters, especially, of women in Europe to women here. There seems to be no gathering of ladies in New York nowadays that does not yield a new tale of dreadful crimes against women by Germans in Belgium and Northern France. One hears, for example, of a letter to a New York lady, very well known, from her Belgian correspondent, well known to her, of a party of German officers quartered on the family of the Belgian lady's cousin — father, mother, and two daughters—in their house near Liege, and why both the daughters are dead. So one hears by letters from France of German officers quartered near Amiens in the chateau of a French colonel, and what happened to the absent soldier's wife and two young daughters.

Hell was getting out of date, but it will have to be reconstrived to meet the needs of some of the Germans in Northern France and Belgium in this war, and even the generous destruction of the German officers in battle will not completely obviate the need of hanging some of those who survive. Dreadful monsters there are amongst them without a doubt, mixed in, of course, with decent men, but all, apparently, more or less affected by that horrible war-born Furor Teutonicus, that atavistic rage which Nietzsche half complacently included in the qualifications of his blond beast, and of which the late Professor Richard gave us warning.

There is that behind the besotted Prussian impulse of which the more decent Germans themselves have no realisation. Odin had neither ruth nor reluctance. All, all is fair in war, and unless Germany is beaten all undoubtedly will be fair after war.

Terrible is the stain that this war will leave on the German national character. Germans went into it honourable people. They will come out of it universally distrusted as to their word, their honour, their humanity. Their statesmen, their generals and their Huns have combined to wreck the national reputation, and a thorough job they have made of it.

Did Not Fix The Tax Rate

Finance Committe Discussed Matter at Meeting Yesterday

The Finance Committee did not get very far when they started to strike a tax rate at their meeting last evening. The only rate possible under the present estimates was 25 mills on the dollar, with an additional 7-10 of a mill for garbage collection. This fraction only affects the area which is served under the present collection arrangements. Whatever the rate is as decided upon by the Council, an additional one mill will have to be added for the provincial tax, which is demanded by the Provincial Government of all municipalities this year.

There is a fixed rate of 13 mills for the maintenance of schools, etc., and there is some $131,585.42 to raise, besides other amounts which have not been settled as yet. A rate of 12 mills on the dollar would be necessary under the present arrangement to raise the sum of $138,282.54. A rate of 11¾ mills would realize $132,520.00, which would not be enough if some cut is not made in the estimates.

Last year the rate was 26 mills, with an additional 1 mill for garbage collection. There has been quite a noticeable increase in assessment, and the Aldermen thought 25 mills much too high under existing conditions in the city.

The matter was left in the care of the chairman and Treasurer Adams to see if they can make a cut in the estimates anywhere and report to the committee.

It was decided to recommend to the City Council that the Peterborough Industrial Association receive the usual grant of $600.00 this year.

The auditor, Mr. Jas. A. Hall, reported the books of the different departments well and correctly kept.

The Medical Health Officer will be requested to visit the hospitals at least once a month, or as often as he considers necessary, calling on patients there for whose maintenance the city is paying, and see that these patients are discharged as soon as they are in a condition to be looked after at less cost to the city.

The tax collector will be asked to return the roll at the end of the month.

A letter received from the chairman of the Charity Board, asking for $6,000 this year, was received and laid over until the estimates are further considered.

A patent has been granted for stick candy in which a core of peanut butter is covered with the usual material.

Women's Council Column

The Matter Published in this Column Will be Supplied by the Local Council of Women and in the interest of their work.

Women all over Canada are watching with great interest Miss Langstaff's splendid fight to be allowed to practise law in the province of Quebec. One of the legal lights of that province objected on the grounds that it would be unseemly for a woman to take certain unsavoury cases. This is rather illogical. Does the gentleman forget that in these "unsavoury" cases, where one man is concerned at least three women are more vitally concerned? Can it be possible that he is the prototype of the man Olive Schriner refers to in "Labour and Woman," when she says:

"It is not the labour, or the amount of labour, so much as the amount of reward that interferes with his ideal of the eternal womanly; he is quite contented that the women of the race should work for him, whether as tea-pickers or washer-women, or nurses for the children he brings into the world, provided the reward they receive is not large, nor in such fields as he might himself at any time desire to enter."

* * *

SHE WOULD BE "POLICEMAN."

Miss Anita Grish, Jersey City's Superintendent of the Poor Fund, will probably be the first woman in New Jersey to apply for appointment as member of the police force under the new law signed on Wednesday by Gov. Fielder. Miss Grish has a good deal of work to do in connection with the investigation of homes where drunken or brutal parents or a deserting husband has left the family destitute, which could much better be performed if she had police powers. Besides this, the Judges of the criminal courts have called on her for much detective work in various investigations.

The three women probation officers, to whose number Miss Griss belonged before she got her present office, have also been called on to do a good deal of work of this sort, which male detectives could not well handle. Miss Grish will apply to-day as Director of Public Safety Frank Hague and the City Commissioners for appointment, and she says that regular women detectives should be appointed to the police force to relieve her and the probation officers of their extra work.

These are exciting days, with the greatest part of the world engaged in war, the daily papers full of startling headlines of the happenings in France, Belgium, and the rest of the war zone. The recruiting in our own city of men to serve the colours. Our thoughts and patriotism and support go bounding out to the Mother Land and the support of her arms, and rightly so; she needs all the support, both moral and financial, that we can give. Yet, in our enthusiasm to serve the Empire, we should not forget our duty to our home institutions.

For some time past there has been talk of starting playgrounds for the children of Peterborough, but for some reason or other it has never crystalized into anything more than committees being appointed, meetings being called, and the advisability of such a movement discussed. This was all worth while and necessary in order that the people might become intelligent on the subject. But now that it has gone this far, is the time not ripe for a definite move? Many people will argue that this is no time to start any new movements, because with our patriotic fund and other funds we have got all we can attend to. But on the other hand, just stop for one moment and face the facts. Here are thousands of children in our city who are feeling the effects of the war just as much, and many of them a great deal more than many of the grown-ups. Many of these children are living in sections of the city where there is no open space for them to play. If they play on the streets they are chased off by the police or else by the residents, who are afraid of having their property injured, and the residents have a perfect right to object; they pay their taxes and expect protection.

Then again there are many children who have been in the habit of going away for a vacation, who will this summer, because of the financial condition, have to stay in the city. They have got to have some avenue for their energy. The boys and girls of to-day are the men and women of to-morrow. It is through their plays and games that they learn the game of life. Are we going to rob the children of their birthright?

Another point: We are sending of our best to the Front. Many of these, we know, will never return, with the inevitable result that from the standpoint of the race it must be weakened. Are we to sit calmly by and allow this to happen? Or will we get under a movement and make provision for supervised playgrounds so that the boys and girls of our city who have to stay in our city during the summer will have their rightful birthright. We are not giving them anything. We would simply be allowing them what is, by God's will, theirs. Take a child's play life away, and you unfit it for the duties of life. Give this your earnest thought.—Mr. Carson, Physical Director, Y.M.C.A.

Allied Fleets' Guns Outfire Big Krupps At Dardanelles

Sustained Firing of Warships Subjects Powerful Weapons to Greater Strain Than Would Sea Battle—Lack of Skill on Part of Turks

Examiner Specials

NEW YORK, Mar. 16.—The sustained firing of the Allied Fleet at the Dardanelles is subjecting the artillery carried on board the warships to far greater strains than ordinarily would arise during a combat between ships at sea. Ordnance men recognise this fact and are noting carefully how the more recently designed and constructed pieces aboard the British battleships stand up under the ordeal.

The artillery carried by late batteried vessels of the British Navy is drawn almost wholly from the 4.7-in. 6-in., 7.5-in., 9.2-in., 12-in., and 15-in. calibres. Lightly built craft are still supplied with 4-in. guns, but even now the tendency is to install either 12-pounders or 4.7-in.; in other words, to cut down the number of calibres as far as possible

The 12-pounders constitute the reliance for secondary batteries, and have eliminated to a great extent the 3-pounders and 6-pounders

The 15-in. gun has made its appearance aboard the Queen Elizabeth, and is the most powerful weapon coined in the British Navy to-day. It is the fire from these 15-inch weapons which has been directed over a seven-mile range at the Dardanelles.

Guns Easily Worked.

All the newer of the heavy guns in the British service are of the wire wound type, that is to say, bands of flat riband wire are wound around the initial or A tube, over which are shrunk another tube and the jackets, and finally a hoop. The breach action of nearly all the heavy guns is worked by a single motion, and it is probable that many of the larger calibres are worked with the same speed and ease as guns which are termed in other services rapid firers.

The British have thrown out the metallic cartridge in all guns above the 4-in. calibre and use what is known as separate ammunition, charge and projectile being quite distinct and inserted separately in the loading operation. The powder used is cordite.

While the 15-in. gun has made its appearance on the super-dreadnought, the main reliance in the British Navy for heavy cruisers is the 12-in. The wire-wood, Mark VIII. type of this calibre, is 445.6 inches long, and discharges its 850-pound projectile with a muzzle velocity of 2,367 foot seconds, yielding a striking energy of 33,020 foot tons. The Mark IX. gun of the same calibre yields 2,600 foot seconds muzzle velocity and an equivalent striking energy of 39,850 foot tons.

The Mark VIII. 12-in. gun weighs forty-six tons, with a rifling of the so-called polygroove modified plain section, with a twist increasing from 0 to 1 in 30 calibres at the muzzle. The British assert that the wire wound system used in this 12-in. gun affords a more powerful weapon per ton of gun than is to be found in any foreign service. This assertion has been disputed by Krupp, who uses crucible nickel steel; but in actual weight it is believed that the wire wound gun has the advantage, and that both the wire wound and crucible nickel steel 12-in. guns are lighter than the standard 12-inchers of most foreign services.

Lines of Development.

When it comes to making comparisons between the artillery of different countries it may be asserted that there is a remarkable similarity in the progress year by year. This is due to development on well established lines, based on experience. Occasionally there appears novelty in device having to do with the mechanism, but the basic principles on which guns are built hold true everywhere. If the announcement is made that a gun of a given calibre is exceeding in range and penetrating power the same calibre gun in other services, it may be put down as a certainty that the increase is obtained at a sacrifice, say, of weight or life of the gun. The velocities can be increased by lengthening the gun, but this means increased weight, and if the length is kept down higher results are only possible by increase in charges with attending destruction to the bores and rifling.

The calibres of the British Navy are very closely associated with the calibres in use in the American navy, and the 12-in. gun in the American navy may almost be said to be built on British proportions. The American gun yields higher velocities, using practically the same weight of shell, namely, 850 pounds. The higher velocity in the American gun may be ascribed partly to a greater calibre length and in part to the American powder, but it is also a fact that the American gun is heavier than the British 12-incher. In the matter of powder, the United States is fortunate in possessing an ingredient which is far less deleterious to the gun linings than cordite, though it is not claimed, it is believed, that the American powder will withstand climatic changes equally well with cordite. It is a give and take question, these ordnance problems, but this much is certain, that no one service maintains to possess all the secrets to be known in gun construction or in artillery service. From the day that powder and guns first came into existence ordnance men have followed carefully one another's experiments, and little opportunity exists for one service to get very much in advance of its brethren in a foreign service.

Turks Lack Skill in Firing.

It is in the service of the guns, in the application of the problems in exterior ballistics, that one perceives a preponderance of brilliant work, and this part is brought out clearly just now in the great artillery actions at the Dardanelles. For years the Turks have been placing in position, first in one fort and then in another, the most modern of Krupp artillery, and yet, either from faulty emplacing or lack of skill in handling, they have not so far been able to offset the destructive fire delivered against them by the Allied forces. This theory that the Turks lack skill in the handling of their heavy guns over long ranges would seem to be borne out by the reported calling on Berlin by Field-Marshal von der Goltz for additional German artillery officers, a request which, it is said, the German General Staff could not grant because of the pressing need for every available German artillerist for the defence of the Fatherland.

The ability to handle heavy guns effectively, and, for that matter, guns large or small, depends upon practice, and it is a comforting thought, perhaps, that no nation in the world fires its guns so much in peace times in actual target work as does the United States. This fact has been proclaimed more than once by British authorities, possibly in an endeavour to quicken the supply of target ammunition in their own service, but it is a well-known fact, nevertheless, and if American gunners are not the best in the world to-day it is not due to pack of practice. It has been found in the American service that the guns which show wear in use can be rendered as serviceable as when new by boring out the injured rifling and inserting new liners. This requires a supply of spare guns at hand to replace those pieces which are sent to the gun shops, and the question of keeping an adequate reserve stock is merely a question of appropriations, and not a question of faulty gun designs. Herein the United States is strong, and no reason has existed short of appropriations for keeping up adequate target work in times of peace. In many of the foreign services gunnery has been carried to the extent of cutting down target work—a very dangerous expedient. If the Turks have been economical along these lines it will explain some of the impotence that is being exhibited by the Dardanelles forts just now.

Britain's Private Gun Works.

It is interesting to note that the guns of the British Navy are not wholly made by Government shops, as in the United States. To be sure, the great Government plant at Woolwich turns out heavy rifles both for the Army and the Navy, but many of the British guns are built at private gun works, such as Elswick (Armstrong's) and Vickers, Sons & Maxim. The Whitworth plant in years gone by turned out many famous pieces, and it will be recalled that the Confederates secured many Whitworth guns during the Civil War. The Whitworth rifles mounted at Fort Fisher had greater penetrating power than any guns carried in the Union fleet. They were rifled guns, firing elongated projectiles after the type employed to-day, and were referred to at the time as Whitworth bolts. Two long range Whitworth field guns accompanied the Confederate army in its march on Gettysburg, and were brought into action at that battle. Still another private British maker, Blakeley, supplied rifled guns to the Confederacy, and some of these Blakeley guns were on exhibit at the United States Naval Academy following the close of the war.

When the cruisers New Orleans and Albany were purchased in Britain just prior to the breaking out of the war with Spain the batteries for these ships, together with their torpedo equipment, came from Elswick, the same plant at which the cruisers were built.

Messrs. Beardmore, of Dalmuir, near Glasgow, within recent years have been turning out guns of large calibre for the British Navy.

The private gun works of Britain have constituted a powerful factor in maintaining the high excellence of British artillery, for all of the British gun shops have in times of peace built guns for customers in all parts of the world, and in this respect have been keen rivals of Krupp, Cockerill, Creusot, Skoda, and other well-known Continental gun firms.

Pathetic Story of Young French Nurse

LONDON, March 17—The pathetic story of a young French nurse who was killed in the firing line is told by a Corporal of the Royal Army Medical Corps, just returned from the front.

Before the war she had been employed in Berlin, and there had fallen in love with a young German professional man. But when the war was declared she returned to France, and was accepted for service with the army. One day she met her former lover on the firing line. He had been wounded. She nursed him back to health, and then told him that they must part, as she could not marry an enemy of her country. The parting seemed to have broken her heart, and for days she moved about like one in a dream, never seeming to know what she was doing.

One day while in this state she strayed into the firing line, and was killed by a bursting shell. She was buried within the French lines, and the soldiers put above her grave this inscription:

"Here lies a noble Frenchwoman, who put her country first."

Danger of breakage is elminated in a new motor driven dish washer in which the dishes are held stationary in wire baskets and water is forced around them.

Park, Lieut. Turner, Sergts. Sharpe, Munro and Grange. ALLIES SHOOTERS ARE BECOMING GOOD SHOTS

The shooting at the Allies' Rifle Parlours on Water Street is developing quite a number of excellent marksmen. R. Naples won a turkey last week by a score of 13 out 15. Joe Vinette and John Gillespie were tied with 11 points each. E. Symes was second with a 12 score. For a box of cigars J. Gillespie and W. Evans tied at 14, and in the shoot off Mr. Evans won out. The boys have hit a Kaiser's head too often that the "Old Boy" couldn't stand up on Monday, and required readjustment.

VERSES BY A JOLLY TAR

A.B. Thomas Gash, a brother of Mrs. A. Crippa, 525 Romaine Street, city, whose photograph appears in this issue, has written some verses on the naval battle off the Falkland Islands, in which he took part. The following are some of the stanzas:

Brave Sturdee took supreme command
On board his battle-cruiser;
He knew the game was in his hands,
And didn't mean to lose her.
The Bristol, Glasgow,, Cornwall, Kent,
All keen to do their section,
And with the Carnarvon off they went
In a southerly direction.

For ten long days we ploughed the main,
Our vigilance was tireless,
No news of us the foe could gain,
We did not use our wireless.
Port Stanley in the Falkland Isles
Was our first destination,
Another good 3,000 miles
In the service of the nation.

We dropped our anchor on the morn,
Coaled ship with speed terrific,
Expecting next to round the Horn,
And sweep up the Pacific.
The cruisers Monmouth and Good Hope
Had here met with disaster;
We'd give the Kaiser no more rope,
But show him who was master.

Next day from high on Sapper Hill
Some foreign ships were sighted,
The news went through us with a thrill,
Yet all hands were delighted.
The Dresden, Leipsig and Nurnberg
Could all be seen with ease now,
Along with two armed merchantmen,
And the Scharnhorst and the Kneisenau.

Each man was quickly at his post,
Outside our ships were steaming,
Prepared to meet our foreign host,
With ensigns gaily streaming.
But Graf von Spee he stood aghast,
To fight us he rejected,
For two big ships with tripod masts
Were not what he expected.

The flagship sank the Scharnhorst,
The Inflexible the Gneisenau;
The Nurnberg, who fought the Kent,
Is underneath the seas now.
The Leipsig was the Cornwall's beg,
Her pluck exceeds your notion,
We sent her down to join her flag,
At the bottom of the ocean.

Irish Will Play Scotch at Curling

If Sufficient Numbers of These Nationalities Are Present at the Rink To-night

At the Curling Rink to-night there will be a number of games between the Scotch and Irish, providing sufficient members gather around. It was felt that this would be appropriate for the day, and it will also give those who can trace some connection to the "Auld Sod" a chance to meet Old Scotia's sons at their favourite game. As many members as possible are requested to attend to-night. The ice continues in good condition.

Interned German Liner Escapes From Canary Islands.

LONDON, March 17.—A despatch to The Daily Mail from Las Palmas, Canary Islands, dated Monday, says: "The interned German liner Macedonia disappeared from this port during the night. The Macedonia was towed here by a Spanish cruiser last November from Palma and was moored in the inner harbor, where the authorities removed parts of her machinery.

"It is presumed that the confiscated parts were duplicated, thus enabling the vessel to slip out of the harbor. The Macedonia carries a wireless and has a cargo supposed to be composed of war stores."

Russia To Sell Wheat.

LONDON, March 17.—To relieve the Russian civil population the Russian Government has bought practically all the wheat that can be exported from the region of the Black Sea, and should the waterway be opened as a result of the present naval operations of the allies against Constantinople, the Government will form a special organization to transport and sell wheat. Great Britain and France have the promise of an option on all exported wheat, not only for the use of their military but the civil population as well.

Caillaux Denies Charges.

PARIS, March 17. — Joseph Caillaux, former Premier, made public yesterday a letter replying to attacks against him during his absence in South America.

The former Premier asserts that all of the allegations are untrue. He declares that he made no visit to Vienna, participated in no negotiations for peace with Germany after the battle of Charleroi, and made no effort to retard the mobilization of the French army.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

What's Doing in Civic Circles—Items of Interest Concerning Municipal Administration

Ald. McIntyre has been authorised to purchase a couple of office stools for the City Treasurer's office. A week ago the north ward alderman purchased a handsome roll top desk for Relief Officer Miller.

Trade Ashes For Shavings.

Ald. McIntyre has also been delegated to the task of making arrangements, whereby the city will trade or sell enough ashes to ensure a supply of shavings for the incinerator.

New Contracts.

The Property committee will accept the new contracts of the Bell Telephone Company which call for payment of the standard rates.

Telephone Exchange.

The city has discarded the idea of putting in a private telephone exchange. This would cost more and not be as serviceable for civic purposes as the present system.

Garbage Tax.

The Property committee will endeavour to arrange for the removal of two loads of ashes from St. John's church, under the new act the church pays $45 a year in the form of garbage tax.

Request Refused.

The licensed scavengers of the city requested permission to park their vehicles on the city's property adjacent to the incinerator. The request was refused.

Numbering of Houses.

People desiring to number their houses will facilitate matters by first visiting the City Engineers' office in order to secure the correct number of their house from the plan.

Will Insure Boiler.

The Property committee has decided to place insurance to the amount of $5,000 on the boiler which provides the steam for the heating plant of the City Hall.

City Fined $25.00.

The City of Peterborough has been notified to pay a fine of $25 for non-compliance with the rule requiring Private Bills to be filed eight days before the opening of Parliament. The City's Private Bill was five days late in being filed.

Debentures Sold.

The sale of the $18,000 debentures to cover the overdraft of the Board of Education has been completed at 105 with accrued interest. The City Council will be requested to authorize the Finance committee to handle the sale of any debentures during the year.

WITH OTHER COUNCILS.

The City Council of Kingston rejected the by-law calling for a tax of $25 per year to all vendors of cigars and cigarettes. The Council declared that it would not be any benefit in the way of cutting down the sale of cigarettes to boys at corner groceries but that it would increase the sales at the stores in the downtown sections of the city.

Will Oppose Scheme.

Hamilton will oppose elevation of the T. H. and B. tracks along Hunter Street and ask for their depression.

Withdrew City's Freedom.

Dublin City Council withdrew the city's freedom from Prof. Kuno Meyer, the German agent in the United States.

A New Industry.

St. Patrick's Day, March 17, St. Peter's T.A.S. will present the beautiful Comedy Drama, "A Bit O'Blarney." First class specialties between acts and during progress of play. Plan opens March 15. Tickets 25c, 35c and 50c. 4d-60

Voice of The People

To His Worship Mayor Buller and the City Council.

Gentlemen,—I respectfully draw your attention to the enormous and unsightly signs that are being put up on our main streets, some so low that they obstruct the open view. Many years ago, when John McNaughton was a prominent member of the Council, the esthetic taste of that body was offended at the little projecting signs of the dentists, lawyers and other professional men, so an edict was passed, and down came the little signs. Many of them are now kept as curios, but to-day the 5-cent shows, hotels, tobacco shops, billiard rooms, and others cover the side walks and walls with offensive big signs, an eyesore and offence. Is there any regulation for these things? Surely it is a back woods method. Oh for men like John McNaughton to infuse into our Council a sense of propriety and to curb these vulgar, offensive signs that the people are now so loudly complaining about. Let something be done, and done at once, or else give up our City Charter and go back to the status of the villages away back.—Yours truly,

SENEX.

The Estimates Are Higher

Estimates for the Property Committee will likely be higher this year than last year. As they stand to-day they represent the sum of $2,900, which is $590 in excess of last year's figures. If nothing happens to accelerate the progress of the Council it will be some time before the rate is decided upon. Several futile attempts have been made to hasten matters, but on each and every occasion something has occurred to block the wheels of progress. Towns and cities all over Ontario have settled the rate question before this with the result that the way is paved for the transaction of other business that is bound to arise from time to time.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Nineteen members of the crew of the German cruiser Dresden, sunk off Juan Fernandes Island on Sunday by British warships, are missing.

That the murderers of John B. McManus in Mexico City have been punished is the belief of President Wilson. He made this statement to his callers yesterday.

Pursuing a thief who had stolen his watch in New York yesterday, Robt. Brown ran his automobile on to the sidewalk and pinned his man against a building.

One of the oldest business men in Kingston, Ont., and the founder of Mahood Bros.' jewelry and chinaware store, died yesterday, in the person of W. J. Mahood, aged 81 years.

It is stated on excellent authority that a number of fishermen who were caught laying mines in Irish waters, were tried by court-martial and shot. They were in the pay of the German Government.

Wm. L. Breese, former secretary to U. S. Ambassador Page in London, was killed Sunday in the fighting on the French front, according to cable advices received in New York from London yesterday.

Opposing his wife's suit for separation and alimony, Julius Kraus, of New York, declared that for the last eight years of their married life he was compelled to cook his own food, and for that length of time has suffered from indigestion as a result.

Letter From Gunner Clark

Who Was Reported Killed—Was Alive and Well on Feb. 20th

Rumour has it that Gunner W. J. Clark was killed during an engagement in France. Enquiry at the home of Gunner Clark, 688 Roger street, East City, failed to produce any confirmation of the story. Mr. and Mrs. Clark received a letter from their son a couple of days ago. The letter was dated February 20th and conveyed the glad intelligence that the sender was well at the time of writing.

Apologized Because He Ever Loved Germans

Examiner Special:

PARIS, March 17—Antoine, the well-known French actor, makes a striking public apology for ever having admired or liked Germans. In a letter to the press he says: "I am one of those who did their best to make Germany not only better known in France, but revered and admired. I was impressed as much by their industriousness as by their might. Their hypocrisy completely deceived me, as it did so many others. I publicly confess my fault, and beg my countrymen's pardon.

"Some of us who, although children in 1870, remembered the hunger and distress we endured in that terrible year, had caressed the dream of banishing forever the horrors of war. I shared this dream with one of the most illustrious of German writers—Hauptman. I have had the son of Hauptman under my roof in our beautiful Brittany. Long evenings at a time my son and his discussed literature and art together. At this hour they are both at the front, but not, thank God, on the same side. The last words I said to my boy when he left were: 'If ever you get a chance, kill him without mercy.'"

EVERY BRITON'S DUTY

R. H. Rew, C.B., concludes an illustrative article on "Food Supplies in War Time," being one of a series of Oxford pamphlets, after pointing out that Great Britain might hold out a year if actually blockaded, by saying: "Farmers, in my belief, will prove, in this crisis, not unworthy to be countrymen of those who are heroically defending British homes and hearts on the fields of Flanders. They will do their duty by working their utmost—often under grave difficulties—to maintain, and, if possible, increase the produce of their farms, not because it is (as in fact it will be) profitable to do so, but because it is the desire, no less than the duty, of every Briton, each in his own sphere, to do his part to help his country in the time of her direct need." Is not every Canadian a Briton in heart and sympathy, if not by actual birth.

ORANGE DAY SATURDAY

Lord and Thomas, the publicity agents of Chicago for the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, are arranging for a big demonstration of "Sunkist" oranges throughout Ontario on Saturday, 20th instant, to be known as "Orange Day." In order that the public shall know where to procure their supply of the "Sunkist" oranges on that day, Lord and Thomas have contracted with the Examiner for a full page advertisement for the California Fruit Growers' Exchange to appear in the Examiner on Friday, March 19th. Local dealers who wish to co-operate in this demonstration for a "Special Sale" of Sunkists, can have their special announcements, store addresses, etc., inserted in the full page, handsomely illustrated advertisement which will appear in Friday's issue of the Examiner, copy for which should be sent in not later than to-morrow.

Encountered Rough Weather.

A lady and husband were crossing the Atlantic for the first time. Their steamer encountered terribly rough weather, and they were both very unwell. As they lay in their berths watching the luggage rolling about on the floor of the cabin and listening to the bangs and bumps and the shouted orders on deck, they thought their last hour had come. Suddenly, from his wife's corner, came a feeble voice just audible above the noise. "John," she said, "John, do you think the people at home know where our life insurance policies are?"

TRANSFERS FROM "B" SQUADRON

According to letters received from members of "B" squadron, 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles, who left here on March 6, for Ottawa, the drilling ground is quite a bit different to what they were accustomed to here.

One member, writing on Monday, says:

"We had medical examination on Friday and Saturday last, and a few had to go back again for a second today, as they were somewhat faulty in the first. I think six or seven are turned down for sure on this examination and there will probably be some more next time, as the Regiment is considerably over strength.

There are quite a few cases of severe colds in our squadron, as the men have not become accustomed to drilling outdoor in the slush and, by the way, this some town for slush. We are drilling on the race track grounds and it was flooded for the ice races which were held earlier in the winter and is now breaking up. The conditions are a little severe, but there is not much use kicking.

The 2nd Field Co. R. C. E are holding nightly boxing tournaments, and as they are held in the riding school adjoining our quarters there is a big audience every night.

Pte. Skilleter has been transferred to the trumpeters and Ptes Peters, Middleton and Griffiths to the Signal Corps."

Oil on The City's Streets

The Board of Works Committee of the City Council will meet this evening at eight o'clock. One of the matters to be discussed is the merits or demerits of asphaltic oil for the city's streets. This is a matter that is being watched with interest by the merchants and automobile owners in view of the experience gained through the use of oil obtained from the gas plant, and which had the effect of destroying automobile tires and imparting a disagreeable odour to foodstuffs that happened to be exposed. This occurred a few years ago, and while the oil may have been of benefit in so far as the dust nuisance was concerned, it proved a failure in many other respects.

RUSSIAN ATTACKS SURPRISE THE GERMANS

The U. S. Will Protest Against the Position of the Allies

RUSSIAN FORCES DELIVER SURPRISE ATTACKS ON ENEMY

By Forced Marches Through the Snow Russians Appeared Unexpectedly at Extreme Ends of a Seven Hundred Mile Line—Sudden Raid of Czar's Army on German Positions.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PETROGRAD, March 18.—By forced marches through the snow, the Russian forces have appeared unexpectedly and delivered surprise attacks at the extreme ends of a seven hundred mile battle line reaching near the Baltic Sea to the borders of Roumania. The War Office to-day confirmed a report cabled here from German sources that an army of the Czar has made a sudden raid against German positions near Tilsit in Northern East Prussia. At the same time, it was officially announced that the Slax force has forced a crossing of the Pruth and is advancing against Czernowitz, the capital of Bukowina.

From Lemberg came the word to-day that Russian infantrymen forced the crossing of the Pruth under heavy protection of fire from Russian guns stationed at Sadagora, on the north bank. An Austrian force on the south bank fell slowly back upon Czernowitz. Part of Gen. Ivanoff's forces are now entrenched within a mile and a half of Bukowina capital.

Floods continue to hinder operations around Przasnysz.

The War Office had no news to give out to-day regarding the progress of the bombardment of Przemysl. Several unofficial reports declared some of Prezmysls inner forts have been wrecked.

The Teheran-Persian cabinet headed by Premier Ala-Es-Sultaneh to-day resigned. Controversies over the policy of Persia adopted with reference to the invasion of her soil by Russia, Turkish and British troops caused a split in the government.

CLEARING EASTERN GALICIA.

In Eastern Galicia separate Russian expeditions are successfully clearing the country of Austrians by detaching successive divisions of the retreating army. The prisoners have reached a total of several thousands. The storming of the defences of Przemysl is imminent. The blizzard and cold snap in the Carpathians and East Galicia have only served further to demonstrate the endurance and persistence of the Russians. The forward movement continues, notwithstanding the inclement weather, Snowshoe detachments are clearing the way.

The liquidation of the East Prussia adventure continues satisfactorily. The Germans are showing some activity again, but only with artillery, on the Bzura section. They have been compelled to cease attacks in the direction of the Plilica until they can obtain reinforcements. From news coming in from all sides it would appear as if a crisis was approaching which will be resolved in a manner entirely satisfactory to Russia and the allies.

"Determined to Cut Off Germany's Supplies From All Neutrals"

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 18.—"America will surely protest. We shall consider her protest with all courtesy, but it is better to tell the truth." This excerpt from an editorial appearing in the Daily Express to-day was typical of the attitude of the British press on the latest interchange of notes between Great Britain and the United States, the text of which was published here to-day. "We believe that in fighting Germany we are fighting the battle of civilization and human progress," said the Express. "Our command of the seas makes it possible for us to prevent American cargoes reaching German ports. We are convinced that every ship load of copper or cotton or foodstuffs that reaches the enemy lengthens the war and adds to the fearful toll of death. We are therefore determined to cut off Germany's supplies from America and all other neutral countries."

Concentration of Bulgarian Troops

Examiner Special:

ATHENS, March 18.—A concentration of Bulgarian forces is noticeable in Bulgarian Thrace, troops having been sent to Xanthi, Gumuldjina and Dedeagatch. Three forces are to be used as the developments of the Bulgarian policy may require.

For use in power boats in emergencies there has been invented an oar that can be folded to economize space when not needed.

ROYAL

YEAST

United States Will Protest

Against the Franco-British Latest Position, That Allies Have Right to Stop German Owned or German Manufactured Cargoes Wherever Encountered

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

WASHINGTON, March 18.—While legal experts of this Government examined a long list of precedents, the administration marked time to-day in its International policy.

The position taken by the Allies that they actually have established a "long range" blockade of German ports, such action being made necessary by the changed conditions in war-methods, has reached the point that President Wilson wants completely cleared up before any new action is taken. A protest has been decided on against the Franco-British latest position. It is to be based on the claim that the Allies have a right to stop German-owned or German-manufactured cargoes wherever encountered. But the exact nature of this protest and the facts that it is to 'embrace may not be fully decided on before the end of this week.

On making public the text of all the correspondence with the belligerents to date, the State Department withheld any comment on future plans. But officials point out that that while Germany was plainly in a conciliatory mood, the Allies took the position that they will stand pat in all of their plans to starve out their chief enemy.

Try This If You Have Dandruff

Or Are Bothered With Falling Hair or Itching Scalp

There is one surer way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to keep your hair looking rich, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Boundary Road Maintenance

A deputation from the Township of Smith, comprising Reeve Jobe, Councillors C. G. Moore, Nicholls and J. W. Kelly, Township Clerk, was present by request, at last night's meeting of the Board of Works, to consider the question of boundary road maintenance.

After some discussion it was decided to have the City and Township officials go over the road and decide what work is to be undertaken; the Township to undertake the work and the city to pay one-half of the cost. This is a reversal of the arrangement that was previously agreed to. The city and township will be jointly liable in case of accident. Such an arrangement will be confirmed by resolution.

Real Thrift.

An illustration of thrift is contained in the story of a Scotswoman who had been promised a present of a new bonnet. Before she made the purchase the benefactor called and asked the good woman—"Would you rather have a felt or a straw bonnet, Mrs. MacDuff?" "Weel," said Mrs. MacDuff, 'I think I'll tak' a straw ane. It'll may be a mouthful to the coo when I'm done wi' it."

Home Face Peeling Becomes Popular

No complexion treatment yet discovered seems to have become so generally and so immediately popular as the mercolized wax process. Evidently the reason is that this method actually gets rid of a bad complexion, which can hardly be said of any other. To temporarily hide or bleach the defective skin with cosmetics cannot compare with the effect of literally removing the skin itself. Mercolized wax takes off the offending surface skin in flour-like particles, a little at a time, until there's none of it left. The new complexion then produced exhibits a healthy glow and girlish beauty obtainable in no other way. This wax, which you can get at your druggist's, is applied at night in the same way you use cold cream, and washed off next morning.

Here is one thing that actually does remove wrinkles, restore them quickly and at trifling cost: Powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pint witch hazel. Use as a face bath.

Allied Armies Fighting For the Hills Along the Long Front Belgians Continue to Improve Their Positions

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 18.—At present the armies of Belgium, Great Britain and France are fighting for the hills and other points along the long front which will be of the greatest advantage to the army holding them when the advance begins. The Belgians continue to improve their positions in Flanders, and the French to the north of Arras and in Champagne have added eminences to their gains which are of some importance. The French War Office announced last night that the French troops have consolidated and maintained the material gains they have made in the Champagne region and that the Germans have been unable to recapture any of the ground they lost. The fighting continues violently, particularly north of Mesnilles-Hurlus, where French reinforcements are pushing the Germans hard.

The floods on the Yser are subsiding and the Belgian troops have been enabled to make progress toward Stuyvekenskerke, where they have carried a position on the Kloester Hoek farm.

On the British front there has been a violent artillery exchange, and near Notre Dame de Lorette the Germans have been repulsed in an effort to capture the French trenches. The bombardment of Soissons and Rheims continues intermittently.

The British casualty list for the five days from March 10 to March 14, inclusive, during which the battle of Neuve Chapelle and St. Eloi were fought, show that 112 officers were killed or died from wounds and that 193 officers were wounded or are missing. The list of casualties among the men has not been published yet, nor have any figures been given out, but some competent critics estimate them at about two-thirds of those suffered by the Germans which Field Marshal Sir John French, the British commander-in-chief said were between 17,000 and 18,000. It is stated that one Canadian officer was killed in the fighting and three Canadian officers were wounded. (This may refer to Lieut. de Blaquiere, of the Cameron Highlanders, who was a Montreal man, announcement of whose death was published on Wednesday).

"Strassburg" and Karlsruhe" Are Reported Missing

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

NEW YORK, March 18.—Deepest of all the mysterious occurrences that have marked the progress of the world war, the case of the German cruiser Strassburg, which has never been heard of since the start of hostilities, stands without a parallel. It was more than a year ago that the Strassburg, a light, fast cruiser of the same type as the Karlsruhe and a year older than that vessel, went to South Atlantic waters in command of Rear-Admiral Rebeur Paschwitz.

The Admiral and his officers were entertained at Buenos-Ayres on March 6, 1914. Later the vessel went to Montevideo, then steamed to West Indian waters, where she was during part of the Mexican trouble.

Just previous to the declaration of war the Strassburg entered the port of St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, and began to coal. On August 2 she was known to be still in that port, But from that time to this not a word has been heard of her. Her consorts at that time were the Karlsruhe and the Dresden, the latter of which has just been accounted for.

It is believed now that the case of the Strassburg is one of those mysteries of the sea that may never be solved until the day when "the sea gives up its dead." If the cruiser had been sunk by British vessels the fact surely would have been made known.

Caught in a West Indian hurricane, without coal supply, the plight of a vessel of the type of the Strassburg would indeed be serious. Perhaps, battered by wind and sea, and driven, helpless, through unfrequented paths, the little cruiser has gone to join the company of dead ships in the Sargossa Sea, whose clinging, gripping tentacles of marine growths may already be entwining themselves over her steel sides and covering the muzzles of her long 4-inch rifles with slimy vegetation.

According to a story published yesterday afternoon in the Brooklyn Eagle, the German ruiser Karlsruhe, which has been raiding British and French shipping in South American and West Indian waters had been wrecked off the Grenadines of the Windward Islands. The Eagle says the news of the loss of the Karlsruhe was brought to Brooklyn by a sea captain of that borough.

HAD SUPPLIED COAL TO THE DRESDEN

Special to The Examiner:

GIRLS! STOP WASHING THE HAIR WITH SOAP

Soap dries your scalp, causing dandruff, then hair falls out.

After washing your hair with soap always apply a little Danderine to the scalp to invigorate the hair and prevent dryness. Better still, use soap as sparingly as possible, and instead have a "Danderine Hair Cleanse." Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one strand at a time. This will remove dust, dirt and excessive oil. In a few moments you will be amazed, your hair will not only be clean, but it will be wavy, fluffy and abundant, and possess an incomparable softness and lustre.

Besides cleansing and beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; stimulates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

Men! Ladies! You can surely have lots of charming hair. Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it.

"THE GRELL MYSTERY"

By Frank Froest

The pickpocket never strained his luck, wherein he differed from the lower grade of professors of his art: Commonsense and superstition were both factors in his decision to suspend operations. He might as well spend his time, he decided, in trying to carry out Foyle's instructions. His intention took him to three public-houses as far apart as Islington, Blackfriars, and Whitechapel; at the latter place, in an ornate saloon bristling with gilt and glittering with mirrors, he found the man he wanted.

Leaning across the bar, exchanging sallies with a giggling barmaid, was a lean, sallow-complexioned man, whose rusty, reddish-brown hair was sufficient justification for his nickname.

"Hello, Ike," said the newcomer, adjusting himself to a high stool. "How's things?"

"Hello, Dutch. Thought you got stuck on the other side of the town. What are you going to have"

Over the drinks they talked for a little on a variety of subjects—the weather, politics, trade — while the barmaid remained within hearing. Both were craftsmen in their particular line, and they spoke as equal to equal. Ike had made a specialty of getting cheque signatures for a little clique of clever forgers, and had his own ways of getting rid of his confederates' ingenuity. Nor was he above working sidelines if they promised profit, and in that respect, at least, he resembled Dutch Fred. His abilities in many directions had been recognized by Harry Goldenburg. It was not till they had gone over to a little table in a remote corner that Dutch Fred broached Goldenburg's name, in a tentative reference to the murder in Grosvenor Gardens.

"Funny thing you should speak about that," commented Ike, glancing casually about to make certain that no one was within earshot. "I hear that there's piles of stuff in that house, and there's only a butler and a man named Lomont, who was Grell's secretary living there now to look after things. It would be easy to do a bust there."

Fred's pulses jumped a little faster as he toyed with his glass. He knew something of Red Ike's methods, and felt certain that some proposal was coming. He could see the gratitude of Foyle taking some tangible form if he were able to bring this off. He had no scruples. Even if Ike suspected treachery after the event—well, he could look after himself.

"I don't know," he said, shaking his head doubtfully. "It isn't like a lonely suburban street."

Ike grinned.

"I'm not a mug, am I? What do you say to walking in the front door, opening it with a key, and with the keys of the rest of the house in my 'sky'? All I want is a straight man to keep doggo."

"Criminy! Have you got the twirls?" he gasped. "Where did you get 'em?"

"Never mind where they came from. I've got 'em. That's enough. More than that, I've got a lay-out of the house all marked out on paper, with every bit of stuff marked out where it ought to be. It's as easy as falling off a log."

"Am I in it?" demanded Freddy.

"Why should I be telling you if you wasn't? You keep doggo outside if you like."

More drinks were ordered, and Freddy came to business.

"What do I get?"

"Let's see. I cut in for a third, and I shall do all the work. I'll give you a quarter of that third. You won't have anything to do, except give me the office if anything goes wrong."

"'Struth!" Freddy was more hurt than indignant. "You aren't going to Jew me down like that. Who else is in it?"

"Never mind who else is in it. I give you first chance, as a pal. You can take it or leave it."

"Right, I'm on," agreed Freddy.

CHAPTER XXV.

The compact between Heldon Foyle and Sir Ralph Fairfield had begun to bear fruit. For three days an advertisement had appeared in the personal column of the "Dairy Wire":

"Will R.G. communicate with R.F. Very anxious."

Much thought had gone to the wording of the line. If Grell or any of his companions noticed it, Foyle felt certain that in some way or other an attempt would be made to get in touch with the baronet. He was fairly confident that the missing man needed money. He would probably not question how Fairfield knew that he was alive. If he rose to the bait there would be a catch of some sort. Whether Grell was the murderer or not, he held the key to the heart of the mystery. The superintendent emphasised this in a talk with Fairfield.

"It's a fair ruse. We're pretty certain he's hiding somewhere in London, and it's a big field unless we've got a starting point. That's our trouble—finding a starting-point. In detective stories the hero always hits on it unerringly at once. There was one yarn in which the scratches on the back of a watch gave the clue to the temperament and history of its possessor. Now, that watch might have been borrowed or bought second-hand, or lost and restored at some time, and the marks made by any one but its owner. That kind of subtlety is all right in print, but in real life it would put you on a false track in nineteen out of twenty cases. In ninety cases out of a hundred the obvious solution is the right one. In an investigation there may be coincidences of circumstantial evidence pointing in the wrong direction. But when you get first one coincidence, then a second, a third, and a fourth, you can be fairly sure you're on the right track. You don't add proof together. You multiply it. See here."

He drew a piece of paper towards him and rapidly scribbled upon it:

One coincidence .. .. —0
Two coincidences .. .. —2
Three coincidences .. .. .. —6
Four coincidences .. .. —24
Five coincidences .. .. —120

"That's the kind of thing in terms of arithmetic. Now look at the parts in relation to each other. Grell leaves the club and gets you to lie about his absence. Coincidence number one. A man astonishingly like him is murdered in his study a short time afterwards. Coincidence number two. He is apparently dressed in Grell's clothes and has Grell's belongings in his pockets. Coincidence number three. Both Grell and his valet, Ivan Abramovitch, disappear. Coincidence number four. Ivan is found with the pearl necklace on him. Coincidence number five. Grell writes you a note, which I stole from you. Coincidence number six. You follow me? I could go on with other proofs. Grell must know who committed this murder, and if we get hold of him we shall know."

"I see the point," confessed Fairfield. "All the same, I don't believe, even if he knows as you say, that he had a hand in it. This may be the hundredth case, you know, and there may be some satisfactory explanation of his actions."

"Dutch Fred thinks he's got hold of something," opened Foyle abruptly. "I've told him to meet you at Lyon's in the Strand. I think he's all right, but don't let him have any money until you've tested his yarn."

"Very good, sir," said Green. "I'll look into it."

As he left Foyle bent over his desk and, with the concentration that was one of his distinguishing traits, busied himself in a series of reports on a coining raid in Kensington, sent up to him by those concerned for his perusal. He had a theory that the efficiency of the battalion of detectives under him was not lessened by making his men tell him exactly how they were performing their work, both verbally and in writing. "You may have brains, you may have intuition, you may have courage, but you'll never make a good detective without system," he sometimes told young officers when they joined the staff of the C.I.D. There were things, of course, that could not be put in writing, but Foyle never invited his subordinates to act against the law. Such things have to be done at a man's own discretion without official sanction.

It was less than an hour when the chief inspector returned, pottentously grave.

"Well?" demanded Foyle.

"The real goods," said Green, who was obviously feeling pleased with himself. "Your long shot has come off. They're falling short of money, for they've put Red Ike up to break into Grell's house and steal all the stuff in sight. Ike has asked Fred to give him a hand."

A low whistle came from Foyle's lips. Why hadn't he thought of this? Discreetly done, with the help of a confederate—and apparently Grell had no lack of confederates—it would get over the difficulty quite simply.

"Sit down, Green. Let's hear all about it," he said, diving into his pocket for the inevitable cigar.

"It's all fixed up. Ike walks into the place with Grell's keys at eight o'clock to-night, while Freddy keeps watch outside—"

"And someone keeps an eye on Freddy, if I'm any judge. Go on. Who put Ike up to it?"

"He won't say. He's as tight as a drum about all that, according to Freddy. When we arrest him we must get something out of him."

"I don't know," said Foyle slowly. "Ike's a queer bird. Dutch Fred will need to look after himself if ever he knows who gave the game away. Well now, let's fix up things. Is any one keeping an eye on the place for Ike"

"Freddy's supposed to be there."

HEART WOULD PALPITATE.

HAD WEAK and DIZZY SPELLS.

Palpitation of the heart is one of the most common of all heart troubles. The heart will beat fast for several seconds, then slow, then start to flutter, and a feeling of utter depression will come over the system accompanied by weak and dizzy spells, making you feel that you are surely going to die. When you feel this way what you require is a real good heart and nerve tonic; one that will strengthen the weak heart and build up the nerve system. For this purpose we know of nothing that can equal Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. J. S. Nicholls, Listowel, Ont., writes: "I was weak and run down, my heart would palpitate, and I would take weak and dizzy spells. A friend advised me to try your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I started at once, and found that I felt much stronger, and my heart was ever so much better within a short time. I cannot praise your medicine too highly for it has done me a world of good. My husband has also been bothered with heart trouble ever since childhood and finds great relief in using your valuable pills."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The only man who should not advertise is the man who has nothing to offer in the way of commodity or service —and— such a person is a dead one—whether he knows it—or not.

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can. —"I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. Frank Emsley, 903 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.

Beatrice, Neb.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. Child, Beatrice, Neb.

Was Personally Attended by Dr. A. W. Chase

Before He Became Famous as the Author of Dr. Chase's Receipt Book.

Here is a letter from an aged gentleman who consulted Dr. Chase, long before his Receipt Book attained a world - wide circulation or his family medicines became known to the ends of the earth.

MR. O. D. BARNES.

Like most people of advanced years his kidneys were the first organs to break down and when doctors failed to help him he remembered the physician who cured him of pleurisy in his younger days.

Mr. O. D. Barnes, R.F.D. 1, Byron, Mich., writes:—"About fifty years ago, when living in Ann Arbor, Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous Receipt Book author, was called on to treat me for pleurisy. Ever since that I have used and recommended Dr. Chase's Medicines, and have two of his Receipt Books in the house.

"Some time ago a cold settled in the kidneys, causing backache, frequent urination, dizziness, and affected the eyesight. My appetite failed and I could not sleep nights. Two doctors failed to do me any lasting good, so I started using Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. The results have been highly satisfactory to me. Appetite improved, I gained in weight, sleep and rest well, and feel strong and well. My kidneys resumed their natural functions, and I believe that my cure was due to Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food. I am 78 years old, superintend work on my farm, and can turn in and do some work myself."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. All dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

FOOD FOR ANGELS

"Cooking Mother Did" is Good Only for Healthy Country Boys.

By SELINA LILLIAN HIGGINS.

Daisty little Nellie Barton was crying as if her heart would break. It was in vain that her best friend and neighbor sought to comfort her. This was the first cloud that had arisen in the matrimonial sky for Mrs. Barton, and, of course, after a season of perfect honeymoon bliss, it seemed to be a terribly dark one.

"You foolish Nellie!" exclaimed Mrs. Dorsett. "Why, child, don't you know that Ronald thinks the sun rises and sets for you, and always will?"

"I don't," asserted Nellie persistently. "How can a man love his wife and find fault with her?"

"Tell me all about it, dear, and let us see if between us we can't find some way to patch up this first domestic quarrel."

"Quarrel!" repeated the bride of a month in a terrified gasp. "Oh, dear, no—there has been no quarrel. I wouldn't speak a cross word to my husband for worlds, and as to Ronald, he's all cooing and smiles most of the time."

Mrs. Dorsett smiled indulgently at her pretty, inexperienced sister-in-law. Her better half was a grim, sedate business man who did not do much in the cooing and smiling line. It made her heart feel hungry to listen to Nellie's innocent chatter, for she felt girlhood's days fading fast away from her.

"Go on, dear," she urged.

"It's about the meals," confessed Nellie, with a little sob. "I thought everything was just suiting Ronald to a T. He praised my biscuits and said he just doted on my cookies, pie and all afraid the maid would spoil things if I didn't superintend a little," spoke the old lady demurely, as she had been taught by her plotting daughter, Mrs. Dorsett.

And then the truth dawned on Ronald. He glanced at his companion. Stowell had flushed up and looked bored.

"Boys," spoke Mrs. Barton in her winning, motherly way, "never forget that two healthy, all-day roving lads coming in to a hearty farm supper hungry as tramps aren't two dainty city-bred children of the larger growth. The 'cooking mother did' is just the thing in its place, but, as I notice from what you left, it doesn't hold a candle to dear little Nellie's clever trifles. Why, when I go home from here, I'm a week telling the neighbors about the delightful things Ronald lives on nowadays!"

And that was the last that Nellie Barton ever heard of "mother's cooking."

said sunshine cake. He said they reminded him of food for angels. Then yesterday I found out that it was all a mollow hockery."

"What, my dear?"

"I mean a hollow mockery. I've been so upset I get flustered whenever I think of it. You must know that an old college chum of his was at tea last evening—a Mr. Stowell. I did my best to make Ronald proud of me. Everything was light and dainty. I never saw a meal go off so nicely. I left the two gentlemen to their cigars at the table going over old times, and sat down on the porch. The windows were open and I couldn't help hear what they were saying. Oh, dear! I wish I hadn't listened."

"What was it, dear?" inquired Mrs. Dorsett.

"Oh, they got talking of old times. Mr. Stowell reminded Ronald of a glorious week they had spent together at the Barton home, before they were married. Such cooking! How mother did set out a meal that was a meal! Particularly how Mr. Stowell had never had such an appetite as evenings when mother had baked beans. Such beans! And mince pie! Oh, it made his mouth water to think of it! Then Ronald got egged on to brag of his mother. That salt rising—um! um!" and pretty Nellie, in trying to imitate her dear one, broke down again.

"And apple sauce!" she choked out, as the last straw. Practical, loving Mrs. Dorsett tried to soothe her.

"See here, my dear," she said, "you are making a great mountain out of the chatter of two big overgrown boys. Now promise to forget it and I will make everything right."

"H-how w-will you?" sobbed Nellie.

"Will you keep a secret?"

"Y-yes—if it w-will do any good."

"Very well, mother is coming to visit me next week. You say Mr. Stowell is going to come to tea again on his way home from his trip?"

"Yes, he is invited for Thursday evening."

"Then Thursday evening, dear," promised Mrs. Dorsett, with a little wrinkle of a smile about her lips, "those two overgrown boys shall just revel in all the dainties of old times."

Nellie's gloomy face brightened up magically as her devoted sister-in-law whispered "the great secret" into her eager ears. She hugged and kissed dear Mrs. Dorsett and laughed and chattered, and went home happy, convinced that never a new bride had such a dear, dear sister-in-law and such a practical, sensible mother-in-law.

Ronald Barton ushered his friend an old-time chum into the neat, attractive little dining room at home, proud of the neatly set table with its glittering silver and glassware. Nellie never looked lovelier. It was when the maid brought in a great steaming dish of pork and beans that Ronald stared a little.

"Butcher must have forgotten the lamb chops," he said half apologetically.

"Always liked them," declared Stowell.

"Why, Nellie, isn't this some new fangled sort of baker's bread?" inquired Ronald, as he took a mouthful of the bread on the plate and made something of a wry face.

"No, indeed!" resented Nellie with dignity. "That is the regular old-fashioned home-made, salt-rising bread that everybody dotes over."

"Guess our tastes are getting sort of perverted, old boy!" laughed Stowell. "It's delicious, but—no, I thank you, I won't have another piece."

Ronald's eyes fairly bulged at the dessert. The apple sauce looked to him a poor, thin, cheerless dish to offer to an invited guest. Stowell looked around for some of that flaky pudding Nellie had given them last time.

And then came the climax as the maid soberly brought in three great slabs of mince pie—good pie, grand pie, but on a hot night—!

"Too heavy for me," declared Stowell, and Ronald glanced reproachfully at Nellie, and the table when finally abandoned showed remnants enough to feed a whole family.

The gentlemen adjourned to the porch. Ronald experienced a species of social discomfort. It was certainly a remarkable culinary demonstration she had made. He glanced at Stowell, who was solemnly puffing away at his cigar. He looked like a wronged man. He was bon vivant enough to enjoy dainties and had anticipated something light and toothsome at the Barton home.

"Guess we'd better stroll down to the hotel a little later and have a game of billiards, eh, Barton?" he suggested.

"They open a new grill room tonight, I hear," observed Ronald. "Why, mother, you here!" and the speaker sprang from his chair and greeted his mother with genuine gladness.

"Yes, I was busy out in the kitchen

IS AMAZED AT MR. BURNHAM'S AMAZEMENT

Workman Wants to Know Why Federal Member is Not Showing Some Active Energy in Securing Contracts For Local Factories That Would Provide Work For Local Mechanics

March 17th, 1915.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In Saturday night's Review there was a letter from Mr. Burnham in which he said he was fairly amazed to read the paper stating that he, Mr. Burnham, was in Montreal in the interest of Peterborough manufacturers trying to secure military contracts. He further went on to say that he tried to make it plain that beyond facilitating by introductions and vouching for men unknown to the Ministers, that it was a gross wrong for a man elected by a constituency to interest himself in securing contracts for people and others. With hundreds of men out of work in the city is it not nearly time that Mr. Burnham should interest himself in trying to get contracts for the Canadian General Electric and the Foundries in this city. According to a report in the Sunday World, Mr. T. J. Stewart, the member of Parliament at Hamilton, announced this morning that Hamilton manufacturing concerns had secured orders for shells and parts of shells that totalled over $2,000,000 in value. The firms got orders for the number of shells or parts of shells, as follows:

Brown & Boggs, $15,000; Canadian Westinghouse, $75,000; Dominion Steel Foundries, $50,000; National Machine Company, $15,000; Petrie Manufacturing Company, $15,000; Sawyer-Massey Company, $20,000; Smart-Turner Company, $10,000; Steel Company of Canada, $65,000; Chadwick Bros., $400,000; Canada Steel Goods Co., $300,000.

Cartridge Clips—Cradwick Bros., $100,000; National Steel Car Company, $100,000; Steel Company, of Canada, $400,000; Canadian Westinghouse Co., $25,000; Dominion Steel Foundries, $60,000; Hamilton Brass Company, $125,000; Tallman Brass Company, $100,000; Schultz-Meng Co., $200,000; National Machine Company, $200,000.

Plugs and Sockets—Canadian Westinghouse Company, $150,000; Chadwick Bros., $40,000; Hamilton Brass Company, $50,000; Tallman Brass Company, $75,000.

Tubes — Hamilton Brass Co., $50,000.

Nearly all this work which was given to the Hamilton firms could be done by the foundries in Peterborough or the Canadian General Electric, and it would mean the factories running full time for several weeks if not months. The brass foundry in the Canadian General would be operating full time, the G. Walter Green and the William Hamilton compahies would be busy and a vast number of workmen would have work to do which they are not able to get now.

Surely it is in the interests of Mr. Burnham and the constituency which he is supposed to represent that he should show some active energy in attempting to get contracts for the manufacturers of Peterborough, and incidentally for the workingmen of this city. For him to say that he is amazed that he should be expected to do these things is beyond the understanding of most men and particularly when the conditions are as bad as they are at the present time, and when it is in the interests of every citizen of Peterborough to use his best efforts to obtain contracts and work for the many men out of employment at the present time.

It seems to me that the people of Peterborough should sign a petition and send it to Mr. Burnham, asking him to do what he can to get contracts for the big companies in this city, so that the workingman may be able to maintain their families, and do what is necessary to maintain them without going to the Patriotic Fund or to the City Relief Fund.

Thanking you for the space you have given me, I remain,

Yours truly,

WORKMAN.

The Employment of the Aged

"Civis" Disagrees With Mayor Buller's Opinion on the Subject

To the Peterborough Examiner:

Sir,—I have seen in the local papers Mayor Buller's position in reference to the employment of the aged men of the city on the city's public works. He thinks this old and decrepid men of the city should be employed. I doubt if many differ from him on that matter, but I think all men of fair judgment will differ from him in the manner of employing these men.

If any one of us took a contract to do some large job, would we, in justice to ourselves, employ men so aged, used up and infirm that they could render but half a day's work? Would we allow some Labour Union to step up to us and demand that we should pay these incapables the same wages we were paying the most capable workmen or labourers? Surely not. If such a contractor acted on the Mayor's suggestion, he would soon quit the contracting business. Now our City Councillors are trustees for the people, and have a duty to deal with the city's money as they would with their own. Would Mayor Buller employ on his own work the class of men he recommends for the public work of the city?

Anyone who has watched the men on the waterworks jobs, or gas works, or on contract work done for the city, will have noticed the vast difference in the work done by city employees and that done by employees of contractors and others.

Mayor Bullet may ask, Would you let these old men starve? I answer, No, but I would not let them rob the citizens. I would give them work they could do, and I would pay them what they earned.

I would not mix good men and poor men; if you do, all will soon be on a level—the poor man cannot do a day's work. The good man says. Here this old buffer on my left is doing as little as possible, yet he gets as much as I do. I'll just drop down to his level and I'll get my wage all the same. So these old buffers pull down the entire grade of work and make our civic expenditure double what it should be. People wonder why the taxes increase so fast and where the money goes that is reported as expended. The assessment goes up even though it may be impossible to sell at any price. The rate also increases, and things have come to such a pan that property is a burden. One-third of the property of the town is held under mortgage to the city. For not more than two-thirds of the rents, after paying wear and tear, insurance, etc., reaches the owner. The city strips you of the rest. Is it not a time to go slow? Is it not a time to economize.

Pay the men who earn it a fair day's wage for a fair day's work, and don't let any one dictate to the twenty-three thousand people of this town that they must submit to be robbed by about one hundred old men who are unable to give a fair day's work—and yet demand what they don't earn—and at the same time by their example pull down, not the wages, but the labour of men who, if alone, would render for their wages a fair day's work. If any one can demonstrate that the city should act on Mayor Buller's suggestion, I would like to hear him.

CIVIS.

Straw	$13.00

Notes on Wheat.

As a result of the steady progress of the fleet in the attack on the Dardanelles, grain prices in England are steadily dropping.

Many, however, are of the opinion that after the opening, Russian shipping will be in a more or less precarious condition for some time, and it will not be in a position to bother much about the shipment of grain, but will occupy itself in supplying Russian troops with supplies of food and munitions of war. Therefore, this time next year the price will be the same, if not higher, than the present ruling.

During the American Civil war wheat went up to $3.00 a bushel; during the Napoleonic war it went very high; at the time of the Crimean war it rose from 38 cents to $1.85; the Franco-Prussian war in 1870 saw it at $1.60; and during the Russo-Japanese war it commanded $1.20 a bushel.

These were mere episides compared to the present world-wide conflict. Prices are, therefore, likely to go higher during this war than during any previous war.

During the past three weeks Italy bought of North American wheat about twenty million bushels. Greece bought heavily too.

A Good Substitute for Hay.

If you think hay is going to be scarce again this summer, here is a good substitute for it.

"Choose a small field," says Rural New Yorker, "manure it well. After the soil is worked broadcast five pecks of Canada peas to the acre, and ploy them under. After a few days sow three bushel of oats and harrow seed in. The peas grow slowly and are kept up off the ground by the oats. Cut crop when peas are soft in the pod. It makes a fine green fodder, or may be cured the same as clover hay. Such feed is like a 'Ham Sandwich' to the cow."

BYLO SELHI.

Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

Jewels In Suit Case of Priest

Worth Over $300,000--Arrived From Mexico City Dressed in Shabby Clothes

Special to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, March 17.—A king's ransom in jewels, blazoned in the royal eagles of Spain at the time Charles V., the most powerful monarch of the 16th century, ruled Castile, Aragon and the German Empire, lies under guard at the Customs House here, awaiting appraisal.

The gems, set in gold on white and purple robes, and mounted on two golden crowns, were brought into New York by a Catholic priest, clad in shabby clothes, who fled from Mexico City a month ago, made his way to Vera Cruz and sailed aboard the steamer Montevideo. The Montevideo reached New York March 6 with this priest and six other fugitive priests, who had been banished from Mexico by Gen. Obregon, Carranza's lieutenant at Mexico City.

From the depths of a battered suit case, the gems and robes were tumbled out upon the dock for inspection by the Customs authorities. They so dazzled the inspectors that they were hastily put back into the suit case. Under guard, they were taken to a safe deposit vault, where they were locked up and special watchmen detailed to guard them. Rough estimates placed their value at from $300,000 to $500,000.

Meantime, the obscure priest who brought the gems and robes into the country is waiting, without divulging his identity, for the appraisal. The Customs authorities would not say who or where he was.

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule alliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of dosing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."

Very Effective Method For Banishing Hairs

(Modes of To-day)

At very little cost any woman can rid her face of hairy growths, if she will use the delatone treatment. This is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This paste is spread upon the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed, when every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm results from this treatment, but care should be used to buy real delatone.

BELGIAN-BRITISH ARMY IS PROGRESSING ALONG YSER

Official Despatches Report Progress is Being Made--Enemy is Displaying Particular Activity in the Lorette Region ---Railway Station at Conflans Bombarded.

THE RUSSIANS ARE ON OFFENSIVE

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, March 18.(French official.)—The British-Belgian army is continuing its progress along the canal of the Yser, according to despatches to-day. The Belgian artillerymen have shelled one of the German convoys from Dixmude to Essen. From the Lys to the Oise artillery engagements are now in progress, the enemy displaying particular activity against a ridge in the Lorette region near Arras, held by the allies. A French aviator bombarded the railway station at Conflans.

LONDON, March 18.—The bombardment of the Dardanelles and of the Smyrna forts, has been partially suspended, pending the arrival of the French and British expeditionary forces, according to an Athens despatch to-day. Mine sweepers continue to operate inside the Strait, under the protection of the British cruisers. The superdreadnough Queen Elizabeth and the warships engaged in bombarding Gallipoli by indirect fire, were reported in the advices from Tenedos Island, to be at anchor off the entrance to the strait.

LONDON, March 18.—Three German princes, including Prince Frederick Leopold, cousin of the German Kaiser, were in the battle of Neuve Chappelle and are believed to have been killed, according to an officer's statement regarding the fighting made public to-day, under the signature of "Eye Witness." The press bureau statement declares that the bodies of 2,000 Germans were found in one section of Neuve Chapelle alone. The statement concurred in General French's official report that between 17,000 and 18,000 Germans were killed or wounded at Neuve Chapelle. Proceeding eastward through Neuve Chapelle, the British howitzers were trained on the village of Aubers, still in the hands of the Germans. A high tower, the eye witness reported, disappeared as if by magic when it was struck by British shells, leaving only a cloud of dust on the horizon. "Eye Witness" praised the bravery of the Germans. The German prisoners all told of the terrible effect of the British artillery on the German trenches, preceding the English infantry attacks.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Despite the official reticence, the Chinese situation to-day loomed up as a greater menace to American foreign relations than the European war conditions. The United States is looked upon by China as its "next friend." It has appealed to this country to force Japan to relinquish her designs on China's territorial integrity. The United States already has unofficially explained to Japan that any attempt to dominate China will be considered unfriendly, but whether this government has joined Britain and Russia in a formal protest, as advices from Pekin indicated, could not be ascertained.

PARIS, March 18.—Germans stopping at resorts in the Italian Riviera, have been privately notified by authorities to leave Italian territory immediately, says a despatch from a news agency.

BERLIN, via wireless, March 18.—The Russian government buildings in Suwalki, Poland, and other provincial capitals in the hands of the Germans will be burned to the ground, the German war office announced this afternoon, in retaliation for the ruthless acts of destruction by the Russians in East Prussia.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Commander Thierechens of the German converted cruiser Prinz Eitel Freidrich, will have to "fish or cut bait" soon, it is learned on high authority to-day. The treasury department which has charge of the neutrality enforcement, will send him a note shortly giving him 24 hours to state how much more time he wants at Newport News to put to sea, or intern immediately.

BERLIN, via wireles, March 18.—The Russians are on the offensive along a sixty mile battle front extending from north of Lomza to north east of Przasnysz, the war office admitted this afternn, but at all points between the rivers Orzec and Pissa energetic Slav attacks have been repulsed, says the report.

BANGOR, Maine, March 18.—The claim of Werner Horn that his attempt to destroy the international railway bridge at Vanceboro was an act of war and that it should be considered from the standpoint of international relations, figured in the proceedings here to-day before United States Commissioner Charles H. Reid to-day. Counsel for Horn intimated that adverse decision here might be followed by further proceedings to prevent prisoner's removal from Maine.

THE CITY'S SHARE OF THE SO-CALLED ONTARIO WAR TAX

Will Be Increased by the Proposed Amendment Which Takes in All Exempted Properties

A COMPARISON

The one mill war tax on real estate as planned by the Ontario Government will mean over $12,909 to Peterborough, according to the enlarged scope of the proposal which is to take in all exempted properties with the two exceptions of schools and churches.

The collection of the tax is a matter for the city, and they are likely to lose money on it, as they have to turn the full amount over to the Government at the end of the year, and the city certainly will not be able to collect the whole amount of the extra tax. That means that the municipality will have to borrow to make up the deficit, and it may be a large one this year, in view of the money stringency. The Government makes sure of the money, but the city must bide its time in getting it, and meanwhile assume the loss and keep as cheerful a countenance as possible.

The Amendment.

By the proposed amendment to the Act, the city has the power to put the one mill assessment on anything it pleases, to exempt anything it wants to, but the money must go to the Government just the same. Thus if one class were exempted by the city, the latter would be forced to make up the deficit from its own funds, and as the latter has enough to do now they will not likely take such a course.

A Comparison.

Toronto being the largest city is naturally the hardest hit by the one mill tax. Its contribution will be about $619,000, while Ottawa's will be about $78,368, Hamilton's $101,345, London, $36,071, Brantford $21,248, Windsor $23,083, Kingston $12,457, Peterborough, $12,909, Berlin $11,182, Guelph $8,855, St. Thomas, $9,906, Chatham, 7,547, Owen Sound $6,511, Galt $8,406, Belleville, $6,075, Niagara Falls $8,617 and Brockville $5,804. This is exclusive of the exemptions, which would amount to a great deal.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL IN TORONTO TO ASK FOR $300

The members of the North Monaghan Council went to Toronto in a body this morning in an endeavour to secure a grant of road money to build up the gravel road from Weber's into the city. The Council intended to ask for some of the money received by the government from the increased automobile licenses. Failing in that they would fall back on the colonisation roads pot for $300. They fully realised that in the prevailing times of stress the provincial purse strings were not easily loosed, but they had hopes for the required $300 at least.

LOCAL MAN GIVES LIFE

Pte. Ben. A. Manners, Peterboro' Reservist, Dies From Wounds—Left There After War Broke Out

BROTHERS ENLISTED

The first casualty at the front among the many reservists who answered the call from Peterborough, which has been recorded in the city, is that of Pte. Ben A. Manners, 583 Chamberlain Street, who died in a Paris Hospital on January 27th from wounds. Next of kin is his mother, residing at 88 Beaconsfield Avenue, Toronto.

The news of the death of Pte. Manners was received in the city this morning by Mrs. Charles Manners, sister-in-law, 583 Chamberlain Street. It was in a letter from her husband, Corp. Charles Manners with the Signallers 2nd Overseas Contingent at Kingston that she received the news of the casualty, which occurred on January 27th. There were no further partiulars as to what engagements he took part in.

Pte. Manners, who was on the reserve, joined the Sussex Regiment, with which he was formerly connected, soon after war was declared. He boarded with his brother, Corp. Charles Manners, who is with the 2nd Overseas Contingent. While in the City he was employed at the Henry Hope Company plant, coming here from Toronto.

He is survived by his mother and two sisters, residing in Toronto, three brothers, Bert with the First Canadian Contingent, Corp. Charles Manners, 2nd Contingent, and Walter in England.

GERMANS SING CANADIAN AIRS

Interesting Letter From Major G. W. Bennet O. C. Peterboro Contingent

Mr. Vincent Eastwood, manager of the local branch of the Royal Bank is in receipt of a letter from Mafor G. W. Bennett, commanding officer of the Peterborough contingent, First Canadian Expeditionary Force. Part of the communication was written on February 19th and part on the 23rd. The writer refers to two trips that were made to the trenches and which were undertaken without any casualties. That the Germans are aware of the presence of the Canadians is borne out by the fact that while the Canadians were in the trenches they were surprised to hear the Germans singing the "Maple Leaf" and "O Canada." At some points along the line the Germans were only about seventy-five yards away.

THE FOURTH CONTINGENT

Orders Have Been Issued by the Militia Department to Commence Recruiting Immediately

TOTAL OF 110,000 MEN

OTTAWA, March 18.— The Militia Department has issued orders to begin recruiting a fourth Canadian contingent for the war. The first contingent is in the trenches, a portion of the second has been landed in England, and the rest will sail immediately, while tha third is recruited to strength and is in training at the various divisional points throughout the Dominion. The fourth, it is expected, will be recruited just as easily as the three previous.

The third, fourth and future contingents will not likely be sent to front as army divisions, but as reinforcements for the first two contingents, which are composed of 25,000 men each, but, of course, this is merely a suggestion of the Canadian Militia Department, and different arrangements may be made by the British War Office.

Details of recruiting will be issued later by the Militia authorities. When the fourth contingent is up to strength over 110,000 Canadians will be under arms.

SERGEANT VICTOR OF PETERBORO' IS BADLY WOUNDED

First Local Man in the Canadian Contingent to Appear in Casualty List—Well Known in 57th Regt.

MOTHER LIVES HERE

Dangerously wounded—Lance-Sergt. Peter Victor, admitted to No. 13 General Hospital, Boulogne, gunshot wound in thigh, March 14. Next of kin, Mrs. M. Victor, 126 Park Street, Peterborough, Ont.

A telegram form the Adjutant General at Ottawa received by Mrs. M. Victor, 126 Park Street, about five o'clock last evening informed her that her son, Lance-Sergt. Peter Victor was wounded in the thigh. A copy of the telegram is as follows:

"Sincerely regret to inform you report received that Lance Sergt. Peter Victor, 2nd Battalion, was admitted to No. 13 General Hospital at Boulogne, 16th March, with a gun shot wound in his thigh. Further particulars will be sent you when received.

(Signed) Adjutant-General.

This is the first report received here in connection with any of the members of the 1st Canadian overseas contingent since they went into action. Lance-Sergt. Victor resided in this city about 18 months, coming here from England, where he was born. He was assistant manager of the local branch of the Singer Sewing Machine Company and had a large circle of friends who will regret to learn of his being wounded.

His mother, Mrs. M. Victor, one sister and one brother reside at 126 Park Street and they are anxiously awaiting further particulars. Another brother, Gunner John Victor has enlisted with the third contingent and left here last Friday for Kingston with the 2nd Battery.

Mrs. Victor heard last from her son from France earlier in the month. It was only a printed card, upon which he said he was well. When an Examiner reporter called at the Victor home, Mrs. Victor was engaged in writing to Lance-Sergt. Victor, but realized that it would be a long time before he would receive her communication.

Sergeant Victor was a very popular member of the 57th Regiment, to which he belonged for some time. When war broke out he was a corporal in C Company of the 57th and was one of the first to enlist when the call came for volunteers. He was appointed corporal provisionally and proved so efficient that at Valcartier he was promoted to be Lance Sergeant. He earned the liking of his officers by his attention to his duties and Major Bennett in a letter to local officers while the contingent was at Valcartier, praised him highly.

"Sergeant Victor was one of the best men in our company," remarked Lieut. Tomlins of C Company of the 57th to the Examiner to-day in discussing the report. He was bright and soldierly all through. I am very sorry to hear that he has been wounded."

ADVANCED GUARD WORK IS PRACTISED

39th Battalion Manoeuvre on Chemong Road—Men Are Anxious to Receive Their Service Uniforms and Boots

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

The local Company of the 39th Battalion practiced advanced guard work on the Chemong Road this morning, doing some cross country manoeuvres that the men found interesting in spite of the fact that the warm sun had left some of the ploughed fields in a muddy condition. The Company was out for two hours, in charge of Lieut. C. R. Cameron.

Recruiting for the 26th overseas battery is still going on at the Armouries and several recruits were added yesterday. It is likely that the battery recruits now drilling at the Armouries will be sent down to Kingston in a day or two. In the meantime they are being drilled in the recruits class of the 39th Battalion.

The local Company is still in the dark as to the date of their departure for Belleville. The fact that a provisional school of infantry is to be commenced at Belleville on April 1st would seem to indicate that the local boys will be moved there before that date. The question that is agitating the minds of the Company is why they should not be outfitted here. Some of the men have been drilling for nearly three months and have worn out their boots in tramping around the Armouries and on the frozen roads. The outfits have been ready at Belleville for weeks, and there seems no reason why the service uniforms and boots should not be issued to the men.

Will Make An Offer of $300

The Board of Works Committee has decided to recommend to the Council that Mrs. A. Gagnon and Mr. J. Murphy, 47 and 57 Smith street, respectively, be offered the sum of $300 for alleged damages caused by raising the road in front of their property in order to create an approach for the Smith Street bridge. The money to be paid on condition that the city be allowed to bring the level of the road up to a point recommended by the City Engineer.

A committee of the Council visited the place on Saturday last. At last night's meeting of the Board of Works an estimate of the cost of raising the two houses to conform with the level of the road was received from the two property owners named. The total sum was $570.75.

The Members Were Entertained

The members of the Industrial School Committee were entertained last evening by the Domestic Science class. The affair took place in the class room at the old Collegiate Institute Building. Among those present were: Mr. Eastwood, chairman; Mr. John Crane and Mr. J. Smith, of the School Board; Mr. Sangster, of the De Laval Dairy Supply Company, and others. The members voiced their appreciation of the excellent work accomplished by the class under the direction of Miss L. Denne. Altogether there are four classes meeting four night each week, and continuing until the end of the month. The Domestic Science classes have averaged a much better attendance than the technical classes which would indicate that existing conditions have created an indifference compatitable with the inactivity of the industrial market.

HIDING GUILT.

The Public Accounts Committee of the Ontario Legislature is theoretically designed to afford opportunities for investigation into the public accounts, to explain all that needs explanation, in the receipts and expenditures of public money to ascertain whether public moneys are expended as they are intended to be in the public interests, or with reference to party or personal advantages. One would think that the government, whose responsibility for proper accounting for, and expenditure of, public funds, would welcome and encourage the eliciting of every point of information that could justify their management of the public finances. It is not too much so assume that if the public moneys were properly and legitimately expended the government would be anxious to have this fact demonstrated in the fullest possible manner. It is also fair to assume that if the government is anxious to avoid investigation and obstruct the investigations of the Public Accounts Committee, there is something wrong; something that in the interests of their reputation for honest financial administration, should, from their point of view, be concealed.

The money concerned in such investigations is not the money of the government; it is the money of the people; and the people are entitled to every possible information that can be elicited through a public accounts committee. The government has no right to preferential consideration in this matter. If the government does well in administering the public funds it should have full credit; if it does wrong, it must be held accountable, and it has no right, except that conferred by might, to obstruct investigation—prima facie evidence that there is wrong doing to conceal. It is not the government's business the committee is concerned with, but the government's responsibility, as a trustee of the public funds. The same obstructive tactics that prevented investigation of the public accounts last session are being employed this session. The obstruction practiced by virtue of a partizan majority is designed, or if not designed is effective, in preventing the leeting in of light upon financial transactions that involve the interests of the people whose money is the object of solicitude on the part of the Public Accounts Committee. Whether there is anything radically wrong or not, the action of the government in permitting, and through two of its members, inciting obstruction to investigation, shows that it feels there is something wrong; or if it does not feel this, it has a wrong view of its responsibility to the people, who have a rght to all available information in respect of the handling of their money.

THE OUTCOME OF THE WAR.

In the matter of this war it seems to be a "long, long way to Tipperary." The war has been dragging on for nearly eight months, and in military language the contending hosts of the belligerent countries are apparently, "as you were"; that is, the armies occupy relatively the same positions, if not, with not the same relative advantages. In the beginning Germany, with forty years of military preparation behind her; with everything in spick and span order; with everything complete in the way of equipment, to the last button, began a triumphant march—as she thought. She speedily overrun Belgium, captured Brussels, and encouraged by this success, headed for Paris, which was certain to fall into the Kaiser's hands. Germany was ready all 'round, and saw no obstacle to reaching Paris—and Calais, in the slow moving, unready forces of her enemies, France and Britain. But at the Marne Germany's triumphant march to Paris was stopped, and she had to assume the defensive. Britain and France had pulled themselves together, and Germany had to dig herself in—in trenches—to prevent her being swept out of Belgium and the fringe of France she occupied in the first rush.

The point of view and the prospects has changed. Germany, with her tremendous forces and her complete preparation, was able to score a few initial successes; but nothing for a nation that set out to capture Paris and St. Petersburg, and after bumbling Europe, force her culture upon the world by virtue of world domination. She has been checked, and that checking is the first step to crushing. While Britain and France and Russia have been gaining strength coincident with the rasping, wearing down of the German forces, the latter have been spending their strength in mad and futile attempts at invasion. Germany, on both fronts has been, not only losing military strength, but losing ground.

In the meantime she has lost the nuclei of her world domination idea—her territorial possessions. Early in the fight, thanks to the help of Japan, she lost the colonial apple of her eye, Kiao Chow, and practically all her overseas territory has been lost to her. Her naval raiders have been swept from the ocean. Her navy is useless except for the destructive power left to her submarines whose destruction is but a drop in the bucket for a nation like Britain with a mercantile marine of from 10,000 to 15,000 ships; a nation that turns out complete two ships for every working day in the year. Thus we see that Germany and her allies are as much weaker in military offensiveness and effectiveness, as they were superior to Great Britain and her allies at the opening of the war.

And now comes the tug of war, with the chances of success overwhelmingly with Britain nad her allies; with the chance—very like a certainty—that within a few days, another first-class power—Italy—with two or three minor powers, will be arrayed against Germany, which a few months ago set out on a little campaign of world domination as jauntily as riding to a boar hunt. She now finds herself literally cabinned, cribbed, confined, fighting at bay with her whole military strength enlisted, as against the constantly growing military strength of her enemies, with her food supplies threatened, and other sources of strength cut off. Still a great deal remains to be done. A desperate man shut in a house has been known to defy the strength of a community for a long time. It will be a hard and wearisome task to dislodge Germany from her strongholds and bring her to her knees; but humanly speaking, they that be against her are much stronger than they that be for her—Austria and tottering Turkey. Britain and her allies have got the ships, have got the men ,and got the money too. Their navies are supreme; their men ar growing in number and effectiveness every day. The power that a few months ago set out to conquer Europe and the world, is at bay fighting for life instead of conquest; fighting for is own soil instead of triumphantly riding over the soil of other lands. If eight months ago the mad Kaiser could have foreseen how his plans for world-domination would have ingloriously collapsed, and the hunter become the hunted, as they have done, he would not have declared war with a swagger and arrogance that are now reacting with treble force. Bobbie Burns was not one whit wrong when he sang—"The best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft a-gley."

IRELAND PLAYS UP.

It would seem that the boom in recruiting has come later in Ireland than in the other kingdoms, but it is now as pronounced there as it ever was elsewhere. One might almost imagine that the Irish were only waiting to make sure that they were really wanted before flooding into the recruiting stations. Their quality needs no praise. There are no better fighting men than the countrymen of O'Leary.—London News and Leader.

NELSON NOT AN IRISHMAN

Dear Sir,—I have noticed with interest the many leaders you have published on Ireland and its people. Being partly of Irish descent I have read them with mingled pride. My great-grandfather was a Waterloo hero, and he belonged to the old 88th (now the Connaught Rangers).

In these articles there seems to be one common error; that is, that Nelson was an Irishman. Allow me, sir, to say that he was not. Any one that is convinced that he was Irish, let him go to the Village of Burnham Thorpe, near Norwich, in the County of Norfolk, England, and there tell any villager so, and I venture to say that his ignorance will be met in a way that is peculiar to men of that county.

"Stimulated by the fiery genius of William Pitt, in after days, Lord Chatham, victory was already returning to our flag, when the man was born who was to advance the reputation of our navy and the influence of our seapower to the utmost height. Horatio Nelson saw light on September 29th, 1758, at the small Norfolk village of Burnham Thorpe.

"Horatio's father married into a powerful family, descended from the Walpoles. Mrs. Nelson was the great niece of Sir Robert Walpole, for twenty-one years prime minister of England."

It was his mother's brother, Capt. Maurice Suckling, R. N., that gave him his start in the navy. Even if he was not Irish he fulfilled the obligations and traditions of a Britisher, that is, duty first. Remember we are all British, with one aim in view, i.e.: The holding together and the uplifting of our mighty Empire upon which the sun never sets:

Take a little drop of English,
Only just a little bit,
Add some of Scotland's muscle,
Also some Irish grit.
Of Welsh, one tablespoonful,
And the recipe's complete.
Then we call the mixture British,
And it's darned hard stuff to beat
—Yarmouth Blaster.

Note.—The correspondent may be right in asserting that Lord Nelson was not an Irishman; but that does not deny that he was a great enough man to have been an Irishman; nor impair the further fact that there are enough Irishmen left at the head of British affairs in the great war to uphold the reputation of Irishmen as leading factors in war and statesmanship in the promotion of the triumphs and glory of the Empire.

SUMMER TOURIST PROSPECTS FOR THE COMING SEASON

It is probable that this year will see a larger rush of visitors to Canadian summer resorts then has ever been known before. The railways are expecting it and many of the famous summer hotels, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, are being enlarged or are having annexes prepared.

The winter resorts of the south are mostly crowded to a quite unusual extent, and higher prices than formerly are being charged. The tens of thousands of people who generally go abroad in the summer will probably stay in North America this year. Canada will attract many of these visitors from the United States.

In connecion with this probable inrush of visitors we would like to draw the attention of the railways, the steamboat companies, the summer hotel people, and all who are interested in building up what may be called the summer holiday business, to a certain lack of imagination in the whole existing system of dealing with tourists.

For instance, a city man from Toronto, or Pittsburg, or New York may take a boat on the Georgian Bay to run from Penetang to Parry Sound among the thirty thousand islands which crowd that shore and if he sits down to a meal on the boat, and if fish is served at all ,it is more likely to be canned salmon than black bass that is set before him. Will the people who own that and similar boats carrying tourists in various directions, sit down for a few moments and think over this matter of serving canned salmon to tourists. That boat plying between Penetang and Parry Sound—and it is but one of many, and we are but using it to illustrate the point—runs through black bass waters, and at almost any dock at which it stops on its journey any employee of the boat could throw a line overboard and catch material for a black bass dinner that would delight those tourists. Bass, pickerel, lake trout, could be served, and the fame of the boats' fish dinners would spread abroad. Yet in the heart of the black bass region tourists are served with canned salmon from British Columbia, or halibut steak from far away salt water, and at Scotia Junction and other places, where you can see trout streams from the verandah, a tourist is much more likely to be served with tinned sardines than with a pan of trout.

A tourist who has travelled a hundred or a thousand miles to get away from canned salmon, sardines, bacon and eggs, and patent breakfast foods, arrives at a summer resort in what looks like a wilderness, and the hotel, just to show that it is up-to-date, puts before him, not the foods that abound in the locality, but the foods that have travelled farther than he has—canned, kept, storaged, preserved foods that he can get anywhere, that he cannot, in fact escape no matter where he go.

Nature has given each resort its own distinctive character, but the cooks on boats and in summer hotels in the wilderness worry their lives out trying to take all local colour out of the meals they furnish—try to give tourists the very same kind of meals they would get in boarding-houses in Pittsburg or Denver.

In the black bass region the tourist ought to get bass as often he likes, and it ought to be cooked to the king's taste. The same with trout where they are plentiful. Instead of that, tourists get almost anything but fish. It actually happens that a man travels a thousand miles to catch black bass, catches them, and at the hotel where he is stopping they refuse to cook and serve them to him at the table. Fish are so common that the hotel kitchen is tired of them.

You can go up into the blueberry country when the berries are abundant and at your hotel they will have none. They are too common, too plentiful. The tourist is served with strawberries which have been shipped from Florida where the tourist comes from. In the blueberry region this berry ought to be the local specialty in all the hotels and restaurants. Tourists do not go to summer resorts looking for a poor imitation of a New York meal. They want a change. That is why they are touring.

A man may go over to the Niagara Peninsula when cherries are ripe, and he may see them ripe on a thousand trees. But he is served with none in the local hotel. Instead he is served with quite expensive canned peaches such as he gets wherever he goes.

Not only is the tourist disappointed when he gets bacon and eggs three times a day on a boat on a far northern lake instead of some of the fine fish from the waters through which the steamer runs all day, but when he goes to Nova Scotia and expects lobster he learns that he will not get it there. Evidently the local cooks are tired of the sight and smell of them.

Tourists are strangers on the move. They arrive and depart. They are looking for change, and they get very little of it, except in the way of scenery, for nature is not ashamed of herself and her works and goes in for variety. But cooks try to serve you the same meal wherever you go. The canned peas await you in the furthest lodge in the wilderness.

There are places in Europe where you can go and get certain foods in their native perfection as you can get them nowhere else in the world. It ought to be the same in America. A locality ought to specialise. If it has a good thing it ought to make the most of it. The black bass and the speckled trout could be made to be worth millions to Ontario if the cooking and serving of these fish in summer resorts and on passenger boats were made a specialty.—Toronto Star.

The Home Rule Act Is No Scrap of Paper

On St. Patrick's Day, the Irish leader, John E. Redmond, cabled the following message to The Toronto Daily Star:

"At the outbreak of the war I took the responsibility of saying that a wider knowledge of the facts of Irish history had altered the views of the British democracy toward the Irish question, and that I hopestly believed the democracy of Ireland would turn with the utmost sympathy to Britain in every trial and danger. I went further and offered the co-operation of the Irish National Volunteers with the Ulster Volunteers to guard the shores of Ireland so as to enable Government troops to proceed to the fighting-line.

"Nothing in recent Irish history is more remarkable than the alacrity and unanimity with which the Irish endorsed this policy. From every part came assurances that the National Volunteers accepted the suggestion. Ireland has over 200,000 with the colours, and recruiting is still going on.

"Our people are convinced that this war is a just war. They recognize it is the duty of Ireland to bear cheerfully her share of the burden. They recognise that the Home Rule Act is not a scrap of paper to be torn up like the German treaty with Belgium. They look upon it as a solemn treaty of the British and Irish nations, and feel they would be acting not only dishonorably, but in violation of all the professions of Irish leaders from O'Connell down if they refused to accept the duties and responsibilities of their position as a true, self-governing unit within the British Empire. In this great crisis Ireland stands united and confident behind her chosen leaders. That is the most cheering fact in the situation this St. Patrick's Day."

NARROWS NEARLY WON.

Captain Says Only One Fortress Now Stops Advance of Fleet.

LONDON, March 18.—A despatch from Malta says:

"According to a captain recently from the vicinity of the Dardanelles, all the defences of the Narrows have been bombarded and the guns all silenced except in one stronghold situated on a considerable height, where 14-inch guns are mounted. This is yet to be dealt with successfully. There are also several batteries of concealed howitzers, he says, difficult to locate by the seaplanes. All the damage done to the warships of the combined fleet has been easily repairable on the spot."

The commander of the French battleship Charlemagne in an interview yesterday at Tenedos, Greece, stated that bad weather had seriously interfered with the operations of the allied fleet against the Dardanelles. Thus far, however, he declared, every resistance had been effectively silenced from the entrance to the straits to Keppez Burnu (in the Narrows). This entire stretch of water, a distance of twelve miles, was declared by the commander to now be entirely free from mine danger.

A casualty list issued by the British Admiralty last night discloses that in the fighting in the Dardanelles Saturday night the light cruiser Amethyst, which, according to an Athens despatch, made a dash through the strait as far as Nagara, had 29 men killed and 19 men severely and 18 men slightly wounded.

The battleship Ocean had two men killed and the battleship Prince George two men wounded, while two trawlers between them had three men killed and two wounded.

Gen. Leman Refuses Parole.

PARIS, March 18. — Gen. Leman, prisoner in Germany, has refused to accept his liberty under a parole which the Germans have offered him, according to a letter received by one of his friends, a major in a Belgian engineer corps.

Gen. Leman replied to the offer of a parole, he wrote his friend, that his first act on obtaining freedom would be to offer his services to Belgium and his King. He added that the wound in his foot, which had troubled him so long, had at last healed.

He Certainly Helps.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

COLLEGIATES, UNKNOWNS AND CRESSMANS ALL RETAIN THEIR PLACES

The brand of basketball that is being uncorked by the teams in the present League is certainly very pleasing to those interested in present and future of the game, and the class shown by the youngsters who have just broken into the game this year argues well the advance of the king of indoor sports.

In last night's Collegiate-Booster game there was action all the time, and the result was in doubt right up till the last minute. Both teams have a strong, rangy quintette of players, and they brought everything they had in them, in the line of skill, out last night. Both teams played a fast, consistent game, and worked hard all the time. Canniff was high score for the Collegiate team, while Horsefield was pioneer in shooting for the Boosters. The first half ended 17—10, in favour of the students, but Capt. Best got his Boosters boosting right at the start-off in the second half, and tied up the score. It was a see-saw game for a time, but the Collegiate boys succeeded in pulling away, the final score registering, Collegiate 29, Boosters 20

Following is the line-up:

Collegiate—Jobbitt, Canniff, Stuart, Lewis, Eastwood.

Boosters — Horsefield, Best, Kerr, Preston, Munro.

Referee, Carson; timer, Hamilton; scorer, Taylor.

In the De Laval—Unknown game, the De Lavals were again out with a strong argument, but Geo. Robertson and his bunch of Unknowns had their hodoo sign out, and succeeded in continuing in their winning streak. With the veteran captain himself doing herculean work. The De Laval team's centre man, Jim Downey, met with an accident, and had to retire. His team had to substitute a player who had never been with them, which always has a tendency to weaken team play. The game was clean and fast from start to finish, and had the De Lavals been at full strength for the full game there is no doubt but what the score would have been closer. As it was the losers succeeded in holding the score down to 26—13.

Following is the line-up:

De Laval—Taylor, Horsefield Downing, Hamilton, Emmerson.

Unknowns — Heaslip, Robertson, Smith, Mulhern, Brown.

Referee, F. Cressman; scorer, Thackeray.

VANCOUVERS FAVOURED FOR THE STANLEY CUP

OTTAWA, March 17. — While the champion Ottawas are rolling West to meet the Vancouver team in the world's hockey series, local hockey followers are busily speculating as to their chances of success against Frank Patrick's Club. The Ottawas reached Chicago this morning, and after an hour's stay there continued on their journey. They are due at Seattle Friday night. Then they go north along the coast to Vancouver. They will be able to hold workouts at Vancouver Saturday, and possibly on Sunday, in order to get the train kinks out of their muscles. The big matches take place Monday, the 22, Wednesday, the 24, and Friday, the 26. Should a fourth game be necessary, it will be played on Monday, the 29th. Western rules will be in vogue for the first match, and for the second the clubs will play under the Eastern system. In the third they revert to the seven man game, and so on until the series has been decided. The big end of the purse, the Stanley Cup and the world's title will go to the club winning the first three games. Goals do not count, as in previous Stanley Cup matches.

Without endeavouring to prepare a soft spot for the Senators to fall into, one may safely say that the National Hockey Association champions will require to carry a big handicap. In the first place, the Pacific Coast winners will have the majority of the games under their rules; in the second, the Westerners are familiar with the N. H. A. system, while the Ottawas have much to learn about the Western style, particularly the rule concerning the forward pass within the middle circle. Besides, the long train journey, following close upon their gruelling race in the N.H.A., and the home-and-home series against the Wanderers, will undoubtedly cause some reaction in the play of the Senators. Moreover, they should have a week or so to become acclimatized.

Makes Them Dopey.

Jack Darragh, Clymer Shore, Art Ross, Clint Benedict, and others who have been beyond the Rockies on previous occasions, claim that the change of air makes them sleepy. This was found to be the case with the Regina, Montreal, and National lacrosse teams when they went West to try for the Minto Cup. Add on to all this the fact that the Vancouver team has had a good rest since the close of their championship season; also their opportunity to practice the six-man game, and it will be realized that the Ottawas have been requested to carry a lot of weight. Wanderers would have been under a similar grain had they qualified to play for the world's championship. However, the Ottawas are just as determined to win the worlds title as they were to annex the National Hockey Association honours, and if they return with the championship nothing will be too good for Coach Smith and his squad.

The Ottawas are agreeable to Tom Phillips as Western referee, and if necessary will take another coast man as the second official. Word was expected concerning the appointment of an Eastern man. It is unfortunate that Cooper Smeaton could not have gone, as he is undoubtedly the best referee in the East. True, he fell below expectations in the final game between the Wanderers and Ottawa at Montreal, but the strain must have been a racking one, and he could not have been expected to stop everything. Tom Phillips should make an excellent official.

SLASH WAGES IN CANADIAN BALL LEAGUE

May Spell the Doom of the Canadian League According to Second Sacker of London Club

TATTERED STIPENDS

Slices in salaries of the Canadian League ball players may spell the doom of the Canuck organization, according to Eddie Linneborn, second sacker of the London club last year. Eddie was in the city on Wednesday night with the Germans, and before the game he became engaged in a baseball bee.

Linneborn declared that he had no desire to return to the Canuck league this season, and from what he had learned of other players during the winter months, very few are satisfied with their berths. He attributed the feeling of displeasure to the excessive cuts in salaries throughout the League.

Many of the London players refused to consider the contracts sent them for the coming season. Most of them entirely ignored them and tore them up after glancing over the salary question. "While I was in Detroit on a two weeks' trip," said Eddie, "I met Steiger and a number of others. They all told me they had torn up their contracts. I don't know what will become of the League if the club owners persist in such cuts."

Canuck leaguers found it necessary to drop Toronto and Peterborough for the best interests of the league, and the Erie franchise has not yet been disposed of. In face of these rocks and the persistent cuts in salaries, it is evident that the League will have hard sailing through the year.

Steiger was one of the best left-handed pitchers in the League last year. He, with Linneborn and others, have decided to quit the League unless their salaries are up to last year's pay.

Shears, of Hamilton, is another flinger whose stipend was badly tattered, and now the Hamilton owners are looking for a market to place the long-geared redhead.

The Farmer Is Holding On

To the Wheat Supply—This and Lack of Flour Orders Close Down Mills

CHICAGO, March 18—The grip of the farmer is tightening on the small supply of wheat now in his bins on the farm or in the country elevator near his home. When it is known that many mills have been closed down in the southwest because of a lack of supply of wheat with which to keep the machinery running, it points to the producer of wheat as holding the whip hand. There is probably another excuse for some of the mills remaining idle at this particular season, and that is the lack of demand for flour.

The cash handlers of wheat at Chicago complain of small offerings from all the States tributary to this market. There is some wheat that already has been contracted for and which is now coming out of Nebraska and Iowa and some wheat coming from the Northwest, but the matter of supplying the demand here is out of the question. Millers here, however, are buying little wheat.

Sentiment on wheat was bearish today, and here, were price losses of 5-8c to 3 1-2c for the day There was more May wheat for sale than for some time past, and this was snapped up eagerly by shorts. The market started out in an abrupt and strong manner, but the highest prices were reached early, and the entire speculative feature was without power of regaining lost ground.

A sustaining power in wheat or a power possibly that kept the bears from attacking the market in a more pronounced way was the steadiness in spot wheat at Liverpool following the decline at Chicago. Paris wheat 1-2c higher. Liverpool reported the political situation there as offsetting the effect of the decline at Chicago, yesterday. This cable was from Broomhall, and he possibly referred to the demands of Italy and Austria. The same authority reported more progress of the allies in the Dardenelles, but said that Russian grain merchants have little anticipation of an early opening of the straits and that supplies at ports are light and prices advancing.

Voice of The People

Peterborough, March 18, 1915.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—It would be interesting to know on what grounds the Finance Committee of the City Council imagine they have the right to spend the money of the taxpayers at large to help keep up the musical organization of one of the many religious denominations of this city—for that is what the grant to the Salvation Army Band means.

To support a non-sectarian city band, such as the 57th and the old fire brigade band have been in effect for many years, may be defended, but to divide the amount equally with the Army or any other denomination is not only unjust and unwise, but absolutely wrong in principle.

It is unjust to the 57th Band, for if the city solons are to distribute their grant to every organization calling itself a band, and they all have as much right to it as the Army—then how much is going to be the proportion for what is always looked upon as Peterborough's band? How can it be expected to keep up such a state of efficiency as will be worthy of the city, and how can it be expected to put itself out to provide free weekly entertainments in the park as it has in the past? For these reasons also, Mr. Editor, the action of the committee is surely most unwise.

It is wrong and most pernicious in principle to spend the public money to support the orchestra of any religious denomination. Has not every sect an equal right to a grant? Why should not the other denominations demand a grant towards a church bill or a set of chimes? They have every bit as good a claim to it. It will no doubt be contended that the Salvation Army on account of playing on the streets and in the park, have a right to support, but who outside of themselves ever asked them or wanted them to be eternally kicking up such a rumpus? Can not church bells be heard by the public also, and are not chimes, as we are never allowed to forget "Peoples' Chimes"?

Is it not about time, Mr. Editor, to get away from sham and pretence in this matter, and let each denomination stand on its own feet and pay its own bills? If it wants chimes let it pay for them, and it is no one else's business; if it wants a bell or a stringed orchestra let it pay the cost and no one can object; and also if it wants a band, why then as long as it does not make too big a nuisance of itself, let it have a band and pay for it.

To look at the matter in another light just imagine, from past experience, what a pow-wow would be kicked up if an attempt were made to give such a grant under any circumstances whatever, to any organization connected with a certain other church in this town. It would be some riot; and the grant would be just as justifiable. It is to be hoped that the Council will do its duty in this matter when it comes before it.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, allow me to thank you for your space, and to say that I am not connected in even the remotest degree with the church last referred to, or with the 57th Band.

Yours truly,

TAXPAYER.

SEWER WANTED ON BOUNDARY ROAD

Messrs. V. W. Lancaster, William Maud and H. Shorter, property owners on the west boundary, waited upon the Board of Works last evening with the request that a sewer be constructed on the boundary road between Charlotte and King Streets. Mr. Lancaster said that he had constructed three houses on the boundary road which were without sewer connection.

Ald. Green was of the opinion that the city had been somewhat dilatory in the matter of constructing sewers throughout the city and that property owners on the boundary were entitled to civic conveniences as well as those residing closer in. He did not think it was right to charge them higher taxes and not provide the same facilities as other citizens are privileged to have.

Mr. Lancaster pointed out that the property was supplied with the water service and that property owners were required to pay as much for water as though the sewer were in. He was willing to pay for both frontages providing the city would agree to a rebate later on.

Legislation Wanted.

The difficulty of fixing the assessment on the boundary road was referred to by His Worship Mayor Buller. An attempt was being made to secure a legislative enactment whereby property owners on both sides of boundary roads would be assessable. As an alternative, Ald. Green pointed out that the parties concerned could go to the Board of Health and if the latter saw fit they could recommend the construction of the sewer. This would strengthen the hands of the Council and put that body in a position to act.

Annex Boundaries.

Mr. A. Jobe, deputy-reeve of Smith township, who was present, was asked for an expression of opinion regarding a proposal whereby the city would annex all boundary roads, including the depth of a lot on the township side of the road.

In reply Mr Jobe said that so far as Monaghan was concerned, the scheme would be practicable but in the case of the boundary road between the city and Smith township, where there is four miles of boundary roads bordered by farms it would hardly be fair to annex the land and assess it at city rates.

The annual charge for a sewer is approximately three or four cents per lineal foot or for an average city lot, about one dollar a year. Spread over a period of thirty years, Mr. Lancaster for one, signified willingness to pay for both frontages until such time as legislation could be obtained, compelling property owners on the township side to share the cost.

The matter will be dealt with at an early date.

GERMAN SUBMARINES AND MINES TAKE HEAVY TOLL

British Steamship Leeuwarden is Destroyed by Gunfire From German U-28, Off Coast of Holland—Blonde is Attacked From Above by an Aeroplane—Cameronia Eludes Enemy.

LONDON, March 18.—Five British vessels were yesterday reported to have been destroyed by German torpedoes and mines; six lives are known to be lost.

Leeuwarden—Off Holland; crew of 17 saved.

Atlanta—Off west coast of Ireland; crew saved; March 14.

Fingal—Off England; six of crew lost; March 15.

Beeswing—In North Sea; reported lost.

The Leeuwarden was sunk by the German submarine U-28. She was not torpedoed, but was sunk by gun-fire from the deck of the submarine, after an exciting chase of over half an hour.

When the Leeuwarden first sighted the submarine the latter signalled her to stop. The British commander refused and steered off at full speed. The submarine fired four times before the Leeuwardens captain, seeing that escape was impossible, surrendered. The ship was sunk by four more shots from the gun on the submarine.

The Admiralty yesterday made the following announcement:

"The British steamer Atlanta, 519 tons, owned by Messrs. J. & F. Hutchison of Glasgow, was torpedoed by a German submarine off Inishturk, on the west coast of County Galway, Ireland, about noon of March 14. The crew was landed on Inishturk Island, and the vessel is now in the harbor.

"The British steamer Fingal, of 1,532 gross tons (661 net tons), owned by the London & Edinburgh Shipping Co. of Leith, Scotland, was torpedoed and sunk at 10.50 a.m., March 15, off the Northumberland coast. Twenty-one members of her crew were landed at North Shields, but six lives are reported to have been lost, including the chief mate and the stewardess."

The steamship Beeswing, which left the Tyne for Dieppe on March 2, has not been heard from since and is believed to have been torpedoed.

The trawler Balmoral has been lost at sea through the agency of mines or torpedoes and her crew of nine have been given up as dead.

The British steamship Blonde, arriving at South Shields yesterday, reports that she was attacked in the North Sea by a German aeroplane, which dropped a bomb on the deck of the vessel. One member of the crew was killed.

The Cunarder Cameronia, which left New York on March 6, has succeeded in reaching Glasgow after running the gauntlet of three German submarines in the Irish Sea. The Cameronia put in at Liverpool. She left the Mersey yesterday morning carrying a crew of over 200, and a considerable number of passengers bound for Glasgow.

In the afternoon the first submarine was noticed off the Mull of Calloway. The submarine, which was only 250 yards away when her periscope was seen, tried to get nearer the liner, but was outdistanced, as the Cameronia was doing 18 knots.

Fifteen minutes later two other submarines appeared simultaneously, one on the port and one on the starboard side. Each was distant about 800 yards.

The captain of the Cameronia steered a zigzag course in order to avoid torpedoes. In half an hour he had shaken both of the hostile vessels off.

EMPLOYERS' AND WORKERS' CONFERENCE IN LONDON

Lloyd George Summons a Notable Gathering of Representatives of Capital, Labour and Administrative Officials in Connection With Government's New Control Over Factories.

LONDON, March 18. — Factory owners, labor leaders and representatives of the engineering, shipbuilding, coal mining, transportation and other industries had a meeting in London yesterday with David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer; a member of the committee on imperial defence, naval and military officers of high rank, and other Government officials, to discuss the problems arising from the decision of the Government to assume control of factories in England and thus increase the production of war material.

The conference was unique in history, at the same time being one of the most important meetings held since the beginning of the war. The first step decided upon was the appointment of a committee of seven, composed of labor officials and representatives of all the industries concerned, to act in an advisory capacity to the Government. The selection of a man to head this great organization was tentatively discussed, as was the remuneration the workmen should receive under the new arrangements.

In an address appealing for an increase in the output of war material, the Chancellor said:

"Recent battles have shown that the tremendous concentration of artillery fire recently — the greatest which has been witnessed upon any given point during the whole war—not only ensured success, but has saved the lives of the soldiers who made the attacks. Therefore, if the workmen and factory owners desire to see the country win and are anxious to save the lives of men they must accelerate the output of munitions.

"To assist in this, the Government has decided to take over the works. In doing so the Government proposes to impose a limitation on the profits and to ask the men to relax trade union restrictions and put their whole strength into the work."

Before doing this, the Chancellor suggested, a complete understanding was desirable with the employers and workers. To the latter he proposed that, with a view of preventing a diminution in production by disputes, no stoppage of work by strike or lockout should take place with respect to work for Government purposes. In event of difficulties existing the matter should be referred to an impartial tribunal appointed by the Government, on which labor should be equally represented with the employers.

As to trade union restrictions which tended to diminish the output, the Chancellor asked that while the war lasted they should be suspended so far as they concerned semi-skilled and female labor, which had been usefully employed in the French munition factories.

In conclusion, he asked for the co-operation of the labor leaders in dealing with the drink question, which was a most difficult one. In some districts this was very serious, and, he declared, was gravely interfering with the amount of the output.

Another conference will be held to-day.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

What's Doing in Civic Circles—Items of Interest Concerning Municipal Administration

The Hydro Radial Union scheme has few supporters more enthusiastic than His Worship Mayor Buller. Last evening he took the Smith deputation in hand and endeavoured to exact a promise that they would be represented at the big meeting to be held in Toronto on March 26th.

Was Recalled.

This occurred during the Board of Works meeting. When a division was expected Mayor Buller was notified by special messenger to the effect that his presence was required in the committee room.

Peterborough Will be There.

Peterborough will be represented in the deputation that will wait upon the Provincial Government on March 26th to ask for assistance in connection with the development of the Hydro Radial scheme.

Is Indisposed.

Ald. Weir of the East Ward is suffering from the effects of a bad cold. Unlike a number of his colleagues, he did not fail to attend last night's meeting of the Board of Works.

Council Meeting.

A meeting of the City Council is in prospect for Monday evening next. There is a possibility that the rate may be decided upon. The Council will also be asked to endorse the recommendation to oil the streets.

WITH OTHER MUNICIPALITIES.

Two Toronto men met the Board of Trade of Owen Sound regarding the cost of erecting the proposed municipal elevator in that city. An elevator with a capacity of five hundred thousand bushels, will cost $200,000.

Hydro-Electric.

The Hydro power was turned on in Grantham township, county of Lincoln, for the first time Tuesday at McNabb parish hall. The inaugural meeting was largely attended.

A Civic Plant.

The Hamilton Board of Control decided to send a deputation to Toronto to ask the Provincial Government to make a grant for Hydro radials.

Another Casualty.

Wm. Parkinson, reeve of Eramosa, near Guelph, died suddenly. He is the third reeve of the township of Eramosa to die inside of a few months.

Stricken With Paralysis.

County Clerk Joseph N. Rutherford, of Owen Sound, formerly Mayor of that town, is critically ill. He was stricken with paralysis.

City Solicitor Dead.

Mr. Joseph Nelles, for 21 years City Solicitor of Woodstock, died Tuesday, aged 76.

BOARD OF WORKS FAVOUR USE OF OIL TO ALLAY DUST

After Prolonged Deliberation Committee Decide to Recommend That the Council Use Oil Instead of Water as a Remedy For the Dust Evil---Fourteen Miles of Street to be Treated.

One result of last night's meeting of the Board of Works is that the committee will recommend the use of oil instead of water to allay the dust on the City's streets. Ald. Green cast the deciding vote when the committee came to a deadlock over Ald. Edgar's resolution recommending the use of oil on all the streets that were watered last year, including Park Street, from Wolfe Street to the C. P. R., and in front of the De Laval factory, and Ald. Weir's amendment to oil one mile of roadway in each ward as an experiment, and use water on the remainder. Ald. Weir's amendment was lost and Ald. Edgar's motion sustained.

Mr. R. H. Parsons, City Engineer, submitted comparative figures showing the cost of applying asphaltic road oil in various cities throughout Ontario. The average cost is approximately eight cents per foot, or about thirty-five dollars for each city block. Samples of the oil were submitted. This would work out at about two dollars per season for a fifty-foot lot. Very little odour was claimed for the oil which is of a dark colour and somewhat oderous when first applied.

Ald. Dobbin remarked that George street, north, was the worst street in the city for dust. He would willingly pay his share of the cost.

Ald. McIntyre failed to see the justification for the city spending four or five thousand dollars for oil. The money would leave the City and deprive local labour of employment.

"How many workingmen do you employ putting on water?" enquired Ald. Weir.

"About six teams," replied City Engineer Parsons.

Ald. Dobbin remarked that the same number of men would be required to apply the oil.

Keeping the money here and giving it to five or six men at the expense of other ratepayers is hardly a square deal," put in Ald. Edgar.

Ald. Saunders said that the standpipes were too far apart to be of satisfactory service to the street watering men.

Ald. McIntyre was in favour of using oil on a limited area as an experiment.

City Engineer Parsons estimated the area to be oiled at approximately fourteen miles. Last year about seventeen miles of roadway was watered.

A Caucus.

The two south end representatives were divided between oil and water. They went into a caucus on their own account and emerged unanimously in favour of oil.

Ald. Edgar moved that oil be used in the south Ward, and that Park street be oiled as far as the De Laval Dairy Supply Company. This was seconded by Ald. Saunders.

Ald. Green pointed out that Ald. Edgar's motion exceeded the limit set by the appropriation and that if he was willing to move for an increased appropriation the motion would be in order.

"We certainly want Park Street oiled as far as the De Laval," said Ald. Edgar. "The south end of the city is the industrial section and is productive of considerable revenue for the city."

"The fixed assessments are in the south end," observed Ald. Green.

Ald. McIntyre was in favour of watering fourteen miles and using oil on three miles as an experiment.

"It would cost the city one thousand dollars to get ready to water the streets, by the time new tanks were purchased," said Ald. Edgar.

A vote was then taken, with the above result.

The oil is said to be of a non-destructive quality and will not injure automobile tires.

He resigned in the latter year and was appointed Collector of Customs at this port. Mr. White is an unusually well-informed man. He has written extensively, is a well-known speaker and has made hosts of friends.—Journal of Commerce.

INCREASING REVENUE.

Scope of Ontario Succession Duties Act To Be Enlarged.

TORONTO, March 18. — The Ontario Government will in future collect larger succession duties from the smaller estates. Instead of all estates under $50,000 going to direct heirs free of duties, $25,000 is now set as the minimum. On all sums in excess of this, up to $75,000, the rate will be 1 1-2 per cent.

Those estates which now go to collateral heirs and to others than relatives, will hereafter be forced to subscribe to new conditions. Whereas, $10,000 has been counted the minimum, $5,000 is now fixed, and a charge of six per cent. will be levied for estates valued up to $25,000. Those over that figure will pay 10 per cent.

Hon. T. W. McGarry, in making these announcements in the Legislature yesterday, took occasion to point out that the estates of all soldiers killed at the front would be entirely relieved of succession duties.

Delay In Thaw Case.

Finance Minister Agrees to Reductions in War Taxes

OTTAWA, March 18. — A slim House discussed some details of the new budget yesterday afternoon and evening, in committee of ways and means, and the tariff resolutions went through without much discussion. They are as announced in the budget speech except that bananas, fertilisers, cotton seed meal, coffee, manuscripts, platinum, spun silk and milk food are exempted from the war duty of 7 1-2 per cent. (5 per cent. British preference).

The special taxes and stamp taxes are modified in some particulars. Purely mutual insurance companies are exempted from the tax upon net premiums, and the tax upon perfumes and proprietary medicines is reduced from 10 per cent. to 4 per cent.

Promissory notes and bills of exchange not negotiated through a bank will not require a stamp. Press despatches are exempted from the stamp duty on telegraph messages. The special tax on wines is changed as follows: On non-sparkling wines from 5c. a quart to 3c. a pint and on champagne 25c. a pint to 13c. a half pint.

When the special taxes were taken up for consideration some discussion arose as to the propriety of a tax upon the profits of the joint stock companies carrying on life insurance business, in which R. B. Bennett (Calgary), W. F. Maclean (S. York), and Hon. Wm. Pugsley participated.

At the evening session, after some discussion as to the duties upon agricultural implements, the House took under consideration the special tax levied upon banknote issues, and the net premiums of fire insurance and certain other insurance companies.

ANNUAL DRAMATIC OFFERING BY T.A.S. THESPIANS WENT WELL

The Grand Opera House Sold Out For Big St. Patrick's Day Reunion — Play Was a Light One and Proved Very Interesting.

THE CASTE OF CHARACTERS

"A Bit o' Blarney," described as a rollicking Irish comedy drama in three acts and presented by St. Peter's T.A.S. dramatic club packed the Grand Opera House to its capacity last night. An almost unbroken succession of these events has established the local custom of celebrating St. Patrick's Day in this quiet and enjoyable manner. The entertainment has become a signal for the annual re-union of many of the citizens whose family trees are rooted in the Emerald Isle and others who like to swing on their branches. If the Opera House could accommodate more, no doubt the extra seats would be occupied. Last nights' gathering was a great big happy family, with hearts warmed by the traditions of the festival and possibly touched by the memories of departed dear ones who in a far off day had been close to the Auld Sod. Maybe, too, these plays remove for the time being the mists from the imagination which gropes for a vision of the storied hedges, greens and bogs, the flowers, the birds, the old games and the mystic colleen with sea blue eyes. At any rate the re-unions probably help to keep fresh a love for the land of the shamrock, and to promote deeper friendships among the present generation.

"A Bit o' Blarney" offers another interesting variation of the eternal triangle which forms the basic plot upon which many plays with an Irish setting are constructed. There is a fair colleen and her lover who becomes tangled in a web of difficulties woven by an unscrupulous individual who wants the colleen himself. All the other business is generally incidental and usually humorous. The story of last night's production was briefly as follows: Squire Rossmore had forged a will, giving him his uncle's property. The uncle died in California and entrusted the true will to Edward Lawton, a lawyer, who arrives in Ireland in the first act. Rody, the Rover, the rightful heir is in love with Rosaleen O'Connor, with whom the squire is favourably impressed. The latter learns through one Cassidy of Lawton's mission and decides to get the will. Lawton entrusts a mysterious box containing a bit of the Blarney stone to his servant. Cassidy hired to get the box, attacks the servant and kills him in a glen where Rody and his sweetheart had held a tryst. Rody left his blackthorn there and Cassidy finds it an incriminating evidence. He drops the servant into the River Shannon off stage, and accuses Rody of murder. Curtain.

Act II developed the arrest of Rody. In the last act, Lawton returns and secures Rody's liberation. The latter, dressed as a ghost, appeared before Cassidy who was the worse of liquor. Cassidy tells all he knows and departs to give himself up. Enter the officers of the law to arrest the squire as an accomplice. The true will is read. Rody and Rosaleen have their happiness restored and the wedding bells promise to ring also for the lawyer and Rody's sisters.

The Caste.

The caste of characters was as follows:

Rody, the Rover— Edward Hanrahan.
Cuddeen Cassidy—Frank Grady.
Squire Rossmore—Wm. Primeau.
Edward Lawton—Vince McCabe.
Teddy Burke, the servant—Tim Collins.
Captain Castleton, of the Royal Dragoons—F. Boyle.
Corkerry, a Cockney sergeant—Ed. Riley.
Lady Patrice, Rody's sister—Josephine Collins.
Shevaun Jack, a widow—Annie Simons.
Colleens —Misses O. Tangney, M. Callahan, K. Moher.
Peasants and soldiers—Ed. Condon, Murty Brothers.

Acting Was Good.

From the above synopsis it will be apparent that the three acts were held together by an unusually slender thread and the success achieved was an additional tribute to the principals. They had very little to work upon, but they did that very creditably. Miss Lillian Simons and Mr. Eddie Hanrahan were very pleasing and convincing in their centre-stage roles. Miss Simons looked quite charming in an old-time dress, and Mr. Hanrahan was resplendent in a bright green suit, equally bright red hose, brown corduroy breeches, a pair of nifty pumps and a black thorn persuader. He was a gay gosoon alright and threw all his efforts into the work, receiving the best of support from Miss Simons. Mr. Hanrahan sang several songs in fine voice and stirring style. "There Never Was a Coward Where the Shamrock Grows" was accepted above par. He also sang a pretty little love song in the first act and was warmly encored. Mr. Will Primeau made up and acted his part as the squire with good effect. Mr. Frank Grady, the squire's hireling, brought all there was out of his role and drew many a laugh. His manoeuvres were natural and his assault on Teddy Burke was a realistic "murdthering." Vince McCabe, as the Californian, was breezy and suave and left little to be desired in his acting. Miss Josephine Collins hadn't an extensive role, but she played it well, and incidentally wore three beautiful costumes, in a manner that may have aroused a bit of envy among the feminine section of the audience. James Condon showed himself some fiddler in the second act when an old square dance was incidentally added, and among the dancers Mr. Gerald McFadden was not the least prominent. Miss Annie Simons looks and acted her part perfectly. Her vocal contribution during the play was well received. Mr. Ed. Boyle filled the dragoon captain's uniform completely and added his share to the action in good style.

Among the specialties the dancing of Mr. Houlihan and the Murty boys was very pleasing. Mr. Houlihan being especially graceful. Miss Moher and Mr. McCabe sang several Irish numbers in good style.

The orchestra presented a fine programme of old Irish airs, and taking it altogether, the entertainment was a gratifying success.

To Change Street Names

City Solicitor Gordon will be asked to prepare a by-law changing the name of Cedar street; also any other streets that may be defined by the Council. If the by-law goes through Cedar street will become Murray Street and Babb's Lane will lose its identity in so far as the present name is concerned. The Council may decide to call it Cox street, owing to its proximity to the Cox property. Wherever there is a duplication of streets an effort will be made to change them. The whole will cost in the neighbourhood of one hundred dollars.

LETTER FROM FRONT

Y. M. C. A. Representative Tells of the Work Among Soldiers

The following letter has been received from Capt. H. A. Pearson, the Peterborough man, who is one of the representatives of the Y. M. C. A. with the First Canadian Contingent:

Flanders, Feb. 28, 1915.

There is so much to tell I scarcely know where to begin. I arrived in Rouen early this morning and had the great pleasure of receiving letters, the book of poems, also a chocolate bar from the boys—the latter somewhat the worse for wear, but it was all I had for dinner to-night, so I appreciated it.

I left Rouen at noon and am now in a place which must be nameless. The latter part of this month I have spent among our men at a place called C———, and the trip took me to two important places (Ypres and Armentieres.) That my trip has been filled with interest you may be sure, and it was a pleasure to meet with so many old friends. I spent an evening with Lovelace and Burgoyne, of St. Catharines. Looked for Frank (brother), but could not find him.

I enjoyed the trip in Belgium, especially, and am sorry it is impossible to give you details of all that happened. I am with Major Moore, of Winnipeg, C.O., M.T.S., who I mentioned in one of my former letters. I found our men in need of the supplies and my work here is to collect such quantities of paper, matches, etc., as I can, and cover the ground again. These trips are made possible by the fact that recent developments on the channel have delayed the opening of that spot known as S.S, where I expect to be stationed. I am sending Mr. B——— a report of my work, and hope you see some of it.

Can Jack steer his sleigh yet? The little boys in this land are rolling hoops, tossing coins, etc., but so many men are away at the front that even small boys have to work hard, and up in Belgium many little fellows not more than 10 years old are working on the roads filling up the holes caused by shell-fire. The schools are closed, the school houses being occupied by soldiers.

Even the dogs have to work, and many small carts are used, drawn by three or four dogs.

It is hard to realize the day just passed has been Sunday.

Yours truly,
H. A. PEARSON,
Y.M.C.A. Representative.

PRESENTATION WAS MADE

Mr. and Mrs. David Rice Honoured by Their Friends

A large number of neighbours and friends of Mr. and Mrs. David Rice, of Otonabee, gathered at their home last night to say good-bye to them on the occasion of their departure to take up residence in Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. Rice were presented with a set of dishes and two handsome chairs, and the following address;

To Mr. and Mrs. Rice, Otonabee:

Dear Friends,—We, your neighbours and associates, for so many years, having learned of your contemplated removal from our midst, gather around you this evening. Sentiments of regret and pleasure have brought us together; regret because of the thought that we are now to say adieu to you, on this, your departure from our midst; and pleasure, because this opportunity has been afforded us to assemble about you and wish you well in your new field of labour. We wish to-night to express to you, the very high esteem in which you are held in this community. You are leaving Otonabee, carrying with you the admiration, love and good wishes of all who have had the privilege of knowing you.

Your ready, witty and genial way, Mr. Rice, have made you a person sought after by many friends. You, Mrs. Rice, always extended a willing hand to help in everything that was good, especially where sympathy and aid were needed at the sick-bed. This had won for you a warm place in all our hearts. Remembering this, we feel sorry at the prospect of losing you.

Permit us here to add that we will very much miss the sweet innocent voices, of your children. In losing them we feel that in coming years there will be a gap that will be hard to fill.

Therefore in view of your inesteemable qualities and services rendered, we cannot permit you to depart from us without presenting these few earnest words to you and to these we desire to add and tender to you these chairs and dishes.

Wishing you peace, happiness and prosperity in your city home.

Signed on behalf of your friends,
Mrs. Michael Crowley,

ABUSING THE EYE.

The eye has always been recognised as a most delicate and most easily injured organ of the body, and still there are lots of people who will go to a drug store, hardware store, or a ten-cent store to get their eyes fitted with glasses. That is poor economy when there is an exclusive Optical Specialist like the Tait Optical Co. so handy, where your eyes are examined and glasses supplied at the most reasonable price consistent with good work. 1d-65

Big Summer Resort Trade Is Promised

The outlook for the summer tourist season is beginning to loom up with most encouraging promise. A prominent Stoney Lake cottager is authority for the statement that the signs point to a big year with a heavy influx from the United States. The European haunts are sentried round about and submarines threaten the overseas commerce. In short, the old land is too busy settling its present difficulties to be encumbered by the usual legions of Americans on pleasure bent. It is stated that many of the hotels in Ontario's highlands are booked to the limit for the summer by neighbours to the south and native sons and dauzhters. The Kawartha chain will undoubtedly be included in the itineraries of the summer visitors.

Mr. Ben Yelland of Dunnville is the first arrival at Stoney Lake, having passed through to-day to open for the season.

Late Dr. Cornwall.

The many citizens of Omemee and vicinity heard of the death of the late Dr. Cornwall with a great deal of regret, the worthy Doctor having been a man highly respected and honoured in the community and throughout the county. He was an honourable man and straightforward in every respect. Death occurred at his residence, "The Elms," after an illness of some nine years, the deceased being 84 years of age. The late Vincent Cumming Cornwall, M. D., was born at Trinidad, Port of Spain, B.W.I., but for upwards of forty years, has resided in Omemee, where he practiced medicine with success. Several years ago he purchased a farm adjoining the village. Later on he moved to the farm and gave up his practice. Rheumatism troubled him and for nine years past the Doctor has been confined to his bed from the above ailment.

Dr. Cornwall was a public-spirited and broad-minded man, always ready to converse on the topic of the day. He took an active part in municipal matters and for years represented the village as Reeve, serving on the School Board prviously. He was also Warden of the County of Victoria, an office which he filled to the satisfaction of his colleagues and with credit to himself.

The deceased is survived by one son, Richard J., on the farm, as well as three daughters, Emily, Daisy and Clara, at home.

The funeral took place from his late residence to the Anglican Church for service, afterwards to the Emily cemetery, on Sunday afternoon.

TWO BRITISH BATTLESHIPS HAVE BEEN LOST

THE BRITISH CASUALTIES WERE NOT HEAVY

VICE-ADMIRAL CARDEN IS REPORTED KILLED

Commander of the Allied Fleet at the Dardanelles Either Killed or Badly Wounded in an Engagement Inside the Strait---Bombardment is Renewed.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, MARCH 20.—The Admiralty announced last night that the British battleships Ocean and Irresistible and the French battleship Bouvet struck drifting mines in the Dardanelles yesterday and were sunk. Most of the crew on the Bouvet were lost, but nearly all the crews of the British warships were saved.

This is the most serious loss sustained by the Anglo-French fleet under Vice-Admiral Carden, which has been bombarding the straits intermittently for more than two months, and has been increased until it is now the most powerful aggregation of fighting ships ever assembled for war purposes. The three ships went down under a furious cannonading inside the straits, just outside the Narrows, in which 16 battleships participated in relays. The big British battle-cruiser Inflexible and the French battleship Gaulois were put out of commission temporarily by lucky shots from the Turkish forts.

The vessels destroyed will not it is stated by the Admiralty officials, interfere with the Dardanelles operations in the slightest. The lost ships will be replaced, and the attack on the forts will be carried on until the strait is passed. Naval experts say that both France and Great Britain expected to pay a big price for the possession of Constantinople and that the general scheme discounts even greater losses than that of yesterday. Three fresh battleships are now on their way to the Dardanelles to fill the vacancies left by the loss of the Irresistible, Ocean and Gaulois.

MENACE OF FLOATING MINES

The mines in the Dardanelles have proved a much greater menace to the allied fleet than the numerous forts, and naval authorities have predicted that as soon as the strait was cleared of that danger, the passage would soon be forced. Grimsby trawlers and French fishing boats have been sent to the scene in large numbers. and have been engaged night and day in sweeping the channels clear. At one time the task was almost completed, but recently the Germans and the Turks have adopted the plan of launching floating mines which come down against the ships with tremendous force, swept at the rate of nearly ten miles an hour by the strong current from the Sea of Marmora.

The loss of the three battleships, while highly regrettable, is not a serious blow to the British and French navies. The lost ships were all old, the Bouvet having been laid down a score of years ago, and the British vessels being about fifteen years old.

The damage done to the Turkish forts by the heavy bombardment has not yet been ascertained. It is stated that the operations against them are continuing. The forts attacked were those on either side of Kephez Bay, and on Kephez Point outside the Narrows, and those on Kilid Bahr and Chanak in the Narrows.

VICE-ADMIRAL REPORTED KILLED

LONDON, March 20.—That Vice-Admiral Carden, commanding the allied fleet at the Dardanelles, either was killed or badly wounded in an engagement inside the strait on Thursday ,was a report that gained much credence here to-day. Unofficial denials came from the Admiralty. It was stated that aside from the loss of the French battleship Bouvet and the British battleships Irresistible and Ocean, no serious casualties had been suffered by the allied fleet.

Despatches to the Admiralty early to-day indicated that the forts Kilid Bahr and Chanaak, guarding the Dardanelles Narrows, were heavily damaged before the Anglo-French fleet withdrew.

The report came from Athens to-day that part of the fleet had re-entered the strait and that shelling of the narrow forts had been resumed. The renewal of the bom-

Saw the Trading of War-Maimed Prisoners

NEW YORK, March 19.—Mrs. May. E. Maugan, fashion buyer for Gimbels, arrived on the Arabic after having spent six weeks in Paris, and paid a high tribute to the women of the French capital. She saw the first exchange of prisoners that took place at Boulogne, about a month ago.

"The women of Paris are wonderful," she said. "They have taken hold of the city and seem to be running it. You find them everywhere, on the tram cars, managing the shops, delivering the mail, and filling thousands of positions hitherto occupied by the men who are now at the front. They are sad, though, and I have seen many of them crying. Yet they are brave and steadfast, and make no protest against the war.

"I saw the first exchange of prisoners at Boulogne. The English and the French were all crippled. Some had lost arms, others legs, and one or two both legs. The exchange was based on the loss of limbs. For example, a German with an arm gone would be exchanged for an Englishman or Frenchman in the same condition.

"The great change in the fashions, of course, is the full, short skirt and the lovely boots that go with it. The skirt becomes any woman, and is altogether charming. The military idea becomes every woman, and is altogether charming. The military idea seems to prevail, one designer being the creator of a 'Turco' costume that is very novel and quite attractive."

A Letter From Pte. Miller

Peterborough Boy is With the 48th Highlanders in the Trenches

A letter has been received by Mrs. M. Pappas from her brother, Pte. J. R. Miller, formerly of this city, now in France with the 1st Contingent. Pte. Miller served eight years with the local militia before his removal to Toronto, where, when war was declared, he enlisted with the 48th Highlanders, who have already spent several days in the trenches. The letter gives no definite idea of the position of the troops, simply stating that they are in France. Evidences of the censor's work are quite apparent.

Convinced Karlsruhe Was Sunk

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 20.—The Secretary of the British Admiralty announces that there is every reason to believe that the German cruiser Karlsruhe was sunk in the neighbourhood of the West Indies at the beginning of November, and that those of her crew who were rescued reached Germany early in December on the steamer Rio Grande, which had been acting in concert with the Karlsruhe.

STRASSBURG CATHEDRAL THREATENED

Describing the great cathedral at Strassburg, a statement given out today by the National Geographic Society says:

"Just back of the line of battle in Alsace, within the zone where thorough-going destruction is threatened, another of the marvelous, most worth while works of our civilisation stands exposed to the varying chances of battle. This is the beautiful cathedral of Strassburg, an architectural glory which makes mock of modern satisfaction at the expense of earlier centuries. The enormous old minister, famed wherever joy in the ideal is felt, one of the choicest Gothic visions ever dreamed by a master mason, is a memory of ages when art was more a passion and religion, and less a means for preference and daily bread.

"Strassburg cathedral is a Christian epic in stone. Exquisite in proportion and detail, it rises, a great pile out of the surrounding city. Its spire vies with the loftiest daring of the New York makers of skyscrapers against a dark background of mountains, whose heights, with the cathedral spire watch over upper Alsace. The spire of the minister is a masterpiece, excelled by no other steeple and equalled by but few. It ends more than 500 feet above the town, and it is a wonder compelling structure of delicate, open stone work, rich in an endless complexity of forms. After finishing the one spire, builders never attempted to construct the proposed companion of it.

"Strassburg differs from other German cathedrals in that it possesses a greater width in proportion to its height. It is one of the most harmonious of Europe's sacred structures. The doors are very beautiful and the rose window, more than 40 feet in diameter, is an artistic achievement that wins the admiration of every visitor. The building was begun in 1176 and was completed in its present form in 1439. More or less extensive restorations have been necessary and their lamentable results give grounds for the most discouraging reflections upon the recently announced prediction that Rheims cathedral can be restored."

RUSSIAN VICTORY IN ADVANCE ON MEMIL

Opening of Spring in North Poland Has Closed All Middle Sections of Front Against Operations---Superiority of Numbers Win.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, March 20.—The Russians have won a complete success by a sudden rapid advance into the extreme northern strip of German territory facing Mendel. The German forces guarding the frontier was surprised and lost severely before it fled across the sand flats to the Baltic fortress.

All the middle sections of the northern front from the junction of the Bebr and Narew to the Augustowo forest is now closed against war operations. The Germans have ceased bringing fresh ammunition along the Lyck road, which projects like a breakwater across the melting swamps. The bombardment of Osowetz is ending through exhaustion. The immense tract of peat and moss on both sides of the Lyck road, covering the entire right bank of the Bebr, is now cleared of living troops, but terribly strewn with the dead.

Incessant and stubborn fighting continues above the Narew. Near the frontier the separate columns are employing great forces in attack and counter-attack for the possession of villages on dry elevations. The worst bloodshed is always in the village main street, where machine guns pour shot from the windows. Bayonet fighting lasted throughout the night.

The Rawka has overflowed and flooded all the German trenches. During the heavy fighting in the Pilica regions the German lost 25,000 men.

SUPERIOR NUMBERS ARE TELLING.

Military observers are coming to the opinion that at last the superior numbers of Russia are beginning to tell in the campaign in the eastern theatre of war. It was mentioned in unofficial despatches two days ago that the fresh levies of the Czar were coming to the battle front until there were more men, armed, equipped and ready for fighting than there had been at any time before. The ecect of these reinforcements is apparent to-day.

In the Carpathians the fighting is attack and counter-attack, simply to awe a great force of Austrians and Germans.

There is a great Russian reserve in the towns along the Vistula and around Warsaw waiting for the moment when the Grand Duke will call upon them to initiate a tremendous drive. Whether this will go towards Koenigsberg as in the early winter or over the Carpathians into the Plain of Hungary towards Budapest no one now knows, but its pressure will be enormous when it is exerted.

One thing is fairly certain to all military men. Field Marshal von Hindenburg will no longer be able to thrust so hard in any direction that he will be able to shift his army corps to the western battle front before the Russians can recover. The forces there will remain where they are or the Germans will pay dearly for it.

WINTER WHEAT IN GOOD CONDITION

Some Sections Claim Damages From Early Frosts—Hessian Fly Again

CHICAGO, March 20—The price changes in the May wheat future were of the grip-hammer description yesterday, and commission houses, generally speaking, were advising customers to trade in the later months. Fluctuations in July wheat are broad enough to suit almost anybody. No one in the trade would have believed a month ago that the open interest in May wheat was anything like so large as the recent liquidation by longs has shown. Some believe that foreigners control the May wheat, while others think it is owned by Chicago people, and that the shorts will be more than likely to regret their actions in standing out and refusing to cover. Large quantities of cash wheat have been sold to go abroad, but it seems that those who have made the sales are unable to secure the wheat or to obtain vessel room Cash transactions were only eight cars of wheat, of which seven were taken by exporters.

A message from Columbia, Missouri, says the Hessian fly is in all the early wheat there, and that by the first of June the damage will be seen. The Modern Miller says that the winter wheat crop has abundant moisture, and that with growing wheat in the southern districts the stand is excellent; scattered sections, however, report thawing and freezing and there are claims of chinch bugs in the Mississippi Valley and scattered reports of Hessian fly.

The claim made by J. J. Hill that in case of the ending of the war, wheat would sell off to 70 cents in 1916 was considered ridiculous by the most conservative grain men. There is a great shortage of wheat in the importing countries and seeding has been done under the most adverse conditions. There will be no really cheap wheat in the United States, according to the best authorities, for several years to come, although another bumper crop of that grain is expected this year.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism, in any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Had His Arm Shot Off on H.M.S. Doon

Mr. Frank Roberts, 398 Stewart street has received a very interesting letter from a chum in England, who was on the H.M.S. Doon, torpedo boat destroyer, in the engagement when the Germans were chased from Hartlepool. He was wounded, losing an arm, and is now in an hospital at Chatham. He writes of his experiences as follows, under date of Feb. 22, from Chatham:

"Just a line in answer to your very welcome letter, in which I am glad to hear you are doing well both in health and work. I am going on pretty fair. My arm has nearly all healed up now, so I shall soon be out of the service. I am to be serveyed out of the service on the 4th of March, so it won't be long now.

To tell you what happened I must start at five o'clock the 11th of December. We left harbour to patrol the coast in a thick fog, at five in the morning. Our section of patrol was from Tynemouth to Flamboro Head. At about eight a.m. we were off Hartlepool, and the fog began to lift, when we were surprised to see three German Dreadnoughts steaming towards our coast. We at once signalled to the main fleet and then attacked them, and of course they were firing at us. Three out of our four destroyers turned round and run, and left us on our own. We went in at them but they smashed up our torpedoes, so we had to get away then. As we turned a shell hit my gun, which exploded it, and blew me and all my gun's crew to ——— nearly. I had my left arm blown off up to the shoulder. My sightsetter had a hole blown in his side, he died. One was shot through both legs, and two had a leg blown off, both of them have died since. Altogether we had six seriously wounded, one blown over the side, and drowned, one officer wounded and fifteen men slightly wounded.

Well we got away all battered about, and steamed for the Tyne, where the ship was docked, and we were seen to. After having our wounds dressed, we were sent to Ingham Ingiomary, and there we spent Xmas. That was my section of actual war on H.M.S. Doon, torpedo boat destroyer. I have since been transfered to Chatham and had a month on convalescence. Now I am waiting to be invalided out of the service.

Your one-armed but true friend,
WILL HORNE.

Wholesale Prices Rose Five Points

Chief Factor in Advance in February Was Rise in Grains and Flour

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, March 20.—An appreciable advance in wholesale prices in Canada for the month of February has been noted, the jump equally 5.2 in the Labour Department's index number, which for February was 148.6, as compared with 136.6 in the preceding month, and 136.1 in February, 1914.

The chief factor in the advance was the steep rise in grains and flour early in the month, continuing the advance which began in January. Considerable increase in the price of metals on foreign markets was also responsible to some extent. Other important advances occurred in butter, cheese, apples, bread, wool, cotton, leather, etc. Lower prices prevailed in cattle, beef, eggs, lemons, oranges, potatoes, coal, sulphite, pipe and raw rubber.

By Frank Frocst

"Sit down and make yourself comfortable," said the superintendent cheerfully. "We want to have a little talk with you, Ike. Would you like a drink? Here, have a cigar."

Red Ike's swift wits were on the alert. Never before had he known this kind of hospitality to be tendered in a police station to a man arrested red-handed. And although suspicious, he was nevertheless flattered. All criminals, whether at the top or bottom of their profession, are beset by vanity.

"A little out of your usual line this," went on Foyle, watching his man intently. "As neat a job as ever was spoiled by accident. Now you know, as well as I do, that we can't force you to talk. But it'll help us a bit if you tell us who you got those keys from, for instance."

The office was small and plainly furnished, and Ike stared into the fire as he sipped his whisky, with placid face. That the interview was to be the English equivalent of the third degree, he knew not. There would be no bullying, only coaxing. Foyle was in a position where consummate tact was needed if he was to extract anything from the prisoner. He dared neither threaten nor promise. However helpful Ike might be, he would still have to submit the issue of guilt and punishment to a judge and jury. Ike, unlike Dutch Fred, had no relations, and if he had it was doubtful if any promise of consideration for them would move him.

"It's no good, Mr. Foyle," said Ike. "The only man that was in this with me was Dutch Fred. You'd better go and get him, because I shall tell all about it in court. He gave me the keys."

"Don't be a fool, Ike," interposed Green.

The prisoner glanced from one to the other with cunning, twinkling eyes. He was too wary to say anything that may be used as evidence.

"I guess that it isn't bursting into the place that's put you two to work," he said. "You want to know something. If I could help you I s'pose you'd drop this case?"

Heldon Foyle shook his head resolutely.

"You know we can't do that in a case of felony. Mr. Green will put in a good word for you at the trial. That's the farthest we can go to."

Ike put down his empty glass. He believed he held the whip hand—that he had much to gain and nothing to lose by holding out for better terms. It was a false impression, though a natural one. Heldon Foyle had neither the power nor the inclination to drive a bargain that would permit Ike to go unscathed to renew his depredations on society.

"It's no good, guv'nor," said Ike. "If you want me to talk I'll do it—if you'll let me go."

"Right." Foyle rose abruptly. "We'll let it go at that, Ike. You please yourself, of course, Mr. Green, you'd better charge him now."

He had passed out of the door, and his footsteps were dying away when Ike awoke to the fact that his attempt at bluff had failed. He raised his voice. "Hi! Mr. Foyle! Don't go yet. I'll cough up what I know. Come back."

CHAPTER XXVII.

A grim smile flickered under Chief Inspector Green's grey moustache as Heldon Foyle stepped briskly back into the room and closed the door. Ike met a stare of the superintendents cold blue eyes squarely.

"You've got the bulge on me this time, guv'nor," he admitted ruefully. "I give you best. You're welcome to all I know—though that isn't much."

Now that he was near attaining his end, Foyle had to steer a delicate course. The law very rightly insists that there shall be neither threat nor promise held out to any person who is accused of a crime. From the moment a police officer has made up his mind to arrest a man, he must not directly or indirectly induce a person to say anything that might prove his guilt—and a warning of the possible consequences is insisted upon even when a statement is volunteered. Otherwise admissions or evidence so obtained are ignored, and there is trouble for the police officer who obtained them. That is one of the reasons why detective work in England demands perhaps nicer skill than in most other countries.

Green had pulled a fountain pen from his pocket and adjusted a couple of sheets of official foolscap. Foyle remained standing.

"Don't let's have any misunderstanding," he said. "We're not making any promises except that the court will know you helped us in another case. If you choose to keep quiet we can't do a thing to you."

"I know all about that," said Ike, with a little shrug of his shoulders. "You know I wouldn't squeal in an ordinary job. I'm no Dutch Freddy to give my pals away. I don't owe the chap anything who put me up to this. What do you want first?"

"Tell us all about it your own way. Where did you get the keys of the house?"

"Off that chap you raked in along of me. I was sitting in a little game of faro at a joint in the Commercial Road about a week ago, when this tough pulls me out and puts it up to me. I didn't much like it, but the chink who runs the show told me he was straight, and he offered me half—"

"You told Freddy you were only getting a third," interposed Green.

"Did I?" Ike grinned cunningly. "It must have been a slip of the tongue. Anyway, I said I'd chip in for half or nothing. He pow-wowed a bit, but at last he gave in. Funny thing about it was he wouldn't hear of keeping an eye open on the day we brought the job off. Said I must get a pal. Yet here he turns up as large as life all the time."

The prisoner had hit on a point which had puzzled Foyle for a time, but light had already flashed upon him. In the ordinary course of things, a robbery at Grosvenor Gardens by two known criminal characters would not of necessity be associated with the murder. The third man was taking no chances of being identified as an associate.

"Anyway, I took the job on, and he handed me over the twirls and a lay-out of the house. He didn't tell me who was behind him. And I didn't ask too many questions. He called himself Mr. Smith, and we met once or twice at the ——" He named a public-house in Leman Street, Whitechapel. "That's where I was to have met him to-night with the stuff. Now you know all I know."

"Not quite," said Foyle quietly. "What's the address of this gambling joint where you first met him?"

Ike shook his head. "Oh, play the game, guv'nor. You aren't going to have that raided after what I've done for you?"

"We'll see," evaded Foyle. "Where is it?"

Reluctantly, Ike gave the address. Green held out a pen to him and pointed to the bottom of the foolscap.

"Read that through and sign it if it's all right."

The man appended a dashing signature, and with a cheerful "Good-night, Mr. Foyle," was ushered by a chief detective-inspector down to the charge-room. Heldon Foyle rested his elbows on the table and remained in deep thought, immobile as a statue. He roused himself with a start as Green entered.

"Both charged," said the other laconically. "The other chap refuses to give any account of himself. Refuses even to give a name. Seems to be a Yankee. I had finger-prints taken. There was nothing on him to identify him."

"Yankee, eh?" repeated Foyle. "So is Grell. There won't be any one in the finger-print department at this time of night. We'll go along and have a search by ourselves, I think. If we've got him there, Pinkerton of the U.S. National Detective Agency is staying at the Cecil. We'll get him to have a look over our man and say whether he recognises him."

"Very good, sir. There's one other thing. When I searched this man I found this. I don't know if you can make anything out of it. I can't."

He handed across an envelope already torn open, addressed to "The Advertisement Dept., the Daily Wire." Within were two plain sheets of notepaper and a postal order. On one was written: "Bear Sir, please insert the enclosed advts. in the personal column of your next issue.—John Jones." On the other were two advertisements:

"R.F. You are closely watched' Don't forget 2255. Don't forget 2255. G.

"E. £37.14.5. To-morrow. B."

"Very curious," commented Foyle. "Copy them out carefully and have them sent to the paper. They can't do any harm. Now let's get along."

The fog hung heavy over a muffled world as they walked down Victoria Street. Green, whose wits were a trifle less supple than those of his chief when imagination was required, put a question. Foyle answered absently. The mysterious advertisements were not altogether mysterious to him. He recalled the cipher that had been found at Grave Street, and decided that there was at least room for hope in that direction. Besides, there was at least one man now in custody who knew something of the mystery, and, even if he kept his lips locked indefinitely, there was a probable chance of a new line of inquiry opening when his identity was discovered. And even if finger-prints and Pinkerton failed to resolve that, there was still the resources of the newspapers. With a photograph scattered far and wide, the odds were in favour of some one recognising its subject.

Twitching of the Nerves Broken-down System

Now Entirely Cured—Never Used Any Medicine With Such Benefit as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Headaches, sleeplessness and nervousness are often very disagreeable, but when your nervous system gets into such a condition that the nerves twitch and jerk, and you have peculiar nervous sensations come over you there is cause for grave alarm.

MRS. M'KELLAR.

Everybody dreads the thought of paralysis or locomotor ataxia. Nothing is worse to look forward to than helplessness. Sometimes it is helplessness of body, and at other times the mind is affected which is far worse.

The writer of this letter did not know what to expect, but fortunately began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in time to head off danger, and writes that she was entirely cured of the old trouble. The last paragraph proves that the cure was lasting.

Mrs. John McKellar, 11 Barton street east, Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I was injured some years ago, and that left me with a broken-down nervous system. I could not sleep, and suffered from twitching of the nerves and disagreeable nervous sensations.

"I then began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that I never used any medicine that did me so much good; in fact, I am entirely cured of my old trouble. The Nerve Food not only strengthened the nerves, but also built up my system in every way."

Under more recent date Mrs. McKellar writes confirming her cure, and states that she has had inquiries from many people who had heard of the great benefits she obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50. At all dealers.

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Carried Her Safely Through Change of Life.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—"At the Change of Life the doctor said I would have to give up my work and take my bed for some time as there was no help for me but to lie still. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and kept up my work and now I am over the Change and that is all I took. It was better for me than all the doctor's medicines I tried. Many people have no faith in patent medicines but I know this is good."—Mrs. E. J. RICKETTS, 264 8th Avenue, West, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

To Uphold Integrity of Unions

LONDON, March 19.—One phase of the negotiations looking to Government control of factories with a view to increasing the output of war munitions is particularly pleasing to labor leaders. It is the suggestion of the Government that it will undertake to guarantee the integrity of labor unions, to insure the success of the project as well as to protect the unions from demoralisation after the war.

Ruin In East Prussia.

LONDON, March 19. — The Star has received a despatch from its correspondent at Copenhagen who says that statistics furnished by the president of the province of East Prussia show that 80,000 houses have been destroyed in East Prussia by Russian troops. Three hundred thousand refugees are said to be unable to return to East Prussia because they have no means of livelihood. Out of 100,000 houses only 6,600 remain.

Kaiser Cheers Reserve.

AMSTERDAM, March 19. — "The eyes of the whole world are upon the fighting in Champagne," declared Emperor William in a speech to the thirty-eighth German reserves. "The enemy in Champagne is increasing his forces all the time in an effort to bring about a decisive decision, but the Germans, by their bravery, have made this impossible so far, and they will continue to do so until peace is obtained."

UNSTRUNG, UNSTEADY SHAKY NERVES

MAY BE TONED UP BY USING MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. John Harper, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for the heart and nervous system. I was confined to a grocery store for twelve years, and had to give up business, as I became terribly run down and nervous, and had heart trouble, and I am sure I am gaining very fast now. I feel that nothing did me any good until I tried your Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am positive they will cure me. The nerves of one hand would tremble and then seem to go numb so that I could not write or sew. Now my hand is quite steady, as you can see by my handwriting. This is a big change which delights me so much for I thought all was done that could be done. I was about to give up in despair when I tried this last remedy, and even after I had only taken half a box the change started to come."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will restore the enfeebled, enervated, exhausted, overworked system to full constitutional power.

An Honest Professor.

The late Dr. James Ogilvy of St. Andrews used to tell with great gusto a story in connection with himself. He had been at a communion service at Ruthven, where one of the diets of worship was taken by a Professor from the St. Andrews University. On the Church skailing an old lady, giving a man in front of her a prod with her umbrella, asked—"Wha's he yon?" (referring to the preacher). "Oh, he's a Professor," was the reply. The old lady did not understand what a Professor was, and the party addressed further elucidated the matter by remarking: "Weel, he's the man that mak's the young ministers". "Oh, then," replied the lady, he maun be an honest man, for he's made a better job of them than he made of himself!"

WONDERFUL RECORD OF A WONDERFUL CURE

Only Remedy That Acts On All Three Of The Organs Responsible For The Formation Of Uric Acid In The Blood.

Many people do not realize that the Skin is one of the three great eliminators of waste matter from the body. As a matter of fact, the Skin rids the system of more Urea (or waste matter) than the Kidneys. "Fruit-a-tives" cures weak, sore, aching Kidneys, not only because it strengthens these organs but also because "Fruit-a-tives" opens the bowels, sweetens the stomach and stimulates the action of the skin.

ANSWERED THE CALL

Among the Canadians now fighting in France is Captain Harold A. Moore, a Toronto boy who for the past few years has been residing in London, England.

At the outbreak of the war Captain Moore's Company, 3rd Battalion, London (Eng.) Regiment, was just starting for summer camp. Then, like many other territorials, they were immediately mustered into service— first at Malta and then in France.

The Regiment was recently visited personally by Generals French and Joffre and this naturally was quite an event.

Captain Moore is one of the Directors of the J. Walter Thompson Advertising Agency and is in charge of the British Branch of that concern.

Servia, A Small Nation Which Became Great, Is Fighting Patriotic War

NEW YORK, Mar. 16.—The history of the war contains no more wonderful military achievement than Servia's successful struggle against Austria. The more closely the facts of the situation are studied the more remarkable appears the Servian effort as a unique demonstration of national unanimity, enthusiasm, and quiet confidence in military affairs.

Although practically unprepared, and certainly in no way suspecting the immense forces gathered against her, Servia has carried on a war of offence and defence, and has successfully broken two great Austrian armies.

She finished one war only to be attacked by her former ally. Then came the necessity of mobilizing against an Albanian invasion, and before she had time to breathe this third and most terrible of wars was thrust upon her. For the third time within three years the whole nation has been called on to make war. Blow has succeeded blow, each more heavy and destructive than its predecessor.

Even moderate military success would have been praiseworthy under such conditions, but here have been witnessed military achievements among the highest recorded during the war. "To-day small nations have become great," a prominent Russian general has declared, and his words apply to Servia.

Services to Allies.

What Belgium has done and suffered is known to all the world. What Servia has suffered and accomplished is much less clearly understood. Examination proves easily the great value of the services rendered to the Allies by the Servians.

Not only have they successfully defended their own territory, but they have prevented the Austrian contact with Bulgaria and Turkey, evidently the prearranged plan; they have prevented the passage of munitions of war and troops to Turkey, and, finally, they have forced Austria to devote a very large proportion of her forces to the task of dealing with her small neighbour.

It is no exaggeration to say that the Servian resistance has completely wrecked the German scheme for co-operation between the Austrian, German and Turkish troops.

Extraordinary figures are available to prove that the Austrian concentration against Servia absorbed a large proportion of her best troops. In the first invasion between 600,000 and 700,000 men took part, including picked army corps from Croatia, the Tyrol, Bosnia, and Hungary. In the second invasion at least 300,000 men were engaged.

The first invasion cost Austria 175,000 men and the second 125,000 men and enormous stores. Thus Servia has already inflicted losses on the enemy equivalent to the whole strength of the Servian army at the beginning of the war, and she still remains as strong in a military sense as she was then.

TWICE HURLS BACK INVADERS.

Servia has won two great pitched battles with decisive results, and twice she has hurled back the invaders; but to Britain, which has no direct contact with the war with Austria, the effect appears to be remote. It suffices however, to grasp the fact that the defeat of Austria has weakened the German power of offensive and must in the future weaken her power of defence, to make Britain realize that, while fighting Germany, the defeat of Austria by Servia must have an enormous influence on the end of the two empires, the Austrian and the Turkish.

Probably no country was less well equipped at the beginning of the war, and it is also probable that no country is so entirely and so intensely national.

In Servia one feels the whole atmosphere to be charged with an electric instinct making for heroism and universal sacrifice. In this country every one is at war. There is no one who is not directly affected. It is a stupendous revelation of the power of a unanimous people, and an object less in the history of nations. It forces on one the conviction that many great nations, rich, arrogant, and self-sufficient, have much to learn from such small states formerly ignored and despised.

What the Servian army has done has been done alone. No allied forces have come to her aid as is Belgium. The heroism of Belgium's national sacrifice will probably never be equalled in the history of any country. She suffered more than any other country because she was not organized on a national basis to resist the invader.

Splendid Heroism.

Heroism loses nothing, however, because it is given to a forlorn hope. It shows, too, what resistance is possible if a nation is organized. The greatness of Belgium's sacrifice has been universally recognized, but the greatness of Servia's achievements have been inadequately appreciated. There has been much news from the other fronts, but even Servia's greatest battles have received no real attention.

Servia's national effort is worthy to compare with the finest pages in the history of the liberation of Switzerland and Italy.

Much was demanded and much was given. The population still mourning their recent dead have again given their sons for the preservation of the Fatherland. Alone and unaided Servia, though unprepared, has met and defeated the armed might of one of the proudest of European nations and its ally.

The nation has risen in arms instinct with inspiration for the device of the homeland and the safeguarding of the people's liberties. Fifty millions against sixty millions might have been comprehensible, but here it was five millions against sixty. The achievement is all the ner because the Servian population is no unthinking one. It gives no questioning obedience to a war lord and a Chauvinistic Ministry. It is a population of small proprietors believing in the value of education.

The Servian, in defending his country, defends his own property. The Servian peasant is a closer student of international politics than eighty per cent. of the British. He can realize the odds and weigh the cost while nobody has a more ample experience of the horrors of war. The Servian soldiers know what they are fighting for as well as every volunteer in Kitchener's army, and this makes them good soldiers.

It also explains why the third Banmen, between forty and fifty years of age have done as well against the murderous attacks as younger men. They have appreciated, perhaps more clearly, the national necessity of the battles in which they were engaged. Thinking armies are always the most dangerous, as was proved by Cromwell's Ironsides, and many other pages of the world's history.

Without hesitation, the entire nation went to war. Men left their homes and families for the third time in three years to engage in what the whole world considered a hopeless struggle, without elation, modestly, but with every determination to do or die.

This spirit in which the Servian people went to war enabled Servia to accomplish what no generalship nor military genius could have done. It was just a wholehearted patriotism, a readiness to give one's life for one's country.

A national army such as this is very hard to beat. That is why today, when no home is without mourning, when many families are totally bereaved of their sons, when the richest portion of the country is laid waste and a third of the population is homeless and destitute, when every town is filled with wounded and every district dotted with graves, that the Servian army an the Servian people, terms which are in reality synonymous, are more formidable than ever.

Only One Class.

There are no classes to produce friction. There is only one class in Servia—patriots. Heavy as were the losses in the last wars, the greater losses suffered now seem only to have served as an incentive to new efforts. The success accomplished is more truly due to the people than to the army, perfect as that was a military machine.

In the war with Turkey the losses were 40,000 killed and wounded. The Bulgarian war added another 70,000 casualties, while illness was also responsible for many deaths. In addition to the human loss, the whole country has been impoverished. Many districts are reduced to little short of destitution, while the new population gained numbers under 2,000,000, and includes few trained soldiers. A considerable lapse of time is necessary before training is possible.

Servia has received no indemnities from her wars, and the new provinces yield but little revenue. Economic reorganization must necessarily take precedence of military preparations. Indeed, Servia had no desire for further warfare, and disbelieved in the imminence of an attack.

It will probably never be known how unready the Servian army was and under what adverse conditions it has fought the great fight. It is certain that a country never engaged in war under more unfavourable conditions.

The reorganization of the army was but half begun when Austria began the war. The Servian peasants, literally dropping their agricultural implements, mobilised, many without any orders. Few reached their proper depots, and many fought for months without any proper equipment. Some, for instance, wore straw hats instead of the military cap and the Austrians came to believe them to be special troops and dreaded the "stronhueter."

This lack of preparation is no reflection on the military authorities. It was inevitable under the circumstances.

SPRING IMPURITIES IN THE BLOOD

A Tonic Medicine is a Necessity at This Season

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an all year round tonic, blood-builder and nerve-restorer. But they are especially valuable in the spring when the system is loaded with impurities as a result of the indoor life of the winter months. There is no other season when the blood is so much in need of purifying and enriching, and every dose of these Pills helps to make new, rich, red blood. In the spring one feels weak and tired—Dr. Williams Pink Pills give strength. In the spring the appetite is often poor—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills develop the appetite, tone the stomach and aid weak digestion. It is in the spring that poisons in the blood find an outlet in disfiguring pimples, eruptions and boils — Dr. Williams' Pink Pills speedily clear the skin because they go to the root of the trouble in the blood. In the spring anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia, erysipelas and many other troubles are most persistent because of poor, weak blood, and it is at this time when all nature takes on new life that the blood most seriously needs attention. Some people dose themselves with purgatives at this season, but these only further weaken themselves. A purgative merely gallops through the system, emptying the bowels, but it does not cure anything. On the other hand Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood, which reaches every nerve and organ in the body, bringing new strength, new health and vigor to weak, easily tired men, women and children. Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills this spring—they will not disappoint you.

You can get these health-renewing Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EGGS, NOT MEN

PARIS, March 16—An explanation of the origin of the canard, which received wide circulation and credence early in the war, to the effect that 80,000 Russian troops had reached Scotland from Archangel, Russia's White Sea port, en route to France, appears to be found in a common commercial custom.

Russia exports millions of eggs to England, and in the trade these eggs are known as "Russians," just as the thousands of rabbits sent to England from Belgium are known as "Ostends," as oysters are known as "Marennes" or "Whitstables," or in the United States as "Blue Points" or 'Cape Cods."

It may easily have been the case, and this is believed by many to be the explantion, that a Russian whole sale dealer telegraphed to his commission agent in England "80,000 Russians sent via Archangel," and the message may have been taken by some one through whose hands it passed to refer to troops instead of eggs.

The telegraph employee may have told a friend and so have started the rumour, which grew until few correspondents could resist giving it credence, even though they had some idea of the difficulties of moving 80,000 men to Archangel, and undoubtedly wondered why such forces should be landed in Scotland instead of being carried to a French port.

SHE GAINED 26 LBS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous exhaustion, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was, in fact, a confirmed invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up. By using 12 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 26 pounds in weight."

Scored Off Kipling.

How an omnibus driver scored on Kipling is told as follows:—Annoyed by the injury done to one of his trees by the driver of a local omnibus Mr. Kipling wrote a vigorous letter of complaint to the man, who was also the landlord of an inn. The landlord sold the letter for ten shillings. A second and stronger letter followed. This found a purchaser at one pound, for its increased violence made it more valuable. To it, as in the former letter, the landlord made no reply. To him Kipling entered the next day, briskly wrathful.

"Why didn't I answer your letters, sir?" replied the landlord. "Why, I was hoping you'd have sent me a fresh one. They pay me a deal better than 'bus driving!"

THE LOVE OF GOLD.

Men pursue riches under the idea that their possession will set them at ease and above the world. But the law of association often makes those who begin by loving gold as a servant finish by becoming themselves its slaves, and independence without wealth is at least as common as wealth without independence.—Colton.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water, and above all, take a teaspoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

His Honour: "Gentlemen of the jury, if you believe the witnesses of the plaintiff then you will find a verdict for the defendant. If, on the other hand, you believe the witnesses for the defendant, in that case you will find a verdict for the plaintiff. Again, gentlemen, if like myself, you cannot believe the witnesses of either party, heaven knows what you'll do. Gentlemen, consider your verdict."

Importance of Cooking Slowly

Now let me tell you how to boil your beef the next time, writes Marion Harland. If you wish to make soup stock put the meat over the fire in enough cold water to cover it, with what is known as a bunch of soup herbs and which means a stalk of celery, a spray of parsley, a bay leaf, half a turnip and as much carrot and a sliced onion; bring to the simmer gradually and keep it at this for an hour and a half, according upon the size of the piece that weighs six pounds will require about two hours. At the end of the time you can either take it out and serve it hot with a gravy made from a cup of the stock or you can let the meat get cold in the liquid. The latter is the better plan if you are desirous to make stock rather than provide a meat dish for that day's meal.

On the other hand, if your special object is to secure a central item for your dinner you can have the piece of beef trimmed and skewered into neat shape, fry a quarter of a pound of salt pork in your pot, lay the meat in this, turning it over two or three times to coat the surface well, then pour in hot water to cover it, add the vegetables, and simmer as before at the rate of 15 minutes to the pound. You will then have a savory piece of meat and the stock from it, while not so rich as that made by the other method, will serve as a foundation for a variety of excellent soups.

I wish I could make all housekeepers understand the value that abides in slow cookery. More goes to slow cookery than the mere improvement of the taste of the meat thus cooked. When the seasoning is cooked into it there is a blending of flavours which adds greatly to the savoriness of the compound. Stews should be simmered that the meat may be made tender and the juices of the meat extracted and held in the gravy with which the meat of the stew will be dressed.

The French have a heavy variety of pot, supplied with a closely-fitting cover, and in this their soup meat simmers for hours until all the good is obtained from the meat. This item of a tightly-fitting top is an essential aid in cooking soups or stews. The juices of the meat which cook ont into the water turn into vapor if the pot is uncovered and are lost in the air of the room. An appetising odor may be a good preparation for dinner, but it is paying too high a price for it to get it at the cost of savor in the food from which the aroma comes.

In the chance it grants for slow cookery and for the preserving all the best of the meat lies the chief value of the fireless cooker. Its other merits are great — it is an economy of fuel, a promoter of comfort in that it retains odors which would otherwise fill the house, it saves a great deal of work and watching to the cook — but perhaps the end it accomplishes is of making meat tender and good to the taste by the slow cooking and the wholesomeness of the product thus prepared puts it in the front rank of household helps.

I wish I could preach the gospel of deliberate cookery as exemplified in a low fire or a turned down flame and in the fireless cooker from one end of the country to the other. With the conversion to this belief would go the banishment of the theory that rapid cookery is good for anything except a few articles, such as certain vegetables, sauces, gravies, and so forth. But these are few in comparison with the others and there are not many even of these that would be injured by leisurely methods.

TO REMOVE DANDRUFF

Get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little into your hand and rub well into the scalp with the finger tips. By morning most, if not all, of this awful scurf will have disappeared. Two or three applications will destroy every bit of dandruff; stop scalp itching and falling hair.

THE HOME HOSPITAL

When it is at all possible every home which contains children should have an isolation room to which suspected cases of contagious disease can be promptly relegated. It does not mean that the room must be reserved for that purpose alone. Indeed it may be ordinarily a guest room, but it should be furnished in such a way that at an hour's notice it can be changed into an amateur hospital.

Let the walls be painted instead of being papered, have hardwood floor with light rugs . The bed might be one of the white enamel beds such as are used in hospitals. Its more than usual, and somewhat awkward height can be disguised by a valance of chinz. Have light, easily-moved furniture.

When the inevitable alarm arises and the question is, has Tommy scarlet fever, measles or only plain grippe? separate him at once from the other children Take no chances; prompt action will often save several cases. Remove the curtains from the window, the valance from the bed, roll up and take out the rugs ,leave only enough furniture in the room for conveniences. The room is then ready to receive the patients.

It is important that until there is absolute assurance that it is not a contagious case that there should be as little communication as possible between that room and the rest of the house. So it is a good plan to have on hand and always ready a heater of some sort. Electricity, gas solid alcohol, kerosene, all are good fuels, and the choice among them merely a matter of convenience. Have an enameled ware tea kettle, the squat, flat kind with a large bottom. This should hold about three pints. Hot water for all emergencies is thus provided. This equipment should also include a small enameled ware saucepan, in which milk or broth may be heated. These implements are strong and so light that they can be used without noise, an important point in a sick room.

Have for the special use of the invalid, cups, plates, etc., that belong to the isolation room. Here again the lightness of enameled ware, its cleanliness and its safety in using, make it particularly valuable. Sick children greatly dislike thick and heavy cups and yet many a fevered child has taken a bite out of a thin porcelain cup in its eagerness to get the contents. All these things should be washed in the isolation room, and the bed linen should be kept and laundered by itself.

It is better to be "safe than sorry." Many a scare may not materialise into anything serious, but when the real enemy does appear, and the "grippy symptoms develop into the dreaded diphtheria or scarlet fever, then to have segregated the first victim in time may well mean that the first will be also the last.

PLEASURES SECONDARY IN BUSINESS

Pleasures in business hours are avoided by girls who are striving to make a success of their work. This does not refer to pleasures connected with the labour, for they are welcomed; but applies to pleasures of a nature foreign to the work, which take one's attention away from it and cause one to neglect it in any degree. Social and business pleasures do not mix well, for they are of entirely different natures. The happiness that may be derived from work is apt to take wings and fly away if social pleasures are introduced in business hours.

A saleagirl in a store who was busy entertaining a friend who called on her at her counter was enjoying her social pleasures that would have been derived from making a good sale, for the two could not go together. The result was that her sales slips showed a shortage that did not help her to secure desired promotion, and another business pleasure was passed by because there was no place for it with the social joys.

During business hours an employee's time belongs to her employer, who is paying so much a week for her best work during those hours, and there is an agreement, usually unspoken and unwritten, that a girl shall give her best endeavours and undivided attention to her work at those hours. If she allows that time to be interfered with for social pleasures she not only breaks her contract but she misses the pleasure that would be derived from the consciousness of doing her best work.

If an employer objects to a waste of the time for which he is paying he cannot be called severe, for it would be just neither to himself nor to the employee to permit it to continue. If time is wasted in business hours, too many business pleasures go with it, and although workers do not always appreciate the pleasures that may be enjoyed if one is only alert to them, it is a serious mistake if one does not grasp them.

Social pleasures may be more often put aside than those to be found in labour, for these are frequently derived from promptness and close attention to details and are omitted if one's attention is divided with other interests. Social successes during business hours may lead one to be called a "jolly good fellow," but it is not an enviable reputation to have if it comes as a result of slighting work. People may like to joke and talk with the girl who is looking for social pleasures in business hours, but their respect is given to the one who is too busy in endeavouring to bring her work to the highest standard to have time for social chatter.

Miss Budd Kept Wedding Secret

An April wedding seemed a long way off to Miss Julia Harriman Budd and Mr. Effingham Nicholl Lawrence, members of families identied with New York for generations. They had been engaged for nearly a year and longer separation seemed irksome. So more than two months ago, or on January 2, these young people slipped quietly away from their homes, in Yonkers, and came to New York seeking a clergyman.

They did not go to the Little Church Around the Corner, whose members of the Budd family have worshipped for years, but to the Church of St. Mary the Virgin in Forty-Sixth Street, and were married by the Rev. Henri Le erre. Mr. William Smith, a friend of the bridegroom, well known for his ability to keep a secret, was about the only witness to the ceremony.

After this solemn rite there was a little luncheon party at which bride and bridegroom and their good friend Mr. Smith agreed to say nothing until further notice. Then all went to their respective homes and came and went as if nothing had happened and preparations for a wedding next month went slowly on. However, the happy young couple cared to keep their secret no longer. They confessed and were promptly forgiven. Really there was no forgiving about it, for the bride's mother said she was delighted.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Hardenbergh Budd and lives with her mother and her grandmother, Mrs. rederick Harriman at No. 81 Park Avenue, in a fashionable section of Yonkers. The family is closely related to the Harriman family of New York. The late John A. Hardenbergh was the grandfather of the bride and Mrs. Stephen Stephen H. Olin is her cousin. The bride is twenty-two years old, while the bridegroom is twenty-seven.

Mr. Lawrence is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Lawrence, of Yonkers, and is in business in this city. There will be a large reception in April at the bride's home to take the place of the formal wedding that had been arranged for.

A bracket to be fastened to a steam or hot water radiator to enable a person to warm his feet has been patented by its Massachusetts inventor.

MAN, NOT WOMAN IS THE BUTTERFLY

NEW YORK, March 20.—Women are called butterflies, but man was the original butterfly, and he has not entirely recovered from the practice of flitting from flower to flower, according to Professor Rudolph M. Binder of the New York University, who addressed the Women's Republican Club at Delmonico's recently. Professor Binder said that absolute monogamy would settle many social questions.

"There were a number of factors contributing to the introduction of monogamy or the marriage of one husband to one wife," he said, and he went down to the lower order of life in a biological treatment of the subject and told the women that the female was the first of the species and that the male was only an afterthought. The women laughed appreciatively at that, and again, knowing that the joke was on them, when Professor Binder continuing said:

"But you know the afterthought is often better than the original one."

"In the early human races," he continued, "there were no monogamous marriages and it was only through various forms of mating that we came to it. Woman from a psychological point of view is a hero worshipper. Probably in the cave days her ideal was the strongest man with the strongest club. Next probably she idealised the man who was kind, and finally, in the days of the crusaders, when she found the man who was strong and brave and also kind, there originated romantic love. Perhaps the suffragettes who do not marry have an ideal that they do not find.

"Then the woman dearly loved her own child with a love different from animals, who care for their offspring only as long as they can give them sustenance. The woman wishes to develop her child psychologically, and here she connects with the woman hero worshipper, and she is not satisfied unless the father of her child is her husband. It was inevitable that she should struggle against the group forms of marriage.

"Man was variable, and has not altogether overcome that, though he must as he gets to the ways of civilisation.

"Men and women must respect each other. If a young man expects to marry a pure woman he must give her what he expects—in other words the single standard, and that is the thing the woman must strive for. It is the greatest task of the woman of to-day, to educate the men to be as pure as themselves, and it will solve many questions. Marriage will be more stable.

"This task to educate all men, I believe is in the power of women as they stand together, and I believe the men will come around. Other men will realize that they will be happier on this higher standard. All males are human beings, and if they realize that they are happier, they will come around to the woman's standard."

KITCHEN KICKS

Before putting milk into a saucepan, boil rapidly a few spoonfuls of water (enough to cover bottom of pan) and it will never burn, however fierce the fire.

It is said that if parsley is eaten with onion or a salad, the odour of onion will not affect the breath.

Never buy meat that is a palish-pink, for it is diseased. Good meat is red, with fat clear, white and firm.

If you wish to cut butter without "crumbling," put a piece of wax paper over the knife; it will be perfectly smooth and even.

When cooking, never leave a spoon in the dish, as it conducts the heat from the liquid.

To remove grease from wall paper, hold a piece of blotting paper over the spot with a hot flatiron for a few minutes.

Stick a pin in the cork of each bottle containing poisons, and it will save tragic mistakes in taking medicines in the dark.

When a fish bone is lodged in the throat, lemon juice will remove it; if the lemon is sucked for a moment the bone will move on; in one case it succeeded after the bone had been in the throat two days.

Quicksilver broken up with white of an egg and applied with a feather to a bedstead will soon clear it from bugs; this holds good for years.

Flies dislike the odour of lavender oil; if sprinkled around the dining-room, they will try to escape from it.

A bag of one-half ounce of cloves, nutmeg and caraway seeds will keep moths at a distance.

Red ants do not like parsley.

When paring oranges for a sick person, instead of using sugar and cream they will be more appetizing if orange juice is used in place of cream. Just try it yourself.

A teaspoon of glycerine given in a cup of hot milk will relieve coughing.

EGG OMELET.

Soak a teacupful of bread crumbs overnight in a cupful of new milk. Beat separately the yolks and whites of three eggs. Mix the yolks with the bread and milk, stir in the whites, and salt and make as usual.

Brightens the colors of linoleums and leaves a dry, smooth surface that doesn't readily hold dust. Contains no grit to scratch or wear the finish.

Lawrason's Snowflake Ammonia

Ask for it by name—say "Snowflake."

HINTS FOR THE HOME

False teeth of ivory, on plates of the same material, and held in place by gold wires, were in use in the year 1000 B.C.

While the headache lasts do not try to fight against it. No sick headache was ever cured by exercise or willpower. Let the work go on, if possible and lie down in a darkened room.

A bright, glossy head of hair that can be easily kept in curl may be obtained by the use of the following mixture: Dissolve in a pint of boiling water a small square of camphor and a tablespoonful of powdered borax. Into this liquid dip the brush several times whenever the hair is brushed.

For great spots make a stiff paste with fuller's earth and vinegar. Roll it into balls, and dry them. Next damp the grease spots and grate one of the balls over them, and leave it until it is dry, when the marks should be washed with tepid water. These balls are excellent to keep at hand for emergencies.

In order to "tilt" pictures properly, without putting nails under them, see that the screws are placed in the centre of the back of the frames, and if you have not a picture-rail the cord should just reach the top of the picture. Before driving the nail in the wall dip it in hot water, and it can then be driven quite straight without breaking the paster.

For potato puffs take some cold roast meat, cut very small, season with pepper and salt. Roll and mash some potatoes, and make them into a paste with one or two eggs. Roll this out with a dust of flour, cut into rounds; put some of the minced meat on one half, and fold the other half over. Fry the puffs in boiling fat until golden brown.

In making stuffing for roast turkey take a quarter-pound of beef suit, minced, two ounces of minced ham, grated rind of half a lemon, one teaspoonful each of minced herbs, parsley and salt, one saltspoonful of pepper, one saltspoonful of pounded mace, one breakfastcupful of fine breadcrumbs, two well-beaten eggs; a little milk if it is too dry. Mix thoroughly.

Fruit is invaluable as a medicine, and you ought not to neglect this delightful remedy for the ills that flesh is heir to. Here are a few of the virtues to be found in the best known of fruits:—Grapes come first, more especially black grapes, whic hare nutritious and purifying to the blood. Peaches are also exceedingly wholesome, but they should never be eaten over-ripe. They may be eaten either at meals or between meals, but breakfast is probably the best time.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES

POTATO AND BEET SALAD.

Mix one cup of diced cooked beets with two cups of diced cooked potatoes and one-fourth of a cup of broken nut-meats. Moisten with cooked dressing and place on a bed of crisp lettuce leaves.

BAKED INDIAN PUDDING.

Mix three tablespoons of Indian meal with one-eighth cup of molasses; stir the mixture into three cups of hot milk and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from the fire and add one-half cup of sugar, one beaten egg, one level teaspoonful of butter and one-half teaspoon each of salt, ginger and cinnamon. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake half an hour, then pour in one cup of cold milk, cover and bake slowly for two and one-half hours Serve with hard sauce.

CRYSTALIZED PEANUTS.

Shell the peanuts, brown them slowly and remove the skins. Place in a granite or porcelain-lined kettle two-cupfuls of granulated sugar, one cupful of water and half a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Bring this to the boil and stir until the sugar is dissolved. After it begins to boil, cook without stirring until a little dropped into cold water becomes hard and brittle. Remove immediately from the fire, set the kettle in a larger vessel of warm water and proceed to dip the nuts singly into the mixture. Lay on paraffin paper to dry. Other kinds of nuts and sections of fruit may be treated in the same way.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

WOMAN'S PROBLEM

Stripped Herself of Her Little Artifices to Save a Young Girl.

By FRANK FILSON.

"Come here, girl; don't look at me as if I were a dragon!"

Elsie went forward and looked at Miss Ingleby with an expression of so much mingled hatred and admiration that the elder woman flashed her white teeth and her eyes twinkled exactly as they did in the posters with which almost every hoarding in the United States had been decorated at one time or another.

She went forward defiantly, but a moment later somehow she found that she was crying upon Miss Ingleby's shoulder, while the singer caressed her and patted her hair gently.

"So I have stolen her beau away from her and she wants him back!" whispered Miss Ingleby, "Isn't that so, dearie?"

Elsie raised her head. "I shouldn't mind if—if you meant to marry Tom," she sobbed. "But I know you are only amusing yourself with him, because Tom is much younger than you."

"How old are you, child?" inquired Miss Ingleby.

"Twenty," said Elsie defiantly.

"And Tom?"

"Tom is twenty-five. And you must be nearly thirty," said Elsie. "So I know you don't mean to marry Tom. And we were to be married at Christmas, and now—now he won't speak to me."

The match between Elsie Lennon and Tom Banks was approved by all Kentville, for Tom was a rising young business man of the town and Elsie's father, old Major Lennon, who kept the summer hotel, had been one of the first settlers. And they had been sweethearts for years.

Since the singer had come to spend a couple of weeks' vacation, however, he had had no eyes for poor little Elsie. He seemed fascinated by the older woman's bright eyes and witty

"On Thursday Morning I Will Give You My Answer."

"Never you mind; you shall have your Tom again," whispered Miss Ingleby encouragingly.

But it seemed a harder problem than Miss Ingleby had expected. She had not meant to lead Tom on. But a woman of the world often forgets that the light interchange of repartee and badinage may be the cut and thrust of mortal earnest to an inexperienced young man.

It was Tom who furnished her with her opportunity that evening when they sat together on the plaza.

"Miss Ingleby," he said, "I want to tell you something. You are going away on Thursday—but I don't want you to go out of my life. You have made me love you—"

"Love you!" she exclaimed. "Why, you are nothing but a boy!"

"I am twenty-five," he answered sullenly. "I know you may be a year or two older than I am. But where love exists age does not count. I—"

"Mr. Banks, listen to me," said the singer. "Do you think it the part of an honorable man to make love to one woman when you are engaged to another?"

"No, I don't," he cried. "But how can one help whom one loves? I am fond of Miss Lennon, but since I have known you that other love of mine has seemed tame and weak. I was only a boy when I became engaged—now you have made me a man."

"Will nothing I can say disillusion you?" asked Miss Ingleby despairingly.

"Nothing," he answered. "When I look at you you seem the incarnation of all beauty to me. I want you; I don't care for honor or duty; I want you."

"On Thursday morning I will give you my answer," she answered.

That was Tuesday evening. Tom

Banks lived in a fever of happiness during the following day. He could scarcely attend to the details of his business. His whole being burned with a consuming passion for the beautiful singer. What though a few years in age separted them—two, or three, or five at most? He had known of cases of greater disparity in which happy marriage had resulted. He did not think of Elsie at all.

And she had been a silent witness of that last interview. From her little room in the wing of the house she had seen Tom seize Miss Ingleby's hand and cover it with kisses; she could not tear herself away, even though the sight scorched her heart as though a burning hand were laid there.

She dreaded the evening meal. There were but three other guests at that season; her father and herself sat at a table facing Miss Ingleby, and Tom, who had boarded at the hotel ever since their engagement. Surely Tom would spare her his presence that night. But his infatuation proved too strong for him. He entered and bowed coldly to her, nodded to the old major, who, absorbed in his soup, saw nothing of the little tragedy, and waited for Miss Ingleby to appear. And Elsie could not tear herself away, though she knew that each glance between them was like an arrow in her heart.

The door opened and a woman came in. A gray-haired woman, with wrinkles round her eyes and mouth, and pallid cheeks. She was dressed in a plain black suit of antiquated cut; she was just motherly-looking body of forty-odd years. The major loked up and stared hard.

"Who is that Elsie?" he whispered, as she seated herself at Tom's table.

"Miss Ingleby!" stammered the girl in amazement.

The rest of the meal was passed in absolute silence. Elsie's eyes took in every detail of the incident. She saw the expression of amazement that crept into Tom's eyes, saw him attempt to speak, choke, and at last rise and hurry from the room. And Miss Ingleby, brave Miss Ingleby who had stripped herself naked of her little artifices to save another woman, sat there unconcerned, the cynosure of all eyes, making a courageous show of eating until the last course was served. Then she went to her room.

There Elsie found her afterward. She understood that the elder woman had made atonement for her offense. There could be none greater than that. The dazzling beauty, the pride of the footlights, turned into a plain old woman to save an innocent girl's heart.

"Why did you do it?" whispered Elsie.

"Because," answered Miss Ingleby slowly, "I was young once, and sweet and innocent—like you."

She kissed her good-bye and none of them saw her again. But on the Plaza Elsie found Tom, walking like a madman. When he saw her he came humbly up to her.

"Elsie," he said, "you know what sort of a fool I have been. I suppose we can never be the same to each other again, but if you will give me a chance—"

"Perhaps we can be more, Tom," she whispered. And she knew that from that moment hers would be the stronger soul; that the innocence of youth had yielded to the knowledge of maturity; that the sheltering love she bore Tom was immeasurably stronger than the girlish adoration which was gone for ever.

Ruskin's Creed of Work.

The man or woman who does work worth doing is the man or woman who lives, breathes and sleeps that work; with whom it is ever present in his or her soul; whose ambition is to do it well and feel rewarded by the thought of having done it well. That man, that woman, puts the whole country under an obligation.—John Ruskin.

The Whistling Man.

"I like the man who whistles at his work. That man I believe will go to heaven!" "Maybe; but that won't be the place where the busy men in his vicinity invite him to go."

CALLS IT ACT OF WAR.

Lawyer For Werner Horn Says Prisoner is a Belligerent.

BANGOR, Me., March 19.—Werner Horn's battle against removal to the Massachusetts District Court, for trial on the charge of illegally transporting explosives in connection with his attempt to blow up the international bridge at Vanceboro, remained unfinished last night after a day of lively legal skirmishes.

Before U. S. Commissioner Charles H. Reid, who held a preliminary hearing to determine the question of probable cause, Horn's counsel insisted that federal and state courts were without jurisdiction because Horn, as a lieutenant of the Prussian Landwehr, acted as a belligerent against Great Britain. Counsel asserted that any such action as the transportation of explosives should be regarded as part of a general continuous act of war. This contention was overruled by the commissioner, who sustained the protests of the prosecution in deciding that the evidence was admissible only under a plea of not guilty.

THREE PRINCES DEAD?

German Prisoner Says They Fell at Neuve Chapelle.

LONDON, March 19.—The village of Neuve Chapelle, converted into a shambles by the bombardment of the British, now is a heap of ruins thickly strewn with bodies, according to the description of the British operations in that region written by an "eye-witness," and given out yesterday by the press bureau. Although the Germans were inferior to their antagonists, the eye-witness declares they offered heroic resistance, using machine guns effectively.

Prisoners who have been all through the war declare that never have they experienced such a bombardment as which preceded the assault upon Neuve Chapelle. One wounded Prussian officer declared indignantly: "You do not fight, you murder. My regiment never had a chance from the first. Nothing could live under such a fire." Another officer stated that three German princes, including Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern, a cousin of the Kaiser, were serving in one of the battalions at Neuve Chapelle. This prisoner expressed the belief that all three princes had been killed.

Fight In Cellars of Monastery

Special to The Examiner:

NORTHERN FRANCE, March 19.—At this very moment some companies of Belgians are engaged with the Germans under circumstances that would have appealed to the genius of Edgar Allen Poe. Just in front of Ramscappelle is an old monastery, the walls of which have been battered to pieces, but whose cellars and underground passages lead from the background of a perilous yet picturesque struggle. The vast cellars pass underneath the beds of two small affluents of the Yser called respectively the Great and Little Reemes. The Germans have discovered the northern outlet to the subterranean world, and the Belgians occupy the opposite exit. For several days both sides have been advancing step by step through these dark, damp and slimy underground passages.

bardment, Athens cabled, followed an important conference aboard the French flagship Suffren, at which Rear Admiral De Robec, who succeeded Admiral Carden in command, met the captains of the allied warships. From Petrograd came an unofficial report that the Russian Black Sea fleet, has appeared off the Bosphorus. The arrival of the enemy squadron has created a panic in Constantinople, Petrograd cabled.

Rumours that Vice-Admiral Carden was killed in an engagement on Thursday followed quickly the Admiralty's announcement that Rear-Admiral De Robeck had been placed in command, because Carden was "ill."

Another statement from the Admiralty admitted that Carden's flagship, the Inflexible, has been badly damaged by the fire from the Turkish forts. A shell struck in forward control, the Admiralty announced, but no official mention was made of the fact that the Admiral's cabin was located in that part of the ship.

FIFTY-FOUR MERCHANT VESSELS SUNK.

LONDON, March 20.—In an official statement to-day the Admiralty announced that from the beginning of the war until March 17, fifty-four British merchant vessels have been sunk or captured by enemy cruisers. Twelve have been sunk by mines and thirty by submarines. Twenty-eight British fishing vessels have been destroyed by mines. In the same period, arrivals and sailings of vessels of all nationalities at British ports total 42,284, the Admiralty announced.

GERMAN SHEEPDOG A USEFUL ANIMAL

America has had her epoch of dog fancying. There has been no one greater or better, in the economic sense, than the desire for the sheepdog of the German breed.

"The dog is at once useful and ornamental, and, as he stands to-day, has not been spoiled by his physical proportions because of the caprice or fashion of the moment. The German likes his dog for it work; the German police officer trains his dog to attack and subdue those opposed to law and order. In the production of such dogs these men have kept the useful kind of animal in view.

The German shepherd dog resembles the wolf. He is strong, he is active, he is big in leg bones. It is true that some German authorities have declined to admit what is known as the "wolf cross." They point to the round eye of the domesticated dog and to the slanting eye of the wild wolf to prove their point. This illusion on the part of interested writers may be a matter of sentimentality. Like the horse dealer, the dog dealer will not decry his own stock. A "dog" sounds well to the would-be owner of a dog. "Wolf" would frighten him away—even from his own hearth.

Quite sixty per cent of the German shepherd dogs now to be seen on the benches at dog shows in the United States are more or less trained dogs. It is questionable whether one per cent. of all the other sheepdogs of the European countries now in America, as show dogs, have been trained in any way. When the German sheep-dog or police dog was introduced into America public field trials were held. These trials have become popular. The German Shepherd Dog Club recognizes the fact that the demonstrations of what their dogs can do or are likely to accomplish will be of the utmost value to keep up a strain of dogs that must be of considerable value to the whole community.

The Scottish sheepdog as a show dog has become a fad. The German sheep dog remains a fact. The American pocket has for many years been drawn upon for the purchasing of the best dogs in the world. The German dog is now the most salable in America. A practical people desire a real dog.

The origin of the German sheepdog may be traced from its appearance. Through the ages he has been the kind of dog that shepherds require. Like all the short coated dogs the German dog has an under-coat of fur. Like all the quick-eyed dogs he carries his ears erect. Like the gazehounds, like the Northern dogs, and all the other dogs that have to live on their own finding, he is quick, highly observant and naturally savage when in the presence of any strange animal.

The encouragement given by a man to a willing dog makes the dog more than ever aggressive when the dog is told to attack a strange man. There is no other domesticated animal that will attack the human when ordered to attack and the value of any dog is enhanced when the dog is quick to obey the order of his master.

The class of German sheepdogs now in America is exceptionally good. The winning dogs at public trials in Europe are now in this country. Large sums have been paid for the best dogs. Since the outbreak of hostilities in Europe few dogs or bitches of this breed have been available and the demand in America is greater than the supply.

The German sheepdog may be crossed with certain other dogs; progney from such unions will be of value to the man on the land—the man who is opening up new territory, and because of his environments is surrounded by prowling and flesh eating animals. The German shepherd dog crossed with a greyhound, deerhound or Russian wolfhound would produce an ideal lurcher. The lurcher is not desired in countries where game is preserved. But the lurcher is the dog that will fill the flesh pot for the man who goes into far-away places to plough.

Germans Advised To Live on Blood

Professors Say a Pint is as Nourishing as a Pound of Meat

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 20.—The Daily News says: "All the innumerable measures taken by the public authorities in Germany to eke out the existing libited amount of food as far as possible have only served to render the question of food supply mare acute than ever. An article has appeared in the Berliner Tageblatt by Prof. Carl Neuberg proclaiming necessary the making of the utmost uses of such inferior articles as skim milk and such waste products as blood. He is especially keen on the matter of declaring that 'two pints of blood possess almost the same nourishing value as two pounds of meat.'

"'With complete justification,' he says, 'does an authority like Jobert, of Rosteck, demand the utiliation of blood as an article of food. Of course, it is not a question of using fresh blood, but only blood in boiled form, in which it also loses through the change of colour those qualities which are so repulsive to many people. It has long been baked with bread in the northern countries.'

"The same rather gruesome recommendation is made by Prof. Schottelous, of Freiburg, in the course of an article in a medical journal. He also is in favour of blood, which is 'wasted' in such large quantities in slaughterhouses, but which is to be used for human consumption in the form of blood sausages, blood bread and blood cakes."

Tries to Make Belgians Respect German Forces and German Work

AMSTERDAM, via London, March 18.—There have been few more illuminating illustrations of the German point of view in regard to others than the chosen people, as they consider themselves, than that contained in an interview which a correspondent of the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung has had with General von Bissing, Governor of Belgium. The Belgians he seems to regard as children, to train whom in the right way is the appointed mission of the invaders.

Here are characteristic quotations from his remarks:

"From the very beginning that I was placed in this responsible post I have realized that my task is to see that German character, German force and German work are respected. I hoped to bring back order and calmness to Belgium. If one wants to rule a people and to make them acknowledge the authority of an undesired government one has to take into account their peculiarities.

"In my efforts to try and reach them I have found that the Belgians have both good and bad traits. One good quality is that they love their country and have a very strong patrjotism and will gladly work for it, even though not with the same energy as we Germans work. They are light hearted, which astonishes us.

"They so often appear to use like badly trained children, who become obstinate if they are forbidden to do a thing they want to do, and if they are threatened with punishment for things they have not done they become rebellious. I have threatened as little as possible, and only inflicted punishment when I have thought it necessary, though I have had to take sharp measures sometimes, and here and there my hand has been felt heavily.

No Spirit of Revenge.

"I have tried with all my might to put the economic life on its legs again, and have had success, especially with agriculture. In my personal manner toward the Beligans I have never allowed myself to be led away by a feeling of revenge for acts from which our troops have had to suffer on the part of a badly governed people, although for a man who at heart and soul is a German soldier this has been difficult.

"I have always tried to keep Belgium in a state of peace and calm which shall last during the probably fairly long occupation period. We must try to work so that in future Belgium will not be so dependent on imports. With this idea, I have changed the methods of agriculture, reducing the amount of sugar beet grown in favour of corn and potatoes.

Hope for Release by Allies.

"In the neighbourhood of Malines, particularly, I have given them much help to get the crop of early potatoes necessary both here and in Germany. The German government will be the last to prevent the export of Belgian products, so far as Germany has no need of them. Everything that we undertake here would be very much easier if the Belgians knew what is going to be the fate of their country. In this, also, they are like children.

"On the days that we heard cannonading from the neighbourhood of Nieuport and Ypres they listened attentively, and said that their release by the Allies was close at hand. Arising out of the measures of inoculatibn taken there is a story going about that the Germans wanted to inject poison into the Belgian children, and, at the bidding of their parents and teachers, the children all left the schools. Some one commented on this, in fun, 'Do you think the Germans will be so stupid as to poison their future recruits?'"

General von Bissing added that many of the Belgians have behaved most sensibly.

Estranged Fiancee $750,000 Heiress

DENVER, Col., March 18—An old-time romance extending over forty years was disclosed here to-day when the will of James T. Wilson, seventy-five years old, a widely-known Denver pioneer, stock man and capitalist, was lodged in the County Court. Mr. Wilson died last Saturday.

It was a romance guarded during his long life of bachelorhood and was only revealed when it was learned he had left practically his whole estate, estimated at $750,000 to Miss Carrie Hurd of this city.

It was learned to-day that Mr. Wilson and Miss Hurd were engaged to be married forty years ago, but a trivial quarrel caused the breaking of the engagement.

Although they lived near each other since then, not even the intimate friends of both even knew they were acquainted with each other.

During Mr. Wilson's last illness Miss Hurd visited him and a sickbed reconciliation evidently resulted. Miss Hurd took charge of the funeral arrangements.

The will has not been filed for probate, but has been simply lodged with the court. To Judge Perry, formerly his attorney and friend, it is understood is bequeathed $10,000.

Yesterday when safe deposit boxes were opened $200,000 in stocks and bonds was disclosed. Three other boxes remain to be opened. It is understood that before he died, without relatives or kin of any kind, Mr. Wilson disposed of about $200,000, a large portion of which went to Miss Hurd.

A SPLENDID WAY TO REDUCE ONE'S WEIGHT

There is, perhaps, no one thing that shears the passing of our youth so much as the horrible heaviness of some of us to put on too much weight after we have reached the age of 35 or 40. However young our face may appear, our figure "gives us away."

The cause of this overstoutness is that our stomachs convert the food we eat into fat, because there is not enough oxygen in the blood to produce a proper combustion to destroy the fatty tissue. To reduce your weight go to a good druggist and get oil of orrinne in capsule form, and take one after each meal. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Oil of orrinne taken at meal-times gives you all the benefit of the food you eat, and at the same time dissolves the fatty tissue from any part of the body where there is excessive fat. In this way many have reduced their weight at the rate of about a lb. a day, and no flabbiness is left.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Address: D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240, Montreal, Can.

FIFTY KILLED ON THE INFLEXIBLE

Six Warships Re-entered the Strait Yesterday and Resumed the Bombardment—Only 64 of the 800 Men on Board the French Battleship Bouvet Were Rescued.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 20.—Athens despatches received early this afternoon tended to strengthen the belief that Admiral Carden was either killed or wounded in Thursday's battle. More than 50 men, including several officers, were killed on board the Inflexible. The cablegram said the six warships that re-entered the strait yesterday morning and resumed the bombardment were forced to withdraw in the afternoon on account of bad weather. A British destroyer steamed outside the strait to-day bringing a number of British and French sailors from the hospital ships grouped in a circle off Tenedos island. The warships of the allied fleet half masted their colours while the dead were buried at sea with full naval honours.

SITUATION IN HAND

LONDON, March 20.—The Chronicle says this morning: "The loss of three battleships in Thursday's attack on the interior forts of the Dardanelles, will be received with profound regret both in England and France, but it affects in no respect the ultimate success of the operations in the narrow channel, where the danger of the drifting mines is increased by the rapidity of the current. The operations of the mine sweepers can never certainly be regarded as completed, and it would indeed have been surprising if the allied fleet had succeeded in forcing a passage without the loss of ships. Happily the situation is well in hand and our grasp of it, as the Admiralty for the first times discloses is not confined to naval measures."

ONLY 64 WERE RESCUED

PARIS, March 20.—The French ministry of marine this afternoon announced that only 64 men of the crew of about 800 aboard the Battleship Bouvet, sunk in the Dardanelles, were rescued. The casualties aboard the other French warships were slight, it was announced.

LONDON, March 20.—A stained envelope embossed with the name of the General Steam Navigation Company, was found to-day on the beach at Guernsey Island. Across the front were the words: "Oriole torpedoed." The London cargo boat Oriole, 1,489 tons, owned by the General Steam Navigation Company, has been missing for several weeks. The admiralty recently expressed the opinion that she had been sunk by a submarine.

CAUSED A SENSATION

SPREAD LIKE WILDFIRE

Copyright 1915 Central News by T. P. O'Connor

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 20.—Lord Kitchener's blunt exposure that Great Britain is badly in need of ammunition and that the necessity for hurrying up a supply is immediate, produced an immense impression. It revealed for the first time the nature of the real, serious and only obstacle that has stood between the allies and an early victory. I and others behind the scenes have known for many months that ammunition, not men, has been the decisive factor in bringing the struggle to an early end. The greatest authority in the world on armaments told me some time ago that the allies and Germany must each expend twelve million shells monthly. The problem confronting England has been to find twelve million shells for herself, an equal number for Russia and a partial supply for France. It was also necessary to find rifles and bigger guns for the army of a million men that Kitchener now has at his disposal. The big cannon already have done tremendous execution against the German lines, but thousands of rifles are still required.

Spread Like Wildfire.

Kitchener's blunt confession of these deficiencies spread like wildfire through the country and brought us face to face with the difficulties of the war and the long and difficult road still to travel as has nothing yet said since the beginning of the war. The big results of this realization are already apparent. More than three hundred factories are already working day and night turning out ammunition and industry after industry has offered to transform their works into shell or rifle factories. The workmen are so impressed that every labour leader has joined in the imperative demand that the work no longer be interrupted even for an hour lest the supply of ammunition be interrupted and the army's advance to an early victory be retarded. A further fillip was given the feverish concentration of the whole nation on armaments, especially on shells, by the recent victory at Neuve Chapelle. It is an outstanding fact that this victory was mainly due to the deadly shell fire under the cover of which the British were able to advance and beat a demoralised enemy. I prophesy that when the advance of the allies does begin it will be inaugurated by a bombardment that will

GERMAN ATTEMPTS ENDED IN FAILURE

Copying the British Tactics Enemy Tried to Recapture the Ground Lost in the Champagne Region But the Attacks Were Thrown Back With Very Heavy Losses.

Special Cable:

PARIS, March 20.—3 p.m. official.—Using the tactics employed by the British at Neuve Chapelle, the Germans have made unsuccessful efforts to recapture the lost ground in the Champagne region, the war office announced to-day. The Germans first shelled the French trenches north east of Mesnil. After a violent bombardment for several hours they launched several infantry attacks. In each instance they were thrown back with heavy losses. In the face of a vigorous attack the French are maintaining their position on the plateau at Vauquois, near Varennes. Along the Aisne a fairly brisk artillery battle is progressing.

GERMAN LOSS, 6,000

BERLIN, via London, March 20.—An official statement issued to-day by the German general staff declares that the total German losses in the fighting in the vicinity of Neuve Chapelle, were about 6,000. A semi-weekly report of the progress of the fighting given out by the British authorities on March 15th, stated that the German losses during the operations at Neuve Chapelle from March 10th to March 13th, could not have been less sthan 17,000 or 18,000.

ADMIT MEMEL OCCUPIED

BERLIN, via wireless, March 20.—The war office this afternoon officially confirmed the report that the German seaport city of Memel is now occupied by the Russians.

MAINTAINING SECRECY

PETROGRAD, March 20.—The Russian general staff continues to maintain the greatest secrecy to-day about the movement of Russian troops who are reported by Berlin to have crossed the Prussian border and have occupied the seaport of Memel. Petrograd newspapers to-day and yesterday printed the German official statements cabled here from London without comment. The war office refused to either confirm or deny the German statement that the Slavs are again on Prussian soil.

The official despatches made public to-day dealt principally with the fighting around Ostrolenka, Ossowetz and Pryzasnysz. North of Ostrolenka and near the fortress of Ossowetz, the Russian artillery has dispersed the German forces who attempted an offensive; north of Przasnysz the Russian cavalry have clashed with the German outposts in a number of minor engagements.

GIVING CREDIT WHERE IT IS DUE

On the market this morning a citizen purchased 12 prints of butter, weighed them in a George street store, and found he had 14¼ pounds of butter. A farmer gave the facts to The Examiner and stated that this woman sells about 60 pounds of butter every Saturday. He remarked that as far as he knew Mr. Citizen did not return to the market to tell the woman her butter was running three ounces to the print overweight. At the prevailing prices the purchaser received about 75 cents' worth of butter more than he paid for. Market Clerk Brown believes that the majority of farmers give at least an ounce of butter over each pound.

THE COST WAS HEAVY

Analysis of the Last Casualty List Shows That Britain Paid a High Price For Her Victory

MANY OFFICERS DEAD

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, March 19.—An analysis of the latest "additional" casualty list among British officers in Belgium, published this morning, and giving eighty-three more names of officers killed and died of wounds, seems to indicate that "the half has not been told," or allowed to be cabled, of the glorious though costly fighting which won Neuve Chapele and St. Eloi as victories for the British and for the allies. The latest list includes six colonels dead, indicating that whole battalions were led into action and their leaders counted among the fallen. These colonels on the roll of honour are: Lauris, of the Irish Rifles; McAndrew, of the Lincolnshires; McLean, of the Gordons; Uniacke, of the Gordons. There were evidently at least two battalions of Gordons in it; Nicholson, of the East Lancashires, and Prichard of the Northamptonshires. Seven majors were killed and twenty-two captains; the rest of the eighty-three were lieutenants. It was not an English victory, nor an Irish, nor a Scotch. The casualties indicate that it was British in the fullest sense of the word. Coupled with the names of famous Scottish and Irish regiments in the honour list, were those from most of the shires of England, and in the list yesterday of apparently the same battles, were Canadians and Hindus. The Australians and the South Africans and those from the other Dominions were not there because they are fighting the battles of the Empire somewhere else. So far official statements have not told of the total of non-commissioned officers and men of the British force killed in these engagements. To date since March 10 the total of 195 officers killed and died of wounds has been given. The ratio is sometimes estimated at about thirty non-commissioned officers and men killed to one officer. That would make it approximately 7,850 non-commissioned officers and men killed, and 195 officers, to say nothing about the wounded and missing. A terrific price, indeed, but the British Empire is ready, and the relatives of the men at the front have steeled their hearts to the sacrifice.

SATURDAY, MARCH 20, 1915

NOT DISCOURAGED.

Are we discouraged as a result of the naval mishap in the Dardanelles? Not at all. One who has followed the past course of war events must have been struck with the comparatively small losses to the allied ships and forces, considering the wide area of operations, and the vast numbers engaged. Now, when a reverse like that in the Dardanelles comes, we are apt to attach too much importance to it. Apart from the loss of life, the loss is inconsiderable. All the British ships sunk were of the earlier pre-Dreadnought type—built on an average twelve years ago, and practically obsolete, and booked for scrap if the war had not been on. Britain still has 136 of this class. Germany has 20; but for all the harm they represent, rusting in the Kiel Canal, she might as well have 100. Britain has 27 Dreadnoughts and super-Dreadnoughts. The unsealing of the Dardanelles is no boy's play; but it is so important; so much of the final result hinges on it, that if only a few more obsolete battleships are sacrificed, the price of success will be cheap. But whatever the cost the Dardanelles will be forced. The task will be a hard one, but the British spirit is not daunted by difficulties, and we are not, as we have no reason to be, discouraged.

THE CITY GARDEN.

The city garden idea seems to have "caught on"; and that is one of the best indications of its becoming a real factor in promoting the interests of individual citizens and through them, collectively, the interests and prosperity of the city as a whole. When the public begin to talk about things and take an interest in them, there is a probability of something being done.

As a natural leader the Horticultural Society has officially taken cognizance of the proposal and organized effort is being adopted.

The committee appointed consists of practical men; men of business experience and initiative and, moreover, men with their hearts in the work of beautifying the city and making it in all ways a better place to live in, and in all ways more worthy of our pride.

The action of the society/in taking up officially the idea of the city garden is quite in line with the objects of its existence and activity.

If we can get individual citizens to cultivate a little kitchen garden in the rear of their premises we shall get them interested in the benefit and beauty of growing things from the soil. We shall thus arouse or stimulate a spirit that will tend to interest them in the general beautification of their premises, and they will naturally join the growing of flowers to the growing of vegetables.

The committee is taking the right way of beginning, in proposing to interest other organizations and procure their cooperation. In this way the idea will be generally impressed, and there will thus be created a public opinion almost unanimous in the feeling of the benefits of the city garden. To insure the greatest success we must have general cooperation.

The greatest object to be arrived at is to extend, to intensify locally, the idea of the government's scheme of more production as a measure of patriotism. It is obviously the plan of divine Providence that mankind shall be nourished from the soil; and we shall be all the more closely co-working with Providence if we each of us do our share. If each of us, by increased production, or as may happen in many cases, new production, does his share, the aggregate result would be incalculable.

The main thing is to make a beginning; to get every individual owner or occupant of a little possible garden plot to make a beginning—to take the first step to clearing up his plot and striking the first spade into the soil.

To do this needs a little missionary work. People who have an interest in soil production, especially gardening; people who have an interest in their neighbours; in the general welfare and prosperity of the city, can do much to stimulate their possibly careless neighbours. When you are smoking your after-supper pipe in the open and chatting with your neighbour across the back fence, talk your neighbour over and convince him of the profit of cultivating vegetables instead of weeds in his little back lot. If you know how, tell him; encourage him. If he has no tools tell him you will lend him yours; or put him in the way of somebody that will help him. If he lacks means to buy seeds, tell him that the committee of the Horticultural Society will help him, and if he begins in earnest, the committee will help him to tomato and other plants. Only get him started—that's the point.

Good resolutions are good things; but only when they are carried into effect. In this city garden affair the chief point is to get a start made. A great many who would be willing to grow things don't perhaps know how. If he is willing to learn he can be taught.

Many who may be willing to learn should be taught. They don't know how to plant things; or if they know that, they don't know how closely they can be planted with advantage. To do this should be part of the work of the committee of the Harticultural society.

They should get their heads together and prepare a model plan. This plan might include information as to what is most profitable to grow in a given plot. How to prepare the soil; how to lay out the beds. What to plant first and how to plant it. If the committee prepared a little leaflet to this effect, printed in plain terms, giving the most practical information, and distribute them broadcast, a great impulse would be given to the city garden idea. The committee must be alert; it should make use of the press every day—for the time is short—should keep the public mind stirred by their official appeals. We can't pretend to teach the committee its work, but we can impress upon it the necessity of prompt action; the season promises to open early, and no time is to be lost.

The work of the committee and the work of all those interested in greater production is two-fold. The owners of little back-yard plots must be got, without exception if possible, to cultivate them; and in cases of unemployment the area of cultivation should be extended.

We have on every street vacant lots that at present are only eyesores, and a refuge for weeds. We believe the committee of the society proposes to utilize these by getting possession of them to be turned over to the unemployed or others; so that they can be cultivated and made productive; and what is more practical, the committee is prepared to help with seeds and plants.

The Patriotic Fund Committee is also thinking on the matter in the right way. After a meeting of the committee night before last, the matter as informally talked over. A member of the committee, one of the most practical and resourceful, suggests that in the interests of unemployment the Patriotic Fund Committee should take hold of the greater production campaign in the city—should get possession of vacant lands in and adjacent to the city, and put the "out-of-works" at the work of profitably cultivating.

It was pointed out that this would accomplish three or four important results — help unemployment; utilize at present waste soil; increase production, and arouse and stimulate the back to the land movement.

The idea is an admirable one; but it should be so dealt with that there should be no overlapping with the work and aims of the committee of the Horticultural Society. The two committees are composed of level-headed, practical business men, and they can be trusted to cooperate effectively. There is work enough for both; for it is too much to hope that either one will accomplish all it aims at.

But above all things; do not let us forget or subordinate the idea of the city garden—getting each householder to cultivate his little plot of back yard. The individual gains may be small, but suppose a man only raises ten or fifteen dollars' worth of vegetables, which he would otherwise have to buy or go without, the collective gain of a thousand such cases would be great.

Think the matter of the city garden over; consider its gain; consider the pleasure of watching grow, of plucking and eating the crisp, cool vegetables from your own ground; think of the added comforts to your table! think of the money saved—the money gained; think of profitable employment of your otherwise wasted time; think of the joys of accomplishment and take action at once. The spring is at hand, and to-day is not to early to plan beginnings.

THOSE ARMY BOOTS.

The Government had, according to a public statement made by the Prime Minister some months ago, placed contracts for 290,000 pairs of these boots, and despite the notification of General Alderson and everybody else, the machinery was let run on and on in the manufacture of footwear that, even if well-made, which much of it was not, was condemned in advance as unsuitable for the purpose for which it was being produced. The Government, confessedly, didn't know what to do. Conferences were called, experts were consulted, and finally a happy thought occurred to somebody: Why not make for the use of our army in Europe such boots as armies in Europe wear? There was no reason why not. It was agreed to, and is being done, we understand. But why six months had to go by, and why 290,000 pairs of shoes suitable for sidewalk parade were ordered, instead of regulation army boots, remains a mystery. On whose advice was it done, and what were the reasons given? The Parliamentary inquiry does not yet seem to have reached back to the origin of the error.—Toronto Star.

THE CONTRACTORS, THE GOVERNMENT AND SOLDIERS' SUPPLIES

The Minister of Militia might have been excused if, as reported, he had threatened to shoot whoever was responsible for the rubbish leather and scamped workmanship in the boots supplied for the Canadian soldiers. The evidence sworn before the Parliamentary committee in Ottawa proves the trail of black-hearted crime across Canada from Halifax to Calgary. Those who have firsthand knowledge of the facts about contracts, in many centres of manufacture and covering almost the entire range of supplies, Conservatives as well as Liberals, affirm in the most absolute manner and with a sense of shame and indignation that never had they known, or even imagined, such systematic exploitation and trafficking in Government work, such waste and looting of public funds, and such scandalous betrayal of the honour and decency of Canada's good name as remain still to be investigated. Government supporters, men who never polled a Liberal vote, confess to a sickening sense of disgust at what they openly assert they know to have happened in conection, not with the boots alone, but with uniforms, with clothing, with saddles, with equipment of various kinds, with the letting of contracts and the purchase of horses on the advice of party managers, with the division of excess charges between the contractors and the party fund treasurers, and the whole humiliating carnival of incompetence and rascality of which the revelation at Ottawa are but a foretaste and a suggestion.

Is it any wonder that some party manipulators, who have more loyalty to the party machine than to the country's welfare, are eager to rush a general election before the worst scandals can be made public? Is it any wonder that the better men are protesting to Sir Robert Borden himself against the disgrace done to the Conservative party, the damage threatened to Canada's reputation in Britain and before the world, and the worst than German cruelties committed against Canadian soldiers in the training camps and at the front, for all of which members of his Cabinet are, directly or indirectly, responsible? To the credit of Conservatives, and to the credit of many contractors, be it said that for many of them patriotism and personal honour will not permit them to wink at this worst brand of treason to Canada.

Two things press for public utterance and for public approval:

(1) The manufacturers and the merchants and the new-fledged dummy-contractors proved guilty of complicity in these crimes are deserving not of consideration, but of the most merciless exposure and the just penalty of the law. In Budapest two contractors of high mercantile standing were arrested the other day and must face trial for supplying shoddy clothing to their Government for the Austrian soldiers. Similar offences in Canada demand similar treatment. For the man who makes ill-gotten gain at the peril of the health and lives of Canadian soldiers the proper place is the prison cell, not the Canadian Manufacturers' Association or any Board of Trade: and the higher his standing in the church, or in the social scale, or in the political rank the longer his term in the penintentiary.

(2) The Minister in charge, the Cabinet's committee on contracts, and the Government itself cannot evade responsibility for defective samples approved, for inferior materials allowed, for unfit equipment accepted, or for excessive charges permitted. They ought to have known. It was their first business to be on guard. If the underling is punished, much more the man higher up.

One thing more: any member of the Parliamentary committee, be he Conservative or Liberal, who sidesteps his duty, or cloaks an offender, or plays the game of low politics ought to be denounced before Parliament and dismissed from service. This thing is too serious, too far-reaching, too fundamental for any trickster hand. The diagnosis must be thorough or the disease will be fatal.—The Globe.

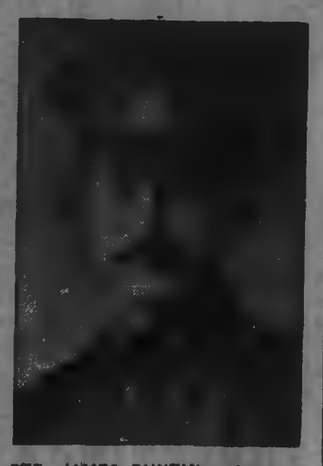
CHAMBERLEN STREET HAS DONE ITS SHARE IN SUPPLYING MEN FOR THE FIRING LINE

Between Fifty and Fifty-five Men Directly or Indirectly Connected With the Street Have Responded to the Call to Arms Since the Outbreak of the War---One Chamberlen Street Family Claims a Fighting Record of Seventy-Five Years and is Represented in the Casualty List of the Present War---Men Are Stationed in All Parts of the World.



PTE. JAMES BUNTIN, whose parents reside at 584 Chamberlen Street. He enlisted in the First Contingent while in Edmonton.

Should it fall to the lot of Peterborough to have a street of widows as a result of the war, that unfortunate distinction will probably fall on Chamberlen street. Three contingents have been raised in this city, and by all accounts Chamberlen street has contributed a greater number of men than any other street in the city, all things being equal. So far Peterborough has been very fortunate in that it is not largely represented in the casualty list. That happy circumstance cannot continue very much longer unless the warring nations decide to grant a moratorium to their warlike ambitions. Such a course would be nothing short of a miracle. In fact it is a possibility so remote as to discourage consideration. Unless Germany takes a very strong initiative there cannot be a cessation of hostilities until the enemy is vanquished. Spring will herald the opening of a campaign that will obscure all previous efforts of the allied forces. For months the military and naval powers engaged in the herculean struggle have been silently preparing with grim earnestness for the spring and summer campaign. Like the lash of a huge whip will the three hundred-mile battle line in France, sway and bend in response to the varying pressure of the opposing forces. Armies, that for months past, have existed underground, will rise up in their might and history will be in the making.

The Inevitable Result.

One of the results of this mighty and inevitable clash will be manifest in the casualty list or "honour roll" as it is more often called. Then will the grim realty of twentieth century warfare come home to mothers, wives, sisters and other relatives who have gallantly stood aside while their loved ones marched forth in defence of the Empire. Mothers who have not the right to vote or get shot will have a deeper conviction of war, and one of its effects which is to cripple, maim and destroy. One blast from a cannon's mouth may rob a hundred homes of a breadwinner and throw the dependents upon the mercy of the state which in so far as Canada is concerned, has pledged its protection to the dependents of those whose lives are sacrificed, that liberty and right might prevail.

The First Pang.

Chamberlen street has already experienced the first pang incident to a casualty in that the first known death of a Peterborough man was that of Private Ben. A. Manners, who prior to his departure for the front, resided at 588 Chamberlen street. Deceased, who was a reservist, died in a Paris hospital on January 27th as a result of wounds.

Pte. Manners joined the Sussex Regiment, with which he was formerly connected, soon after war was declared. He boarded with his brother, Corp. Charles Manners, 583 Chamberlen Street, who is with the 2nd Overseas Contingent. While in the city he was employed at the Henry Hope Company's plant, coming here from Toronto.

He is survived by his mother and two sisters, residing in Toronto; three brothers, Bert with the First Canadian Contingent, Corp. Charles Manners, 2nd Contingent, and Walter, in England.

Corporal Charles Manners, who is now with the 2nd contingent, leaves behind a wife and family. He served with colours in England, and has resided in Canada about ten years.

A Fighting Family.

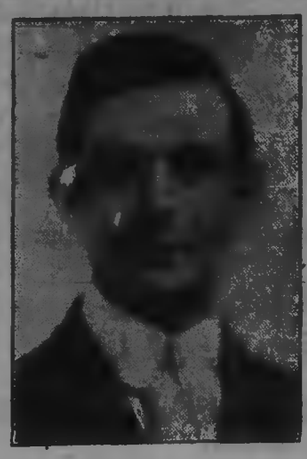
Chamberlen street is represented directly or indirectly by between fifty and fifty-five men who have enlisted since the outbreak of the war. More than one-half of this number were actual residents of Chamberlen street, including the intersections. The remainder are close relatives, such as brothers, and in a number of cases, sons who were away when the call came overseas for recruits for Kitchener's army.

Chamberlen street is in a thriving section of the city, running parallel to Albert street, one block south of the Canadian General Electric property. One of the oldest streets in Peterborough it got its name from the Chamberlen Estate, of which it was one time a part. This estate once extended over several acres in that section of the city, but in later years it was subdivided and sold for city residences. Up to ten years ago there was not very much building done on it, but it is fairly well built up now. In the city side it extends only two blocks from Park street to the North Monaghan Boundary Road. The Municipality of North Monaghan has extended it two blocks into Browntown under the same name, and it now stretches from Park street to Western avenue. Up to four years ago there were no cement sidewalks on Chamberlen street, and at present there is no sewer connection, though the residents are making strenuous efforts in this direction.

There stands at 529 Chamberlen street an old log house which is one of the oldest in the city. It is a part of the Chamberlen Estate. To the older residents who remember when log houses were common, this house needs no description. It is still occupied.



LANCE CORPORAL F. BATTERSON

With the 2nd Overseas Contingent. He resided at 526 Chamberlen Street.

Must Prove War Did It

Ontario Government Maintains Restrictions in Relief Act

TORONTO, March 20.—The mortgagors' and purchasers' relief act passed the last stage in the Legislature yesterday and becomes operative as a statute of the province.

During the final discussion, Allan Studholme moved an amendment, in which he sought to eliminate the word "war" in the bill, and make it operative in all cases, thereby relieving applicants for relief from proving that the war caused their financial stress. Several members of the Opposition supported the amendment, which was lost.

Hon. T. W. McGarry in placing the new succession duty bill in committee argued for the tax of 1 1-2 per cent. on estates between $25,000 and $50,000. Last year the wealthy men had been taxed and since the vast majority of Ontario estates lay between these figures they should pay their toll. As it was, other countries assessed down to $500 for succession duties. With little opposition the clause went through.

The Ontaro Government is taking in hand the control of lands along the shores of the great lakes, which contain sand and gravel. Hereafter, annual licenses will be issued under special order-in-council to work any such deposit, and previous regulations are rescinded. Now licenses will be granted for one dredge only and will expire on Dec. 31, following issue.

IN GREAT DISTRESS FROM EGZEMA

Suffered Over Two Years. Grew Thin and Lost Appetite. Itching, Burning, Sore Eruption. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Completely Healed.

"283 George St., Sarnia, Ont.—"I suffered for over two years with eczema which first appeared in small pimples and broke into red inflamed sores. They were very itching and when my clothing rubbed against them I was in great distress. I lost my rest at night and was much disfigured by the eruptions. The eczema was so bad that I grew thin and lost my appetite. My hands, arms, face and various parts of my body were covered with an itching, burning eruption of sores and though I took many common and much recommended remedies they failed to do any good.

"I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after about three weeks I was completely healed. I take pleasure in recommending them to any other needy sufferers from eczema, or other eruptions of the skin." (Signed) Miss Bertha Allan, May 25, 1914.

War Cannot Slaughter MORE VICTIMS THAN PNEUMONIA.

Pneumonia is described as a preventible disease if taken in time.

Pneumonia is the scourge of the able-bodied men and women "a little run down perhaps" but strong in the belief that they can fight off a cold. Colds are not easily fought off in this northern climate.

On the first sign of a cough or cold, our advice to you is "Get Rid of It."

The slight cold, the irritating cough, the tightness of the chest, if not attended to, will sooner or later develope into some serious lung or bronchial trouble.

GET A BOTTLE OF DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP and you will find after the first two or three doses have been taken the cough or cold will quickly disappear.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; the price, 25c and 50c.

Be sure you see that the name of The T. Milburn Co., Limited, appears on both the label and wrapper.

Mrs. Edward Hugo, Moose Jaw, Sask., writes: "My little girl, three years old, contracted a bad cold which settled on her lungs, and turned into pneumonia, and she was given up by our doctor. I decided to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and by the time she had taken three bottles she was well again. I shall always keep a bottle of "Dr. Wood's" in the house."

D. D. D. In Hospitals; Standard Skin Remedy

How many hospital patients have been soothed of their frightful itch, of the scorching pain of skin disease, by the famous D.D.D. Prescription for eczema, a soothing fluid, washed in by a nurse's hand!

A SUPERVISING NURSE (name of nurse and institute on application), writes regarding a patient: "The disease had eaten her eyebrows away. Her nose and lips had become disfigured. Since the use of D.D.D. her eyebrows are growing, her nose and face have assumed their natural expression."

Doctors, too, use D.D.D. in private practice. DR. GEO. T. RICHARDSON frankly writes: "D.D.D. is superior to anything I have ever found. Safe and soothing, yet a powerful agent."

To do the work, D.D.D. Prescription must be applied according to directions given in the pamphlet around every bottle.

All druggists of standing have the famous specific at 25c and $1 a bottle.

But we are so confident of the merits of this prescription that we will refund the purchase price of the first full size bottle if it fails to reach your case. You alone are to judge.

McDermid & Jury, E. L. Payne, druggists, Peterborough.

D.D.D. Soap Keeps Your Skin Healthy

Mrs. Wiseneighbour Says :

"I should have told you the other day when I was speaking of 'Eddy's' washboards, that it is just as necessary to have an Indurated Fibreware Tub to hold your clothes if you want to make a success of Washday."

Mrs. Newlywed says: "I've heard of 'Eddy's' Indurated Fibreware. What's the difference between Fibre and Woodenware ?"

"Fibreware is made from compressed fibre baked at extreme heat. All in one solid piece, it cannot warp or fall apart. No chance of splinters, wears much longer, looks better and is light to carry. The latter point you should always take into consideration," concludes Mrs. Wiseneighbour.

UNION LEADERS AGREE TO LLOYD GEORGE'S PROPOSAL

They Will Recommend to the Unions That Wage Differences Be Referred to Arbitration and That Union Rules be Relaxed During War

LONDON, March 20.—As a result of conferences with David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and a committee of the Imperial defence, workmen's representatives have decided to recommend to members of their unions that during the period of the war there shall in no case be any stoppage of work, that all differences regarding wages or conditions of employment be referred to arbitration, and that a relaxation of trade union regulations be permitted so as to allow the employment of semi-skilled and female labor.

An advisory committee from the organized workers will be appointed by the Government for the purpose of facilitating the carrying out of these recommendations which are made on the understanding that the Government will secure from employers assurances that changes shall be only for the period of the war. Mr. Lloyd George will now confer with the employers.

The conferees on the side of the Government included, aside from the Treasury sub-committee which had the conference in charge, Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George, Arthur Balfour, former Conservative leader, and Lord Kitchener.

The agreement, it is believed, will bring to an end the embarrassment which the Government has been under in both military and industrial branches because of unsettled labor conditions. The most recent trouble was with the coal-heavers, whose strike held up many of the merchant vessels upon which the Government is depending to maintain its maritime traffic, and with the armorers, whose attitude toward increased hours of labor seriously threatened the armament program.

Jos. S. Bell Has Received Universal Support of Idea of Disarmament After War

With Few Exceptions Prominent Men in Many Countries Voice Their Accord With the Proposal for an International Police to Maintain Peace—Extracts From Some of the Letters He Received

Mr. Jos. S. Bell has by no means ceased his efforts to promote disarmament after the war and the establishment of an international police force to maintain peace among the nations.

After the war, what? International outcome as viewed by leading church men.

The 'imperative necessity that peace when established shall secure the collective responsibility of the civilized nations for the maintenance and enforcement of international law" was the substance of a resolution adopted at a meeting held lately in London, presided over by Earl Grey, an astute and highly respected former Governor-General of Canada.

Illustrative extracts are given herewith from a few of the large number of replies received by Mr. Bell to the following letter, which explains itself, and which Mr. Bell sent some time ago. Only a few of the replies are given:

Peterborough, Ont., Dec. 7, '14.

Right Rev. Sir,— Often have we heard the question, owing to the outbreak of the war, "Has Christianity Failed?" Surely not, but instead is given an epochal opportunity in regard to which I venture to address you.

It would be failure were we to be satisfied with merely a rectification of boundaries and the assessment of an equitable indemnity. The world has been prepared as never before, for an advance.

National armaments invite exploitation through the national fear of aggression.

This induces competition between the nations, with an ever increasing taxation, for, collectively, an ever increasing menace.

The world's governments recognising that the vast majority of their peoples abhor wars, have, at the Hague, assured each other that their mighty armaments were to keep the peace.

A practical realisation of the will of the people would have resulted in disarmament, but was balked owing to the hypocrisy of some of the Governments.

The deliberations at the termination of this world conflict will result in a limitation of armaments, or in a universal conscription.

Agreement for limitation would be "only a scrap of paper" and ineffective except such force be international.

An extended Hague Tribunal should be created, composed of representatives of the nations, sworn to act as judges only, and all international disputes be arbitrated by this court.

Armaments should be under the control of such International Court and all warship and artillery plants not required for the equipment and upkeep of this International Force to be dismantled and destroyed.

The International Force would be made sufficiently strong to enforce the decrees of the Court on any uncivilized nations which did not desire to come under its jurisdiction.

At a meeting in strong support of the British position, presided over by the Mayor of this City and supported by the President of the General Ministerial Association (Presbyterian), the Rector of the Cathedral (Roman Catholic) and the Rector of Peterborough (Anglican) resolutions were unanimously adopted urging that every effort be made to foster a movement for a reasonable disarmament as a result of this war.

I was also asked to ascertain the position of the Peace Societies for collective action, that the present enormous sacrifice be not in vain.

With this object, I approach you as a member of one great branch of a Society for the extension of Peace and Brotherhood.

You will pardon the suggestion of a business man, but if the divided Church could come together on so vital a question as this one, it would go far to give respect for Her authority and to strengthen Her discipline, which surely a restless world needs as never before.

The favour of a reply is respectfully asked for in regard to your opinion and action.

Yours faithfully,
Joseph S. Bell.

Most Rev. Enos Nuttall, D.D., D.C.L., LLD., Archbishop of the West Indies, Kingston, Jamaica—We pray there will be such a revision of boundaries of countries as will take into account the racial and the national aspirations of peoples. I have confident hope that out of this awful crisis there will come a new era. All enlightened Christians realize that aggressive war is contrary to the letter and spirit of the teaching of Jesus Christ.

Bishop Worrell, of Nova Scotia, Halifax—I quite agree with the sentiments expressed in your letter.

Bishop Gray, Edmonton— I would support any movement for reduction or abolition of armaments as outcome of war.

President Falconer, Toronto University—Unless armaments are reduced to the lowest possible stage we shall not have got out of the war what we were hoping for.

Rev. C. W. Gordon, D.D., Winnipeg, (Ralph Connor)—International agreement in regard to armament must be established, backed by international force. The preliminary step must be mutual disarmament by the great Powers. The subject is one for anxious and earnest consideration by all people who call themselves Christians.

Bishop Anderson, Moosonee, Cochrane, Ont.—I most heartily agree with your proposals.

Bishop Lofthouse, Keewatin, Kenora, Ont.—I am in the fullest agreement with the resolutions at your meeting and would do all in my power to forward them, but the war must be fought to the bitter end.

Rt. Rev. Dr. Tuttle, Presiding Bishop Protestant Epis. Ch. in U.S.A.— The Hague adjustments and co-operations have already accomplished no little good. May they under the guidance and blessing of Almighty God go on to secure that "peace on earth" for which at this blessed season we specially pray.

Bishop Sanford of San Joaquin, Fresno, Cal.—My own hope is that a permanent Hague Tribunal will be created and that armament will be reduced to the limit required by a co-operative international police.

Bishop Williams of Nebraska, Omaha—I subscribe most heartily and am already associated with a movement in the U. S. based upon the propositions contained in your letter.

Robert H. Gardiner, Gardiner, Maine, Sec'y World's Conference on Faith and Order— I think there is good reason to hope that the result of this dreadful war will be the extension of the Hague Tribunal and creation and pledge of this can be found hope that the Christian churches will take an active and vigorous leadership in that direction.

Bishop Rhinelander, Philadelphia—The European war should result in God's Providence in the setting up more solidly than ever a reign of Christian peace throughout the Christian world and I believe the foundation and pledge of this can be found only in the closer approach to one another of all Christian people, if not in the organic union of all Christian communions.

Bishop Rowe, of Alaska, Seattle, Wash, U.S.A.— I will do all I can along those lines. I think you will find the bishops and clergy of the American church desirous of doing the same.

Bishop Brewster, Connecticut, Hartford—It has seemed to me possible that there should be a League of Nations with a Tribunal clothed with an authority recognized by all and sufficiently equipped to enforce its decrees.

Bishop Davies, Western Massachusetts, Springfield —The Hague Tribunal had made a good beginning and I hope its work may be far extended.

Bishop Gailor, Tennessee, Memphis—I beg to say that I am heartily in sympathy with such a movement and believe it to be for the economic and moral advantage of the whole world.

Archdeacon Chambers administrator Dioc., Oregon, Portland—I am in hearty accord and will do all I can to aid such a movement.

Bishop Israel, Erie, Erie, Pa.—Whatever influence I have will be used most cheerfully and earnestly to foster such a movement.

Bishop Thornloe, Algoma, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.—Your suggestions if they could be carried out, are full of promise.

Bishop De Pencier, New Westminster, Dioc. Vancouver, B.C.—I am in hearty accord with much that you say. I feel, however, that any action at present would be premature.

Bishop Richardson, Fredericton — There can be no difference of opinion as regards the desirability of disarmament. I fear, however, to create an international force that would compel respect for its decisions you are a century or so in advance of your time.

Bishop Farthing, Montreal—All lovers of peace will rejoice indeed if, after the war, we are able to present this matter so that it may be accepted by the nations.

Bishop Mills, Ontario, Kingston. — Your suggestion of an armed international court could never be adopted, for if it were, it might develop into a military machine as objectionable as that now in existence in Germany.

Bishop of Barcelona, Spain.—For my part, humbly seconding these desires, I wrote my first pastoral letter treating of "Justice and Peace," and proposing His Holiness the Pope as president of the Arbitration Court to settle all differences among nations.

H. G. Wells, Author, Dunmore, Eng. —Would it not be possible to send a letter to every minister of religion and every priest in the British Empire and in the U. S. A. I have written a pamphlet on exactly your lines, and of which I would gladly waive my copyright if anything could be done to bring these ideas home to the pulpit now.

Bishop of Gibraltar, Canterbury, Eng.—Doubtless this is desirable beyond words, but we need a regenerated spirit. May God in His mercy grant us this in His time.

Bishop of Bath and Wells, Wells, Eng.—Ideally I can entirely endorse what you say as advisable.

Bishop of North and Central Europe, Westminster, Eng.—I quite agree with the spirit of your letter. I would love to see the difficult subject of world peace approached by all Christian churches in true brotherly unity.

Bishop of Kilmore, Cavan, Ire.—Your suggestions are admirable if carried out. I doubt if the nations are ripe for it.

Bishop of Edinburgh—I am heartily in favour with the purport of your letter. I also agree that the United Church should speak out clearly for this.

Bishop of Manchester, Eng.—Yours is, I think, the first attempt I have seen to meet the difficulty of the enforcement of the decisions of the Peace Tribunal. I fear no other process than the elimination of human greed will ever extirpate war.

Bishop of Stepney, London, Eng.—I share, I hope to the full, the longings and aspirations to which you give expression.

Bishop of Wakefield, Eng.— It may be that our peculiar idea of freedom has been given to us to form the pattern of a larger unity for Europe at least, in which an United States of Europe with a police strong enough to coerce, if need be, an erring member, may be formed as a further step towards a united world.

Bishop of Exeter, Eng.—The difficulties would still exist if secret preparations on the part of nations not loyal to the compact, and also of lack of loyal harmony within the controlling body itself. It is a problem of undoubted gravity and urgency.

Rev. G. Ris, Pres. Conf. Swiss Ref. Churches—The Reformed Church in Switzerland will be very pleased to join hands in any movement that tends to open up the prospect of this long wished for peace among the people of the world.

Bishop of South Tokio, Japan— If this war does not in God's mercy hasten the hope of disarmament, I for one shall be grievously disappointed. I see nothing more "visionary" in a Federation of (civilized) Nations than in the existing Federation of States.

Bishop of Chi-Kiang, Kingpo, China —I am in favour of compulsory arbitration with an international Tribunal clothed with sufficient military power to enforce its decisions.

Bishop Norris, North China, Peking, China—I should regard your scheme as a delightful product of this awful war! Of my prayers for which you may rest assured.

Bishop Brent, Philippine Is., Manilla—I am inclined to think that the proposition of an international court and police to superintend the carrying out of its decrees would contribute towards better international conditions. If Christ and His kingdom ever had an opportunity, it is theirs now. We must begin our endeavours to renovate national life and scour it free from false patriotism. Christ's law of love in its uncontroversial features does not dominate.

Bishop of Madras, India—In hearty sympathy with the creation of an International Force sufficient to compel obedience to the decrees of the Tribunal of Arbitration.

Bishop of Brisbane, Australia (passed by cenfor)—With all my heart I endorse the general principles you outline, and I further believe the extension of the Hague Tribunal backed by an international police force is a possible policy; the world will be ready at the end of this war as never before for an advance to the goal of universal peace.

LECTURE BY MR. KENNER ON 19TH CENTURY ARTISTS

Audience at the Public Library Last Night Enjoyed His Illustrated Lecture

It is not very often that an art lecture is given during the open season for concerts and kindred events. That may be one reason for the fact that the Public Library assembly hall was comfortably filled last night to hear an address on "Some Great Artists of the Nineteenth Century." A more salient reason for the comparatively large attendance was the fact that Mr. H. R. H. Kenner was the lecturer, and that the memory of his previous lectures lingered while their substance may have been forgotten. Mr. Kenner declared that he knew nothing about art, that he was merely fulfilling a promise made a considerable time ago to the Ladies' Art Association, and even termed his address a picture show. However, he delighted his audience with the manner in which he treated his subject, and left ample room for doubt regarding his depreciative expressions as to his knowledge of art.

While Mr. Kenner's stereopticon slides did not produce the original colours they conveyed an adequate idea of the treatement and other beauties of the pictures. The lecturer first paid a compliment to the work of the Ladies' Art Association in their efforts to provide for the comforts of the soldiers who have volunteered for the war, and sketched a word picture of some of the grim realities of the struggle with its lights and shades, mostly its shades.

The first three slides were Turner's "Temeraire," "The Shipwreck" and "The Approach to Venice." Throughout his lecture Mr. Kenner quoted Ruskin and other prominent art critics in their references to the subjects shown, and also interpolated poetical biblical and other passages appropriate to the original pictures, in some cases directly based upon them. Among the views most readily remembered were Landseer's animal paintings, the Cinderella, and "The Order of Release," by Millais; "The Last Sleep of Argyle" by Ward Rossetti's "Beata Beatrix"; "After the Conflict," by Woodville; "The Soul's Awakening," by Sant; "The Scapegoat," by Holman Hunt, and "The Symbol."

A vote of thanks, moved by Mr. Pretty and seconded by Mr. Fred Roy, was tendered Mr. Kenner by Mrs. V. Eastwood, who presided. A string quartette from the Conservatory contributed several enjoyable musical numbers.

EX-MAYOR HOCKEN'S ADDRESS TO THE PROTESTANT FEDERATION

He Urges His Hearers to Resist the Intrusion of Bilingualism and Quotes Mr. J. H. Burnham's Views Concerning Alleged Object of Teaching the French Language---Interesting Programme Supplied by Salvation Army

Mr. Horatio G. Hocken, manager of the Orange Sentinel, ex-Mayor of Toronto, and exponent of Orange principles addressed a fair-sized audience in the Protestant Federation Hall, last evening, upon the controversial question of "Bilingualism." Musical selections were supplied by the S.A. Saxaphone Quartette, and Bandmaster Beer, of the Salvation Army, also Mr. C. Coleman, Mr. P. Naish, Mr. Carter, and a recitation by Mr. Johnston. Miss Ivy Beer was the accompanist. She is a daughter of Bandmaster Beer, and judging by her work last evening, is a promising student of no mean ability. His Worship Mayor Buller, Alderman Edgar, Fire Chief Howard, Mr. Albert Carpenter, together with Chairman Adjutant McElhiney, and the speaker occupied the platform. After characterizing ex-Mayor Hocken as a man possessing "a strong mind, a big heart, and a deep conviction," the chairman called upon Mayor Buller to formally introduce the speaker which he did in the following terms: "It gives me great pleasure to introduce ex-Mayor Hocken of the metropolis of the Dominion of Canada. He was one of the most progressive mayor's that the gem city of Canada ever had. I am sorry that every seat in the hall is not filled, and I am sure that those who stayed away will feel sorry when they hear of what they have missed by not coming here to-night."

Mr. Hocken's Address.

Mr. Hocken opened his address with an appeal to the Federation to continue the propaganda that has been instituted. He claimed the right for a Protestant to express his views on the public platform, conceding the same right to others that he reserved for himself. If the Roman Catholics continue to exercise control over the Province of Quebec, denying the right of higher education, the habitant will always be a hewer of wood and a drawer of water. The rural population of Quebec has no idea of patriotism. Their main idea is to live, work and give the proceeds to the church.

Continuing the speaker said: "We must fight for the ascendency of Protestantism. The very essence of Romanism is submission and despotism. It is worse than German despotism. I find among Roman Catholics a willingness to put up money for the advancement of their propaganda to an extent that would put a Protestant to shame. There was before the Prviate Bills Committee of the Federal House a bill concerning the "Catholic Truth Society," whose purpose is to distribute literature throughout the country and also reproduce newspaper extracts reflecting credit on Romanism, as from The Examiner for instance. I suppose that often happens with The Examiner, added the speaker.

Age Long Conflict.

"There exists a Bishop in the lower province who claims that we are persecuting Catholics. Let him clean up his own situation before he criticizes the work of others. He is taking a million dollars from the Protestants in Quebec to maintain schools to teach children that Protestants are going straight to hell. Take the case of the Chief Justice of Canada, who acts as Governor-General during the absence of the Duke of Connaught, who makes a beautiful speech in favour of bilingualism. A more indecent outrage has never been perpertrated in Canada. The Ottawa Citizen devoted a column of criticism respecting the recent speech of Dr. Edwards, who said that the French Language would not be tolerated in Ontario. They never said a word about Canada's Chief Justice. That's the kind of thing that makes my blood boil. When I stepped out of the office of Mayor of Toronto it was not for the purpose of getting into a place of ease, but to get deeper into the Protestant propaganda. It is an age long conflict.

The speaker asserted that the aim of the Roman Catholics was to get into Peterborough County as well as other parts of Ontario, and create ecclesiastical boundaries in preference to civil boundaries. When the Government bought the camp ground at Valcartier, it comprised one-third of a Catholic parish. Land secured by the Government ceases to be taxable for religious purposes, yet the Catholics have asked to be reimbursed to the extent of $30,000 for perpetuity. In other words they want the Dominion Government to pay the tithes of what once constituted a parish.

"The Parish Law.

The speaker dilated upon the "power of the press" and referred to a letter from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., in which the writer attempts to show that the object of bilingualism is to drive the English language out of Ontario, and that a revolution will occur if his request is not granted. "If that is the case, let them bring it on, the sooner the better," said the speaker. The French language has no more right to survive in Canada than the Russian language. The Catholics are asking us to grant them the use of the French language and enforce the "parish law." If they had twenty members in the Ontario Legislature they would govern the Province, just the same as a Catholic representation of twenty per cent. in the Lower House attempt to govern the Dominion of Canada.

In conclusion I would urge continued progress of this organization and a more dilligent future.

On motion of Ald. Edgar and Mr. Albert Carpenter a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Hocken, after which the national anthem was sung and the gathering dispersed.

"PERFECT HELL ON EARTH"

British Officer Describes Shelling at Neuve Chapelle

LONDON, March 20. — The Daily Mail quotes a letter from a captain with the Indian Expeditionary Force describing the capture of Neuve Chapelle. He says:

"We had about 350 guns simply letting drive for all they were worth. When I wanted to make a remark to anyone next to me I had to put my hands to my mouth and yell. The line of German trenches which they were shelling was a perfect hell on earth; they looked as if they were on fire, so awful was the concentration of shell fire. It was one unbroken line of bursting shells.

"Then the infantry dashed forward and you saw men dropping right and left. Barbed entanglements had been blown clean into the trench, and over it in some places and the trenches themselves was simply pulp of earth and boards, wire entanglements, and bags of equipment and Germans, some only boys fourteen years old."

The City Will Enter on Appeal Against the Decision

Of the Arbitrators Awarding as Compensation to the Peterborough Light and Power Company the Sum of $154,615,000 -Another Step in the City's Fight to Acquire Municipal Control of the Light and Power System Formerly Operated by the Company

The City Council has authorised City Solicitor G. N. Gordon to enter an appeal against the decision of the arbitrators awarding as compensation to the Peterborough Light and Power Company the sum of $154,615,000, also interest at five per cent. together with costs. This action was decided upon at a special meeting of the City Council that was held last evening. Mr. Gordon was also instructed to take such steps as may be necessary incident to the examining of one or more of the arbitrators and to retain Mr. M. K. Cowan, K.C., of Toronto, to co-operate with the City Solicitor. That the Company will appeal was unanimously conceded.

Mr. Gordon gave it as his opinion that the award was unfair and inconsistent with the evidence. The evidence submitted by the city was said to be better and productive of less broken down cross-examination than that offered by the Chicago experts.

The Council voiced the opinion that something had been added to fatten the ward of which the Council had no knowledge. They hinted at a compromise figure of $29,000. Mr. Gordon said that he had attempted to obtain a statement from the arbitrators concerning the grounds upon which the award was based, and so far had failed. An appeal will cost the city in the neighbourhood of $300, but as against the possibility of recovering a portion of the award, it was considered to be a good move.

Should the Company appeal and the city fail to enter a cross-appeal, it would all be one way and the city would have to accept the result. Some one suggested that the arbitrators might have been influenced by the fact that the plant was a profitable venture, representing a gross earning power of about $105,000 a year, with gross operating expenses at about $0,000 a year with gross operating expenses at about $50,000, and that twenty-nine thousand dollars or so would make litle difference.

Both Sir Adam Beck and Mr. Gaby of the Hydro Electric Commission of Ontario were of the opinion that the award was high, and that an attempt should be made to obtain from the arbitrators an explantion as to how they arrived at the conclusion they did.

Right From The Thick of the Fight

Private O. R. Brooks Writes an Interesting Letter to His Father, Mr. W. E. Brooks, of Young's Point

Mr. W. E. Brooks of Young's Point, has received the following newsy letter from his son, Oswald, who is now at the battle front in France with No. 1 Company, 2nd Battalion, First Canadian Contingent:

France, Feb. 22, 1915.

Dear Father,—Received your most welcome letter the other night and was glad to hear from you. Well, father, we are right in the thick of it now. We have been in the trenches twice already. We went in Thursday night and stayed in 24 hours, then came out for 24 hours; then on Sunday morning early we went in again for another 24 hours. We felt kind of creepy going in under fire, with the German bullets whistling overhead and expecting every moment to get one as a souvenir. Sunday night the Germans were yelling, singing and whistling to beat the band. Some places the trenches are only 40 or 50 yards apart, but where we are they are about 300 yards. There were a number killed in our trench, while we were in, a sergeant, lance-corporal and a private.

It is terrible to see the way the Germans have blown down houses, barns, churches and whole villages. There is a big town near us that is deserted; nobody in it at all only some soldiers. It is about the size of Peterborough.

Private Brooks also sends the words of their marching song, going into the trenches, which is sung to the air of "Marching Through Georgia," as follows:

Swing along together lads, we'll have a little song,
Kits won't be so heavy and the way won't be so long,
We're going to cook the "sossiges," to cook 'em hot and strong—
While we go marching to Germany.

Chorus—
Hurrah, hurrah, for Berlin on the spree,
Hurrah, hurrah, there's "sossiges" for tea,
We're out to catch the Kaiser and to bring him to his knee,
While we go marching to Germany.

What about the slacker chaps, who look before they leap?
Lads who like to save their skins and have their proper sleep,
Let 'em put on petticoats and feel a little cheap,
While we go marching to Germany.

PATRONS OF CREAMERY MET THIS MORNING

Mr. Gillespie Emphasized the Necessity of Dairymen Looking to Production—Local Creamery Has Every Facility of Looking After Business.

RESPONSIBLE FOR CITIZENS

Mr. G. A. Gillespie met the patrons of the Peterborough Creamery this morning in the Empire theatre, discussed business conditions and presented Mr. G. G. Publow, who threw out a few thoughtful ideas on the production of milk.

P. D. Young, who was chosen as chairman, said he had been recently amused at the efforts of public men to get farmers to raise more crops than in the past. We've been doing the best we can. We are not farming for amusement. We've been doing the best we know how." Mr. Young said he would like to see these gentlemen take a hand at it themselves and see what they could do.

Mr. Gillespie said that dairying was face to face with conditions they never had before. It has come to a point where it is almost discouraging for a farmer in this part of the country. "It has been just as discouraging to me, and I can say that the farmer's interests, my own interests and the interests of all the citizens in Peterborough are mutual. I do not blame the war for present conditions in the rural parts. We have not been getting the best nor nearly the best, out of the farms. The farmers in this community for the past three years have not been getting as much as they should out of their work. If there is any way in which I can meet the patrons of the creamery, I am only too willing to do so. When you get conditions like the present there is more likelihood for complaints. I know there are always complaints and I want every man to feel that if there is anything which he believes should be done, I want to meet him and discuss them with him.

Mr. Gillespie presented the figures of the creamery output since 1910, showing the many periods of low production. Every month there are certain overhead charges. It takes 14,000 pounds of butter a month to pay running expenses. When during a few months' production ran to 30,000 and 40,000 lbs. of butter, there was an opportunity to secure a fair profit for division among patrons. Only four months ago last year were the overhead cost exceeded by the production. Mr. Gillespie said he wanted the patrons to realise the importance of production and to try to get back to the old-time figures.

"As far as I know," he said, "we have paid prices as high as those of any creamery in the province, or even any creamery in Toronto. We are as well able in any creamery in the province to handle and sell cream. He referred to the advantages of the ice cream plant. Last summer after the outbreak of war the ice cream demand fell off considerably. In the dry seasons of the last two years cows went back in butter fat and were badly drilled. They were not getting the feed and were drawing from their constitutions. They are being sparsely fed now and even with good fodder conditions this year they will not get back to the normal condition of cattle. In any case a small make may be expected this year.

Mr. Publow's Address.

Mr. Publow said the best thing for the farmers would be to stop the leaks in the dairy business instead of looking for new things. Have good cows and keep them suitably fed. Try to test your cattle to weed out those which do not come up to the standard of milk production. While farmers have been getting a fair price for dairy products recently, still it is not proportioned to the money invested or to the food value of the products. Farmers must know what it costs them to produce milk. They must know the cost of one pound of butter fat. How many dairy farmers have figured this out? Time will come when farmers will say what they shall get per pound, bushel and so on, in order that they shall receive a fair reward for their work. It is the same with every other manufactury in the country. They set their prices, allowing themselves an adequate and fair profit, but farmers are taking their market prices from outsiders. The satisfaction that comes from work will not be felt unless a fair reward is secured.

Mr. Young— You'll never get city people to believe the cost of farm products until you get them out and let them try to produce them.

Mr. Publow spoke upon the necessity of sanitary conditions under which milk is produced, also the cooling of milk.

While the producer is to blame at times for the condition of milk, it often happens that city people do not properly care for milk after they have received it.

Producers should be particularly careful to have their product go to the consumers in such a condition that the consumers will be prepared to pay the highest prices.

Mr. Publow emphasized the financial returns that may be received by the proper study of the food question.

War Time In Song and Story

Interesting Entertainment in the George St. Methodist Church

One of the finest productions of its kind ever put on in the city was the concert in George Street Methodist Church last night, when "War Time in Song and Story" was depicted by ninety people. It was a patriotic concert, put on by the Fidelia Mission Band, and in that capacity it was a huge success. It represented a large amount of hard work, and those in charge, as well as the large number taking part are deserving of great praise for their efforts.

The church stage as decorated with bunting and flags of the Allies, and the presence of numerous members of the 39th Battalion, some of whom took part in the programme, while others acted in the capacity of ushers, gave the real war-time effect.

While every item was good the final part, a tableau, Britannia and Her Subjects, is deserving of special mention. While Miss Marian Dugan recited "The Children of the Empire," all the young people who took part in the entertainment came on to the stage, each group representing some section of the Empire, to receive John Bull's farewell.

BUSINESS HAS CHANGED HANDS

Mr. Sam Long has sold his aeriated water works in East City to Mr. J. B. Larocque, formerly proprietor of the King George Hotel. Mr. Larocque will conduct the business in future, getting it immediately under way. Mr. Long is at present managing the American House for the Mulhall estate. The deal was completed by Mr. Ed. Huff, who recently opened a real estate office corner of Charlotte and George Streets, in the rear of the Typewriter Co. office.

CALIFORNIA 1915

The above is the title of a very handsome publication just issued by the Grand Trunk System, giving information regarding the Panama-California Exposition at San Diego, and the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. The publication is printed on heavy enamelled paper, is profusely illustrated with views of both Expositions, scenes along the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and vistas of interesting sights on the Transcontinental Lines west of Chicago. A comprehensive and intelligent map is also inserted, which gives a good idea of the new route to California, via the Grand Trunk Pacific to Prince Rupert, thence through the "Norway of Canada" to Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle, thence to California by steamship or rail. The descriptive matter is concise and well written, and deals with the several attractive routes that are offered. The Grand Trunk System, with 10,000 miles of line, offers, through its varied services and choice of routes, incomparable advantages to the California visitor in 1915. Many of the fares between the east and California, which are included in this publication, are the same via Prince Rupert as via Puget Sound, while a small additional charge is made on the lowest fare excursions via that route, and includes charge for meals and berths on steam ships between Prince Rupert and Vancouver and Seattle.

A free copy of the booklet may be had by dropping a postal card to Mr. B. B. Moss, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Peterborough, Ont.

May Borrow On the Crops

Hon. Mr. White Brings in Bill to Help Farmers Buy Seed

OTTAWA, March 20.—The House spent the greater part of the day in committee of supply.

Hon. Mr. White put through committee a resolution to amend the Bank Act, and a bill founded upon the same was introduced and read the first time. The measure authorises chartered banks to make loans to farmers for the purchase of seed grain upon the security of the crops to be grown therefrom.

Mr. Proulx (Prescott) introduced a bill to amend the Independence of Parliament Act. The bill would make illegal all dealings between the Government and corporations in which a member of Parliament is a director or largely interested.

The Dominion Senate adjourned yesterday afternoon until Tuesday evening, and the debate upon Senator David's bilingual school resolution will not be resumed until Wednesday. The resolution, which expresses regret at the division of opinion in Ontario, will, it is expected, be given a six months' hoist.

PETERBORO' BOY IN THE HOSPITAL

At Number Five Casualty Clearing—Is Ill With Pneumonia

Word has been received to the effect that Private C. Powell, of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and son of Mr. George Powell, Brownton, Peterborough, is ill with pneumonia. The following letter, which is self-explanatory, has been received from M. Buchanan, chaplain with the Overseas Forces:

"Your son Charles has requested me to tell you that he is in the hospital, No. 5 Casualty Clearing Station, ill with pneumonia. He has been ill three days, and is progressing as well as can be expected. I can assure you that he is receiving every attention. I will write again and tell you how he is getting on."—M. Buchanan, Chaplain.

Pte. Albert E. White, of the Peterborough Contingent, has also written to Mrs. Powell informing her of Pte. Powell's illness.

The Farmers' Produce Market

Eggs Took Another Slump This Morning—Live Hogs Are Higher in Price

Eggs took another slump on the farmers' market. This morning a few lots were sacrificed towards the close of the market, at eighteen cents a dozen, while the prevailing price during the session was in the neighbourhood of nineteen cents. Supplies were heavier than they have been for some months past; a condition that will likely continue for the next two or three months. The price of butter remains firm. This morning it showed no tendency to deviate from the thirty-five-cent standard that was established some weeks ago. The supply was light and the demand fairly good, considering the price. The high price of butter is creating a larger demand for syrup and other such substitutes.

Beef was scarce, and a small supply was offered at ten and twelve cents a pound.

Following is a list of the prices:

Dairy and Poultry.

Butter, per lb.	35c
Eggs, new laid, dozen	19c
Turkey, lb.	20c
Geese	16c
Ducks	22c

A Second Bale For Shorncliffe

A second bale was sent to the Canadian Military Hospital, Shorncliffe, England, by the Peterborough Progressive Club on Tuesday, March 16th. The contents of the bale are as follows: 6 day shirts, 6 night shirts, 10 pairs socks, 24 operating room towels, 156 hospital handkerchiefs, 3 face cloths, 2 neck scrafs, 58 yards of cotton bandage rolls, 36 yards gauze bandage rolls, one parcel of linen, 1 pair wristlets. In addition to the above there were 9 hospital quilts, 9 soldier caps, 8 pairs socks, 4 pairs wristlets, 9 pairs knee-caps donated by Stewart's Hall Patriotic Society, and 17 day shirts donated by the Bridgenorth Patriotic Society.

The S. S. S. Club donated 2 scarfs and 3 face cloths.

On the 16th the Treasurer forwarded to Dr. Armour a cheque for $48.00, this sum being the proceeds from the dinner given by the ladies in the Temperance Hall, 4th line, Smith, in aid of the Shorncliffe hospital.

On the 17th the Secretary received from a little boy (eleven years old), a very clever scrap book which he made for the soldier patients. The book was too late for the bale, but has been sent by mail.

YOUR FRECKLES

Need Attention in February and March or Face May Stay Covered.

Now is the time to take special care of the complexion if you wish it to look well the rest of the year. The February and March winds have a strong tendency to bring out freckles that may stay all Summer unless removed. Now is the time to use othine—double strength.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fails. Get an ounce of othine—double strength, and even a few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the smaller freckles even vanishing entirely.

CANON DAVIDSON AT PORT PERRY

Mission Services Have Been Attended by Large Congregations

The work of Canon Davidson in Port Perry has, it is learned, met with great appreciation. The Mission services have been attended by large and responsive congregations. They have been entirely informal and unconventional in character, led by an orchestra of outside friends.

On Tuesday, Canon Davidson addressed the High School pupils gathered in one room on "Canada and the Empire," and next day the scholars of the Public Schools assembled together on a similar national topic, being introduced by the Chairman of the School Board. He was also invited to address a special meeting of the Port Perry Women's Patriotic League, when seventy ladies assembled on short notice. He spoke on our Country and Empire, her flag, her needs and her call. Considerable enthusiasm was manifested and it was resolved to bring efforts to bear to secure a flag for the Town Hall to fly during war time, and a new flag for the Post Office.

Will Likely Leave The City Early in Week

Probabilities Are that 39th Battalion Will Soon Be Mobilized at Belleville

Although no official word has been received it is expected that the local detachment of the 39th Battalion will leave for Belleville early next week, and definite news is expected on Monday as to the hour of departure.

Major S. T. Meld, officer commanding 8th Mounted Rifles, and Lt.-Col. T. W. H. Young and Lieut. Harry Smith of the Divisional Engineers, Ottawa, are home for the week-end.

Mr. W. J. O'Brien, son of Separate School Inspector M. J. O'Brien, is another Peterborough boy going to the front. He has been taking a law course at Osgoode Hall and enlisted with the 'Varsity Students in the 25th Overseas Battery. He is in town saying good-bye to his relatives and friends.

Sergt. E. Greer and Pte. Challis of the 39th Battalion, who have been on duty in the Quartermaster's office at Belleville, are home on leave.

One member of the 57th detachment was struck off the rolls this morning for misconduct and several others have been discharged as medically unfit.

The local company of the 39th had a half-holiday this afternoon, and there is no church parade scheduled for to-morrow, although the members are expected to attend church at least once during the day.

There was no "fuss and feathers" about the departure of the second draft of the 24th Field Battery, this morning. The Squad were unescorted to the station, where a number of friends had gathered to say good-bye. There were ten artillery men in the bunch. Gunner Chas. Martin, Canadian born, having been added since yesterday's list was published. Recruiting for the battery is being continued at the Armouries, and several more men were accepted this morning.

Kingston, March 19—The 26th Battery is now in fine shape for taking in recruits to bring the battery up to strength. In the rooms in the Richardson building are now over 150 bunks of the latest steel frame type. The office of the battery is in the front room at the north end of the building, and recruits are attested here by the battefy commander.

The twenty-nine recruits have all been issued with uniforms and are being drilled every day on the cricket field. Other recruits are expected, and in the near future the full number will be obtained. The R. C. H. A. guns will be used for instruction purposes.

Signs of Spring.

The gulls are winging high above Little Lake, and the first gypsy outfit passed through the outskirts of the city yesterday for Port Hope.

Volumes of Evidence In Court Case

Garney vs. Sampson Action Will Be Concluded This Afternoon

All the evidence in connection with the Garnsey versus Sampson case, which was commenced in County Court yesterday morning before His Honour Judge Huycke, was in at 12:35 p.m. to-day, and Court adjourned until 2:15 p.m., when argument will be heard.

A large number of witnesses were heard on both sides yesterday and to-day, and from the number waiting to play their parts Campbellford must have been pretty well depopulated during the two days. Farm experts and implement experts were on hand to testify as to Mr. Garnsey's ability as a farmer, etc. He is reputed to be a thorough farmer in his community, and with the necessary implements and horses could produce good results. One thing at least in which witnesses for both sides were agreed, was that a waggon was necessary to work a farm.

The defendant had quite a large counter claim consisting of a claim for an amount to cover a field of rye that was not properly sowed. For ploughing which she claimed was not done she wanted $100.00. Part of the machinery she said had lain out all winter, and for this she was asking $10.00. For five cords of wood burnt by Mr. Garnsey she was charging $20. Rent of a waggon at 50 cents a day amounted to $18.00, according to her figures. A door sash which she claimed had been broken was the reason for another amount of $25.00. For weeds and grasses she said were brought on the farm by Mr. Garnsey she wanted another $50.00. For allowing the manure to lie against the buildings she thought $10.00 would be fair.

One witness claimed to have been brought back from Halifax to testify in the case. He was Sergeant W. H. Hill, with the 2nd Canadian Contingent, and was on his way to England.

A couple of stove smashing episodes were aired during the evidence. It appears that the plaintiff had been allowed the use of the stove by defendant. Witnesses testified that she pulled off the doors of the stove on one occasion, and the pipes which passed through a room reserved in the house for her use, were pulled down upon another occasion. It was on this occasion that plaintiff is alleged to have secured entrance into the room for the purpose of replacing them, and the door was supposed to have been damaged then.

A bird which made its way into the Court room this morning probably represented the "Dove of Peace," but its office in that direction did not have much effect upon the proceedings. It did not have appearance of a dove, looking more like a sparrow.

A rather amusing situation developed when Mr. Gordon was cross-questioning the defendant. He asked if she had not at one time signed a statement acknowledging a libel. This statement was supposed to have been signed in Mr. Gordon's office, and witnessed, by defendant's present counsel, Mr. Humphries.

PROBABILITIES.

Fine to-day. Sunday, fresh northwest winds, fair and a little cooler.

Not Exclusively For War Purposes

Special to The Examiner:

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, Toronto, March 19.—That Mr. Rowell and the Liberals have touched a very sore point was shown by the remarkable outburst from the Government side when Mr. Rowell moved his amendment to the war tax bill providing that it should be definitely stipulated in the Act that the proceeds of the new tax should be applied exclusively to war purposes.

This surely was a most justifiable resolution and one which it would have been thought the Government would accept without any talk. As a matter of fact, however, the most violent outbreak of partisan feeling which has marked the Legislature this session came from the Government benches. In support of Mr. Hearst's refusal to adopt Mr. Rowell's amendment, the Conservatives let out such a cheer and whoop that officials and visitors from all parts of the building came rushing to the Chamber to see what thunderstorm had broken loose.

As Joseph Ham, Liberal member for Solth Brant, said, if it needed one thing to persuade him that the Government really did not intend to apply the proceeds of this so-called war tax exclusively to war purposes, it would be this outburst on the part of the Government and its refusal to adopt the Liberal amendment.

The not result is that the Bill does not make it obligatory that the Government should spend the money for actual war purposes only.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

WIARTON WINS THE NORTHERN LEAGUE TITLE

WIARTON, March 19 — The final Northern League hockey game played here to-night between Elmira and Wiarton resulted in victory for the home team by the score of 12 to 5, thus giving them the championship by six goals on the round, they having won at Elmira by two goals. The game was fast throughout, although inclined to be rough.

The teams:

Referee—Hancock of Owen Sound.

KNOTTY LEE MAY BE THE GUELPH LEADER

GUELPH, March 19.—Knotty Lee, prospective manager of the prospective Guelph baseball team in the Canadian League, arrived in the city this morning from Toronto. He came up to consult with the gentlemen who are interesting themselves in securing the Erie franchise for this city, and promises that if he succeeds in landing the managerial position, that he will put a first-class ball team in Guelph.

He will remain in the city until Saturday and if Mr. O'Neil comes down from London to-morrow, as he probably will, to close the deal "Knotty" will be ready to make a deal for the position of manager. He says that while times are hard in some places, he sees no reason why the Canadian League should not have a good season. He is quite enthusiastic over some of the players that he rounded up for the Toronto team last Fall, and his connections with the Toronto management will enable him to get his choice of their surplus material.

BOSTON IS ALREADY CLAIMING TWO PENNANTS

BOSTON, March 19—Boston baseball fans already are figuring on packing the stands in Beantown for next season's world series.

Taking all in all, from a viewpoint at this end of the line, both teams appear to have Al chances of leading at the end of the 1915 season.

Of the two, the Red Sox look to be in better trim than the Nationals, although the Braves are toting the world championship pennant.

The Braves' chances this year, all around the circuit, are popularly supposed to be of the best. The team still can be considered a young one. The acquisition of Sherwood Magee will prove a great advahtage both in the field at at the plate, but getting under the surface, there are many thigs to be considered.

Evers' condition cannot be forecast with any certainty despite the sunny statements that he is fully recovered, and is the same as ever.

The Red Sox will open with practically the same line-up as they had at the close of last season. Very little has been doing in their camp the past Winter.

All the "doing" has been with the other clubs and, taking these changes into consideration, especially the Athletics, the Red Sox appear stronger than the year they won the big series.

McGinnity's Baseball Career

In a brief history of baseball career Joe McGinnity says:

I was born in Rock Island, Ill., March 19, 1873, of honest, so necessarily poor, parents. I played my first baseball of any consequence in a semi-pro team in Van Buren, Ark., in 1892.

The following year was with the famous J. J. McClosky in Montgomery, Ala. I was married in the fall of this year to Mary Redpath, daughter of J. Redpath who had one of the best iron factories in the southeast. Have one daughter, 17 years old, who helps to keep me broke.

Was Released in 1894.

I was playing with Jimmy Manning in Kansas City in 1894, but pitched such poor ball I was released the first of June. I then moved to Springfield, Ill., and, like a lot of other ambitious ball players, I expected to get rich in the saloon business. I played on a semi-pro team there up to the spring of 1898. It was during these semi-pro days that I developed my famous underhand delivery.

I joined the Peoria club that year. In June I pitched and won a twenty-one inning game against St. Joe.

Robinson Helps Him Out.

I was signed by Brooklyn in 1899 at a salary of $150 a month. In 1902 when reporting at training camp in Savannah, Ga., I found that McGraw had fourteen pitchers there. This did not look very bright for a "rube" just from the bushes. I had made friends with big, good natured Robinson, who, I think, was one of the greatest catchers that ever looked through a mask.

After the second day's workout I asked him to take a walk after dinner, as I had a question to ask him. I went into details about my specialty and told himI wanted his opinion ty and told him I wanted his opinion against big leaguers.

McGraw Learns the Truth.

Next morning, at his suggestion, we both arrived at the park an hour before training time and I had a thorough workout with him. When McGraw arrived at the park Robinson challenged him for a game. $50 a side, Robinson to take the second team, better known as the "Yannigans," but insisting that I pitch for his team.

Man."

We started the game that afternoon and had the regulars beat, 7-0, in the seventh inning. McGraw broke the game up by chasing the reporter, acting as umpire, off the grounds, and would not agree to any other umpire. This game cinched my job on the club. I give all the credit to what success I have to Wilbert Robinson, now manager of the Brooklyn National league club, who was open minded and patient enough to help a youngster work out something new.

Plays on Brooklyn Star Team.

In 1900 the National League was cut down to eight clubs. I was sent to Brooklyn with Jimmy Sheckard, and a few others. I think the Brooklyn club of 1900 was the greatest ever put toether. It consisted of the following players: Farrell and McGuire, two great pitchers; Jennings, first base; Daly, second; Dahlen, short; Cross, third; Kelly, Fielder Jones, and Keeler, outfielders; Sheckard, and De Montreville, utility men; Hughes, McJames, Kennedy, and my self, pitchers.

We beat Pittsburgh out of the pennant that year. The newspapers put up a big "fuss" that Pittsburgh had the best team. They put up a $1,000 punch bowl for a post-season series of five games and insisted that all be played in Pittsburgh. We won three out of four games played. I pitched two of the winning games, one against Rube Waddell, who was then in his prime.

Gets Prize of Punch Bowl.

After the series the Brooklyn boys gave a banquet and made me a present of the punch bowl, which I consider one of the greatest honours ever conferred on a player by his fellows. I still retain it and prize it highly.

I was the first player to sign an American league contract. In other words, was the "Joe Tinker" of the American League. McGraw used my contract to induce other players to jump back to Baltimore with himself and Robinson.

In 1901 John T. Brush bought the controlling interest in the Baltimore Club. In the middle of the season of 1902 four players—McGraw, McGann, Bresnahan and myself—were transferred to New Yorkk.

Gets Name of "Iron Man."

In the month of August in 1904 I won three double headers—one against Boston in Boston, one against Philadelphia in New York, and one against Brooklyn in New York—from which I derived the nickname "Iron

Trades and Labour Notes

By The Official Scribe

Delegates from the various local unions assembled in goodly numbers this week, the fact that the meeting fell on St. Patrick's Day did not deter very many from the path of duty. Donald Wires presided.

The main business of the evening was the introduction to the members of the revised constitution and by-laws. This was taken up clause by clause, and the consequent discussion took up the greater part of the evening. So now when it comes to the scribe to fulfil his duties and enlighten the public as to what took place he has to borrow the familiar phrase of the war telegrams: "There is nothing to report." At some future time, possibly, the preamble, constitution and by-laws, will be published so as the public may know what the Trades and Labour Councils of Canada stand for.

"In view of the many conflicting statements made in regard to the Helen Brown murder case, this Council calls upon the Hon. I. B. Lucas, Attorney-General of Ontario, to make further investigation into the matter."

Next meeting April 7th.

Caused a Sensation

continue without interruption day and night for weeks, pouring such a terrific hail of shells on the German lines that not even German bravery will be able to withstand it, especially in view of their gradually diminishing supply of ammunition, which is of inferior type. The protection of trenches, however strong or elaborate, will not enable the Germans to resist effectively the allies' overwhelming advance when it becomes well started.

Lloyd George in Trenches.

During the course of a conversation David Lloyd George the other morning took occasion to refer to the visit he made to the trenches some time ago, which is a matter of common knowledge now, although it was concealed for many weeks. He surprised me by the fervour of his admiration for the French. No matter what the outcome of the war the greatness of the French nation has been demonstrated, he said. He spoke with special ardor of the manner wherein they have organized everything since the war started. In discussing their war operations he laid special emphasis on the manner in which they concentrated all their factories for war purposes and spoke of the extraordinary rapidity wherein, with improvised factories and machinery, they have successfully carried through the armaments of new armies. He also pointed out in how many things France leads the world, motors, aeroplanes and, above all, gunnery. He described with graphic power the immense impression made on him by the French soldiers and told how as he scrutinized their faces as they returned weary and wounded from the trenches he saw in all the same expression of inflexible and stern determination, and he felt that these men of France have made up their minds that this war must end forever the fears and perils France so long endured from German arrogance and invasion.

"I realized," said Lloyd George, "that if this generation of Frenchmen knew they were to die to the last man they would swear that their children for generations to come will be able to live free from the German peril."

St. Patrick's Day.

Never was St. Patrick's day celebrated in quite the same way as this year. While gatherings just as numerous as usual took place, there was a complete absence of jollification, and an even greater absence of that proclaiming of nationalist aspirations and hopes which have been habitual for the past fifty years. John Redmond and his colleagues weeks ago made up their minds that in view of the war, its great anxieties and heavy losses, this was no time for rejoicing; that in view of the solidarity of England and Ireland and the obliterations of all party lines, a partisan demonstration would be out of place. Although the usual gatherings were held, there were no banquets and no speeches except on the war and Ireland's pride in her share in it. In London where, for many years, Redmond has always presided at the largest St. Patrick's day banquet in the world, the day was given over to a concert for the benefit of the Belgians.

Redmond's Big Meeting.

St. Patrcik s Day, nevertheless, marked an enormous step in Irish progress everywhere. Englishmen sported the shamrock almost as universally as the Irishman. Irish flags were flown from houses outside the Irish quarter for the first time in history.

Redmond's meeting at Manchester last Sunday was so crowded that another hall was immediately hired. The two halls held 6,000 and thousands of others stood in the streets. Even more remarkable was the luncheon given last Monday for Redmond. Daniel McCabe, Lord Mayor of Manchester, for the second term, the most popular chief magistrate in a quarter of a century, Irish Nationalist and Catholic, and for thirty years one of the most active members of the Irish league, presided at the lunch. Representatives of all parties in Manchester, Tory as well as Liberal, gathered to honour the Irish leader. Mr. Redmond said in part:

"St. Patrick's Day marks another epoch making transformation in the Irish situation. We were all alarmed in the early days of the war by the evident and wide spread campaign on the part of some unconverted Orangemen enemies to Irish freedom to underrate Irelands contribution. For weeks this campaign of disparagement seemed prospering, but to-day it is dead. The 115,000 Irishmen who flocked to the army from English and Scotch towns first captured the public imagination and the equally splendid returns from Ireland, showing at least quarter of a million Irishmen in the army, together with the heroic Irish deeds, completed the education of English opinion. To-day everybody even the most bigoted Tories, realize that Ireland has gone into this war with the same enthusiasm for the allies' struggle for human liberty and as eagerly as have other nationalities.

"St. Patrick's Day sees any serious fight against Home Rule dead and buried past resurrection."

THREE BIG GAMES Y. LEAGUE

There should be a big crowd at the Y.M.C.A. to-night to see the three games of basketball starting at 7.30.

Capt. Dobbin and his Beavers will meet the Collegiate. The Students have only lost one game and are on their way for first place. If Dobbin's quintette don't upset their calculations, which is liable to happen. Then Capt. Richardson's team will clash against Capt. Heaslip's Hustlers. The Hustlers have also only dropped one game, so they are tied with Collegiate. This makes a sure bet that each of these teams is going to do its best to down the other.

Still another big drawing card, the Excelsiors and Unknowns are leading the A division, and they meet to-night. The Excelsiors have not dropped a game yet, so there will be something moving when they face off against the Unknowns.

First game starts 7.30. Everybody welcome.

General French's Report Reveals Leader in Neuve Chapelle Attack

LONDON, March 20.—One of the semi-weekly official communications from the headquarters of Field Marshal Sir John French, the British commander, was given out yesterday by the official information bureau. It is under date of March 18, and reads as follows:

"There has been no change in the general situation of our front since the last communication. The trenches south of St. Eloi, which has been only partially recaptured on that date, are either unoccupied by either side or held by us. Some of the trenches were blotted out in the course of the fighting in this neighborhood.

"The gallantry and dash of the troops during the operations of the last week in the vicinity of Neuve Chapelle, under the able and determined leadership of Gen. Sir Douglas Haig, proved conclusively that their sedentary work in the trenches during the last four months has in no way impaired their original fighting qualities."

C. P. R. Brakeman Rewarded.

LONDON, March 20.—The current issue of The London Gazette contains the announcement that the King has awarded the Albert medal of the second class for saving life on land to James Julian Cartier, brakesman on the C. P. R. in recognition of his gallantry in rescuing a little girl, Violet Freeman, at Tweed, Ont., in May of last year.

Terrible Massacre In Armenia.

LONDON, March 20. — Appalling accounts of conditions in Armenia have reached the officials in London of the Armenian Red Cross fund and have been given out by them.

The latest recital is from an Armenian doctor named Derderian, who says that the whole plain of Alaasgerd is virtually covered with the bodies of men, women and children. When the Russian forces retreated from this district, the Kurds fell upon the helpless people and shut them up in mosques. The men were killed and the women were carried away to the mountains.

The organizers of the Red Cross fund say there are 120,000 destitute Armenians now in the Caucasus.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR

Beauty plays a large part in the owner's pride of possession. One reason why this car has appealed to the public is that its appearance invariably inspires admiration

The fenders are singularly beautiful. It would be difficult to imagine a cowl more graceful or a radiator more shapely. There is a true streamline effect flowing and unbroken from end to end. The real leather gives richness to the upholstering.

"Saved - - - "

In June, 1910, a prominent New Brunswick lumber merchant was granted an Imperial policy for $2,500.00.

His fourth annual premium was due June 15th, 1913. He didn't pay it—and it wasn't paid on August 26th, when he died.

But the Company continued the insurance in force under its Automatic Non-Forfeiture provision, and paid the proceeds of the policy to the assured's four young children on September 27th, 1913.

Now think what would have happened had the policy not contained this saving clause, which is common to all Imperial policies.

MORAL: Insure in the Imperial, the Company that really safeguards its policyholders' interests.

The Federal Member's Reply To Workman

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Tell "Workman" that the Hamilton, Ont. firms got their own contracts.

Mr. Stewart, M.P., did not get them. Peterborough firms are getting their own contracts and lots of them. For a member, a city councillor, or a school trustee, to "get" contracts for private people or firms when he is sworn to defend the treasury and administer the national affairs wholly in the interests of the nation, would be criminal. Such a man would be liable to immediate expulsion from the House. Firms write me constantly, and I put them in the right way to "get" their own contracts, and do all I can to enable them to show what they can do, and to enable them to confer with the authorities, but to start acting as an agent would be to show myself both ignorant and forsworn. I know that in the past members have pretended that through their genius and influence they were "getting" things for people, but they were only lying. No government, Grit or Tory, dare permit it for a moment, unless they want an exposure or scandal.

J. H. BURNHAM.

P.S.—Since writing the above I have learned that some of the Hamilton firms went to France and booked their orders there.—J.H.B.

ST. ANDREWS BY-THE-SEA.
The Algonquin Hotel, which is owned and operated by the C. P. R., has just been rebuilt. It is handsomely furnished, everything being carefully adapted to the requirements of a seaside resort, and it enables a stay of a few weeks to be spent most enjoyably. The parties go for a lengthened visit and they quickly form desirable acquaintances with people.

CHANGE IN LOCAL TRAIN SERVICE

Is Promised by the C.P.R. to Take Effect in May—Conference Was Held in Peterborough

As a result of a conference that was held between a number of C.P.R. officials and the local committee that was appointed to investigate the train service, a number of changes have been promised by the C.P.R. that will go a long way towards alleviating the condition arising out of the reduced train service. After some discussion the officials promised the committee that some arrangements would be consummated whereby the Michigan Central would run their trains between Toronto and Detroit so that the train leaving Peterborough in the afternoon, by leaving at about three-thirty o'clock will be in time to make connections for Detroit and Chicago. A cafe parlour car will be provided. The return trip will be so arranged that the midday train will arrive in Peterborough at 11:15. Passengers taking this train can make connections at Smith Falls for Montreal and other points east. The "Canadian" will be held at Smith Falls for a period of ten minutes. This train will also carry a parlour car.

No Sunday Train.

The officials declined to consider a Sunday train as they clai mthat for four months a Sunday train was in operation, the business averaged only three passengers a day. Neither would they agree to reverse the Port McNichol train, claiming that this had been tried out and had proven a costly experiment. By reversing the Port McNichol service the present train would arrive in Peterborough about nine in the morning, whereas it now leaves Peterborough at that hour. All of the above mentioned changes will come into effect about the end of May as the officials claim that it will take that long to complete the necessary arrangements.

Among the officials present were: Mr. William Stitt, General Passenger Agent, with headquarters in Montreal, and Superintendent Arundel, of the Ontario Division. The committee was represented by Mr. Basil Hall, President of the Board of Trade; Mr. T. F. Matthews, and Mr. W. C. Ackerman.

Writes From The Trenches

Lieut. Chas. Ackerman, of Peterboro' Tells of Trying a Few Shots at the Germans

FIRST INTO THE LINE

Mrs. B. F. Ackerman has received a very interesting letter from her son Lieut. Charles Ackerman, written in the trenches on February 29th. The Company which Lieut. Ackerman is in charge of has had the honour of being the first company of the First Canadian Overseas Contingent to go into the trenches and Lieut. Ackerman had the signal honour of being the first officer to take the men in.

In a short letter under date of February 27, also to his mother, Lieut. Ackerman says he was preparing to go back into the trenches. He did not have much time to write upon this occasion, as he was busy in spare time censoring the mail of his company. The letter, which appears below, dated Feb. 20th, was censored by Major Bolster.

My Dear Mother—This will not be a very long letter but it is the first I have had time to write for a few days.

I am sitting in my dug-out listening to snipers trying to find our Ross Rifles. Have tried a few shots but my loop-hole was so small I could not see the effect. I had some fun a few minutes ago with a periscope, looking at their trenches, when they took a few shots at it. I haven't seen any yet, but hope to very soon, as their trenches are not very far away.

Our Company had the honour of being the first Company of the First Contingent to go up the line and I had the distinct honour of being the first officer to take men into the line. We hadn't any casualties but heard a great many stray bullets just near enough to make it interesting.

It is quite safe in the trenches especially if one takes the proper precautions. Arthur was up the other night, but haven't seen him since, but I guess he is all right as there are very few casualties now along this line.

It seems hard to realize that we are at last right up face to face with the Germans, and I guess we are all glad to be here as it has been a long and rough passage which we will not likely have to go through again.

The English officers are very decent and seem glad to see us here now, though we are only Colonials. I think that before very long they will have more respect for our military discipline than heretofore.

Just saw an aero (British) fly over towards the German lines looking for something to fire at. It will then come back and our artillery will likely get whatever target the aeroplane has picked out.

The star shells that are thrown out at night are wonderful as they light up a very large area and as a rule any person that happens to be out of the trenches usually digs for cover until the danger of being seen is all over.

We have had some very fair weather during the past two or three days, and it is a treat to be able to move around without getting drenched. Our trench is exceptionally dry, at least the part I have my platoon in. In fact we have a brick sidewalk in some places. We have a number of charcoal burners so that we keep quite warm and also have hot tea.

I received the magazine the other day you sent, but we were just moving out so haven't had much time to read it. We moved up to quite a large city and have very comfortable billets, with beds to sleep in and good meals.

It is very hard to get any war news up here and we are all anxious to know what happened on the 18th, or whether the German navy came out at all.

Well, mother, as you know I am unable to tell you our whereabouts, but will write you often, as you will no doubt be more worried now. Give my love to all, I remain,

Your loving son,
CHARLIE.

No. 5 Company's Good Shooting

On Friday evening No. 5 Company Home Guard, held a competition, which was hotly contested, so much so that about one hour's over-time was spent shooting off. The prizes were eventually won by the following—1st, F. S. Edwards, with a score of 35; second, by F. Raines, with a score of 34; third, by R. Houdry, with a score of 32. Considering that this is at the thousand yards range, the officers are highly delighted with the results. Other members, who were runners-up, are Sergt. Graham, Corporal Jackson, Privates Maxwell, Harris and Howland.

PRINCESS "PATS" COMMANDER MEETS DEATH

Italy's Entry Into War Practically Certain

CRISIS HAS COME AND ITALY ABOUT TO PLUNGE INTO WAR

Only Unexpected International Developments Can Interfere With Carrying Out of the Government's Programme Which is Obviously Fixed.

To the Editor.—William Philip Simms, the manager of the Paris Bureau of the United Press, has just returned to the French Capital after a visit to various cities in Italy. The following story, written in Paris and cabled from there, where there is no restriction by an Italian censorship, gives an accurate and vivid picture of the exact situation in the Roman Empire.

(By Wm. Philip Simms, copyright 1915, by United Press, copyright in Great Britain and France.)

PARIS, March 22.—Italy's entrance into the war within six weeks is now practically certain. Only unexpected international developments can interfere with the carrying out of the Government's programme, which is obviously fixed and of which the entire nation is fully cognizant.

I have just returned from Italy. I visited Genoa, Rome and a dozen other Italian cities going as far south as Naples. I have talked with Government officials, military and naval officers, editors and men in all walks of life. They assure me that the crisis has come, and that Italy is about to plunge into war on the side of the Allies.

All Italian ports are crowded with incoming men of military age. Genoa and Naples are bee hives of youths from the United States and South America recalled to the army. Everywhere troops are drilling. The whole country reminds one of a great moving picture show with great armies drilling across the screen, and an operator back in his box spreading the film.

I spent an afternoon at the drill ground at Ventimiglia, the Italian frontier fortress town eighteen miles northeast of Nice, watching a regiment of Bersaglisie men, young, husky and smiling. They were being drilled in squads, companies, battalion and regiments, always at about 120 steps to the minute, which practically amounted to double quick time.

"Your men seem to be fit and well trained," I remarked to the drill captain.

"They've been drilling this way for three weeks," he replied. Then significantly. "They'll be ready for the field in two weeks."

Every unit of the Italian army, it is understood, is now thoroughly drilled and ready to absorb its full complement of reserves upon the issue of general mobilization orders. Even the Italian Boy Scouts are undergoing special instruction under officers detailed for that purpose from the regular army.

Italy can only be described as on tip-toe, feverishly expectant and ready for a war she is certain is near at hand.

Canadians Happier in the Trenches Than at Salisbury

The Absence of Exhaustion Among the Men as They Come Out of Their Shell-proofs is the Cause of Universal Comment—A Trip With the Battalion Commander.

British Headquarters in France—"Gangway! Lookout for that bunch of waggons!" a voice with trans-Atlantic accent called, and one knew he was near the part of the line held by the Canadians.

It was pitch dark, and at the hour when the supplies go to the trenches. There was not a light on any vehicle or in any habitation, but after stumbling along I passed through an open door and the adrkened hall of a farmer's house and entered the brilliantly illuminated room, with thickly curtained windows, of the brigade headquarters. An officer was talking over the telephone. He had just had word that a man had been shot in the back by a concealed sniper in the rear of the trenches.

The commander and his officers gathered around the correspondent, whose request to go into the trenches had been gladly granted. I soon was on my way down a dark road, with a sergeant from Ottawa as my guide, to the battalion headquarters.

Passing through the ruins of a village, the sergeant remarked: "The Germans are not satisfied yet. They chuck a few shells into the wreckage every day. The shells made us kind of nervous at first, but we are used to them now, all right."

Fire at Lights.

In a peasant cottage, battened as tight as a photographer's dark room—an enemy fires at a light—I found the battalion commander, who was from Quebec. He sleeps in the cellar and the other officers of the battalion staff in dug-outs. The officers remarked that a shell had knocked off a piece of the roof the other day, but that the missile did no harm except to make some dust. The colonel was going down into the trenches himself for the night, and took me with him.

"Look out for that narrow foot bridge; and here you are likely to slip off into the ditch," warned the colonel as he advised me to keep close behind him in the inky night. "Right along here is a favourite place for the Germans to toosen up with a machine gun, for they have a clear field for fire," the colonel added when an open space was reached. "There is nothing to it but to lie flat and wait until they are done shooting."

A German searchlight's rays swung toward the colonel and the correspondent, and then rested on the clear spot. "Stand still," said the officer. "That's the rule until it sweeps off. Thus they are not able to spot us."

Occasionally shots were heard behind the trenches. "That's a sniper in our rear," the colonel said. "Occasionally one gets through. We don't know how. He is always in khaki. We are out after this fellow and we will get him before morning."

The colonel and the correspondent kept passing lone soldiers carrying food and ammunition to the trenches or returning from the trenches empty-handed. The colonel spoke to them as "boys," a greeting one never hears from a British officer.

Ingenuity of Canadians.

As the trenches were entered a sudden command was given to some one showing an electric flash to turn it off as the "patrols are coming in." Several men who had been out, crawling up in Indian fashion to see if the Germans were up to anything new, came hustling over the top of the trench. Some bullets swept overhead. The Germans had noted the movement and fired, but hit nobody.

"We got within seven feet of the bunch in that old house and heard them whispering," said one member of the patrol. When the strapping, tall Canadians took the position over from an English regiment, they found the crest too low for their height and had to raise it several inches. The Canadians have shown characteristic ingenuity and initiative in arranging the trenches to suit themselves, and, besides, have made them wholly dry and comfortable.

"This beats Salisbury Plains," they kept saying, referring to their experience in drilling and waiting in England. "All we needed was to be in," said the colonel. "We came from home to fight, and we are fighting. There is no trouble about discipline. Every man is keyed up and right on the job."

Chipper as a Ball Team.

The entire contingent of Canadians was as chipper as a winning baseball team. "We won't care to go to the fireworks any more when we return home," said a man from Ontario, who asked the correspondent if he knew Toronto and Buffalo. "We get enough of German flares," the man added, as the flares kept rising at intervals, illuminating garishly the 300 yards of space between the trenches. "They are worried lest we are going to spring an attack on them, and we shall, pretty soon, too, I hope," the soldier said.

Occasionally as the correspondent walked along he could hear distinctly the sound of snoring. In their shell-proofs the men, wrapped in blankets in frontier fashion, and despite the German flares and firing, which go on all night, were sleeping until their turn came to go on watch.

The absence of exhaustion among the men as they come out of the trenches is the cause of universal comment.

"They say we are making good, and I believe we are," the colonel declared when he made the correspondent good-night.

WHEAT MARKET TURNED WEAK

Initial Gains Were Lost on Account of War Reports.

CHICAGO, March 22. — Although wheat at first showed some strength Saturday, the market soon turned weak. Early upturns were ascribed to the steadiness of quotations at Liverpool and to the fact that rumours of a break between Austria and Italy had been confirmed.

The critical status of the relations of the two countries, however, and the quick renewal of attacks on the defenses of the Dardenelles favoured the bears, and there was a decided setback from the early bulge.

After opening, which ranged from 3-8 to 1 1-2 higher, was followed by moderate further gains in some options, and then a material reaction all round.

BULGARIAN ARMY SECRETLY MOBILIZED

BUCHAREST, via Rome, March 22—The secret mobilization of Bulgarian troops has bene completed. A coalition Cabinet, presided over by M. Malinoff, and including such party leaders as Mm. Chenadieff, Theodoroff and Daneff, will shortly be formed. A convention with Roumania has been negotiated, and the Triple Entente has assured Bulgaria of concessions in Macedonia, and a revival of the Balkan League is now possible.

Canadian Dies Rather Than Surrender

PARIS, March 22.—Jules Cassagne, of the 23rd Infantry, a Canadian volunteer, is mentioned in the orders of the day. He made a rush upon a German trench and tried to break in the protecting roof. His bayonet and rifle were broken, but he refused to surrender, and was killed on the spot.

HOW TO SAFELY PEEL YOUR FACE

If you wear an aged, discoloured or weather-beaten complexion, the most sensible thing to do is to remove it—rather than patch it over or "doctor" it with cosmetics. The only way to really remove the complexion—aside from resorting to an expensive and painful surgical operation—is by means of ordinary mercolised wax. Spread the wax over the face at night, as you would cold cream; wash it off in the morning. This gradually peels off the lifeless and the bleached outer skin, in minute particles—gradually the fresh young skin beneath beams forth. Then you have a clear, velvety, healthy-hued complexion such as no unnatural method can possibly produce. Chaps, freckles, blotches, pimples—all surface defects due to weather, ill-health or the ravages of time, of course, disappear with the discarded skin. Ask the druggist for an ounce of mercolised wax; you won't need more.

If you wear wrinkles or crowsfeet, the best thing to do is to bathe your face in a harmless lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. Nothing else will so surely erase the unwelcome lines.

COMMANDING OFFICER OF PRINCESS "PATS" IS KILLED

Col. Farquhar, Late Military Secretary to the Duke of Connaught, Meets Death With His Men—Was in Peterboro' Last June on Occasion of Royal Visit.

OTTAWA, March 22—News of the death in action of Col. F. D. Farquhar, commanding officer of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was received at 10 o'clock last evening from the British War Office.

The message was at once communicated to his Royal Highness the Governor-General, whose military Secretary, prior to going to the front the late Col. Farquhar had been. Col. Stanton, his successor as Military Secretary, stated last night that the Royal household was deeply affected by the news, and that a message of condolence to Lady Farquhar had been cabled by the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. A separate cable to the regiment which bears her name was sent by the Princess Patricia in sympathy for the loss of its gallant commander. The message as received contained the brief intelligence: ... ...

"Col Farquhah, Princess Patricias, dead. Lieut. Mason, of the same regiment, dead. Three killed; twenty wounded."

The war has not touched the Governor-General's household lightly. Col. Farquhar is its third member to die in action. The first was Major Rivers Bulkely, Comptroller of the Royal Household, who was killed early in the war while in action with his own regiment by the explosion of a shell. Capt. Newton, an aide-de-camp, was killed by a rifle bullet from one of his own men in mistake shortly after the Princess Patricias went into action.

The late Francis Douglas Farquhar was born in 1874, and was the only surviving son of Sir H. T. Farquhar. He married in 1905 Lady Evelyn Haly-Hutchison, and leaves two young daughters. He joined the Coldstream Regiment in 1896, and was made captain in 1901. He served in South Africa, 1899 and 1900, and was mentioned in despatches, receiving the Queen's Medal with five clasps and the D.S.O. He was with the Chinese Regiment of Infantry in 1901-2, and was a member of the Somaliland expedition, 1903, receiving a medal with clasp for his services there.

He came to Canada in 1903, and was at that time promoted from the rank of major in the Coldstream Guards to that of lieutenant-colonel. He was extremely popular in Ottawa, and was also well known in Montreal as well as other Canadian cities, making hosts of friends in various parts of the Dominion visited by their Royal Highnesses He was with the Duke and Duchess of Connaught on the occasion of their visit to Peterborough, last June. He was a member of the Rideau Club in this city.

When the Princess Patricia Regiment was formed Col. Farquhar relinquished his position at Government House to accept its command, and whipped it into shape so rapidly that it needed little additional training in England to fit it for the front.

"Zeppelins Will Find Something Waiting For Them When They Come Back" Says Aviator

LONDON, March 22.—An Amsterdam despatch to-day reported that a Zeppelin was wrecked at Liege Saturday. No further details were given.

PARIS, March 22.—"The Zeppelins will come back. And when they come back they'll find something waiting for them they weren't looking for. Maybe they won't go back." A well known English aviator who called here for an aeronautical conference three days ago, made this significant remark today. He was commenting on the Zeppelin raid on Paris early yesterday in which eight persons were injured and several fires started and some property damage done by two German airships that dropped about fifty bombs in a cruise above the city and its suburbs.

"We weren't quite prepared for the boches this time," admitted the Englishman. "We knew that as soon as spring came and the winter squalls were over they'd fly over Paris and porbably make an attack on London.

"But we didn't expect them quite so-soon. The precautions taken by the French flying corps last fall had been somewhat relaxed. But we have something up our sleeve, as the Americans say. The next Zeppelin that starts for Paris will get the surprise of its life."

In anticipation of a second attack last night, motor car patrols, carrying searchlights, guarded all the approaches to the city, and blasts of light swept the sky until daylight.

Sunday holiday crowds toured the scenes of the Zeppelin visits expressing great curiosity, but absolutely no fear.

Information About Wounded

Red Cross Will Undertake to Forward Particulars.

News of interest to every relative and friend of the Canadian soldiers who are now in France and of those who will in the near future be in the gone of operations has been received at the head office of the Canadian Red Cross Society from Colonel Hodgetts, Canadian commissioner in London, in which he says that he has completed arrangements for the information bureau to forward particulars regarding wounded and missing Canadians. This work will not conflict with the official returns, but will supplement them by furnishing subsequent information to relations as to their conduct and progress.

PETROGRAD, March 21.—In a sortie by the Przemysl garrison on Friday we capturpd 107 officers, including one regimental commander, 3,554 men and 16 machine guns. Prisoners say the losses of the garrison in killed and wounded were enormous.

200 GERMANS CAPTURED BY THE BOTHA FORCES

LONDON, March 22.— A Capetown despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company says official announcement has been made that General Botha, Premier and commander-in-chief of the army of the Union of South Africa, has captured over 200 German prisoners and two field guns at Swakopmund, German South-west Africa.

"THE GRELL MYSTERY"

By Frank Frocst

As Foyle switched on the lights in the finger-print department, Green sat down at a table, and with the aid of a magnifying-glass carefully scrutinised the prints which he carried on a sheet of paper. Ranged on one side of the room were high filing cabinets divided into pigeon-holes, numbered from 1 to 1024. In them were contained hundreds of thousands of finger-prints of those known to be criminals. It was for the detectives to find if among them were any identical with those of their prisoner.

The whole science of finger-prints for police purposes resolves itself into the problem of classification. It would be an impossible task to compare myriads of records each time. The system employed was absurdly simple to put into execution. In five minutes Green had the finger-prints of the two hands classified into "loops" and "whorls" and had made a rough note.

That done, the remainder was purely a question of arithmetic. Each whorl was given an arbitrary number according to its position. A whorl occurring in the first pair counts 16 in the second, the third 4, the fourth 2, and the fifth 1. Thus Green's effort became:

16—4—— 20
—8.4—1 13

The figure one was added to both numerator and denominator, and Green at once went to the fourteenth pigeon-hole, in a row of the filing cabinet numbered 21. There, if anywhere, he would find the record that he sought. For a while he was busy carefully looking through the collection.

"Here it is," he said at last, and read: "Charles J. Condit. American. No. 9781 Habitual Convicts' Registry."

"Put 'em back," said Foyle. "We'll find his record in the Registry."

The two detectives, uncertain as to where the regular staff kept the files of the number they wanted, were some little time in searching. It was Foyle who at last reached it from a top shelf and ran his eye over it from the photograph pasted in the top left-hand corner to the meagre details given below.

"This is our man right enough," he said. "American finger-prints and photograph supplied by the New York people when he took a trip to this country five years ago. Never convicted here. It says little about him. We'll have to cable over to learn what they know."

"That gives us a chance for a remand," remarked Green.

"Exactly. And in the meantime he may tell us something. A prisoner gets plenty of time for reflection when he's on remand."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Five minutes after Big Ben had struck ten o'clock Heldon Foyle walked into his office to find Sir Ralph Fairfield striding up and down, and glancing impatiently at the clock. He made no direct answer to the detective's salutation, but plunged at once into the object of his visit.

"Have you seen the Wire this morning?" he asked abruptly.

Foyle seated himself at his desk, imperturbable and unmoved.

"No," he answered, "but I know of the advertisement that brought you here. As a matter of fact, I sent it to the paper. I should have called on you if you hadn't come. Grell meant it for you, right enough."

The significance of the detective's admission that he knew of the advertisement did not immediately strike Fairfield. He unfolded a copy of the Daily Wire.

"What do you make of the infernal thing?" he demanded. "It's absolute Greek to me."

With a letter selected from the pile of correspondence on his desk unopened in his hand, Heldon Foyle swung round and faced his questioner.

"It's simply a sighting shot, Sir Ralph," he remarked quietly. "Grell credits you with intelligence enough to remember that number later. Have you any knowledge of ciphers?"

"I have an elementary idea that to unravel them you work from the most frequently recurring letter; E, isn't it?"

"That's right," said Foyle. "But there are other ciphers where that system won't work. Mind you, I don't pose as an expert. If I had a cipher to unravel, I should go to a man who had specialised in them, exactly as I should go to a doctor on a medical question. Still, the advertisement to-day isn't a cipher. It means exactly what it says."

"Thank you," said Fairfield drily. "I am now as wise as when I started."

"Sorry," murmured Foyle suavely. "You'll be wiser presently. The thing isn't complete yet. If you'll excuse me a few minutes, I'll just run through my letters, and then, if you don't mind taking a little walk, we'll go and see Lady Eileen Meredith."

Some formal reply rose to Fairfield's lips—he never knew what. The last time he had seen Eileen was fixed in his memory. Then she had practically denounced him as a murderer. Since then she had learnt that every shadow of suspicion had been cleared away from him. How would she receive him if he visited her unexpectedly with Foyle? Why did Foyle wish him to go? Perhaps, after all, there was nothing in it. He told himself fiercely that there was no reason why the meeting should embarrass him. Some day, sooner or later, they would have to meet. Why not now? He was hungry for a sight of her, and yet he was as nervous as a child at the thought of going to her.

The slamming of a drawer and the soft click of a key in the lock told that Foyle had finished. He picked up a copy of the Daily Wire and his hat and gloves.

"Now, Sir Ralph," he said briskly, and together they descended the narrow flight of stone steps which leads to one of Scotland Yard's back doors. The detective was apparently in a talkative mood, and Fairfield got no chance to ask the questions that were filling his mind. Spite of himself he became interested in the flow of anecdotes which came from his companion's lips. There were few corners of the world, civilised or uncivilised, where the superintendent had not been in the course of his career. He had the gift of dramatic and humorous story-telling. He spoke of adventures in Buenos Ayres, in South Africa, Russia, the United States, and a dozen other countries, of knife-thrusts and revolver shots, of sandbagging and bludgeoning, without any suspicion of vaunting himself. The baronet made some comment.

"No," said Foyle. "Take it all round, a detective's life is more monotonous than exciting. It's taken me thirty years to collect the experiences I'm telling you about. Things always happen unexpectedly. Some of my narrowest squeaks have taken place in England, in the West-end. Why, I was nearly shot in one of the best hotels by an officer sent over from the United States to take charge of a man I had arrested. He was the sheriff of some small town and had a bit of a reputation as a gunman, and had come over with the district attorney to escort the chap back. They did themselves well while they were here waiting to catch a boat back. One morning I strolled into the hotel, and who should run into me but the attorney with a face the colour of white paper.

"'That you, chief?' he gasps. 'For God's sake don't go upstairs. ——'s on the landing, blazing drunk and with his gun out. He's a dead shot.'

"Well, I could see that a Wild West sheriff was out of place in a decent hotel, so up I went. He had me covered like a flash, and I yelled out to him not to shoot.

"'Hello, chief,' he says. 'That's all right. Come right up. I won't do a thing. Just wait till I've plugged that cur of an attorney and we'll go and have a drink.'

"By this time I was up level with him. I daren't risk trying to get the revolver from him, for he was a quick shot, so I pushed my arm through his.

"'I haven't got much time, sheriff,' says I. 'Let's go and have a drink first, and you settle up with him afterwards.'

"'That's a bet,' he says, and I led him down to the bar. I persuaded him to try a new drink of my own invention—its chief component was soda-water—and followed it up with strong hot coffee. Meanwhile I managed to get the gun away, on the pretext of admiring it. He was reluctant at first, telling me I could have it for keeps after he had finished that cur of an attorney. But I got it, and he was fairly sober by the time I left him.

"Then there was a sequel. I had warned the sheriff and the attorney, who had made up their differences, that the man they had got was a slippery customer to handle. However, they got him in the boat all right. When they got to New York I had a cable from the captain—a friend of mine. He said the prisoner had not only cleared off the ship by himself, but had carried away the hand-baggage of his escort."

This reminiscence had brought them to Berkeley Square. Fairfield felt his heart thumping quickly although his face was impassive as the door was opened in response to Foyle's ring. She might be out; she might refuse to see them. Neither of the two alternatives happened. Within three minutes Eileen had descended to them in the drawing-room.

She stopped, a graceful figure in black, by the doorway, and gave a barely perceptible start as her eyes rested on the baronet. She bowed coldly.

"I did not know you were here, Sir Ralph. I understood Mr. Foyle wished to see me."

She was frigid and self-possessed. He had half expected some expression of apology for the wrong she had done him, but she entirely ignored that. But that Fairfield had himself well in hand he would have openly resented the snub inflicted on him. It was Foyle who answered.

"I brought Sir Ralph here. I thought his presence might be necessary."

She moved across the room, and sank on a couch with a petulant frown.

"Well, I suppose you have some disagreeable business to transact. Let us get it over."

The superintendent knew that he was dealing with a woman entirely on her guard. Her steady grey eyes were fixed on him closely, as though she could read his thoughts. He thought he could detect a slight twitching of the slender hands that rested idly on her lap.

"I want to know," he said slowly, "the meaning of the advertisement addressed to you by Robert Grell in this morning's Daily Wire."

He could have sworn that his shot had hit, that she flinched a little as he spoke. But if so she showed no further sign. Instead, her face was all astonishment as she replied:

"I don't quite understand. What advertisement? I know nothing about Mr. Grell since he left Grosvenor Gardens. Will you explain?"

PEOPLE OFTEN SAY
"How Are We To Know When The Kidneys Are Out Of Order?"
EASIEST THING IN THE WORLD!

The location of the kidneys, close to the small of the back, renders the detection of kidney trouble a simple matter. The note of warning comes from the back. The kidneys become overtaxed and fail to do their work at nature's call.

Backache is the signal sent out by the kidneys the minute they become overtaxed. Those who heed the warning when it first comes, usually have but little trouble.

The danger lies in delay. Doan's Kidney Pills stimulate the action of the kidneys, and enable them to perform their duty perfectly.

Mrs. Greig Murphy, Lower Ship Harbor East, N.S., writes: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills in my family with great success, and don't think there is a better pill for the kidneys. I was very miserable with my back, and could hardly get about. I got a box, and tried them, and found that they were really good, so I took in all about six boxes, and soon found my back cured, and my kidneys as well as ever."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; for sale at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

The only man who should not advertise is the man who has nothing to offer in the way of commodity or service—and—such a person is a dead one—whether he knows it—or not.

The Great Day of The Lord

Rev. 6:12.

While light'nings round me flash
And Jove in thunder gives His call,
In dreams I think it is the clash
Of sword upon the outer wall.

I hear the thund'ring chariot wheels
The bugle sound—the rolling drum,
And from the sky a message peals
"The Great Day of the Lord is Come."

I see the armies of the ransomed saints
Ten thousand thousands strong,
With praises loud from out the gates
March on, a glorious throng.

As down they march we catch the words
Wondrous and strange the theme,
That Christ to save the world
From death and hell once came.

Now unto those who then unfearing
In unholy joys their days had spent,
To fulfil His word unfailing,
Christ this great array hath sent.

Marching down with purpose set
They think not of the strife,
But of the love and joy they met
In Christ their King and Life.

No strange device it bears,
But by its crimson sings the honour
Of Him whose glory each now shares.

On earth another scene is passing—
No thought of love or duty here—
Every man around is casting
Anxious looks and full of fear.

Satan vainly strives to stir
His fainting subjects with the lie—
(How vain before the Armies of the Air)
Thou shalt not surely die."

He tries and earnest tries again
To urge his followers on to fight;
His power is gone, his efforts vain,
The Saints come on in dazzling light.

A Great Blessing to be Freed of Indigestion

For Years He Suffered After Almost Every Meal—Attributes Complete Cure to Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The experience of many people who suffer from indigestion is like that of the writer of this letter. Stomach medicines may bring some relief, but chronic indigestion is almost invariably the result of derangements of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and cannot be actually cured until these organs are set right.

MR. BARRETT.

With the liver sluggish there is constipation, and the food ferments in the bowels instead of being digested. This is the source of pain and suffering, and the cause of such dreaded diseases as appendicitis, peritonitis and kidney disease. It is much better to be on the safe side and prevent such ailments by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. J. D. S. Barrett, Nelson, B.C., and formerly of Twillingate, Nfld., writes:—"For several years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. The least bit of food caused me considerable trouble, and often I could scarcely eat a meal a day. The many remedies I tried proved futile until I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using about eight boxes I was completely cured.

"Since that time I have not been troubled with indigestion, which I consider a great blessing. I feel grateful for this cure, and shall gladly answer any inquiries from persons suffering as I did."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, 25c a box, 5 for $1.00, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates, & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Ah, no! thou whom earth once feared,
Thou who hast in thy reign
Despised peace, and hast not cared
For love, art now unloved and call in vain.

The sword now knocks upon the wall
"Open, honour Christ the King,
Before Him now on face must fall
Every tribe, and own Him King!"

'Tis but a dream—the time is not yet
When God shall show His final power
In closing sin and satan in the net
Of justice, where fearfully they cower.

Choose ye to-day, still there is time
To leave the tyrant's service—death his wage—
And join the army of the King, to shine
For evermore with warrior, priest and sage.

Awake! the dreadful day is nigh.
When in thunder's awful sound
Christ the victor, comes to try
Earth and nations, where are they found?

Some shall look for death in vain,
Cry to mountains, "Fall and hide!"
Then how useless this world's gain
In richness none can then abide.

When mountains to the seas are brought,
And valleys lifted to the skies;
When wondrous deeds by God are wrought,
Who then shall until honour rise?

The sun shall hide his face in night
The moon to blood shall turned be,
What science then can in its might
Restore the light, that we can see?

When stars have fallen to the earth
And heavens are rolled like scroll,
Who is there then who can by breath
Create new lights, and skies unroll?

When at the judgment bar arraigned
The Christ-rejectors helpless stand,
Who is the man with wisdom filled
Who dares the prisoners to defend?

No beauty men shall see in riches,
Men no longer strive for honour,
Science, wisdom, power are useless
When Satan is dethroned to reign no longer.

Thus man with all his pomp and pride,
Before his great Creator stands,
And in his shame he fain would hide,
His blushing face in eager hands.

Oh, man who must soon gaze
Upon this scene, why not prepare
And in this day of love and grace,
Reserve your place in the Army of the Air.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

SAME OLD SPELL

It Came Over the Girl at the Proper Time as it Always Has.

By J. V. SYMONS.

"Lucia, dear, I have some news for you," said little Miss Brett, taking her by both hands in her dressing room in the Imperial theater. "I am going to leave the stage."

"You, my dear! Why—why Prescott told me himself that he means to give you the star part in 'Under Two Flags' next month. You can't mean it, you who have won fame almost in a night."

"But that doesn't mean anything to me now," answered the girl, smiling. "You see," she added in a lower voice, "I am engaged to be married."

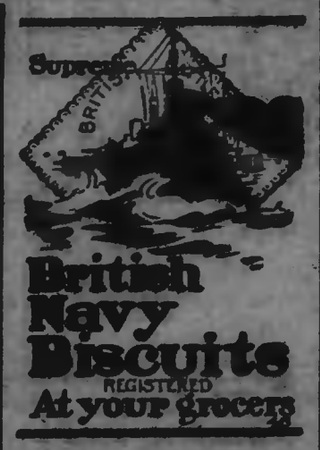
Lucia Clay kissed her warmly and chatted for quite five minutes, which was a big slice out of a busy woman's life. Then she watched her go down the draughty corridor and sank back into her chair and wept bitterly.

People would have been astonished if they could have seen Lucia crying. She was one of the big discoveries of the past two years. But she had worked hard for her success. Ten years of barren poverty and unproductive labor lay behind her. Cold as ice, they called her. Even in stageland, that prolific center of gossip, her name had never been associated with that of any man. And yet she had temperament, she was superb in emotional parts. She seemed to have lived through and lived down something, so that the fires now glowed where formerly they had blazed, and under an exterior that was fastidiously serene.

"There must have been big experiences in Miss Clay's life," said an old critic to his friend once.

There had been, the biggest of all experiences, because the most universal. She had been married and her honeymoon had lasted eleven days.

They had been days of delirious happiness both for herself and for the young painter, Lawrence Murdoch. It was been almost a runaway match, except that neither had anybody to run from. He was a scene painter, and had once been spoken of as a coming man in his profession. Lucia was then just a stage-struck girl. She had played the ingenue's part in one or two productions creditably, and they possessed two hundred dollars between them. On the strength of this they were married.



It was an old, eighteenth century cottage in which they had elected to spend their honeymoon. Lucia would remember every detail of it as long as she lived; the clematis over the door, the patch of everblooming roses, the perky sweet williams along the gravelly walk. And their happiness had been intense for eleven days.

Then Lawrence went away. He left no letter, offered no explanation. But that he took his possessions with him, Lucia would have feared he had met with foul play. She came home from an unsuccessful search for work to find the house empty. After a day and a night of agonized searching she discovered that he was staying at the house of a friend of his. She went there, fearless in her humility of love. The man refused her admittance. Lucia saw Lawrence at the window; their eyes met and he turned away. Then Lucia went home.

It was long afterward that she learned the cause of her husband's abandonment. He had followed her to the theater, with the intention of meeting her and taking her to lunch. He had seen her in another man's arms. The other man was old Colonel Brett, a lifelong friend, of whom she had not told Lawrence during their three weeks' engagement. Colonel Brett had been her father's comrade in the war and her guardian for a while; he had taken her father's place after his death. He had accompanied his daughter to the theater when the stage-struck girl insisted on seeking a part and, meeting Lucia there, too, the old fellow had broken down and cried.

Ten years had passed since then. She had heard little of Lawrence. She would never explain, and if he had learned—but he could not have learned, or pride would never have sanctioned the continuance of this hideous tragedy.

"The curtain's up, Miss Clay," announced the colored woman who assisted with the wardrobes. Miss Clay put the final touches to her make-up and joined the little group in the wings. It was a repertoire piece, one of those that are put on by the best companies at times, either during the dull season or for some special cause, such as to fill up an unexpected gap in the schedule. There had been only two rehearsals, for the company had played this often before, and the scenery had been completed only that morning, the properties, being lost, somewhere in a tie-up in the middle west.

Lucia walked on the stage. She heard the applause of the audience as an accustomed thing, she glanced indifferently into the packed masses and bowed; and then she saw Lawrence's face, and he might have been her sole auditor, for everybody else was but a blur in the darkened auditorium.

She had never seen him since they parted. Now he sat in the third row of the parquet, watching her. He was hardly changed, but somehow the look on his face told her that his soul was hers, and that across the intervening years their spirits would leap together if only pride permitted. She turned. And then, for the first time in her experience, Lucia Clay forgot her lines.

"The Curtain's Up, Miss Clay."

For on the canvas background was the little cottage of her memories. There was the clematis over the door, there were the everblooming roses and the sweet williams. And then Lucia was back in fairyland with her lover again.

How she stumbled through her part she never knew. Once or twice, waking out of a sort of dream, she saw the other members of the company regarding her with wonder. But when the curtain fell the last thing she saw was Lawrence's eyes looking into her own, and the old spell was on her, and she hurried to her dressing room, avoiding the anxious questions of her friends. She knew that an influence stronger than either of them had taken possession of them and had humbled their pride and enunciated the ancient law that marriage should last as long as they two should live.

She found him at the stage door, and because there was nothing to be said she took him by the arm and led him back upon the darkened stage. And there, by the feeble glimmer of the gas jets in the wings, they stood together before the little cottage and their vows were plighted.

"Mr. Prescott, I have some news for you," said Miss Clay that evening. "I am going to leave the stage."

"You, Miss Clay! Why—why, you can't mean it, you who have won a national reputation. We have looked forward to still greater triumphs for you—"

"But that doesn't mean anything to me now," answered Miss Clay, smiling. "You see—I am engaged to be married."

WOODEN LEG WON A HUSBAND

Happy Man So Satisfied With Previous Ventures That He Made a Determination to Stick.

Augustus Hare used to relate how a certain lady was wooed and won for the sake of her cork leg.

One day, not long after her marriage, she was, during her husband's temporary absence, urged by curiosity to open a wardrobe that had always been kept religiously fastened, and found therein, to her terror, two wooden legs, each of which was labeled with the name of a lady, carefully put away on one of the shelves.

Filled with dismay, she sought some mutual acquaintance, to whom she confided her gruesome discovery, only to be assured that, although the false limbs were indeed those of her husband's two former wives, there was no cause for alarm, for her husband, who had originally wedded a one-legged lady, had been so happy in his marriage that, on her death, he had vowed never to mate again save with a wife similarly circumstanced.

A short while afterward he met a lady who fulfilled the required stipulation. Her he courted and won. His second venture, even more felicitious than the first, had caused him, on his beloved partner's decease, to renew his former vow, the outcome of which was his present happy union. This exhibition calmed the wife's alarm, for she now recognized that the wooden legs were not only mementoes of past but guarantees of future happiness.—London Tit-Bits.

Moral Indifference.

If ignorance and passion are the foes of popular morality, it must be confessed that moral indifference is the malady of the cultivated classes. The modern separation of enlightenment and virtue, of thought and conscience, of the intellectual aristocracy from the honest and vulgar crowd, is the greatest danger that can threaten liberty.—Henri Frederic Amiel.

Favors a Joint Tribunal.

LONDON, March 20. — Sir John Macdonald, who is considered an authority on international law, in an article in The Nation, discussing the "New Blockade," suggests that "if the new order-in-council is to be put into operation on a large scale the proper complement to it is an Anglo-American convention, by which questions arising under the new order might along with other matters affecting American claimants incur prize courts, be referred to a joint tribunal."

Algerian Dancer Shot.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—An Algerian dancer, known as the "Princess Turkali," a member of a ballet in a Russian amusement concession at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, was shot and instantly killed Thursday night by her brother, Isaac Lisraki. Lisraki then began firing indiscriminately at the entertainers on the stage and into the audience, causing a panic.

The "Zone" Theatre, in which the shooting occurred was crowded when Lisraki entered, brandishing a pistol. He began firing at once, and his sister fell with a bullet through the heart.

Dynamitard Sent To Boston.

BANGOR, Me., March 20.—Werner Horn, who is charged with illegal interstate transportation of explosives in connection with his attempt to wreck the international railroad bridge at Vanceboro, will be taken to Boston for trial at the present term of the United States Court, as a result of the finding of Federal Commissioner Charles H. Reid here yesterday. The commissioner decided that the indictment warrant, which was the only evidence offered by the prosecution, was sufficient bases for holding the prisoner. The motion of the defence for the release of Horn, on the ground that he was a belligerent engaged in an act of war and was not amenable to the courts of this country, was denied.

Bars Bulgarian Language.

SOFIA, March 20.—The Bulgarian News Agency announces that the Serbian Minister of Education has forbidden the use of the Bulgarian language in private schools in an effort to destroy every trace of Bulgarian culture in the country. Only Greeks, Turks and Albanians are permitted instruction in their mother tongue. The Serbian language is required in all other schools.

Rheumatism, A Sneaking Disease Has At Last Met Its Conqueror

Throbbing Muscles and Swollen Joints Made Well.

RUB ON NERVILINE.

Old age knows no foe more subtle, more unrelenting than rheumatism.

At first only a grumbling pain is felt. But, alas, it settles in the joints and muscles, and finally tortures its victims.

To-day the disease may be in the muscles of the back, thigh, shoulder or neck—to-morrow in the joints of the hand, toes, arms or legs it may work with redoubled fury.

Whether the pain is constant or occasional, makes no difference to "Nerviline."

Because other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged. Nerviline has cured the worst of cases. It has brought health to those in the deepest despair, has ended years of awful suffering for those who never hope to be well again.

There is a marvellous healing power in Nerviline which it derives from the extracts and juices of certain rare herbs and roots. It allays almost magically the awful pain that only rheumatics can describe.

Congestion is drawn out of the muscles, stiffened joints are eased and limbered up, the old time feeling of depression is cast off, and once again Nerviline brings the sufferer to buoyant, vigorous lasting good health.

Every home needs good old Nerviline, needs it for earache, toothache, headache, neuralgia, lumbago, sciatica, stiff neck, chest colds and sore throat. Wherever there is pain, congestion or inflammation, Nerviline will cure it.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even colour, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadys, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use-product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, March 19.—After showing decided strength the greater part of the time today, wheat underwent a sharp setback just before the close. The sudden break was accompanied by disturbing bearish rumors about a crisis said to have been reached in the relations of Austria with Italy. Prices closed unsettled, 1-8c to 3-8c under last night. Corn finished 1-16c to 1-4c down, oats 1 1-8c off to a shade advance and provisions at a loss of 5c to 22 1-2c.

Higher prices at Liverpool had considerable to do with lifting the wheat market before the late reaction. There were also reports of unlooked-for Turkish successes in the Dardanelles and the Black Sea, and of huge import requirements of wheat for Italy—18,500,000 bushels. Large export clearances, a number of crop complaints and a big cut in Minneapolis stocks gave further temporary help to the bulls.

Corn was strong early with other grain, but sagged quickly when they turned weak. The bulk of transactions were between pit speculators. Lightness of offerings tightened the oats market until the bear flurry in all staples took place near the end of the day. Shipping sales were small.

Packers and others selling overturned an advance in provisions. The embargo on trade with Germany was said to be at least somewhat the reason.

TO THE CANADIAN MANUFACTURER

What Does "Made-in-Canada" Mean to YOU?

IF you were a stranger to your own Products, frankly now, how much would this slogan influence you to become a customer of your own goods: not merely "willing to become," but an actual revenue-producing customer?

The slogan will doubtless influence you (as it will thousands of other Canadians) to prefer Canadian-made goods, but there its value ends, for it has no directions as to what are Canadian-made goods, or how and where to recognize them.

Isn't that just the weakness of the "Made-in-Canada" movement to-day—a great deal of impulse but no action. On the one hand a great public willing to prove their patriotism by supporting Canadian Manufacturers; on the other hand, Canadian Manufacturers (with a large number of worthy exceptions) echoing a cry but taking no measures to turn that impulse into action by giving publicity to the facts concerning their products, their brands or their trade-marks.

But the tide of interest in advertising among Canadian Manufacturers is rising, and more of them are, at least, considering how to direct the patriotic impulse in their direction.

It is at this "considering stage" that J. Walter Thompson Company can help you so much.

We are in a position to advise you as to the proper steps that should be taken in order to prepare your business for advertising. Then, when you are ready, we are prepared to plan and conduct your Advertising Campaign.

On the other hand, if you are already advertising, it is altogether likely that we can bring out new selling features or remodel your present advertising plan to suit present-day conditions.

We shall be pleased to confer with manufacturers who are looking forward either to commencing advertising, or to making their present advertising more efficient.

THE ONLY CURE FOR CONSTIPATION

"Fruit-a-tives"—That Wonderful Remedy Made From Fruit Juices.

AVON, ONT., MAY 14th. 1913.

"I have used "Fruit-a-tives" for Indigestion and Constipation with most excellent results, and they continue to be my only medicine. When I first started about six years ago to use them, I took four at a dose but gradually reduced the dose to one tablet at night. Before taking "Fruit-a-tives", I took salts and other pills but the treatment was too harsh. I thought I might as well suffer from the illness as from these treatments. Finally, I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised with a letter in which some one recommended them very highly, so I tried them, and I have no hesitation in recommending them." ANNIE R. CORBETT.

To Check Revolts

East Indian Council Will Deal Sharply With Malcontents

LONDON, March 20. — (Through Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—A special despatch from Delhi, India, says:

"At yesterday's meeting of the council the viceroy, Lord Hardinge, announced the introduction of a bill providing for special measures to secure the public safety, the defence of India, and for speedier trials for certain offences. His excellency said that the bill should not be considered as a slur upon the people of India; but the Government had information that such a measure was absolutely necessary to meet possible emergencies. Nobody, he said, was more jealous of the honor of India than himself. But he was not disposed to allow the honor and fair name of India to be tarnished by the criminal acts of a few unbalanced minds.

"Sir Reginald Cradock, in introducing the bill, subsequently congratulated the country upon the fact that the need of such a measure had hitherto not been felt. But in this instance it was required to give the military authorities special power to deal with emergencies, and to nip in the bud manifestations of disloyalty which were beginning to be shown.

"The bill was in two parts — the first modelled generally upon the British Defence of the Realm Act. The second provided for the creation of a special tribunal of three commissioners to hear such cases as were made over to them by order of the local government concerning offences punishable by death, transportation, or imprisonment for seven years."

It appears from the above despatch that the Indians spreading sedition were passengers on the Japanese steamer Komagatu Maru, who were refused admittance to Canada when the ship arrived off Vancouver last July. An official inquiry later revealed that German emissaries arranged for the chartering of the ship with the evident object o spreading disaffection in India, and that many of the Hindu passengers were the offscourings of Indian seaports.

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Planford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her, and on recommendation of a friend, I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

7075

This view shows the military influence as applied to this design. The manner of closing, the character of collar and square neck finish, and particularly the braid fastenings, all express the military. The shirt is in three gores and flares out considerably at the lower edge, although the widest part measures but two and a half yards in the medium size. This is not wide as skirts go to-day. The good looking sleeve has only one seam. The pattern, No. 7,075, can be obtained in sizes from 34 to 44 inches bust measure.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

Hunted Gold in Alaska 22 Years---Was There Before The Days of The Great Rush

NEW YORK, March 18. — For twenty-two years a traveller, hunter and prospector in Alaska, knowing every foot of the land of gold by heart, is a career which falls to but a few Americans. Such is the record of Jack Noblett, cousin to Charles B. Rogers, Tulsa Attorney, whose home he visited on a return trip to the States.

Going to the gold country seven years before Dawson City was thought of and five years before the world-famed Klondike was ever touched by the booted foot of the hardy prospector, he entered upon a career of adventure, travel and experience such as likely no living white man can boast. Jack Noblett, now a man of 48, hale, hardy and well preserved, perhaps can say that he has seen more of Alaska and British North America than any other man.

There is hardly a corner of that vast gold enhanced and snow covered world called Alaska that has not heard the crunching of Arctic ice beneath his boot and not a river-bed that has not felt the "dipping rim of his gold pan."

Gold, gold, that magical magnet that for years has drawn the heroic soul to the unknown lands and across untravelled seas—this mixed with a love of adventure and sport — drew Jack Noblett to the Far North, where he experienced twenty-two long Arctic winters and twenty-two bright and sparkling summers.

Twenty-two years ago Noblett left his home at Coffeyville, Kan., for a flirtation with fortune and the fates. Sailing in their own boat from Seattle he and a group of other adventurers landed at the then unnamed Chilcoot, and in the following spring Noblett, with one of the party, named Charley Stewart, crossed the Chilcoot Pass for the interior.

In Stewart River they lost their entire outfit except one rifle, their sleeping robes and a cooking set. A few cartridges were also recovered. They were 300 miles from any depot of supplies. Without a guide or anything to eat except meat they killed they travelled for three days before reaching a camp of provisions. It was a cruel entrance into what was destined to be a hard life.

As a badge of the highest distinction and honour among the fraternity of Arctic pioneers, Noblett wears on the lapel of his coat a unique and valued badge. It is a miniature of the prospector's gold pan—the instrument which all gold hunters are in placer mining. The concave side of the miniature carries three small nuggets of gold and in the same native gold the letters "A. B.," representing "Arctic Brotherhood," are engraved on the pan.

The organization is one of the most exclusive among men, and to be a member of it means to have had a world of travel and experience. No man who has failed to do time and sacrifice in the far, far North can belong; none who have not actually hunted and discovered native gold in that region can belong. No meeting can be held below the Arctic Circle.

Noblett has visited every big gold camp ever opened in Alaska and the adjacent British territory. He visited and remained through their early boom, Cook's Inlet, Dawsan, Klondike, Forty Mile, Stewart River, Circle City, Beaver Creek, Kayukuk, Nome, Kuskuguin, Fairbank, Cold Foot and dozens of minor camps. He worked as far north as Point Barrow, the northern tip of the continent, and got supplies for whaling ships in the Arctic Ocean at Wrangel Island and Point Barrow supply camp. Noblett is one of the few men who has ever visited the mouth of the Mackenzie River.

During all these years he lived in the open most of the time.

"I never was sick a day in my life in the North country as long as I lived out of doors," said Noblett, "but when I slept in a house where I could not pull out all the windows I was elected to have a cold."

He tells some strange and little understood truths about the North.

"When I was camping in the interior," said Noblett, "in the darkest part of the Arctic night we usually had settled, still, cold weather, the thermometer ranging about 65 degrees below zero. Of course we used spirit thermometers. In this climate there are three things necessary to human life aside from food; namely, a sleeping robe, in which to relax and rest, matches with which to make a fire by, which warm food may be prepared and a cooking pot in which this food may be warmed and clothing boiled—Sanitation, you see.

"Strange to say, the greatest danger confronting an Arctic explorer is that of becoming too warm. If the temperature of the body becomes excessive, a cloud or coating of moisture forms about the body and becomes a dangerous conductor of the warmth within. When this condition occurs life can be saved only by building a fire and drying the clothing.

"A thin, closely knit garment, either wool or silk, next to the skin and a loose, light garment over all is as much as is needed. Too much clothing is as dangerous as none at all. I am suffering more with the cold here to-day than I would with the same clothing in that intensely dry and cold Arctic atmosphere. I have often walked in the dry snow in my light stocking feet, never feeling a pang of the cold. The Arctic dog, with a very light coat of hair, sleeps in ice and snow during the coldest seasons.

"All that the dog needs to keep warm is his nose and four feet. This is how he does it when asleep: He gets down on his side in the snow or ice, placing his hind feet over the bottoms of his fore feet, just as I place the palms of my hands together, and swishing his long, bushy fur covered tail about until it covers his bare nose he drops off into pleasant dreams. He will sleep until feeding time after the rest.

"The preservation of human and animal life then depends upon preserving a perfect non-conductor between the warmth of the living body and the bitter cold. During rest hours fur protection is a necessity. While moving about, generating heat in the body, one can dispense with the fur if he has a good substitute. But a sledge dog will not tolerate any sort of woollen or blanket covering. If he should stand for it he would freeze as hard as ice within a few hours. He well understands the laws of nature.

"The warmest robe obtainable is made by the native Eskimo out of the small skins of what is called the snow-shoe rabbit. This little animal, whose feet resemble miniature snowshoes, has a remarkable fur—light, and as fine as the finest down. In making the robe they cut the fur in narrow strips and cross them two ways, sewing them together at the lap. Although it looks worthless, being full of holes, it is the boon of the Alaskan explorer.

"There is a gorge on the lower Mackenzie river which rivals in greatness and beauty that of the famous Colorado river. At one point it is 1,200 feet deep. I walked over it on a log not more than 14 feet in length. When I looked down into the depths there seemed to be no bottom."

DAD'S DINNER PAIL.

'Twas an emblem of labour, dad's dinner pail,
It hung in a corner beyant on a nail,
It belonged to my father before I was born;
Preserve that old kettle all blackened and worn.

Chorus:
It glistened like silver, all sparkling and bright,
I'm fond of the trifle that held his wee bite;
I've carried that kettle, my dad's dinner pail.

When the bell rang for meal time my father'd come down,
He'd eat with the workman about on the ground;
He'd share wid a labourer, and say he'd go bail,
You would ne'er reach the bottom of dad's dinner pail.

If the day should be rainy my father'd stop home,
And he'd polish his kettle as clane as a bone;
He'd joke wid me mother, as me he would wale,
If I just put a finger on dad's dinner pail.

There's place for the coffee, and also the bread,
The corn beaf and praties—and oft it was said;
Go fill it with porter, with beer, or wid ale.
The drink would taste sweeter from dad's dinner pail.

WARFARE EXTRAORDINARY.

Hostile Forces Moving on Each Other Under Yser River.

NORTHERN FRANCE, March 20. —At the very moment some companies of Belgians are engaged with Germans in circumstances that would have appealed to the genius of Edgar Allan Poe.

Just in front of Ramscappelle is an old monastery, the walls of which have been battered to pieces, but whose cellars and underground passages form the background of a perilous yet picturesque struggle. Vast cellars pass underneath the beds of two small tributaries of the Yser, called respectively Great and Little Roemes.

Germans have discovered the northern outlet to thi subterranean world and the Belgians occupy the opposite exit. For several days both sides have been advancing step by step through these dark, damp and slimy underground passages.

SUNDAY BATS A HOME RUN.

Evangelist Back on Diamond for First Time in Twenty-four Years.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19. —Although he had not been in the professional field for twenty-four years, Bill Sunday stood up at bat before Ben Shibe, owner of the Athletics, on the diamond on the Phillies' grounds to-day, knocked a "homer" the first crack and circled the bases in sixteen seconds.

"I've still got some of the old-time pep left," he said. "If I'm not as good as I used to be, I'm sure I could train up in a short time and make my living on the diamond again if necessary."

At Shibe's invitation Sunday took a whirl out in the field this morning while his assistants conducted the routine prayer meetings in the Tabernacle. Ripping off his coat, Sunday grabbed up a bat in the clubhouse and dashed for the plate, where he dropped into his old time pose and waited for Shibe to toss one over. Ben put the first ball squarely over the plate. Sunday made a vicious swing, caught it squarely, and finished the "home" puffing like a steam engine.

German Patrol Runs Through Russian Fire

Special to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, March 18.— A soldier's letter from the Eastern Front describes an effort of a patrolling party to discover whether there were any Russians in a forest in front of the German positions. With fixed bayonets a handful of men crept at night through the woodland, thrusting the steel into every thick bush, or throwing a flare of light into them from their pocket lamps.

They found no "game," and were emerging from the forest at the point where they had entered in, when they suddenly saw a Russian sentinal before them in heavy fur coat and cap. He was half asleep. Taking up the narrative here, the letter reads:

"F—— seized the Russian by the lapel of his coat and swore at him in Polish, Russian, and German. 'Hands up' we demanded, and he did it. One of us watched over him while the others made an examination of the surroundings. We found a cave, such as we build for our sentries. We jabbed or bayonets into the straw around the entrance.

"A non-com., after removing the rifles which the unsuspecting Russians had stacked near the entrance, threw a light into the cave and swore frightfully. Out of the dark came creeping a dozen members of the 162nd Russian Landwahr, Tartars, Mohammedians, and men from Kasan. At the point of our bayonets they dropped to their knees.

"But suddenly we discovered we were being fired upon by another group of Russians nearby, whose presence we had not suspected. Driving our prisoners before us, we started out of the woods to cross an open meadow back to our lines. There was a whizzing of bullets about our ears. There could be no thought of trying to defend ourselves. Only six of our prisoners could we keep with us. When we finally reached our lines, we discovered from the men we had taken that the place we had tackled was not a sentry post, as we had thought, but a protected position with trenches and loopholes; and there were 30 Russians against us five, with two other Russian trenches close by.

"It was a lucky escape for us to have discharged our task and get away with our prisoners. We did not fire one shot. Our captain gave us $5. I send my one herewith to our little 'war daughter,' because it was earned without bloodshed."

COURAGE IS COMMON IN THIS WAR.

LONDON, March 22—Every Englishman knows how to die bravely. The Irish, Scotch and English soldiers face the bayonets, the machine guns as though out on dress parade. It is the men who sicken and die in the trenches, or at home after an arduous campaign that our sympathy goes out to most. There are thousands of such men behind the battle lines who went to the front without the strong constitution and good pure blood to withstand the deprivations, the hardships of the campaign in Belgium and France. It's a warning that we should pay strict attention to our stomach, liver and blood. If one is all out of sorts he should take an invigorating tonic and alternative such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which cures diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. It eliminates from the blood disease breeding poisons. It makes the blood rich and pure, and furnishes a foundation for sound, physical health. Fifty years ago, Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Motel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N.Y., found that certain barks and roots manufactured by using glycerine without the use of alcohol or opiates, made into a concentrated extract, which he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, made a stimulating tonic for the stomach, helped the digestion and assimulation of the food and eradicated poisons from the blood. This is nature's cure for indigestion, and by correcting the stomach and thereby feeding the blood on pure materials, the red blood corpuscles are increased and the body established in a healthy state. No one suffers from catarrh who has plenty of red blood corpuscles and a good digestion. Catarrh in all its forms is a stagnation of the blood. Introduce pure red blood into the system by taking the "Medical Discovery" and health is assured. Dr. Pierce's medicines are manufactured in Canada at the World's Dispensary, Bridgeburg, Ont.

"JOHNNY ON THE SPOT"

Our King and Empire's calling
To her sons across the sea,
To keep the flag a-flying boys—
It stands for liberty—
We'll meet the German army,
Marching westward to the sea,
You bet we'll all be there.

We've faced Canadian winters,
With its forty points below,
On the torrid veldts of Africa
We fought Old England's foe.
We kept the flag a-flying, boys,
Along Tugela's shore;
You bet, we all were there.

With their Zeppelins and their submarines,
They raid old England's shores,
Killing children by hundreds,
And women by the score.
You bet we'll stretch their necks for that,
And make the pirates roar,
When Jack Canuck gets there.

On the Kaiser's trip to Paris,
He met the Allies on the way;
They spoiled his Christmas dinner,
In London, far away.
We faced him to the right about,
And now he rues the day.
That Jack Canuck was there.

ZEPPELINS GREETED WITH SHRAPNEL

CALAIS, March 20—A shower of shrapnel from French artillery greeted the Zeppelin which raided this city Thursday night and dropped bombs which killed seven persons without damaging the railroad station at which they were aimed. The characteristic throbbing of the Zeppelin's engines gave warning of the airship's approach between midnight and 1 a.m.

The rays of powerful searchlights were turned upon the clouds in an effort to locate the aerial invader, but the German craft flew high above banks of dark clouds and for some time was invisible. Finally, however, it came into view and the artillery was trained upon the airship. Notwithstanding the bombardment, it dropped several bombs, which missed their target, and then made off as rapidly as possible.

PRZEMYSL HAS SURRENDERED

50,000 AUSTRIANS ARE PRISONERS

AUSTRIAN FORTRESS SURRENDERS TO THE RUSSIANS AFTER A LONG SIEGE

Greatest Victory for Russian Army Since the Beginning of the War. 160,000 of the Czar's Troops Are Released for Action in Poland and Along the Carpathian Front.

WILD ENTHUSIASM IN PETROGRAD

Special to The Examiner:

Petrograd:--Przemysl has fallen, the Russian war office announced this afternoon

The Austrian garrison has surrendered to the Russian besiegers. The capture of the Austrian fortress came at the end of a several month's siege. It automatically releases a Russian army of nearly 160,000 for action in Poland and along the Carpathian front and constitutes perhaps the greatest victory for Russian arms since the beginning of the war.

The Austrian garrison that surrendered to Gen. Dimitrieff is reported to number about 50,000.

PETROGRAD, March 22.—Przemysl has been under almost continuous siege since September 20, 1914, when the Russians first began shelling the Galacian outer forts. A month later an Austro-German force advanced northward through the Carpathians, relieved the besieged city and drove the Russians back to the north. Within a fortnight new Russian forces appeared before Przemysl and resumed the siege. Since that time four Russian army corps, the seventh, the ninth, tenth and eleventh, under General Radko Dimitrieff, a former Bulgarian army officer, have been battering in at the defeces to the fortress itself.

The news of the fall of the fortress evoked the wildest scenes in Petrograd since the beginning of the war. Crowds massed in the streets and before the Government buildings, cheering wildly.

The Austro-Germans, advancing to the relief, were battered, and hurled back by the Russians south of Przemysl. That aviators carried this news to the besieged city is certain, and it is believed here that the Austrian garrison became disheartened when this word was received, and decided upon the surrender.

The Russian war office, however, gave out a statement earlier in the day that the reported attempt to relieve Przemysl was only a feint by the Austro-Germans designed to divert the Russian troops from the invasion of Hungary south of the Dukla Pass.

LOSSES WERE HEAVY

PETROGRAD, March 22.—The Austro-German losses in attempted sorties from Przemysl, and the fighting south of Tarnow, in the last forty-eight hours, total more than forty thousand, according to a semi-official statement from the war office to-day.

The enemy's entire plan of campaign in the Carpathians apparently has been overthrown. The Slavs have struck crushing blows in the Lupkow and Dukla Pass regions, and riddled the portions of the garrison that attempted to storm the positions of the Russian besiegers. It is now known that the recent savage onslaughts by Austro-Germans south of Prezemysl did not constitute an actual attempt to relieve the besieged fortress. Its purpose was to divert the Russian troops from the Dukla and Lupkow Pass regions, where the Czar's soldiers were making steady progress into Hungary. For the same reason Przemysl garrison became suddenly active, wasting ammunition recklessly in an unequal bombardment of the Russian positions.

Developments in Poland the last two days have been equally satisfactory. The Germans have lost large supplies of war munitions, including enough machine guns to equip an entire army corps.

Former Local Man Killed At The Front

Lieut. Galaugher a Well Known Ex-member of the Belmont Club is Dead.

Lieut. W. N. Galaugher, a former resident of Peterborough and a young man with a host of friends here, has made the supreme sacrifice and given his life for the Empire. In the casualty list to-day his name appears, following the tragic words: "Killed in action March 20th. "Billy" Galaugher as he was always known to his friends here, was for several years teller in the local branch of the Bank of Commerce and was a well known and popular member of the Belmont Club. He was transferred to Sherbrooke about two years ago, and later to Chatham, where he enlisted. Lieut. Galaugher was attached to the First Battalion of the First Canadian Contingent. His home was in Omemee, where his mother resides.

Lieut. Galaugher was one of the 413 Bank of Commerce men at the front.

Peterboro' Men Were Appointed

To the Summer Mission Fields—Many to Go West.

TORONTO, March 22.—The Home Mission Board of the Presbyterian Church closed its sessions, Saturday afternoon. As fewer fields are being occupied this summer than usual, not all of the students applying were given appointments.

The following local men were given appointments:

Peterborough Presbytery — G. H. Fletcher, E. V. Forbes, J. B. Skene, C. A. Thomson.

LOCAL BOYS WHO ARE ON THE FIRING LINE

PTE. G. A. BOYCE, another Peterborough boy in the 2nd Battalion of the First Canadian Contingent in France.

PTE. A. W. PHIPPS, with the 57th detachment in the First Canadian Contingent. His mother lives on King George Street.

LOCAL COMPANY OF 39TH WILL LEAVE WEDNESDAY

Orders Received This Morning That 57th Detachment is to Move to the Belleville Mobilization Camp.

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

The local company of the 39th Battalion will leave for the mobilization camp at Belleville on Wednesday morning. Orders to this effect were received this morning with the intimation that the detachment was expected to reach Belleville before noon. The definite hour of departure has not yet been set, but it is likely to be about 9 a.m. The orders are to bring 110 men. The detachment at present is over that number, but Major Cameron, A.M.C., is conducting a rigid medical examination to-day, and it is possible that a number will be struck off. Even if they are not discharged, the surplus will be retained here possibly as a nucleus for a fourth contingent, recruiting for which will undoubtedly be commenced at once.

Definite information as to the details of the send-off to the 39th will be given to-morrow.

Lieut. Gerald Rackham, of Peterborough, is attached to the 39th Battalion as signalling officer.

Recruits are still being taken on for the 26th Overseas Battery. A number were added Saturday.

The Rangers' Drill.

The weekly drill of the 57th Regiment will be held to-morrow (Tuesday) night. The officers expect a big turnout of recruits as well as every member now on the rolls. There is no reason in the world why the Rangers should not have a strength of 450 or 500 men, if the young men of Peterborough show only a fraction of the spirit displayed by the hundreds who have gone forth to fight the Empire's battles, voluntarily offering themselves for the sacrifice, cheerfully undergoing months of weary training, taking the mud of Salisbury and the rain of old England with a smile, only to find at the end perhaps, a German bullet. No such hardships or self sacrifice is asked of the young men of Peterborough in urging them to join the 57th Regiment.

There was a time when the regiment paraded down street on a May night that people on the sidewalks would smile patronizingly and murmur something like, "The country's safe now," or a similar mild sneer. There is none of that now. The Rangers have been tested and found not wanting. Their men are in the trenches in France or in the training camps preparing for the fray. Three successive contingents have depleted the regiment. A call for a fourth may come at any time and the ranks should be filled. There were 163 men on parade last week — there should be 300 to-morrow night. Let us see some more of the spirit that sent all those brave fellows across the seas.

"Training as usual." That is the 57th Regiment's slogan just now. Recruits are needed. To-morrow night is the time to join.

$9,000 PROFIT FOR $15 A WEEK OTTAWA CLERK

That is What E. W. Powell Cleaned Up on a $40,000 Order for Medical Supplies for Soldiers.

THE INVESTIGATION

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, March 22.—The members of Parliament in the Public Accounts Committee this morning were regaled with the story of big and rapid profits which taken on a percentage basis will probably equal anything pulled off in the dealings of one man with a Government department. For many a year, E. Powell stated to the committee that though he was only clerk in the drug store of W. F. Garland, M.P., for Carleton, and was only earning $15 per week, he had netted $9,000 in straight profits from a $40,000 order for medical supplies which he had provided to the Government in the capacity of Ottawa agent of Bauer and Black, took most cago. He declared that eh had not $6,300 in the bank, and that there was still $2,600 coming to him from the Government. This made a total of $9,000 profits or about 28 per cent.

Some of the goods, however, he declared had been purchased in Ottawa, and on these he made 50 per cent.

Mr. Powell said that ht had discussed the matter of profits with Mr. Garland, but could not remember exactly what conclusion was arrived at following the discussion.

Major-General Sam Huges was in attendance.

The examination of E. W. Powell, who is a drug clerk in the employ of Carleton Drug Company, Ottawa, and agent of Bauer and BlBack, took most of the morning.

"Was the auditor-general correct when he said that you made a profit of 40 per cent. on these goods?" asked Richard Blair.

"No."

"About what profit did you make?"

"About 28 per cent."

Mr. German returned to the matter of invoices and prices charged the Government. Mr. Powell said that the original price charged for field dressings was 28 cents. This was cut to 21 cents when the department objected.

Bauer and Black wer paid 16 cents for these dressings.

PETER WALLACE HAS ENLISTED

Manager of R. J. Sturgeon Company Branch in Bowmanville Answers to the Call

Mr. Peter Wallace, manager of the Bowmanville branch of the R. J. Sturgeon & Co., who enlisted with the 21st Battalion, Overseas Contingent, is spending the week-end in Peterborough. This is his home town and Peter has met a large number of his old friends, renewing acquaintances, during his few days' leave.

FIERCE HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING

Germans and Allies Used Same Tactics Exploding Mines and Then Charging the Trenches---Germans Finally Flee in Disorder, Slaughtered by the French Artillery.

PARIS, March 22.—A renewal of the bombardment of Rheims by German gunners and violent hand to hand encounters at LaBoiselle, north east of Albert, and in the Argonne, were reported from the war office this afternoon. A French company at LaBoiselle wiped out a German trench and then occupied what remained of the enemy's earth works. In the Loretto Hills, northwest of Arras, the allied troops have recaptured some trenches occupied by the Germans on Saturday. Near Bagatelle, where the opposing lines are in close proximity, the French exploded two mines. Two French companies then charged the German positions. A third of a mile away the Germans employed the same tactics. After exploding two mines and raining shells upon the French troops, they rushed along a 250 yard front with fixed bayonets. The French troops left their trenches and advanced in counter attack. In the midst of this melee the Germans were reinforced but after an hour's fighting they were hurled back. Fleeing in disorder to their trenches the Germans were slaughtered by the French artillery.

A PARIS SCANDAL

PARIS, March 22.—Franco Declaux, a former paymaster treasurer of the entire French army, to-day went on trial before the first council of war, charged with appropriating military food supplies and sending them to his beautiful German "friend" Madam Bechoff, proprietor of the most elegant of all the Parisian dressmaking establishments. Deslaux's delinquency is alleged to have existed almost from the beginning of the war. All went well for months. Then pretty Madame Rivet, femme de chambre, to Madame Bechoff, received a letter from her husband at the front. He had not eaten for 24 hours. In a flash she flew to the military authorities and France was shaken by the biggest scandal since the Caillaux affair. Madame Bechoff's trial is to follow the verdict in the Deslaux case.

AMERICA'S PROTEST

WASHINGTON, March 22.—That America's protest against the British order in council relative to the allies' blockade of the German coast, will be transmitted to London within a day or two, was stated here officially to-day.

LONDON, March 22.—Several Turkish attacks south west of Batum and along the Black Sea Coast, have been repulsed, the war office announced in an official statement this afternoon dealing with the Caucasus situation.

LONDON, Eng., March 22.—The naming of Major General Sir William R. Robertson as chief of the General Staff of the British Army, to succeed Major General Murray, was received with popular approval here to-day, though the news was surprising. General Robertson rose from the ranks. He was trooper in the sixteenth Lancers, where he served for ten years, afterwards gaining a commission in the third Dragoons Guards. As quartermaster general of the British expeditionary force that landed in France last fall, his efficient work aroused the admiration of the military critics. A month after the expeditionary forces were landed he was temporarily commissioned as a Lieutenant General.

PETROGRAD, March 22.—The Russians who penetrated Northern East Prussia, and occupied Memel, on the Baltic, have thrown up entrenchments to protect the town from an expected German attack from the south. The Russian cavalry have entered the village of Karlsberk, three miles to the south of Memel, without opposition. They reported that the Germans who fled from Memel, had retreated beyond Prokuls, fifteen miles to the south of Memel, on the Tilsit Railway.

A GREAT VICTORY

LONDON, March 22.—(By Ed. L. Keen.—The capture of Przemysl is the greatest blow struck for the allies since the Germans were checked in their drive for Paris last fall. Consequently the official announcement from Petrograd aroused the greatest enthusiasm in official circles here this afternoon. The fall of the great Austrian fortress came at the crucial moment for the Austro-German allies. In the nrth Prusia has been invaded by the Slavs. Von Hindenburg's forces in Poland apparently are being forced back upon the Prussian frontier and the Rusians have taken an energetic offensive at the ex-

SLOW WEARING DOWN.

Of the divers ways the Germans have devised to harry and injure Britain and British commerce, the diver's way seems to be the most unsatisfactory. In the abstract the destruction by submarines of eight British vessels during the week ending March 17, seems to be large; but only eight out of 1,539 arrivals and sailings is not a very destructive percentage. The total losses to British commerce from submarines and mines since the opening of the war are represented by 9/6 merchant vessels and 47 fishing vessels, out of a total of 43,384 arrivals and sailings, or one out of every 300. Germany makes as indifferent success in wearing down Britain's commercial navy as she does in weakening Britain's war navy. At Germany's past rate of progress, it would take her about 85 years to destroy Britain's commercial navy, that is supposing that Britain does not add, as she does, two ships to her commercial navy for every working day in the year. We must, however, expect reverses and losses, which at the lightest, are heavy enough. With a war involving millions of men on the battle front, with war waged with unprecedented ferocity on earth and sea and sky, we must expect losses; and though the progress is slow, it is sure, and every important step taken by Britain and her allies, is a step forward.

HARD TEST OF LOYALTY.

It is mighty easy to be loyal, to show a loyalty that has been born and bred in us; when nothing more is demanded than to shout loyalty into sympathetic ears—ears attuned from childhood to such sounds. To be loyal when everything around us is saturated with the spirit of loyalty, when we run no risks, incur no danger, is an easy thing, compared with the position in which General Botha, Premier of South Africa, has found himself. Fifteen years ago he and a great many of his colleagues and associates were fighting against Great Britain. He and they have been conquered as much, if not more, by British generosity as by British guns. General Botha has headed the campaign that has suppressed the rising in South Africa fomented by the Germans. One can fancy how difficult being loyal has been to General Botha. He has been compelled to fight against members of his own race who joined the revolt; men with which he fought against the British a few years ago. His loyalty to Britain has stood the supreme test, and now that the rising has been suppressed he is confronted with a new and more trying test of his loyalty—to deal justly and wisely with the offenders with whom, as only yesterday, he was a comrade in arms. It has been a tragic ordeal to the loyal Dutch of the Commonwealth to hunt down and fire upon men—some of them relatives, most of them friends, who were once their comrades in arms. The Dutch loyalists have descharged a painful duty out of a stern sense of honour and loyalty. Without much exercise of imagination we can fancy the feelings of General Botha, and his colleagues in dealing with the misguided men, their comrades in arms of yesterday. Revolt is revolt, and rebellion is rebellion; but the revolt of men born to a heritage of loyalty and loyal duty, is a far more serious thing than the revolt of men suffering under the sting of defeat and not yet acclimatized, so to speak, to British institutions and British freedom, and with a natural aftermath of prejudice, that excuses, if it does not condone, their action. These misguided men should be generously if not leniently, dealt with in the interest of future peace and harmony for the Commonwealth. There should be no irritating exultation over their defeat; they should again be conquered by the generosity of the British spirit and the British sense of fair play. When we see the marvel of this policy as resulting from the treatment of the defeated Boers—a brave and liberty-loving people, loyal to their own natural traditions, becoming en masse, loyal citizens to the Empire, they were fighting but yesterday, we must let Botha use a policy of conciliation and kindness and consideration—such as made him loyal and has kept him so under the strain of conditions, and the demands of natural personal sympathies—a strain that a born Briton would have keenly felt in fighting against his revolting fellow-citizens, who numbered among them not only friends, but former comrades, and also relatives, Louis Botha is a splendid imperialist, who has saved South Africa to the Empire, with more of sacrifice than any, not in his place, and with his relatives, can appreciate.

REAL PATRIOTS.

Out of a population of 370,000 Alberta has 10,000 men under arms. If all Canada were represented in the same proportion the Canadian troops at the front and in training would total 200,000. As they, in fact, number less than 100,000, the disproportionately large part this province is taking in providing men is readily apparent. Almost apparent enough, surely, to cause eastern papers to stop flinging the charge of treason at our heads when we ask the privilege of selling our products where they will bring most money and of buying where we can buy to the best advantage.—Edmonton Bulletin.

MAKING HEAVIER BRITAIN'S BURDENS.

The pity of it is that the Canadian people are to be made responsible, before all the world, for adding very directly to the grievous burdens of life and a war already heaped high on the backs of the people of Britain. The thing would be inconceivable were it not deliberately done by the Canadian Government and publicly defended by Government supporters. The tariff against goods imported from Britain, already high enough for adequate protection, is to be made still higher. British trade, menaced on the seas by the vindictive hatred of Germany, must face the additional handicap of an increased customs duty by Canada. With the British people taxed in every shilling to provide the colossal daily expenditures in the Empire's war, and to supply Canada with every war dollar the Government spends or proposes to spend, this same Canadian Government increases the difficulties the people of Britain must face in earning the war money which Canada as well as Britain well spend. —The Globe.

A "KHAKI" ELECTION.

If, as is very probable, we are to have a general federal election this year, signs are not wanting that attempts will be made by the Conservative press and Conservative "spellbinders" to make it what has been called a "khaki" election—that is, to make it appear that loyalty to the empire calls for support to government candidates.

If such attempts are made, those who make them will be guilty of culpable meanness. And, more, such attempts would be blunders, for they would be sure so to disgust many decent Conservatives that they would be tempted to protest and give effect to their protests by voting for opposition candidates.

There are no party distinctions in the Canadian forces now at the front and emphatic rebukes. — Hamilton made for recruits there has been no intimation that no Liberals need apply. Young Liberals, as well as young Conservatives, have been invited to suffer and endure and fight for the empire, and young Liberals, as well as young Conservatives, have responded. The contingents are officered by Liberals, as well as Conservatives. When Liberals, officers and men in the ranks are doing the hard and perilous work of the war, would it not be shameful to have Tory writers and speakers calling upon the voters to manifest loyalty to king and country by supporting government candidates only—thus implying that the loyalty of Liberals is open to suspicion?

That is what a "khaki" election means. If there be any disposition developed to manage the general election along those lines, Conservatives of the better class should save their party from disgrace by early and training. When calls have been Herald (Independent Conservative).

What Commercial and Industrial Conditions After the War is Over?

Kitchener is reported as saying that he could not tell when the war would finish, but it would begin in May, 1915. While business men are watching the prologue, they are guessing, too, what will happen in business realms after the war. Kitchener's terseness, the guessing, and the acceptance of only one possible result of the conflict, are typically British. There is to be a business future, and there is faith in that future. Without precedents for guidance, men are trying to figure what is likely to be the situation immediately after peace is declared.

Mr. Charles Gide, a French economist, predicts a trade boom for the allies after the war. "It seems certain," he says, "that a victory for the allies will be the best possible advertisement for the good of the allies—an advertisement the results of which are almost beyond calculation. England and France will certainly gain a large share of the German foreign trade".

Before the Royal Society of Arts, London, in February, Mr. O. C. Beale, past president of the Australian Manufacturers' Association, stated that British industry would expand after the war beyond doubt, "but it is incumbent upon us to apply our minds keenly to consider the channels for expansion before the war closes, because the rush and demand, according to experience after other great wars, will be so great that preparations for new work will be costly to the extent, perhaps, of exclusion."

When Mr. Lloyd George presented his war budget in November, he pointed out that during the war and the period of reconstruction which would follow it, there would be no competition in the neutral markets of the world, except from America, and that therefore England would command those markets. He looked forward to a period of four or five years when the manufacturers of Great Britain would have an artificial stimulus because of the abnormal conditions. When that period was over, the country would be faced by the most serious industrial situation it had ever had to face as capital would be exhausted, and customers crippled and their purchasing power depressed. He hoped that there would be a great reduction in the cost of armaments after the war, but predicted that even for the first few years the country must expect heavy increased charges for interest in the sinking fund, separation allowances, and pensions.

A cabinet minister at Ottawa is said to have predicted for Canada a few months of great activity after the war and then another quiet period for several years. The Canadian situation after the war will depend largely upon the action of individual citizens and especially upon the course pursued by the men who guide the nation's destiny. Proper economy, commonsense, an intelligent immigration policy, concentration upon production, clean politics and hard work would all help to shape a satisfactory future situation in Canada.—Monetary Times.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, March 20. — Misgivings that European developments before Monday would be against the bulls had a depressing effect today on the wheat market here. Prices, however, closed steady at a decline of 3-8c to 3-4c net. Other grain, too, showed a loss for the day—corn 1-4c to 3-8c and oats 1/2c to 3-4c. In provisions, the outcome varied from the same as last night, to 7½c to 10c below.

Corn was firm early with wheat, but lost strength when wheat turned weak. The bulk of the business appeared to consist of transactions between floor traders. Cash call waned.

Covering by shorts lifted oats at the outset. Falling off in seaboard demand, however, tended later to give the advantage to friends of lower prices.

Selling by packers eased off provisions. There were no predictions of enlarged receipts of hogs next week as compared with the corresponding time a year ago.

This is the decision rendered by Commissioner Reid.

SOCIALISTS PROTESTS

LONDON, March 22.—A wild scene occurred in the German Reichstag Saturday during the second reading of the budget, according to a Berlin telegram received by Reuter's Telegram Agency, by way of Amsterdam. The tumult was aroused by a speech delivered by George Ledebour, a Socialist deputy, who protested against "the military administration trying to Germanize portions of French territory, from which arises on the part of Alsace-Lorraine a desire for French rule."

The statement was received with angry outbursts on the part of the deputies, some members shouting "What about the party of peace?"

Continuing, Herr Lebedour said: "I endorse everything said in praise of our brave troops and their commanders, but in political performances the military authorities are not up-to-date. I am horrified to learn that for every German village burned by the Russians, three Russian villages shall be burned."

The leaders of the various parties protested again the remarks made by Deputy Ledebour, and the vice-president of the House declared that criticism of the army administration was not permissible.

CATHOLIC CHURCH ST. PETER'S KEYS

Pastor Russell Claims to be a True Catholic.

The Catholic Church—Its Divine Foundation—Apostolic Authority—St. Peter's Keys—How He Used Them—How Keys of Kingdom—What Power and Authority Given Apostles—May Sins Be Absolved; If So, by Whom?—Pastor Says He Is Nobody's Foe.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publiction.]

Atlanta, Ga., March 21. — Of Pastor Russell's two discourses here to-day we report the one on Matthew 16:18, 19, "Upon this rock will I build My Church; and the gates of Hell (Hades, the grave) shall not prevail against it. And I will give unto thee the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven." The Pastor said in part:

For some unaccountable reason numerous Catholics have gotten the thought that I am their foe, just as Presbyterians, Methodists, Episcopalians, Baptists, etc., have gotten the impression that I am their foe. I am a foe to no human being, and especially to no Christian. I believe more fully than do Methodists in Free Grace—that ultimately God's grace will reach every human being. I believe more emphatically than do most Presbyterians that the Church is an especially elect class, and is now being gathered out of the world to be God's agents in the ultimate blessing of all the non-elect. I believe with Baptists that only the Elect, the immersed, will constitute the Kingdom of God, although I deny their claim that baptism in water is the real immersion. I hold, with the Apostle, that it is baptism into Christ's death. Similarly I hold to the great Catholic doctrine that there is only one true Church, founded by the Lord Jesus Christ through His Apostles, nearly nineteen centuries ago.

I am aware that several churches claim to be Catholic—the Anglican Catholic, the Syrian Catholic, the Greek Catholic, and the Roman Catholic. Each claims to be the true Church and reprobates the others as heretical. But I take the still broader, catholic ground. I hold that the word catholic means general; and that any limitation, such as Roman Catholic, Greek Catholic, etc., to that extent denies their catholicity. Perhaps, therefore, I am really saying that I am more catholic than any of these brethren.

I must prove my point or be misunderstood. I hold, and few, if any, will dispute it, that the one catholic or universal or general Church of Christ is the one mentioned in the Bible—"the Church of the Firstborns, written in Heaven." If this be admitted, my next proposition is that the Lord in Heaven records as members of His true Church all the saintly—whether Roman Catholics, Anglican Catholics, Greek Catholics, Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, etc.—and none others.

Have we not here the one Church, the Catholic Church, the universal, the only Church which the Bible recognizes? In the past we have been too narrow and have supposed that God was as narrow as ourselves. It was on this account that in the past Presbyterians, Roman Catholics, Anglicans, Baptists and Methodists persecuted and were persecuted, because each thought itself the true Church. Are we not all getting broader conceptions of our God and of His Church? Do we not see that a part of our mistake was in calling the outward organization the Church of Christ, instead of remembering that the Lord alone writes the names of the Church, that He alone reads the hearts, that He alone is the Judge, and that He alone has the right to blot out the names of those who become reprobates?

St. Paul wrote against the spirit of sectarianism, already manifest in his day—some saying, "I am of Paul"; others, "I am of Peter"; etc. The Apostle asks, "Is Christ divided?" (1 Corinthians 1:10-13.) So to-day, if with us, he would ask, Why Romanists, Anglicans, Baptists, Methodists, etc.? Is not the name of Christ enough? He explains that these different names of old signified a sectarian spirit, the spirit of division, that failed to recognize the true Head of the Church, His true representatives and His true members. The trouble is the same to-day. The entire foundation of divided Christianity would disappear and all the true Church of Christ—all real saints—would be speedily manifest, if true catholicity were acknowledged.

The one great obstacle to unity is the erroneous doctrine respecting the eternal torture of all not members of the Church. We must open our eyes wider and see that many of our theories were not taught by Jesus and the Apostles. We must see that the Church is a comparatively small company of saintly footstep followers of Jesus, irrespective of sectarian lines; that the Bible teaches not that these are to look over the battlements of Heaven to all eternity and see all others in torment, but that they are to demonstrate their loyalty unto death and in due time be associated with Messiah in His great Millennial Kingdom, which will bring knowledge and opportunity to all the families of the earth—the living and the dead.

St. Paul declared that the saints of God, the true catholic Church, "are built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the Chief Corner Stone." (Ephesians 2:20.) The Twelve Apostles are here referred to in their double office—Apostles especially commissioned by the Lord as His representatives, and Prophets, mouthpieces, for the proclamation of the Message to the Church. Jesus, referring to these same foundation stones, pictures the Church of Glory as the New Jerusalem, and its twelve foundations as twelve precious stones, in which are the names of the twelve Apostles of the Lamb—no more, no less—St. Paul being God's choice to take the place of Judas, the betrayer.

To think of St. Peter as the only foundation for the Church would be to deny Christ's teaching and St. Peter's own statement—that the entire Church is symbolically represented as living stones built together by the Lord through the Holy Spirit. (1 Peter 2:4-6.) It was a costly mistake when our forefathers, overlooking this well-established point of Scripture, thought of the bishops of the Church as Apostolic Bishops, and took their decisions in councils assembled as the voice of God to and through the Church. The voice of God to and through the Church came only through "the twelve Apostles of the Lamb." All others so claiming are denounced by Jesus Himself as pseudo-Apostles—false Apostles.—Revelation 2:2.

God's true saints of all denominations should ignore all human creeds and return to the Bible and its declaration of "one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all." (Ephesians 4:5, 6.) Are we more loyal to human organizations than to God, His Truth, His Church—all saints and one people, imbued with one spirit, the world around—the catholic Church?

As St. Peter was only one of the twelve foundation stones of the Church, so, likewise, he was only one of The Twelve to whom the Lord declared, "Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in Heaven; and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth shall be loosed in Heaven" (Matthew 18:18—the same statement exactly that on another occasion He made to St. Peter only. But He gave the keys to St. Peter alone.

Would it seem reasonable that Jesus should tell the twelve Apostles that God would do anything that they bade Him do—taking to Heaven whom they pleased and excluding whom they chose? Would it be wise or safe to entrust to poor humanity such dictatorial powers respecting the eternal interest of even one individual? Assuredly not! When we remember that these Apostles declared that they were men of like passions with others, that St. Peter himself dissembled on one occasion and on another denied his Master, we are the more convinced that Jesus did not mean that God would abdicate His authority and wisdom in favor of any twelve men.

What, then, does the passage mean? We answer, It implies that the Lord would so overrule the utterances and writings of His twelve Apostles as to make them safe guides for His Church. To these Apostles would be given through the Holy Spirit at Pentecost wisdom enabling them to understand which things of the Jewish Law were binding upon the Church and which not binding. Their decision would be absolutely right, and the entire Church might have confidence that what the Apostles bound or loosed on earth was equally bound or loosed in Heaven. As an illustration of this binding and loosing, see Acts 15:28, 29.

To get back into proper relationship with each other and rid of all sectarian systems, God's people must recognize that only the words of the New Testament Apostles and Prophets are authoritative; properly representing the Divine mind. Other things men have bound and loosed on earth, without recognition in Heaven. The things necessary to the Church are found only in the Bible, as St. Paul declares.—2 Timothy 3:16, 17.

"Other Foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, Jesus Christ." (1 Corinthians 3:11.) In the Divine arrangement Jesus Christ is the Foundation, the Rock, upon which is built the entire superstructure of His Church—the one Catholic, world-wide Church. On this Rock, Christ Jesus, as St. Peter declares, all the Church is being built as a Temple of God. (1 Peter 2:4-10.) The New Jerusalem, the Church in glory, had twelve foundation stones, built upon the one Foundation Rock, the Lord Jesus Christ. It would manifestly be erroneous, therefore, to suppose that our Lord abdicated His own place in the Church in favor of St. Peter, much as He loved him.

What, then, did Jesus mean when He called St. Peter a stone, spoke of building His Church upon "this rock," and declared that the gates of Hell (Hades, the grave) would not prevail against it? We reply, Jesus went down into the prison-house of death, Sheol, Hades, the tomb; but on the third day the gates of Sheol, Hades, were opened, and He came forth. These gates will not prevail against the Church, as they did not prevail against her Lord. This is an assurance of the resurrection of the dead.

To understand St. Peter's connection with the Rock Foundation of the Church, we should read the preceding context. The disciples had told Jesus the common talk respecting Himself. He then asked them, "Who say ye that I am?" St. Peter answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." This was the first public declaration of Jesus' Messiahship. Even the disciples had only now come to recognize their Teacher as the long-promised Messiah. Jesus answered, "Blessed art thou, Simon, son of Jonas; for flesh and blood hath not revealed this unto thee, but My Father in Heaven. Thou art Peter (a stone, ready for the spiritual Temple, the first one to publicly acknowledged Jesus), and upon this rock (the Truth just declared, that I am Messiah) I will build My Church."

In the Greek the word Peter signifies a stone of moderate size, while the word here rendered rock signifies a mass of stone—a foundation. Our Lord Jesus Christ evidently meant that St. Peter's statement was a recognition of Himself as the great Foundation of the Divine Plan—Messiah. Upon that foundation truth, that Jesus is Christ, the Church would be built; and St. Peter was the first living stone to build himself upon that foundation by believing and confessing Christ. St. Peter himself gives us the same thought—that he and all others of the Church are living stones, being builded together as a holy Temple of God. This entire Gospel Age has been devoted to the building of these stones upon that great Foundation Rock, Christ Jesus. As soon as the great Temple of God shall be completed, this Gospel Age will end and the New Dispensation be inaugurated.

To St. Peter our Lord said, "I will give thee the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven." What did He mean? We shall not suppose that any who hear my voice or are sufficiently intelligent to read this discourse in the newspapers are stupid enough to think Jesus meant that Heaven is locked up, and that nobody could get in except as St. Peter would open the door or gate. True, some have voiced such fantastic notions. But we refuse to believe that intelligent people could be in earnest in any such view.

What the Lord meant is very simple, very beautiful; and we see exactly how it was fulfilled. He indicated that St. Peter, the first to confess Him, was to have a special honor in connection with the inauguration of the Church on earth. By the expression, "Kingdom of Heaven," is meant the Church, a class being called out of the world to become with Christ the ruling power of the world during the Millennium, through the great resurrection "change." See 1 Corinthians 15:42, 54.

Jesus meant that St. Peter would be honored in being permitted to do an opening work in connection with the Church. The Bible shows us two different opening works and two different keys. The key is a symbol of power or authority or an initiative. St. Peter used his first key of privilege on the day of Pentecost. When the Holy Spirit came upon the early waiting Church, it was St. Peter that used this key. Standing up with the eleven, he lifted up his voice, explained the situation and opened the door to the Church of Christ for the Jews, admonishing them of their opportunity to enter. He told of the merit of Christ's death and how He had risen and had ascended on High, and how forgiveness of sins was therefore, preached in His name.—Acts 3:14-26.

The second key to the Kingdom of Heaven—the Church, the embryo Kingdom preparing for glory—St. Peter used three and a half years later. Then the seventieth week of Divine favor prophetically appointed to the Jews expired, and the time came that "the Gentiles might be fellow-heirs with the Jews of the same Promise." The opening work was with the household of Cornelius, to whom St. Peter preached Christ. The Lord blessed the preaching and granted the Holy Spirit to Cornelius and his family. Thus the Gentile door into the Kingdom was thrown wide open.—Acts 10.

"That repentance and remission of sins might be preached in His name to all people" (Luke 24:47). God never gave power to bishops, priests or ministers of any denomination to forgive sins. "Who can forgive sins but God alone?" Nor did Jesus give authority to His Apostles to forgive sins. They might preach repentance and forgiveness, but only in His name. Any child of God is Scripturally authorized to declare that Christ died for human sin, and has thus made arrangement by which all repentant sinners may be forgiven. It is an honor to be the bearer of such a Message from God to men; and every child of God is fully commissioned to tell the Divine Message to all who will hear.

In proportion as God's people throw away their sectarian spectacles they can read God's Message in the words of Jesus and the Apostles. Let us hold fast the precious Word which Jesus exhorted us to search and which is sufficient that the man of God may be thoroughly furnished. Let us remember that there is only one true Church, each member of which is a saint, related to God and the Lord Jesus Christ through faith, repentance and remission of sin and the begetting of the Holy Spirit; that it is the only Church that is catholic, universal; and that a member of the Body of Christ is a member of that Body anywhere. "Now are ye the Body of Christ, and members in particular."—1 Corinthians 12:27.

HAD INDIGESTION

FOR OVER 10 YEARS.

ALMOST DESPAIRED OF EVER GETTING WELL.

Indigestion is one of the worst forms of stomach trouble. The stomach becomes upset and you have a raw, debilitating feeling in it. After a meal you feel that you must get rid of that nasty, bilious, burning sensation. It is not necessary for you to be troubled with indigestion if you will only try that old and well-known remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, which is a combination of nature's best known roots, herbs and barks for the cure of all stomach and blood troubles.

Mrs. Mary MacKay, Hunter's Mountain, N.S., writes: "I was troubled with indigestion for more than ten years. I tried several doctors' medicines claiming the power to cure, but all without success. Having heard of the many cures effected by Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to give it a trial. After taking two bottles I was completely cured. My appetite which was very poor is now good, and I can eat most everything without any disagreeable feelings.

I can strongly recommend B.B.B. to anyone suffering from indigestion."

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES

Gen. Carranza has begun extensive preparations to fortify Vera Cruz, Consul Sullivan yesterday notified the U. S. State Department.

It is reported that a Spanish ship laden with iron ore and proceeding to a German port has been captured by a British cruiser in the Strait of Dover.

The cargo of oil on the Danish steamship Pryssel, which was recently seized and taken into Swinemunde, has been confiscated. The ship was released yesterday.

Since the beginning of the war the British army on the continent has lost 1,543 officers killed, and 2,833 wounded, while 705 have been reported missing. This gives a total officers casualty list of 5,081 men.

Removal of all wounded soldiers of the warring European nations to neutral countries for treatment, is planned by Dr. Alex. Carrel, formerly of the Rockefeller Institute, now in the employ of the French Government.

The strike of coal heavers at the Liverpool docks was renewed Saturday. Two thousand men quit work, and in consequence sailings of a number of vessels, some of them in the Government service, were delayed.

Times Expects Conciliation.

LONDON, March 22.—The Times, in an editorial Saturday morning, says it considers that nothing could have been more satisfactory than the tone of the correspondence between Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, and Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador, with regard to Great Britain's plans for reprisals against Germany. The Times thinks the courteous and conciliatory spirit displayed by both sides inspires confidence that the difficulties will be easily overcome.

What Toronto is Doing With Her Vacant City Lots

The common or garden backyard is to be a scene of beauty and of fragrance this summer, and a place of vegetables and chickens, judging by the "talk-it-over" meeting which inaugurated this season's annual backyard garden competition. The hall was filled to the doors with backyard gardeners, and a hundred or more would-be producers were turned away for lack of standing room under the conditions of the fire ordinance. About 250 entries for the competition were collected from the audience, making 450 now already in hand. The Dovercourt Land Company, who donate $1,000 in cash prizes, expect over 1,000 entries this year. The movement towards the backyard beautiful has gained added impetus this year from the campaign of patriotic production led by Dr. C. C. James.

Mr. W. S. Dinnick, president of the Dovercourt Company, reviewed the growth of the movement to make gardens out of the common or domestic backyard. It was an off-shoot of the garden city idea. Minneapolis started with one garden. She has hundreds to-day. Toronto, the first city in Canada to take it up, started last year with 234 in the backyard competition, and this year 1,000 or 1,500 entries are expected.

"A man told me he could get four times the price for cauliflowers in Toronto that he got in the south of England," related Mr. Dinnick. "It shows what an important thing it is to increase garden production here and so reduce the cost of living."

Should be No Waste Land.

Dr. C. C. James of the Dominion Agriculture Department, declared that food production was as important a part of this war as fighting and if the people who stayed home did not do their duty they might hang their heads in shame when the troops came back. There were 2,800 acres in the city of Toronto producing nothing but weeds. This year of all years these waste spaces and empty lots should be producing food.

The price of bread to-day would be a different figure from the price next spring if the war continued, Dr. James prophesied.

"The men at the front were never so well fed as they are to-day," declared the speaker. (Applause).

The average consumption of meat was at the rate of 400 pounds per year in the British army at the front. In England the average was only 120 pounds. The consumption was higher, therefore, than in time of peace. Canada consumed 175 pounds of meat per head per annum, as compared with 80 pounds in France and 120 pounds in the home of the meat-eating John Bull. The cattle of Canada had increased by 17 per cent. since 1904, but the human population increased 34 per cent. In 12 years the ratio of increase of population of the United States amounted to 24 per cent., while cattle had actually decreased by 30 per cent.

"And we wonder at the increased price of meat," exclaimed Dr. James. "Vegetables, to be enjoyed at their best, must be eaten fresh, and to be better than that they must be grown in your own garden."

"The people of Toronto own more land and more people own their own homes here than in any other city of the world," said Mr. Dinnick in extending the offer to the "vacant lot" gardeners who might want to enter the backyard competition.

Proven by Pictures.

Professor H. L. Hutt gave a beautifully illustrated lecture on the subject of making the most of a back garden, showing how in place of the board fence-bound area of rubbish and weeds little oases of verdure and fruitfulness are created.

"Tomatoes ripen best on the vines amid the leaves," said Professor Hutt. "It is a mistake to pinch off the leaves or pull the green tomatoes to ripen them on the fence".—Toronto Star.

Replacing Men by Women Stirs Organized Labor in England

Secretary of Women's Trade Union League Criticises Scheme and Asks What Will Be Done with the Women When the Men Return from the War

LONDON, March 20 — The novel and rather revolutionary scheme of the government to mobilize women to replace the men needed for war service, although only tentatively outlined by the Board of Trade, has created wide discussion in England, especially in organized labour circles which are somewhat disturbed at the prospect of the influx of thousands of untrained non-union women into the spheres of various activities.

Miss Mary MacArthur, secretary of the Women's Trade Union League, an organization with a membership of 240,000, says there are at least forty thousand union women at present without employment, and she feels it is incumbent upon the government to give them first consideration.

"I can only imagine that the government has taken this step with a view to eventualities rather than because of the present situation," Miss MacArthur said to-day.

"Trade unions, even if convinced of the necessity of this innovation, will require satisfactory guarantees as to the conditions under which these women are to be substituted for men. Are they to receive the same wags for the same work? What guarantee is to be given to the men that their situations will be open when they return to civil life? If this is guaranteed, what is to happen to the women displaced if in the meantime they have become self-dependent?"

Dardanelles Operations Are Delayed By Bad Weather

Superiority of Guns of Allied Fleet Over Those of Turkish Forts Has Been Established, Declares Admiralty and Cost of Forcing a Passage Will Be Less Than Had Been Estimated

LONDON, March 22.—The Admiralty last night made the following announcement:

"Unfavorable weather has interrupted the operations in the Dardanelles, and as seaplane reconnaissances have not been possible, the amount of damage done to the forts by the bombardment of the 18th cannot be ascertained.

"No great expectations should, however, be based on this, as owing to the losses caused by drifting mines the attack was not pressed to its conclusion on that day.

"The power of the fleet to dominate the fortresses by superiority of fire seems to be established. Various other dangers and difficulties will have to be encountered, but nothing has happened which justifies the belief that the cost of the undertaking will exceed what has always been expected and provided for.

"The British casualties in the personnel are sixty-one men killed, wounded and missing."

Admiral De Robeck has telegraphed to the Admiralty as follows: "I desire to bring to the notice of your lordships the splendid behavior of the French squadron. Their heavy loss leave them quite undaunted. They were led into close action by Rear Admiral Guepratte with the greatest gallantry."

A statement made public by the Admiralty last night shows that the total casualties among the officers of the British ships engaged in the fighting in the Dardanelles last Thursday, when the Irresistible and Ocean were sunk, were four killed and two wounded on the Irresistible and three killed on the Inflexible.

A casualty list of the men shows that 20 on board the Inflexible and four on the Irresistible were killed.

An Athens despatch says the Turkish forces on the coast of the Gulf of Smyrna have been reinforced to the number of 80,000. It is reported that 10,000 troops have been sent to strengthen the garrison on the Dardanelles.

An Amsterdam despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. says:

"The Emperor received Djavid Bey, the Turkish Minister of Finance, at Berlin on Friday, when the Dardanelles situation was discussed.

"In an interview which appeared in the Berlin papers, Djavid Bey intimated that the Emperor was much concerned about the possible fate of Constantinople, not only because of the tremendous political consequences which would result, but also on account of the prosperity which the forcing of the Dardanelles would bring to Odessa. The Emperor is quoted as saying, "We cannot allow Odessa to become another Hamburg'."

Admirals of the allied fleet who conferred aboard the French flagship Suffren Friday regarding their future course in attempting to force the Dardanelles are believed to have decided unanimously to renew soon the general attack, says a Tenedos despatch to the Havas Agency.

The French battleship Gaulois, the despatch says, which was badly damaged along the waterline by shells from the Turkish forts, is anchored in deep water off Mavrais Island, while her sister ship, the Charlemagne, is standing by to offer assistance if it is needed. It has been found difficult to make immediate repairs to the Gaulois owing to stormy weather and high seas.

Complete details of the damage suffered by the forts have not been obtained, but the allied commanders believe it was serious. Fort Kum Kaleh, which has been repaired by the Turks, directed an accurate fire against the warships.

German Invaders Live High as Belgium Weeps

LONDON, March 15.—Writing from Beligum, a correspondent tells of the misery caused in that country by German misrule, and the acts of plunder and exaction committed on the poor Belgian population. He says that the misery of Belgium grows greater and greater. There is no work, and charity hardly suffices to nourish the starving population. Things cannot endure as they are now.

The provisions which American benevolence sent to the country naturally mitigate the distress. But, apart from bread, of which the ration is too small, other articles of prime necessity begin to be totally lacking.

Any such articles which are found in the warehouses are requisitioned by the German authorities, not only for the army's needs, but for export to Germany. The Germans, who had plundered the warehouses of Antwerp of a million sacks of cheeses, had loaded them on Rhine barges for despatch to Germany by river through Holland. Protest having been raised against the violation of Dutch territory and some of the barges being already in Dutch waters, the Germans resorted to the following device:

They had goods invoiced to the Getreide Commission of Dusseldorf, the latter engaging to pay January 15. Now the owners are receiving payment in notes of the Societe Generale, which is clear proof that the name of the Getreide Commission of Dusseldorf was not used in good faith, but that in reality the German government appropriated the goods and is paying for them out of the indemnity Germany extorted from Belgium.

All raw material in factories found in Belgium are taken possession of by the Germans for their own needs, without any regard for the need of the Belgians. Meanwhile the Germans continue to announce in their newspapers that they are doing all in their power to restore normal life in the country.

If they were doing so it would be their first care to restore the facilities of communication between one point and another. As a matter of fact, trains either run not at all or seldom, start at impossible hours and take an eternity to make the most trifling journey. And the transport tariff is doubled where it is not trebled. Besides, you must have a permit.

Travel on foot is equally little encouraged. Only the privileged have passports to move about thus, and they do not get them until they have waited days and made payments of from half to a dollar and a half. One cannot move at all, indeed, without considerable cost. But while the people are plunged into this misery the German soldiers lack for nothing. On sentry duty they smoke large cigars.

The Germans are now buying up potatoes everywhere and there has been a big increase in prices following the consignments they have sent into Germany. The unhappiness of this land was sufficiently great already without the price of such an article of prime necessity being increased and in such a manner.

At a distribution of bread at Antwerp to the destitute population the German soldiers appeared and took the bread for themselves. Upon energetic protest being raised and sustained they replaced the bread they had taken away by bread a month old and so hard that it was uneatable even by famishing men.

While these things are so the Germans have themselves photographed at their barracks distributing soup to the poor. This, of course, is for the benefit of neutral countries, to which the photographs are sent.

Both officers and soldiers, however, have lost their air of conquerors. One sees melancholy visages everywhere, and the town is as dismal as a cemetery.

Daily troops are leaving the city, probably for the front, and, while one sees them march singing on their way to entrain, there are tears in many of the eyes. They realize that they are cattle being driven to the slaughter, and many of them feel that the cause in which they fight is a bad one.

EXPORT HAS BEEN STOPPED

Canadian Government Orders All Prussiate of Soda in Country to Remain Here—The Reasons

Because it is largely a product of Germany, because it is not manufactured in Canada, and because there is need for all that is at present in this country, the Canadian Government has forbidden the export of prussiate of soda, except under special license. There is a fourth and more important reason for keeping this chemical in the country, and that is because it is used in the manufacture of explosives.

Prussiate of soda is a poisonous substance. It is manufactured from various other chemicals. There are three firms in the United States, the only ones on this continent, who make it, and each one of them uses a different method of producing it. These firms are situated in Syracuse, N.Y., Philadelphia and Cincinnati.

The order prohibiting its export will not mean anything financially in Canada. Professor Watson Baine of the School of Practical Science, and another experienced chemist of this city, agreed that there is not more than $5,000 worth of it in the country now. Owing to the small demand for it here it is only imported in small quantities.

Dyers Need It.

The main use that prussiate of soda is put to in the Dominion is in the manufacture of colours, in textile mills. It is an important factor in dyestuffs. There are no wholesale firms in Canada handling it, the concerns requiring it doing their purchasing direct from the manufacturers.

It is produced in England to a great extent, both because there are large colour making companies there and important explosive factories. It is likely while the present war lasts that all the British colonies will pass the same laws in connection with its exportation. Germany, although she has manufactured as much of it as any other nation, will not allow any opportunities pass to obtain material for the making of ammunition.

Prussiate of soda, which is similar to prussiate of potash, sells at present on the market for from 10 to 12 cents a pound in bulk quantities. If purchased in small quantities it would cost in the neighbourhood of 25 cents a pound.

Peterboro's Fire Fighting Apparatus

Is Not Overestimated in a New York Publication—Motor Driven Apparatus Approved.

A New York publication called the "Fireman's Herald" contains an interesting section entitled "Equipment Statistics." It credits Peterborough with a population of eighteen thousand people and the following fire fighting equipment:

One horse-drawn fire engine, one horse-drawn ladder truck, three other horse-drawn pieces and five thousand feet of hose.

Under the head of contemplated purchases appear the following items One auto combination chemical and hose truck and one thousand feet of hose.

Auto Equipment Favoured.

The figures in the entire list show emphatically how rapid is the process of motoring the fire appartus on this continent. In the census which was taken last year, information was received from 315 cities, which showed a total of 7,059 horse-drawn pieces in service, whereas this year 500 cities are represented, or about sixty per cent. more, and yet this much larger number only shows 3,897 pieces of horsed fire apparatus, and many of them are held in reserve.

A Comparison.

How fire chiefs regard the relative desirability of horsed and auto equipment is strikingly demonstrated by the figures for contemplated purchases. Out of a total of 601, only 37 are to be pulled by horses, while the remainder, 564, will be propelled by one form or another of the internal-combustion engine.

Chemical and horse care head the list of possible purchases, this year's total being 185. Tractors again have second place, with 108. Ladder trucks and water towers are third, with 78. Then in order come: Pumping engines, 62; triple combinations, 39; hose cars, 20; chemical cars, 11. The unclassified motor apparatus — most of them chiefs' cars—number 61.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

My boy Frank seemed weak-chested and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs D. Stevens, Niagara, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

Once unthinking people used to smile patronizingly at the sight of a red uniform. They don't any longer. The red coats have met the test. There is a place in the ranks for you. Better join the Rangers to-morrow night.

Launching a Superdreadnought.—The impressive bow-on view gives an idea of the size of the world's largest battleship. The Pennsylvania was launched on Tuesday, March 16th at Newport News, Va. She displaces 31,400 tons to the Queen Elizabeth's 27,500 tons, but her guns are smaller and her speed slower. Below is a picture of Miss Kolb and the bottle of champagne she broke on the bow.

Sure of Victory In Dardanelles

Power of the Fleet to Dominate the Fortresses Established.

LONDON, March 22.—The Admiralty to-night made the following announcement:

"Unfavourable weather has interrupted the operations in the Dardanelles, and as seaplane reconnaissances have not been possible the amount of damage done to the forts by the bombardment of the 18th cannot be ascertained.

Much Damage Occurred.

Admirals of the allied fleet who conferred aboard the French flagship Suffren Friday, regarding their future course in attempting to force the Dardanelles, are believed to have decided unanimously to renew soon the general attack, says a Tenedos despatch to the Havas Agency. The French battleship Gaulois, the despatch says, which was badly damaged along the water line by shells from the Turkish forts, is anchored in deep water off Mavrais Island, while her sister ship, the Charlemagne, is standing by to offer assistance if it is needed. "Dope" Fiends Invade Ontario

Passing of U.S. Federal Law Sends Users of Narcotics to Canada—Arrests Have Been Started.

The arrest at Windsor of two Indiana men who are charged with peddling "habit forming drugs" throughout Western Ontario was a striking example of the efficiency of the Canadian laws regarding the sale of "dope." The taking of the two men into custody is probably the first move in a concerted action on the part of the Ontario Government in conjunction with the Ontario College of Pharmacy, to see that the Dominion Poison Act and the Ontario Pharmacy Act are strictly carried out, and that the "dope" fiends from across the line do not get even a slight start towards procuring "snow" or "heroin" in this country.

New U. S. Law.

The Harrison bill, a new United States federal law which restricts the sale of the "habit forming" drug throughout the country came into effect this week. Under the provisions of this bill the barriers are raised for the "dope" artists themselves and certain interests in many states who have made millions out of the sale to the unfortunate users of opium, morphia and its compounds, cocaine and its salts, beta and naptha ucaine, a close relative of cocaine heroin, etc., etc. This bill is not exactly prohibition but it can be made by its extensive machinery almost as tight both for the buyer, seller and user. The consumer of the dangerous drug cannot now enter a drug store and buy what he wants. He must present either a prescription or an order written by himself for the drug in question. The order calls for a full description of the purchaser, including age, colour of the eyes, occupation, etc. The description is filed away with the order and is examined and reported upon by the Government inspector. In this manner the sale is supposed to have been made so irksome that the buyer will shrink from the red tape and the prospect of exposure.

Account For Every Ounce.

Under this statute every person or company dealing in opium, heroin, codiae, cocaine, morphine and all other like preparations must take out a license from the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and must make an annual return of the sales and purchases. No sale can be made except by a written order, no matter how small the amount, and the written order must be held for inspection by a Government officer and further to make the law effective it is provided that any person having in his possession drugs that have not been entered by the vendors in their books as required by law shall be liable to a fine or imprisonment or both.

Law Not Carried Out.

Canada has just such a law and it has been in effect for quite some time, in fact ever since Mackenzie King attended the opium conference It is known as the Canada Poison Act and its provisions are so strict that it is hardly possible to secure any great quantity of dope, but it had no machinery to carry it out. The Dominion Act provides for the sale of the smallest portion of these drugs but when any of its provisions are broken or special attention is needed at various places throughout the country there is no inspector or Government official to deal with the matters to see that the "poison" books are properly kept and returns accurately made.

Have Provincial Officer.

It is different in Ontario, however, thanks to the druggists themselves, for the local Government has passed the Ontario Pharmacy Act which gives the power of regulating the sale of drugs to the Ontario College of Pharmacy. The board of the college sees that as far as this province is concerned both local and federal acts are administered with the result that "heroin" centres and promiscuous buying of "snow" and "coke" are both things of the past. W. B. Graham, registrar treasurer of the college is the official inspector for Ontario and he is recognized as such by the Ontario Government. The Dominion Government have also given Inspector Graham the power to inspect the big drug depots in Montreal as to their sales throughout Ontario but he is not a paid official.

Inspector Graham intimated that that he expected a raid of drug users from the border states into Canada immediately the Harrison bill went into effect.

Rigid Inspection.

"I am arranging now," he said, "on my next tour to carefully watch all shipments to and returns made by the druggists and others in the border towns. Detroit has always been a noted "heroin centre" and I am not surprised that the Windsor officials are having their hands full at the present time with those people who have come across to this country in an effort to procure the drug."

Inspetcor Graham intimated that he had made a rigid inspection of the wholesale distribution of narcotics in Montreal recently and that the French city was pretty well cleaned up.

Need More Machinery.

"Our acts to suppress the drug evil," said George E. Gibbard, are the best on the continent and as far as Ontario is concerned are being carried out well. The only trouble seems to be that there is not the proper machinery to insure a proper punishment for those who enfringe. The Harrison bill in many instances does not go as far as the Ontario Pharmacy Act, but it has the advantage of having duly appointed officers to see that its provisions will be respected."

A Boston Story.

"So you come from New York?" said an English boy to a travelling American. "I supposed, of course, you came from Boston.' "Why did you think that?" inquired the New York lady. 'Because I supposed all cultivated, intelligent Americans came from Boston." "But what in the world made you think that?" was the natural question. "Oh, I don't know exactly. I think it was a Boston lady who told me."

OVERZEALOUSNESS IN RELIGION

Led Couple, It is Believed, to Commit Suicide

READING, Pa., March 18.—Overzealousness in religious matters and a desire to offer themselves as a sacrifice to God are believed to be the reasons for the double suicide of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Seiverd, forty-two and forty-six years old, respectively. Their bodies were found hanging in the barn on their farm, in Carnhaven township, this county, yesterday.

Both had been arden supporters of "Billy" Sunday and eargerly read every word about him that appeared in print. They were enthusiastic in their part in the revival services in progress for the last month in the United Brethren Church at Elverson. At last Sunday evening's service their oldest son, Jacob, sixteen years old, was baptized.

Returning home they told him that he would not have a father and mother to look after him and his brother much longer, and that they would soon go to the Lord. They told him where the family cash was hidden and discussed other matters with him. The matter was dismissed for the time being until the son found the bodies of his parents hanging in the barn yesterday.

In one of the pockets of the father's coat was found a note stating that they had committed suicide and giving directions for the settlement of his affairs. The double funeral will take place on Friday.

DISASTROUS FIRE IN MARMORA

MARMORA, March 20.—Marmora was visited by a disastrous fire yesterday, which destroyed some thousands of dollars' worth of property. The fire broke out about on o'clock, and before the onward march of the devouring element had been checked several places, chiefly barns and sheds were reduced to ashes. Three horses, and a cow were cremated.

The fire started in a shed or barn in the rear of Mr. B. C. Hubbell's store. This structure was burned, as were also . Kelly's barber shop and pool rooms; Daniel Shannon's barn and store house, Gray's barn, P. Sophie's livery barn, Connors & Gray's garage, Sullivan's barn with contents, including a team of horses and a hearse, the property of Wiggins & Marett, and Charles Claremont's barn. Mr. Sullivan lost a horse and cow.

The stores of Messrs. B. C. Hubbell and D. Shannon were somewhat damaged but were saved from destruction.

How the fire originated is not known. The loss sustained is partially covered by insurance.

Bible Scenes Laid In Present Turkey

Nearly All Events Chronicled Took Place in Land Ruled by Sultan.

In a paper telling something of the wonderful history of the lands over which Turkey has ruled for many generations, prepared for the National Geographic Society, William Joseph Showalter gives some interesting facts which ordinarily escape attention. He reminds the reader that except when Paul and his associates crossed the Hellespont to Athens and Rome, the entire Bible story, from Genesis to Revelation, was lived in what has been Turkey, and calls attention to the fact, that the great empires of the East, the civilizations of the Egyptians and the Phoenicians, the glories of Byzantium—all were planted on what has been Turkish soil. He also shows how King Sargon, ruling at the very dawn of history, congratulated his empire upon his success in bringing down the high cost of living. He says in part:

"No other people possess lands of such wonderful historic interest as the Turks. Occupying a region only a third as great in area as the United States, they have yet a territory within those boundaries the greatest, the most influential events in human history have occurred.

"The Bible, with little exception, is an account of the doings of people who never got beyond what have hitherto been the confines of Turkey. From a single corner of the Ottoman empire arose the Babylon that in its day all but ruled the world. From that same region envy and famine conspired to send the children of Abraham into Egypt, which until recently was embraced in the empire of the Ottomans. Thence, as they marched back from Africa to Asia, through the Wilderness of Sin to the Promised Land, they never once set foot off of what came to be Turkish soil. And when the Star of Bethlehem arose it stood over a manger, on land that is now Turkish soil.

"In Asia Minor once dwelt Croesus, whose name to this day expresses the last degree of wealth. Here was Pergamus, whose library in its period was the finest in the world, making such demands for papyrus that Ptolemy was led to prohibit the exportation of that commodity from Egypt. Under the reign of the Caesars, Asia Minor alone contained 500 populous cities, enriched with all the gifts of nature and adorned with all the refinements of art.

"The civilization of the Hittites, whose lands finally were occupied by the hosts of Israel; the civilization of Tyre and Sidon, the greatest colonizers of ancient times; the civilization of Egypt, rival of Persia and Chaldea in the value of the heritage it bequeathed to the future; the civilization of Constantinople and the Byzantine empire, in its day more gorgeous than any that had gone before—all found their home within the boundaries of what afterward came to be the land of the Turk, Mohammed, and the religion which bears his name, and now claims several hundred million adherents, were also born in the Ottoman empire.

"The greatest of these ancient empires was the Babylonian. The Babylonians built their civilization upon an irrigation ditch and made Babylonia a land teeming with people, the seat of magnificent cities, and the home of a world-conquering empire. Babylonia rivaled the valley of the Nile in production. Every Greek traveller who wandered that way marvelled at the luxuriousness of the crops of Mesopotamia. Even Herodotus hesitated to tell the story in its fullness lest the people for whom he wrote history might regard him as a nature faker. The hanging gardens of Babylon stirred the admiration of the travellers out of the west, so that they wrote them down as one of the seven wonders of the world. Nebuchadnezzar built them for his wife, Amytis, the beautiful Mede, to rescue her from her homesickness for her native Median hills.

"King Sargon, though he lived at the dawn of history, reviewed his reign much as a president of the United States or a great European sovereign might review his official career. He tells us that he restored ancient ruined cities and colonized them; that he made barren tracts of land fertile; that he gave his nation a splendid system of reservoirs, dams, and canals; that he protected the needy from want, the weak from oppression, filled the nation's granaries with corn, brought down the high cost of living, and found new markets for the nation's products.

"Babylon's fortifications are said to have had a circumference of 55 miles, the outer wall of which was 350 feet high and 335 feet thick. The palace of Sargon II covered about 25 acres, and its front was twice as long as that of the United States capitol. Forty-eight great winged bulls guarded its entrances, and upon its walls were more than two miles of sculptured slabs telling the story of the king's reign."

Sunday Morning Service At St. Paul's Church

Rev. Mr. McKenzie Preaches

"Awake, ye saints, awake,
And hail the sacred day;
In loftiest songs of praise
Your joyful homage pay:
Come, bless the day that God hath blest,
The type of heaven's eternal rest."

The Rev. J. A. McKenzie, the new pastor of Knox Presbyterian Church, occupied the pulpit at St. Paul's, Sunday morning. He took as his text John 20:25, "The other disciples, therefore, said unto him, We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, Except I shall see in His hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into His side, I will not believe," and in a brief, but scholarly oration delighted the hearts of his hearers, who were charmed with the quiet dignity of his delivery

The theme of his discourse was "doubt" and its opposite, "faith."

We must not judge Thomas too harshly for taking the stand he took. He had a deep affection for Jesus, an affection which can only be measured in terms of the gloom which must have surrounded the disciples at the time of the crucifixion. Even the announcement of the disciples: "We have seen the Lord" was not sufficient to awaken within the soul of Thomas that enthusiasm exhibited by the other disciples, in their knowledge that Christ lived.

Thomas wanted some physical evidence that Christ was once more alive.

Men in every age and in every land, have made the same demand, have been making a variety of excuses for their unbelief. Unless they see Him with the physical eye they will not believe. From whence does this demand arise? Undoubtedly it finds its source in the lawful practice of making physical evidence a test of material existence.

We have knowledge of physical objects through our physical senses. We are able to see, hear and smell them, therefore we have no doubt of their existence. As we stand in the river valley and watch is disappearing among the hills, on either hand fields clad in their richest verdure, all bathed in the light of the evening sun; who has not felt the beauty of the external world? As we behold the moon and stars, we marvel at the beauty of the earth and sky, yet no one doubts their reality.

We do not doubt the existence of the people with whom we move and associate. No doubt exists in our mind of the personal, previous existence of those who have passed over, slumbering in anticipation of entering into a fuller, and eternal life, which our eyes have never beheld, and which we, therefore, are slow in accepting.

Consequently we need not be surprised at the doubt of the present day in the reality of Jesus Christ. Thomas was convinced that our Saviour lived and died, but he was not convinced that He had risen again. The former facts were evidence to him, the other not.

Sometime, possibly, the pall of doubt may fall on you and me: When we challenge the existence of God, when our prayers become mechanical, when they draw no response from heaven, when we cannot see God as we see the world around us, or as we see each other.

It was the most natural thing in the world for Thomas to speak thus. He was no hypocrite. Thomas said, "produce your evidence," yet he hungered to get a sight of Jesus and to touch His hand.

On the other hand, the weakness of this position, of this doubt, is in applying a physical test to the spiritual world.

God is a Spirit, therefore we must know Him through the Spirit, we must prove Him by the witness of the Spirit. And religion is not the only field in which this holds true. Who has ever handled the emotions of which character is formed? Ambition, that spur which makes man struggle with destiny; jealousy, which lives on doubts; fear, that evidence of despondency; hatred, which burns its way through the human soul; love, which binds men together, and which helps to keep them pure and sweet in times of stress; that invisible, intangible something, more real than the world in which we live.

Who doubts the reality of gravity? We have never seen nor handled it, yet on every side we have abundant evidence of its unchanging laws.

"Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for those that live Him."

"But God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea the deep things of God."

In turning for positive evidence we find a rich storehouse in the testimony of the apostles, and those since, who have had the real experience of a real Saviour. We have no absolute proof that St. Paul ever saw Christ in the flesh, yet throughout his epistles we have conslusive evidence of his belief in Christ as a reality.

In writing to the Corinthians he says: "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all."

To Timothy he says: "For I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day."

His letter to the Colossians: "Let your affection be on things above, not on things on earth. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with Him in glory."

St. Francis, Luther, and Thomas A. Kempis, men of later date, triumphed through having the Lord with them.

The past experience of every soul freed from the bondage of sin has been a revelation of the existence of Christ, the atonement of a Saviour.

"Come unto Me all ye that labour and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

The life of the Christian is renewed We may not be able to see our Saviour, but His spirit bears witness with out spirits that we are His.

"Strong Son of God, immortal Love,
Whom we, that have not seen Thy face,
By faith and faith alone, embrace
Believing where we cannot prove."

Lessons From The Life of Jacob

Sunday Evening Service at All Saints' Church.

Continuing the study of the life of Jacob, the Rev. Mr. Grobb took as his text the first verse of the 35th Chapter of Genesis: "And God said unto Jacob, arise, go up to Bethel, and dwell there, and make there an altar unto God, that appeared unto thee when thou fleddest from the face of Esau, thy brother."

This was God's message to Jacob. Bethel was the place where Jacob saw the ladder reaching up to heaven, where he saw the vision of angels where he erected a monument, where he vowed a vow: "If God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on, so that I come again to my father's house in peace, then shall the Lord be my God And this stone, which I have set for a pillar, shall be God's house; and of all that thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto Thee."

Jacob was a very old man, his life had been full of ups and downs, full of mountains and valleys, just as man's lives to-day are filled with varied experiences.

After having served twenty years with Laban, he and his family were coming back to his old home, and before crossing to the promised land, just as he was about to meet his brother, Esau, and settle for all time the dispute over the birthright, God met him and wrestled with him all night. As the day was about to down God touched Jacob in the vital spot and robbed him of his boasted physical power.

One would naturally suppose that Bethel would be the first place to which Jacob would return, but, regardless of his vows, and notwithstanding the hallowed religious associations of the place, Bethel was far from his thoughts. So like the people of to-day: ever prone to forget our vows, our good resolutions made in times of trouble. How religious people become in times of stress, and how soon they forget!

After God's wrestling with Jacob, his meeting with Esau is not significant, for he succeeded with his brother because God had succeeded with him.

Jacob is about to make plans for a new chapter in his life.

How can we explain a man who had caught sight of a vision of God, a man so religious, coming down into the valley of low ideals of life? Jacob's visions began to fade away, his religious enthusiasm began to wane.

Going back to the close of that long night of wrestling with God, just as the vision was about to fade away God said: "Let Me go 'ere the day break."

This explains the idea that we cannot put spiritual things to an ordinary test. God and religion never come out in ordinary daylight. They elude our grasp, they slip back into the background. It is a strange fact that God, who originated everything and who sustains everything, should be so silent about arguments to prove His existence.

When we begin to reason out things, we find a great reserve; great laws of the universe are hidden Take, for example, the law of gravitation. If it were suddenly removed the world would go into utt ruin; yet we cannot see it. It is incomprehensible. How much more then must the great power of God lie unseen. God is not a material thing than can be handled. God is a spirit, and has revealed Himself in the person of Jesus Christ. Even in Christ we observe the same silence. Even when men came to Him asking Him to tell them plainly whether He were the Christ or not, He did not comply with their request. We have to grow into the knowledge of Christ, of God into the certainty of the spiritual reality of Christ.

The same fact may be applied in the case of a human face. There are certin lives which we never discover until we see the face many times We could never expect a stranger to look into the face of our dearest friend and see all that we see there.

We must not try to submit Christianity or spiritual things, spiritual experiences, to material tests. When we try to bring them down to the basis of argument they are gone.

In reply to God's request "Let Me go for the day breaks," Jacob became argumentative and said: "Tell me, I pray thee, thy name." In other words: "Come out into the light, let me see who you are." At once God vanished.

Instead of going to Bethel, he went and lived in Shecham. This was the most beautiful spot in the Holy Land, a place of prosperity, whereas Bethel was a barren spot, and had only its religious associations. No doubt his family pointed out the social advantages to be obtained; the relief it would be to them to be as near this charming place, after the mountainous life they had been used to and the advantage it would be to him, personally; therefore, he took his family and pitched his tent beside Shechem.

Even to-day some Christians try to live on the edge of the world, far enough away to preserve a religious flavour, but near enough to be very much in it. They choose their church, companions, business associates and pleasures with the one aim of worldly advantage. Many men never ask twice as to the Christian advantages where they propose putting their boys; they think only of the dollar.

Christianity does not bar us from having good things in this world, but it prevents us from lowering our standards for any common or worldly advantage, it keeps before us ideals worth while. This was a very prosperous period in Jacob's life. He had become a great man. His prosperity deadened his spiritual life.

It is certainly a wise Providence that keeps us poor. "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God." Not because there is any curse in riches. Money is a power, a power next to God. The curse is not in the money, but the glamour it gives to the world.

How much good we would do if we only had the money! How much we would contribute to religious enterprises, to Church work! We would not see a Church with a tower only half built; we would build Churches with towers rising up to heaven! It is all a dream. That is not the way prosperity works. Prosperity kills spiritual life, it unbuilds more churches, more towers, more spiritual aspirations, than it ever erects.

The mightiest enemy that religion has to-day is prosperity. The theoretical enemies of religion are passing away. The older the world gets the more advance is made in science, and science is showing us marvellous wonders. Indeed, the men who know most about God's universe are religious. Their hearts are big enough to hold the wonder of God's revelation.

It is the glamour of prosperity that is the greatest enemy of spiritual life; of this we must beware lest we lose our faith, our vision, our soul.

No man ever paid the penalty for living so close to sin as did Jacob. Even Lot, who fled from Sodom, was not more sorry than Jacob, that he had gone and lived at Shechem. The story of the sin and shame of his family, and the remorse of the man are terrible indeed.

At this juncture, when Jacob was plunged in the depths of despair, God comes to him with the message of the text: "Arise and come back to Bethel." Come back to your vision, to the monument of your spiritual ideals, your spiritual aspirations. These will make the barren place like the gate of heaven. Come back and be as near to Me as you were the night of the vision of the ladder. "He that hath ears to hear let him hear."

The call of God comes into the lives of the people lest the lure of material things crush out their spiritual aspirations. "Come back to Bethel." Bethel sounded to Jacob like the old Church bell, telling its message of love, to come back to his old home to the religion of his mother, the aspirations of his youth.

The Rev. Mr. Grobb concluded with an appeal to his hearers: "If any one here has had the vision, has had knowledge of things spiritual, but has gone down, let him come back to Bethel, to the religion of high ideals, to the condition where spiritual things become a reality; back to the promised land."

WAR NEWS CONTINUED

In France the allies have been reinforced by the British new army and are preparing to strike to force the Germans bask to their own soil. To the south Italy's armies are putting on the final touches for what is regarded as a certain dash into Austria. On every front the Austro-Germans find themselves confronted by great armies eagerly on the aggressive and ready to strike. And suddenly a Russian force of four full army corps is thrown into the balance against them by the surrender of the Austrians at Przemysl.

Military critics pointed out here to-night that the 160,000 Russians that invested Przemysl are almost as fresh as new levies. The capture of the Austrian fortress city gives the Russians an unbroken line reaching from the south of Tornow across Galacia along the Carpathians to Bukowina.

AMSTERDAM, March 22.—A series of engagements between the British and the Germans along the Yser near Dixmude, was proceeding to-day, following an unusually heavy bombardment all Sunday afternoon. The aviators on both sides displayed the greatest activity.

LIVERPOOL, March 22.—The striking dock men who for the second time within the past few weeks, delayed the sailing of many ships from Liverpool, returned to work to-day. Their action resulted from an appeal made by Lord Kitchener himself.

AIR DANGERS NOW A JOKE

Army Aviator Shoots Aloft Now Without a Test or Wait for Weather.

E. Percy Noel, writing from Paris, says that although overland aviation was considered dangerous at the beginning of the war, there were many aviators whose long experience and continued activity indicated that flying could be enjoyed without fatal accident. But we well knew that to fly safely required cautiousness before leaving the ground and while in the air. The aviator examined his machine first, then the weather and he did not go out unless both suited him. War aviation is different. The aeroplane may need a few new parts, may be in danger o collapsing in the air, but that wil not keep the airman from attempting important duty with it. As for the weather—pouff!

With Hazards Doubled.

Now that there are guns of seventeen varieties fired from below and bombs of adversary aeroplanes dropped from above and rapid fire guns that shoot in any direction, we begin to realie how safe aviation was before the war. Even without the factor of danger from the enemy's fire, there is a great increase in the risk. Certainly the ordinary hazards of aeroplane pilotage have been doubled. The unusual risks begin at the military schools of flying, continue at the aeroplane stations and become worse as the machines deteriorate from exposure.

Applicants Defy Danger.

In spite of the known dangers, of the unromantic deaths of student pilots and veteran pilots—men killed accidentally many miles from the sound of cannon — the number of applications for the air services of France and England, and undoubtedly of Russia and Germany as well, exceeds the pilot making capacities of the training camps. Many a young man has brought to bear all the influence that he could control to be designated "pilot pupil," but comparatively few of them convince the school commanders of latent ability when they receive their first trials.

YESTERDAY WAS THE FIRST DAY OF SPRING

According to the Almanac—It is Also the Open Season for Spring Poets.

Spring has officially arrived. Yesterday was the day upon which the balmy season formally opened up for business. It is also the open season for spring poet and whether the weather is springlike or not the prose writers will feel free to desecrate the season and renew their oft-repeated attempts to have their "stuff" passed by the censor. Observatory records go to prove that in years gone by some very disreputable weather has been Peterborough's portion during the first few weeks of spring. Anyway yesterday is supposed to be the first day of spring and even only as a supposition most people will extend it a hearty welcome.

The robin has been seen and heard at many points which is considered a fair gamble on the approach of springtide. He and his family stay late into the fall, just as long as the grub holds out, and come back just as soon as there is any reasonable chance of easy pickings. In considering the appearance of the robin as a fair sign of sunny spring one must not forget an old friend, the dew worm. This year he has arrived early in these parts which, if it is really him, is a sure indication that there is little or no frost in the ground.

Spring Fancies.

An early spring is bad business according to the old proverbs relating to the season. "A late spring, is a great blessing," say the English, while the Italians say "A late spring never deceives." From all accounts it would appear to be just as well not to be in too much of a hurry to "take 'em off" for the lighter weight. It is to the general advantage to have spring take its time in getting to us. "Better late ripe and bear than early blossom and blast," said a sage. Other wise-acres of the fair old, rare old, golden days tell us that "a cold spring kills the roses." "A wet spring —a dry harvest." The Russians say, "A fine spring is god for everybody."

An Explanation From Mr. Gordon

March 22nd, 1915.

The Peterborough Examiner, City:

Dear Sirs,—I observed in Saturday's issue of the Examiner that the report of the meeting of the City Council Friday night indicated that I had stated that the award of the arbitrators was unfair and excessive. I did not state that it was unfair, but I did state that I thought it was worth while investigating as to how the award was made up and the grounds of it, to see if there could not be cut down the amount of the award to what I believe and expected it should be. I wish to correct the idea which may go out that I was making any reflection upon the arbitrators by stating that the award was unfair. That is not one of the contentions. It is simply a question of reducing the amount of it if it has been made upon the wrong basis and upon the wrong principle.

Yours truly,
G. N. Gordon.

Merchants Swear to Charges

Bogus Lieutenant May be Tried in Peterboro'.

There were five local merchants on hand at Police Court this morning to swear to charges against one N. F. Finlay, the bogus lieutenant, who flim-flammed them some few weeks ago with worthless cheques, and who was sentenced to six month's imprisonment in Port Arthur on March 19, after pleading guilty on a charge of pasing worthless cheques.

It is possible that Chief Thompson will request that he be brought here for trial at the expiration of his term under the sentence he received the other day. Among those who were stung in this city are named Messrs. Warne Bros., McDermid & Jury's, Routley's, Cressman's and Trebilcock's.

Who Will Benefit By Present War

Elder Johnston Discusses the Question in Woodmen Hall

A rather lengthy, yet interesting address last evening in the Woodmen Hall, by Elder F. W. Johnston, in which he answered the question as to who would be especially benefited by the present conflict in Europe. Viewing this matter in the light of the prophecy, he took for his text Rev. 13:3, where it says "And the deadly wound was healed and all the world wondered after the beast." There can not be any question about the meaning of the term, beast, in this Scripture, so Mr Johnston said, if one but reads the language associated with it. The term, beast, is a symbol of a kingdom in prophecy, as it says in Dan. 7.23. It may be a civil or it may be an ecclesiastical. The latter is the one that is referred to in Rev. 13:3, for by reading verses 4—8 we will find that the points of similarity are so glaring and so specific as to enable one without any doubt whatever to conclude that this power is none other than the papacy.

The papacy, he declared, at one time ruled the world in the long and dreary period that is known as the dark ages. Even kings were subservient to this world-wide power, and were appointed or deposed at the wish of the papal pontiff. This universal rule continued for over seventeen centuries until in the days of the great Reformation, when the power of the papacy was broken, and which eventually led to its head being taken a prisoner by Berthier, the French General. This was the deadly wound referred to in the prophecy, and one which has never yet been healed. But the text declares that it will be healed.

Now Mr. Johnston enquired, that if the loss of papal supremacy over all the kings of earth in the days of the Reformation constituted the wound referred to in Rev. 13:3, what, we enquire, would be the healing of it. There is only one answer, and that is the restoration of that power to the papacy again. He then raised the question as to will such be the case, and whether events now are shaping themselves in such a way as to binrg about this result. We answer yes, so Mr. Johnston said. The fact that all nations except the United States have since the war began sent each a diplomatic representative to the Vatican is surely significant in the light of the prophecy. He then read quotations from the papal press to show how jubilant they feel about it, and they, themselves, say that the papacy is again being restored to its former position as head of all nations. Who would ever stop to think that our own beloved Empire would ever stoop so far as to send an envoy to the Vatican, and can we wonder why when a Protestant minister like R. J. Campbell of England will ever go so far as to make the suggestion that in order to stop the present war that a general council of all Protestant churches be called, with the Papacy in the lead, and acting as Chairman of the Council. It is time for all to wake up and consider the step that has already been taken. But the prophecy of course says that the Papacy would be restored and that all would wonder after her. See Rev. 13:8. The papacy will be restored but right at the summit of its restored power the final consummation of all things will be seen, as Mr. Johnston proved beyond doubt in further references in Revelation.

But although this great apostate will again hold absolute away yet there will be a few who will stand out against her, a people who will stand out against her, a people who will stand for the authority of the Bible, and not human fancy and tradition. He closed with an exhortation to be firm upon the truth, to obey what the Lord says that they might be finally saved. A splendid crowd was present. Mr. Johnston said that on Tuesday night he was going to review Pastor Russell's doctrines as advocated in his "Scripture Studies" now being sold in this city.

Are Arranging to Conclude an Enjoyable Winter by a Pleasant Break-Up on Tuesday Night—All the Members Requested to Take Notice.

The curling ice is under water, and it is believed that Saturday's games will be the last of the season. The curlers are arranging for a little smoker to which all the members are invited to attend. Cards and a musical programme will be features, and a pleasant evening is promised. The co-operation of the members in this last little affair is expected to make it one of the best of the season, and a fitting conclusion to a good year.

BASKETBALL LEADERS MET THEIR WATERLOO

Three battles royal took place on the gym floor at the Y on Saturday night, when all the strength, skill and genius in thirty men was brought to bear in three of the fastest and hardest-fought games of the season. And in the cases of the Excelsiors, leaders in A division and Collegiate in B division, their colours were lowered. While the Hustlers succeeded in trimming the Maple Leafs and putting themselves at the headof B division, the Unknowns by downing the Excelsiors, tied up the Excelsiors for first place in A division. Cressman's have only lost two games, so that by winning their next game they will still be in the running for first honours. The games Saturday night practically turned the tables and gives to all the runners up a new lease of life and a chance to win the league. Another interesting feature about Saturday night's games was the number of ladies in the gallery. The games are getting infectious and the brothers, wives and sisters are getting the fever. This is a healtful sign.

The Beaver-Collegiate game was the first staged. The Beavers, who have been under the water for some time, succeeded in coming to the surface and a little more; they ducked the Students to the tune of 20-14. The Collegiate boys put up a good argument, and did the best to hold on to first place. But Capt. Dobbin and his team mates have got the optimism and stick to-itiveness that wins games. Every man on both teams played his position and gave all that was in him. The first half ended 13-10 in favour of the Beavers. About the middle of the second half, Capt. Dobbin got his shoulder hurt and had to retire. Stuart, his check, dropped off with him. The game finished four men on a side. The scoring was well divided and each man did his share. It would be hard to pick one star more than another on either side.

Hustlers conquered the Maple Leaf and took the lead of B division. Capt. Heaslip had all his team mates and all the others hustling on Saturday night and succeeded in betting a fast enough pace to nose out a victory, but by a very small margin, the final score being 22-18. The game was replete with dazzling passes and sensational shots, Capt. Richardson making many one-handed stabs and getting away with them, much to the disgust of his opponents. On the Hustlers' team, Jones at centre was the phenom; he succeeded in scoring eight points. The first half ended with the Hustlers leading 12-6. But the Maple Leafs seem to be at their best in an up-hill fight and they came back strong in the second half and got 12 points to their opponents' 10, being just four points behind when the whistle sounded. It was a well-balanced game right through and brought lots of cheering from the gallery.

Unknowns and Excelsiors put up one of the best games seen on the local floor this year. The Unknowns succeeded in winning by one point and tied the Excelsiors for first place. The Unknowns got the jump at the start and scored two baskets right off the reel. The Excelsiors then got started and everything was nip and tuck right through to the finish. The game was characterized by good fast combination and good shooting. The first half ended 17-12 in favour of the winners, while the Excelsiors scored 14 to their opponents' ten in the second half, making the final score 27-25 in favour of the Unknowns. Just about a minute before the whistle blew for time up Kitty Mulhern got a long and very lucky shot. This won the game. Both teams were so busy playing the game that neither knew just how the score stood, and were greatly surprised when they found the game had been won by one point. It would be impossible to pick a star on either team, and it would be useless to try and describe the game. It was one that had to be seen to be appreciated.

CARDINAL IS DEAD IN ROME

Chancellor of Roman Catholic Church Passes Away at Age of 83

ROME, March 22.—Cardinal Agliardi, chancellor of the Roman Catholic Church and sub-dean of the Sacred College, died Saturday at the age of 83 years. He was the titular Bishop of Albano, and was proclaimed a cardinal in 1896. It was he who proposed to the Sacred College on Aug. 22 last that an address be sent to the belligerent powers asking that an armistice be arranged so that a successor to Pope Pius X. need not be elected while blood was being shed upon the battlefield. When there was friction between the French Government and Cardinal Merry Del Val in 1906 it was reported that Cardinal Agliardi was a candidate for papal secretary of state.

STEAMERS CONFISCATED

LONDON, March 22.—The British steamer Cairntore was torpedoed yesterday afternoon off Beachy Head, in the English Channel, and sank, according to a Central News despatch from Eastbourne. Her crew escaped.

When the steamer was struck rescue boats put out to her and attempted to tow her into port. She sank eight miles out, however. The Cairntore was bound from Newcastle for Genoa with coal.

Thirty members of the crew of the steamer Rievaulx Abbey, plying between Hull and the Netherlands, were landed here by the torpedo boat Immingham and transferred to a steamer for Hull yesterday morning. The vessel commenced to sink off Bridlington on Friday night. The reason is a mystery.

A new and highly important phase of the German blockade of Britain dawned Thursday, when submarine U-28, which for some time has been cruising in the neighborhood of the Maas lightship, held up, captured and confiscated two Dutch steamers, the Batavier V. of Rotterdam and the Zaanstroom of the Dutch Shipping Co., Amsterdam, and successfully convoyed them to Zeebrugge in broad daylight.

The 57th boys on the firing line are doing their share. How about you fellows who cheered them when they went away? Why not do your bit and build up the regiment? You will be welcomed at the armouries to-morrow night.

OTTAWA WILL NOT LET PATRICK PLAY

OTTAWA, March 21.— The Ottawa Hockey Club has refused to allow Lester Patrick of Victoria, to play in the world's hockey series, which begins to-morrow night at the Pacific coast. Captain Jack Darragh wired the club headquarters last evening stating that the Patricks, owing to the injury to Si Griffis, wished to used Lester at cover-point in the championship matches. Griffith suffered a dislocated ankle in the last game with Portland. Darragh asked the decision of the club, and was immediately informed that under no circumstances should Patrick be allowed to play.

In the first place, the Vancouver club wished to substitute the best defence man at the coast, and on the second the Stanley Cup trustees would not permit the substitution, as the rule regarding the necessity of having all men signed by Feb. 1 was inserted in the rules for the express purpose of preventing the N.H.A. and P.C.H.L. clubs gathering their strongest possible teams for the annual clash.

The Ottawas say that it is unfortunate if the Vancouver club is obliged to play a crippled team, but President Bate pointed out that they had been obliged to leave Eddie Lowery at hom because he had not signed before Feb. 1. Thus they have only one extra forward for the seven-man game, and will be forced to use Shore on the line in the event of more than one of their men being ruled off.

The Ottawas have switched Eddie Gerard to rover, so that he will be able to cover Fred Taylor in the seven-man game. In the six-man style Wednesday night, Darragh will go to left wing and Gerard to centre, so that the New Edinburgh boy will again clash with Taylor. The Ottawas will start out to-morrow night with Benedict, Ross and Merrill for the defence, with Gerard at rover, Duford centre, and Broadbent and Graham wings. This will leave Shore and Darragh for utility work, but both will get plenty to do. Tom Phillips will referee all the games, with Skinner, Poulin or Walter Smaill judge of play.

A wire was received to-day stating that all the Ottawas had reached the coast in the best of shape. Even money betting rules on the series.

Germans Losing Hard Won Positions in the Vosges

PARIS, March 22. — Massing a immense number of troops on Saturday, the Germans delivered a strong attack on the French positions in the Great and Little Reich Ackerkopf of the Vosges Range, and after desperate fighting, in which both sides were exhausted, carried both positions The losses by both sides were heavy The French commander at once hurried up reinforcements and succeeded in regaining the Little Reich Ackerdopf, and by nightfall the French troops were regaining the French hold on the Great Ackerdopf.

The cathedral of Soissons was again bombarded by the Germans and seriously damaged. Twenty-seven shells were discharged at the edifice The French War Office takes occasion to contradict German assertions that observation posts were ever established on the structure, or that the Red Cross flag was hoisted upon it.

A counter-attack of the enemy was made on French position west of Perthes, in Champagne region, but did not succeed. The French in turn made a slight advance to the east of the ridges near Mesnil. This was followed by a bombardment of the position by each side.

French progress at Les Eparges was continued by the repulsing of two strong German attacks and the carrying of the greater part of a German position for which a two days' struggle had been raging. Three attacks in succession were made to regain this position, with the result that the Germans left many dead on the field and the post in the hands of the French soldiers. Further attacks on the French trenches in the Bouchot wood were repulsed. A hot rifle fire was kept up in this region over Sunday, and two violent counter-attacks of the enemy were repulsed.

A German blockhouse in the Montmare wood in the Woevre region was destroyed by French artillery fire, which also blew up several ammunition wagons with stores.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

What's Doing in Civic Circles--Items of Interest Concerning Municipal Administration

A special meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council will be held this evening. The tax rate and a few other items of equal importance will come up for discussion.

Late Col. Farquhar.

His Worship Mayor Buller recalls the visit to Peterborough last June of the late Col. Farquhar, whose death is reported from the front. The Mayor had the pleasure of meeting the late commander of the Princess Pats, at which time deceased was secretary to the Duke of Connaught.

The Tax Rate.

It is confidently expected that the tax rate will not exceed 26½ mills on the dollar including the so-called Provincial war tax of one mill. That is allowing seven-tenths of a mill for garbage collection. This will be a lower rate than last year, even with the Provincial tax added.

The Workmen's Compensation Act

Is Discussed by Special Committee of City Council and Utilities Commission.

A joint meeting of the Public Utilities Commission and the committee of the City Council appointed to deal with the Workmen's Compensation Act, was held on Saturday evening. After some discussion it was decided to ask the City Council to provide for an initial appropriation of $2,000 with which to inaugurate the fund. Steps may also be taken to allocate some of the cost to the general improvement rate. Both Mayor Buller and Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission are in favour of a scheme whereby the city will assume its own responsibility in connection with the operation of the fund rather than award it to an insurance company, a number of whom have submitted offers for the work.

Since the inception of the Workmen's Compensation Act, the city, together with all other municipalities, have been confronted with the fact that some provision was necessary in order to comply with the requirements of the Act in regard to municipal employees. A special meeting of the City Council was appointed to look into the matter and prepare a report to submit to the City Council.

Fox Hunting, Hit Hard By The War Proves Its Value to England

LONDON, March 15—Fox hunting has done its duty nobly by the war, and for that reason finds itself harder hit than any other sport pursued in England. In the first place, said an old huntsman, discussing what the "shires" have done for the war, both directly and indirectly, the war has robbed hunting of many of its bravest and best supporters. By the time peace is declared there will be gaps innumerable in every hunting field—gaps which in one sense will never be filled, and which in another, must remain empty for some time to come.

Both in the personal and financial sense (and, of course, hunting cannot be carried on without a considerable amount of money) the sport has suffered most severely; so much so that in the immediate future many packs will find it hard to keep going, while some of those which even in prosperous times, only just manage to make both ends meet will perhaps have to go under for a while at least.

In another direction hunting has proved its value to England in this war. It has given freely of its best horses, very few of which are ever likely to hear the music of hounds again. Even those few that may return when it is all over will hardly be fit for the work they did before, for war is a terribly exacting thing, both for man and beast, even though both may come through unscathed so far as actual wounds are concerned.

The sport is of immense national value in every sense of the word. It is well enough known what it has done in the matter of men and material, but besides that it has helped to keep going much employment, and many industries which without it would have ceased to be. Hunting has been a good friend during these last few months of extra stress and strain to many thousands who, unable to serve their country, would have otherwise found it hard to keep the wolf from the door. Much is heard of the prosperous condition of the country, of the plentifulness of labour and so on.

But to produce this result hunting has helped, as, indeed, have other sports which certain unthinking persons who do not happen to be interested in sport at all, have thought fit to condemn, because, knowing little about such things, they were unable to realise that sport, even in war time, means a great deal more than the word implies. For every man who derives just pleasure and amusement from hunting or shooting there are a dozen or more to whom it means the ability to earn a weekly wage.

Yet were hunting of no commercial value to the nation at all it would still be worth while. Without it, of how many officers and men would England have been short in this present war? The critics may say what they like as to the chase being a mere idle amusement for those who have nothing better to do with their time than waste it, but never has there been a more complete answer to a foolish charge than this war has supplied. For the production of bold, and fearless men, of men of grit and energy and dogged determination; of men who will go anywhere and face anything, what is there in the world that can better produce such as these than the hunting field?

Whichever way one loks at it, said this old huntsman, hunting must be admitted to have justified its existence far more thoroughly in these latter days than ever before.

Then, discussing the future horse supply of the country, he said that, while there need be little fear regarding the maintenance of the supply of the right sort of men, the supply of horses is another matter. He thinks that the State should do much more than it does to make horse breeding more remunerative than it is at present. Once you have got the horses, he said, you will get the men but without the horses there will be no opportunity for men to learn to ride and no chance to school themselves under the best of all methods imaginable. A stamp of horses that would be useful both for hunting and for army purposes is not difficult to produce, and it is in this direction that there should be collaboration between the War Department and the hunting men or the hunt establishments.

Mothers and Fathers of Peterborough, many boys claim that they do not join the 57th Regiment because they cannot get their parents' approval. Other parents have sent their boys to the firing line. Surely the rest will not stand in the way. There is a place for your boy in the 57th Regiment. Let him join to-morrow night.

Lt.-Col. C. H. Rogers Writes From The Trenches

Mrs. R. Z. Rogers of Grafton has received the following letter from her son, Lt.-Col. C. H. Rogers, second in command of the 2nd Battalion:

France, March 2, 1915.

Well we are back on the line after a short rest and have been given a section of the 1st line, relieving some of the original British troops, so our first trial must have been satisfactory. My work is principally during the night when Col. Watson and I take different sections of the trenches In the day we have central positions. To-day the artillery has been firing over us constantly and has lessened the singing. I much prefer the shells to the constant crack of the small ammunition. I mean the (crack the whip) noise that they make when they hit anything within one hundred yards. I am proud of our men, they are a splendid lot and feeling fine. We are all looking forward to our four days out in billets. A few more casualties early this morning, but only one serious. Our friends opposite were evidently expecting us as a few nights ago one called across and asked 'when the Canadians were coming.' Our little dugout is about 6x8, and 4 ft. 6 in. deep with 6 in. of earth cover. Just been advised that the brigadier will visit us to-night, so we will dine in an adjoining cellar.

HERMAN ROGERS.

Most of these youngsters have only semi-pro experience, but they were all highly recommended.

Voice of The People

CIVIC GRANTS.

Peterborough, March 22, '15.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,— Under this heading I wish to make a few remarks with your permission.

The city authorities have as a rule been very generous with other people's money Under this head it is a question with not a few that it might be a move in the right direction to abolish the practice entirely.

However, as grants are still being made to this and that deputation there are none more worthy than the amount which is earned or given for services rendered by the 57th Regimental Band, which gives a stated number of concerts for three months during the summer. Those concerts are enjoyed by thousands of our citizens and many visitors to our city.

Why should some of our aldermen want to reduce this grant and give it to an inferior aggregation, one who is always begging, and everywhere, a sectarian, close mercenery body with no soul of its own. There is no comparison between the two bands as to their methods of serving the public, or as to the services rendered. The Army Band has not the instrumentation, or can they render the music for concert work without reeds. They are not allowed to use their own discretion as to how they serve the public. Therefore there is only a mere sprinkling of citizens present at their concerts. Besides, the 57th Band is an old established institution, always ready to respond when and where its services are required, and has always commanded the hearty support of City Council, citizens and regiment.

At a remuneratiop which is reasonable. We have one city band and that is enough, for present city needs; all that we can support and it requires that support. The citizens want the summer concerts continued by the 57th Regimental Band, at Victoria Park every Friday night for three months this summer at the usual price.

Sir William Jenner, the Queen's physician, was one of the grumblers. "My father said in his positve manner, which was natural to him—'Porridge—why, excellent stuff—couldn't be better. Why, I was brought up on porridge myself.'" Jenner looked at him across the table with his sharp little eyes, and said—"Yes, and a good specimen of the result, I suppose you think yourself."

The Voice of the People

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Regarding the proposal that the streets be oiled, I read in your paper where the Committee stated that the oil was not injurious to rubber. How long, how long are our City Fathers to be gulled, and us, through them? Witness the Romaine Street sewer, the white elephant pumping station, and the Light and Power Co. purchase, costing us $100,000 more than they thought. But to come back to the subject, will the manufacturer of the oil give the city a bond to make good the damage done to the rubber tires of bicycles, buggies and automobiles, is traced to the oil? Did the committee seek any information from a chemist as to the action of oil, good oil on rubber. If not, then why not? The last experiment with oil cost some of us pretty dear and we do not want to submit quietly to a repetition. I have it from an authority that any oil will penetrate rubber and loose it from the canvas and soften and destroy the elasticity as sure as the sun shines on a clear day.

Lively Riot In Theatre.

GUELPH, March 22. — The students of the Ontario Agriculture College, started on a rampage Saturday night and before they finished up there was almost a riot, the police force and the soldiers who are camped here being requisitioned to bring them to their senses. There has not been quite so much excitement in the Royal City for a long time as on this occasion.

The students interrupted a performance in a local theatre and the efforts of the police to eject the disturbers led to a riot. Soldiers came to the assistance of the police, who plied their batons freely. Several students were severely hurt in the melee and the police were roughly used, but there were no arrests made.

Now is the Time To Prepare For Garden Work

The garden spaces are rapidly drying up and it will be only a few weeks until the first preparation of the land should begin. There is every indication that more attention will be given to the planting of vegetables this year than ever before. This may lead to an appreciation of the results from the frugality and thrift engendered by this practice, and may result in permanent attention to the utilizing of spare ground. Just now the citizens should be quietly formulating their plans. Even if there is no associated movement, the individual work will bear great fruit. The main point, however, is to emphasize the fact that work must be begun early, that there must be no delay until the weeks pass by and the early spring is lost.

Half a Million Russians Are Pressing Forward

The Expected Zeppelin Raid Didn't Materialize

RUSSIANS IN GIGANTIC FORWARD MOVEMENT

Troops Inspired by the News of the Fall of Przemysl---Besieging Army of 150,000 Entering Przemysl Early To-day

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PETROGRAD, March 23.—Half a million Russian troops, inspired by the news of the fall of Przemysl are pressing forward in a gigantic forward movement all along the Carpathians, according to War Office despatches to-day. From the Dukla Pass region to the borders of Roumania, Slavs are driving southward in a mighty sweep toward the plains of Hungary and the crown land of Bukowina.

Gen. Seliwanoff's besieging army of 150,000 men began entering Przemysl early to-day.

Tentative terms of surrender were agreed upon late yesterday at the conference between Gen. Kusmank, Austrian commander of the fortress city and Gen. Seliwaniff. The War Office has not made these terms public, but it is certain that Gen. Kusmank and remnants of the disease ridden garrison will be given full honours of war. Red Cross nurses attached to the Russian army preceded the victorious Slavs into Przemysl.

The condition of the Austrian defenders was pitiful. Though the garrison had an adequate food supply until a few weeks ago, nearly all the Austrians were suffering from lack of heavy clothing.

The uniforms they wore when the siege was begun last autumn were in tatters.

In the last few days all kinds of animals had been slaughtered for their meat, and the garrison would have faced starvation within 48 hours.

NEARING TILSIT.

LONDON, March 23.—The Russian forces on the right bank of the Niemen River have occupied Laugszargen, a village in East Prussia, within 15 miles of Tilsit. Last night's official statement from Petrograd says that prisoners and engineering stores were captured in the place. A battle had been going on in the region for some days, the Russians previously having reoccupied Tauroggen, just across the line from Laugszargen, in Russian Poland.

The situation at Memel, the Baltic seaport at the north extremity of East Prussia, was not clear last night. According to the Russian statement, Memel is in a region of the battle front where "there has been no change." Yesterday's German official statement, however, declared that Memel was retaken by the Germans after a battle on Saturday last.

Further successes for the Russians in the Carpathians are reported from Petrograd, the official statement announcing that 2,500 men, 50 officers, and 20 machine guns have been captured from the Austrians and Germans in the last 24 hours during an advance towards Bartfeld, Hungary, and in fighting near the Lupkow Pass and along hte Upper San River. The Germans attacked in mass formation in the region of Muncacz, but Petrograd says they were repulsed everywhere by the Russians with severe loss.

AMSTERDAM, March 19, (Despatch to The London Morning Post)—I learn that seven long trains, filled with seriously injured Germans from Neuve Chapelle, and Aubers, have passed Liege. On the other hand fresh troops most of whom are young men who have not yet been under fire, have passed through Liege to reinforce the German front in North France.

WAITED UNTIL NEARLY DAWN FOR ZEPPELINS

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, March 22.—In a drizzling rain, thousands of Parisians packed the streets until nearly dawn to-day, awaiting the arrival of another Zeppelin reported on its way to Paris from Gen. Von Kluk's headquarters near Soissons.

At five a.m. searchlights flashed the signal "all well," and the sensation seeking people went to bed.

The War Office announced that a Zeppelin that headed for Paris threw three bombs on Cilliers Cotterettes, 45 miles northeast of The Capital, and then apparently flew back across the Aisne.

PLAGUE OF DISEASES PROSTRATES SERBIA

Hundreds of Sufferers in Prisoners' Camps Have Only Muddy Ground to Lie On

LONDON, March 18.— Capt. E. N. Bennett, Commissioner in Serbia for the British Red Cross Society, sends to The Daily Mail an appalling account of conditions prevailing in Serbian hospitals and prisoners' camps. Describing one prisoners' camp he writes:

"It is not a hospital, remember, but simply an area where 750 Austrians have been collected; nevertheless the disease has fallen like a blight upon the camp. At an earlier date one doctor was in charge of this camp, but he is now stricken down with typhus, and various forms of infection of the malady are raging unchecked. Typhus, dysentery, smallpox, and diphtheria have swept over the place with devasting effects.

"Last week only twenty men out of 750 could stand on their feet. There they lie in utter wretchedness. Here and there a little straw, but the bulk of the sick men are stretched out on the muddy ground. Their clothes are foul and alive with vermin which spread the deadly typhus. The silence of the camp is broken only by sighs and groans, but when a stranger comes in sight the sick raise themselves on their elbows if they can and cry pitifully, 'For the love of God, lady, give us water! For God's sake, sir, give us bread!'

"A recent visitor noticed a number of recumbent forms covered with great coats and found on removing these that five out of the number had already been dead several days. There was nobody to remove the corpses. Here and there some poor wretch crawled about on his hands and knees to fetch a cup of water for his prostrate comrade. This was all the attendance which was visible, and the shocking condition of the men and of the ground on which they lie can be imagined. Can any one be surprised to learn that some sixty men die in this camp every day? Every man in this hideous environment and all his comrades who will enter it subsequently are practically appointed to die, unless help comes speedily.

"Uskub is a veritable valley of the shadow of death. If the tired nurses leave the crowded hospitals for a little exercise and fresh air they are met by a long procession of bullock waggons carrying rude coffins to the cemetery. Sometimes three coffins with unfastened lids rest on the same cart and the bodies of the dead are exposed as the wheels jolt over the rough pavements."

In another passage he tells of the difficulties under which the Serbian doctors are labouring:

"Take a large Serbian Hospital which I know; it is practically impossible to go near it. So overpowering is the stench in the street outside that nobody who is not compelled to approach the building can bear to be in its vicinity. Details of the interior cannot well be printed, but may be conjectured when one mentions that foul rags and dressings, and even portions of amputated limbs are thrown over a wall and left to the attention of the crows and magpies and pariah dogs. Similar refuse has been thrown into the river."

Sixty-three Serbian doctors have died in course of their unequal struggle with disease, says Capt. Bennett, who urgently appeals for help.

"In heaven's name," he concludes, "let something be done soon, for if the almost inevitable cholera of the warmer months falls upon us under existing conditions the prospect will be indeed frightful."

GERMANS UNABLE TO WIN BACK ANY LOST GROUND

Five Successive Attacks of Enemy at Les Eparges Have Been Repulsed---French Hold All Trenches in Dispute For Two Days

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PARIS, March 23.—The operations on the western front continue on a relatively unimportant scale. The only fighting of importance yesterday was at Notre Dame de Lorette, north of Arres, where the French now hold all the trenches which have been in dispute since Saturday with the exception of one small section, a little more than ten yards long, which remains in the hands of the Germans.

The Germans are displaying considerable activity in the Les Eparges region, and yesterday they delivered five attacks in succession, but were unable to win back any of the groundthey had lost in previous days.

The afternoon communique gave further details of the fighting at Notre Dame de Lorette, indicating the changing nature of the engagement there. It also told of the further bombardment of Rheims and of the success of the mine warfare at La Boisselle, and also in the Argonne, near Bagatelle.

A French aviator appeared Sunday above Mulheim, Baden, and dropped three bombs on the city and the artillery barracks. Three soldiers were wounded.

Przemysl Held Out Months Where Renowned Strongholds Only Were Able to Resist Days

Examiner Special:

BESIEGED	SEPT. 16, 1914
RELIEVED	OCT. 20, 1914
SIEGE RESUMED	NOV. 4, 1914
SURRENDERED	MARCH 22, 1915

Przemysl, the fortress upon the Galician-Russian frontier which has surrendered after holding out months where the renowned strongholds of Antwerp, Liege and Maubeuge were able to resist days, was described in a statement issued to the press by the United States National Geographic Society as follows:

"One of the most powerful siege works which the Austrians have constructed in the north defends the Galician city of Przemysl, which is situated upon the River San, a tributary of the Vistula, about fifty-four miles west of Lemberg, the capital of the Polish crownland. Though the warlike preparation of the place would easily be overlooked by the visitor in times of peace, it is present on every hand. The hills, fields and river banks about the city, and before it, shelter great batteries, turrets, and detached forts, while the city ramparts seem there as a continuation of the city ground plan.

"The modern fortifications were begun by Austria in 1874, and they are the labours of a generation. These defensive works consist of a city wall on both banks of the River San, with a chain of battery pits, and a sweep of detached forts. On the left bank of the San are some thirteen such strongholds. These are spread out in the form of a semi-circle, of little more than a mile radius. There are seven or more forts located upon the right bank. These works together form a fan-like shield around the city.

"Przemysl is built upon the river where it leaves the mountains. It is a very ancient city, one of the oldest places in Galicia. There is a Polish legend which tells all about the founding of the town in the eighth century. It was at one time the capital of an independent principality. On the hills above the town are the ruins of an old grey, weather-worn castle, which tradition has it was founded by Casimir the Great. Whatever this ruin may have witnessed as an outpost between the wild energy of the North and the greater culture and possession of the South, it has never beheld happenings so terribly stupendous as those which now are taking place around its walls.

"Casimir the Great, and other Polish princes, endowed Przemysl with much the same privileges as those conferred upon Cracow, Poland's ancient capital. As a result, the city grew and prospered, giving promise at one time of rivaling the two Polish cities best known to-day—Cracow and Warsaw. Depredations of the Tartars, Cossacks and Swedes in the seventeenth century, however, destroyed its promise, and the importance of the place dwindled to that of an outpost again.

"The population of around 50,000 is mostly Polish. There is a considerable trade in wood, grain, leather and linen, Przemysl being the distributing centre for a fairly productive farming district, and having good railway connections on the Cracow-Lemberg line. Its more important manufactures are machinery, spodium, liqueurs, flour and naphtha.

"Around Przemysl the country is rough and broken, smoothing out before the city to the north into swelling fields and gradually mounting in hills and crags to the summits of the Carpathians behind. Sharply cut hills, winding and folding like miniature mountain ranges, sheer to the fields at places and in others rounded like bread loaves, and all well-wooded, go to form a geographical configuration of more importance for the purposes of a stronghold than anything which man has patience or money to construct."

By Frank Froest

Deliberately the superintendent took from his breast-pocket a copy of the Daily Wire, folded back at the personal column, and read:

"E. £27.14.5. To-morrow. B."

"That," he said, "is addressed to you. It is hardly worth while denying knowledge of it. It was found last night on a man arrested for attempted housebreaking at Mr. Grell's house. I ordered that it be sent to the paper, together with another intended for the eye of Sir Ralph Fairfield."

Her interest was plainly awakened. "Then the other was for you—" she cried, turning to Fairfield. "I wondered if—"

She paused with the realization that she had admitted what she had a moment before denied. Foyle's foot pressed heavily on the toe of the baronet to warn him not to speak.

"Yes, it was for Sir Ralph," he said. "That is why I brought him here. It is you, though, who hold the key to this mystery. We know that you would have sent your jewels to Grell, that you are in communication with his friends. You are young, Lady Eileen, and don't realise that you are playing with fire. Your silence can do your lover no good—it may do him and yourself harm. You have been visited by the Princess Petrovska, an adventuress not fit to touch the hem of your skirt. You are already involved. Take the advice of a man old enough to be your father, and confide in us."

She had risen, and her slim form towered over the seated detective. She seemed about to resent his words, but suddenly burst into a ripple of laughter.

"You would be offensive if you were not amusing, Mr. Foyle. Don't you think my help would be a little superfluous, since you know so much?" she asked with a quietness that robbed the remark of some of its bitterness. "I think you had better go now."

"I am sorry," said Foyle. "You may regret that you did not take my advice."

She herself held the door open for them to pass out. To the surprise of Fairfield, she held out her hand to him while ignoring the detective.

"Come back alone as soon as you can," she whispered. "I want to speak to you."

Foyle had apparently neither heeded nor heard. Yet, as soon as they were out of eyeshot of the house, he turned to Fairfield.

"She asked you to go back?"

"Eh" The baronet was startled. "Yes. How did you know? Did you overhear her?"

"No, but I hoped she would when I took you there. That was the whole reason of our visit. I didn't expect to get her to say or admit anything."

Fairfield came to an abrupt halt and gripped his companion by the arm.

"You intended— For what reason? How could you know?"

"Absolute commonsense, my dear sir. That's all. Absolute commonsense. If you are a chess player, you know that the man who can foretell what move his opponent is going to make usually wins. Here, let's find a quiet Piccadilly teashop and I'll tell you all about it."

There is not place which one may find more convenient for a quiet conversation than the London teashop before twelve in the morning. Over a cup of coffee in the deserted smoking-room Foyle spoke to the point.

"I did not tell you why I took you to see Lady Eileen, because I was afraid you might refuse. She has been antagonistic to you hitherto. The fact that Grell advertised you in somewhat the same manner as herself has given her the idea that, after all, you, too, might be trying to shield him. Naturally, she wants to be certain, in order that you may join forces. That's why I prevented you saying anything. Now, if you go back to her you may tell her that I practically forced you to accompany me. You can win her confidence, and through her we may get on the right track."

An angry flush mounted to Fairfield's temples.

"In short," he said curtly, "you want me to act as a spy on an unsuspecting girl. No, thanks. That's not in our bargain."

He was genuinely angry at the proposal. The superintendent saw that he had been too blunt, and made haste to repair his error.

"Don't be in a hurry," he protested. "The girl, as I told her, is beginning to be mixed up in a dangerous business. This is the only way to extricate her. You may help her and Grell and us by doing as I ask. Consider it coolly, and you will see it is the best thing to do."

Sir Ralph set down his cup and fingered his watch-chain. Foyle signalled the waitress, paid the bill, lit a cigar, and waited.

"I'll have to think over it," said Fairfield thoughtfully. "Give me an hour or two."

"Right you are," agreed the detective heartily, and they made their way out into the street.

CHAPTER XXIX.

It was with mixed feelings that Fairfield yielded at last to Foyle's arguments and returned to see Eileen Meredith. To his consent he had attached the condition that he was to be allowed to use his own judgment as to how much of the interview he should communicate to the detective, and with this Foyle had to be content.

The baronet found the girl waiting for him, her face alight with eagerness. She was in her own boudoir, luxuriously ensconced in a big armchair, and she smiled brightly at him—such a smile as he had not seen since before the murder. He obeyed her invitation to sit down.

"You wanted to see me alone," he said.

She nodded. "Yes, I want to know if we are allies—or enemies. I know I have treated you abominably, but I was driven half mad by the thought that Bob was dead. Now we are working together—are we not?"

He made a little gesture with his hands, helplessly as one at a loss.

"In so far as both wish to get Grell out of his difficulty—and I wish I knew what that was—yes," he replied. "I don't believe him to be a murderer, but why does he remain in hiding? He is not the sort of man to do foolish things, and that is foolish on the face of it. He has some strong reason for being out of the way. Can you explain?"

She pulled her chair closer to him, and laid one slim hand on him.

"I cannot explain—I can only trust. He looked to us to help him. I know that he wants money, for he sent a friend to tell me. I had none, but I gave her my jewels. Detectives were watching her, and they, with the connivance of my father, took them from her. Now, you, his most intimate friend, must help him. He has given you the key to the cipher which will appear, and then, I suppose, he will tell you how to get it to him."

She had apparently taken it for granted that the baronet was with her in a whole-souled devotion to her lover. His fingers beat a tattoo on his knee.

"So that advertisement was the key to a cipher? Do you know when I shall get a message?"

"I shall get one to-morrow. You—who knows?"

"Then you can tell me how to read it?"

She hesitated a moment, a finger on chin. Then, animated by a quick resolve, she moved to a little inlaid desk and unlocked a drawer. She returned with a piece of paper in her hand.

"What was the number mentioned in your advertisement?"

"2315."

For a little while the only sound in the room was the scratching of pencil on paper. At last she finished, and handed the result to him. He wrinkled his brows as he studied it.

THIS IS THE KEY
2315 23 152 315
VKJX KV UMG NFD

"The bottom line is the top one turned into cipher," she explained. "The middle line is the key number. In the first word you take the second letter from T, the third from H, the first from I, and so on. It is a cipher that cannot be unravelled without the key number. H becomes K once and M once."

"I see." The simplicity of it at once dawned on him. "That was what Foyle meant when he said that some ciphers could not be solved by the recurring E," he said unthinkingly.

She had risen and flung away from him in quick revulsion. One glance at her face told him what he had done.

"You spy!" There was stinging scorn in her tone. "You have talked it over with Foyle, and that man knows all. You are here to worm out what I know in order to betray your friend. Oh, don't trouble to lie"—as he would have spoken—"I can see your object. And I nearly fell into the trap."

The man was not without dignity, as he stood a little white but steady. "You may call me what you like," he said in a low voice. "Spy, if you will. Believe me or not, I have acted for the best, for you and for Grell. You once called me a murderer—with what justification you now know. Are you so ready to judge hastily again?"

If he had hoped to move her from her gust of passion, he quickly learned his mistake. Her lips curled in contempt, and, drawing her skirts aside as she passed him as though a touch might contaminate her, she swept to the doorway. For one instant she stood posed.

"You call yourself a spy. It is a good name. For a police spy there is no room in this house."

With that she was gone. The man had flushed under the biting contempt in her voice and words, and now stood for a little with hands tightly clenched, gazing after her. He felt that, from her point of view at least, there was some truth in her words. He was—whatever his motives—a police spy. And yet he was but concerned to clear up the horrible tangle in which his friend and the girl had become involved.

He did not know that he was watched from behind the curtains as he walked blindly into the street. Eileen, with lips firmly set and face tense, was concealed behind curtains. No sooner had he gone that she hurriedly dressed and ordered an electric brougham. She had come to believe that her lover's safety depended on her actions that day. Foyle knew the secret of the cipher, and Grell's advertisement told her that he intended communicating something to her by that method the next day. At all costs she must prevent him betraying himself.

Only one course occurred to her. She must go to the office of the Daily Wire and prevent its advertisement from appearing. How she was to do it she had not the slightest idea. That she left for later reflection.

The car rolled smoothly towards Fleet Street, but no inspiration came to her. She alighted at the advertisement office, with its plate glass and gilded letters, and was attended by an obsequious clerk. Outwardly calm, but with her heart beating quickly beneath her furs, she put her inquiry to a sleek-haired clerk. He was polite but firm. It was quite possible that such an advertisement as she mentioned had been sent for insertion the following day, and again it might not. In any case he was forbidden to give any information. It would be quite out of the question to stop any advertisement unless she held the receipt.

"But if the advertisement has not already been given in, can you give a noté to whoever brings it?" she asked, in a flash of inspiration.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are as frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected, not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

PROMOTED BY THOUSANDS.

War Opens Way to Commissions for German Privates and Non-Coms.

BERLIN, March 23.—So large has become the list of promotions in the Prussian Army that the Military Weekly, a publication devoted exclusively to the interests of officers and soldiers, has found it necessary to issue three times a week. Thousands of promotions are recorded, taking up many columns of space.

The German Army, especially in war time, has an unusually large set of positions beneath the ranks of commissioned officers in its various branches. Constant acts of bravery and gallantry reported are sending privates upward into the numerous non-commissioned ranks, and "non-coms" into the commissioned ranks.

The Military Weekly also contains a list entitled "Our Heroes," giving the names and regiments of those who have fallen, the official German and Austrian reports, and a resume of the important news of the day.

That Racking Persistent Cough
Can Be Quickly Cured By
DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

All obstinate coughs and colds yield quickly to the general action of "Dr. Wood's" for the simple reason that this valuable preparation combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with which is combined Wild Cherry Bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks. This makes it, without any chance of denial, the best cough medicine on the market to-day.

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that it is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark, and that the name, The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., appears on the wrapper. Price, 25c and 50c.

Mrs. H. C. Kingston, Moose Jaw, Sask., writes: "I wish to recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup as being the best cough medicine on the market. A few months ago I took a severe cold which left me with a racking cough. After trying several cough remedies, with no result, I decided to get a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after taking the first two doses it began to effect a cure, and after continuing its use for a short time, I was entirely cured. I cannot say too much in its praise."

WOULD BRIBE ITALY.

As spring nears, it may be depended upon that the Berlin Government will redouble its efforts to persuade Italy to remain neutral. All the chancelleries of Europe are now well aware that Italy expects to secure a substantial return for the vast expenditures she has made preparing for war. If she is not to get this by going to war, Austria will be compelled to make some big sacrifices of territory and possibly cash. No doubt Germany will order Austria to surrender Trieste and the district of Trentino. This would give the Italians control of the Adriatic, a rich prize. But if by Italy remaining neutral Germany should triumph, in time Austria will take back what she is now forced to give. On the other hand, should Italy, by casting in her lot with the Allies, help crush, once for all, Germany's military power, she will regain the territory of which she was robbed, and her supremacy in the Adriatic would be pleasing to all members of the Triple Entente.—London Advertiser.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

PEACH BLOSSOM GIRL

A Story of Everyday Life With a Moral That Is Obvious.

By H. M. EGBERT.

"The phenomenon of conversion," said the evangelist to the psychologist, "may be, as you say, the culmination of a series of obscure mental impressions, but the condition itself is the result of a moment. Something which was not in the sinner's heart enters there and drives out something that was there before.

"I knew a man—never mind who or what he was. He was uneducated, the sort of average American countryman who is the staple human product of this nation. With good fortune he might have become anything. With bad fortune he might have sunk to any depth. His will was weak, his appetites stronger than his character. At the age of thirty he was a tramp, plodding along a country road in Carolina. Unwashed, unshaven, hungry, his self-respect gone, he would have run from a barking dog or cringed for a meal to any housewife.

"And then the moment came. It was early spring and the orchards were aglow with peach blossoms. As he passed outside a long line of blossom-bearing trees he saw a girl standing on the other side of the fence, her arms full of spraying boughs. She was about sixteen, beautiful, innocent, and good. A simple-hearted country girl, in short, born into just such circumstances as himself.

"The sight of her brought back memories that had been submerged for years. The ragged, outcast man felt an intense yearning for human sympathy, for friendship. He stopped and spoke to her, and she was the first human being who had treated him as an equal in nearly a year.

"He learned something of her circumstances. Her parents had been compelled to mortgage their farm; they were heavily in debt; they feared the loss of their home. And she—her dearest wish to obtain an education could not be fulfilled. If her father were rich, she said, it might be, but he did not believe in educating women. He wanted her to stay on the farm and help maintain it, with the prospect of marriage to some farmer's son.

"The ragged man could see that this was the type of girl whom education would bring the highest success. She was quick-witted, earnest, and with a superb simplicity and radiating goodness. Of course he did not think it in these words. But he learned her name and that of the postoffice, thanked her for a drink of water that she gave him, and, as he heard her mother's harsh call from the house, went on his way.

"At that moment he was converted. He lost his desire for vileness. He resolved that, since his own life had been spoiled in the sight of his maker, he would give him that of another.

"He jumped a freight train and made his way by stages westward. He obtained a menial position, and every penny that he could hoard he put away in a bank. When he had a hundred dollars he sent it anonymously to the girl. 'For your education,' he wrote on the envelope. Then he began saving again.

"Gradually the memory of this girl took possession of his life. As the months changed into years he pictured her, first completing her course in high school, then going to college. He even ventured once to suggest the name of the college she was to enter—a famous one in Georgia. Seven years later he was a man of moderate means, and he had spent two thousand dollars on the peach-blossom girl.

"What was she to become? No stenographer or clerical assistant in any business, of that he was resolved. Why, she should go to Paris, of course, and achieve triumphs there. He knew nothing of Paris, except its name as the capital of France. But that would demand a heavier expenditure. He set aside his whole accumulation of money—seven thousand dollars—and sent it to her. This time he wrote his first detailed instructions. She was to have an annual income of twelve hundred dollars and to follow any career she fancied after she returned.

"She had become like a daughter to him, in his imagination, but when ten years had passed he suddenly found himself growing into middle life and very lonely. He dared to begin to imagine dearer things than that. And at last the day came when he turned his dreams into actual plans he would return and humbly ask her to be his wife.

Saw a Girl Standing on the Other Side of the Fence.

"It was not until he actually descended from the train at the obscure little Georgia village that the futility of his dreams suddenly dawned upon him. He had heard nothing from her during ten years. It might be that his money had never reached her; it might be that she was already married. A thousand chances might have intervened. And she was twenty-six and he a man of forty. He was bent on the wildest and most quixotic errand that had ever befallen a man.

"Another thing, too, came to his mind. He had educated her in Paris and at the best college in the state. But he himself was a crude and ignorant man; he had even retrograded in knowledge and manners, living in his western town. How could he ask her to link her life with his?

"And by the time when he saw the peach orchard looming up in front of him all his resolutions had shrunk to this: that he would ask for a drink of water and inquire after her, learn how she was and what life had brought her, and go his way again.

"When he heard the harsh voice of the mother at the door, he told me afterward," continued the evangelist, "he was conscious of an absurd desire to run away, just as when he had passed by the house, a tramp, ten years before. But the woman, seeing that he was dressed like a man of means, invited him in to rest, and she supplied readily about her circumstances, and was loud in complaint of her husband. He had acquired a good deal of money, she told my friend, and had squandered it all in speculation. Ten years before he had been on the verge of bankruptcy, and though things had brightened he was still in the same position. She wished that they could sell out and move into a city—but it was hard to find purchasers for peach orchard land in that section of the state.

"'How much do you want to sell for?' he inquired.

"The woman hesitated. 'Four thousand,' she said at last.

"He had twice that sum. With the farm he could live among the memories that had controlled his life; he wanted nothing better. 'I will buy it at that figure,' he answered. All this time he had not found the heart to ask about the woman's daughter, but now she voluntarily spoke to her.

"'There's one trouble I've got,' she grumbled, 'and that's Bessie. She declares she won't go to a city. She hates city life, and says if I go she's going to hire out somewhere.'

"'Hire out?' stammered the visitor.

"'Yes,' grumbled the woman. 'She ain't a bad girl, but somehow she never quite saw her duty toward her father and me after Jim refused to give her an education. She wanted to go to high school, and Jim hadn't the money.'

"At that moment the farmer stamped into the room casting a suspicious look at the visitor. The woman introduced him. 'This gentleman talks of buying the farm,' she announced.

"The farmer's visage cleared. 'Maybe you'd like to come and talk it over outside,' he said, and my friend followed him. He followed him down to the peach trees and then he turned about and put his hand on his shoulder. A wild, uncontrollable rage was seething in his heart. This man had defrauded two lives, his daughter's and his own. He had squandered the money with which the man had hoped to redeem this young life from ignorance and servitude; ten years of work had gone for nothing, flung away in foolish speculation or extravagance, of which even his wife was ignorant.

"The habits of ten years fell away from him, and the old devil came back. He would murder him as surely as he himself must die for it.

"The farmer, looking into his face, and seeing the wild passion there, and being a coward, like every thief, trembled. He looked right and left for some escape, and the stranger's clutch was like steel upon his shoulders.

"And then, coming through the trees, my friend saw the peach-blossom girl, and his hand fell from the man's shoulder and the old sense of peace came back to him. Except for a certain maturity of face and figure she was the same as when she was sixteen, and the same serene innocence looked out of her eyes, and she wore her tattered dress as a queen might wear her robes. And in her arms she carried branches of peach-blossomy boughs."

"Well," said the psychologist, "I can guess the rest. They were married and settled down on the farm and spent a life of idyllic happiness."

"That's obvious," answered the evangelist. "But now that you have the story, you must endure the moral. Suppose that the money had reached her—would it have benefited either of them so much as that which actually occurred? He had come back, an ignorant man, not daring to ask what he had so long dreamed, and he found an ignorant country girl of his own station in life in place of a fine, vain lady. And the years of toil and discipline had not gone for nothing. So you see, conversion is a matter of the soul, and whatever results it brings about, one may be sure that it can have only good to follow it." He hesitated a moment. "If ever you gentlemen are passing down my way," he said, "you must come and visit my peach orchard."

VIEWS HIS WIFE AS WAR NURSE IN 'MOVIES'

CINCINNATI, O., March 22. — Moving pictures have given A. A. Campbell, an efficiency engineer, a chance to find his wife, who has been separated from him for almost a year. Campbell viewed scenes depicting the arrival of American graduate nurses at Havre, France. He was amazed to see that one of the nurses was his wife.

Campbell has wired his brother, L. C. Campbell, of New York, asking him to cable Havre and make an effort to reach his wife. He says he believes a reconciliation can be effected.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast; continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

Duchess Asks War Honours For Women

In Response to Appeal for Feminine Workers Claims Share in Medals

Examiner Special:

LONDON, March 21.—The Duchess of Marlborough, in a letter received at the London office of The American tonight, suggests that women engaged in work connected with the war be eligible to receive the Industrial War Medal, which Lord Kitchener recently announced would be awarded to workers producing war materials. The Duchess, quoting the Government's new scheme of organizing women workers, thus releasing more army recruits, writes:

"This is an appeal to every able-bodied woman not bound by family ties to enlist in the Industrial War Service. That women have forestalled this appeal is shown by the fact that in one society alone the women's emergency corps received 10,000 offers of personal services during the first two weeks of the war.

"The fact that this service has not been largely utilized up to the present is attributed to the attitude of the men workers and not to the lack of response among women.

"The present emergency and the Government's appeal to women form a propitious occasion, creating a precedent in the bestowal of honours in which other countries have already set us an example. In Russia all honours and decorations are conferred on women who are doing men's work. Even the war medal is bestowed on women.

Kaiser's Throat Again Affected

Apparently Reliable Information Is That Immediate Operation is Necessary

Special to The Examiner.

GENEVA, March 22, via Paris. — The affection of the throat from which Emperor William suffered two months ago, has attacked him again, according to apparently reliable information received here.

It is said that the ailment has taken on a severer form as a result of continuous travelling, anxiety and lack of good care.

It is said that the Swiss specialist, Dr. Mermod of Lousanne, considers it essential that there should be an immediate operation, involving at least two months of complete inactivity.

A dispatch from Basel states that the Emperor is seriously ill in the German capital. Other reports say that he is visiting the battle front.

Find Germany Using Gold From War Chest

London Bankers Recognize Coins as Those Stored in the Julius Tower at Spandau.

LONDON, March 20.— The Times says that Germany, despite the cheerful statements of her financial experts as to the adequacy of her gold reserves, has apparently been compelled to open the secret war chest, the hoard of gold kept for any warlike emergency in the strong fortress of Spandau, near Berlin.

"Originally the war chest, or Reichschatz," says The Times, "contained $30,000,000, which was reserved from the indemnity paid by France in 1872, after the Franco-Prussian war. When that sum was placed in the Julius Tower at Spandau, it comprised a considerable proportion of gold in English sovereigns and a considerable number of these coins now found their way back to one of the big joint stock banks in London, showing that the hoard that for forty-three years had lain untoucher has now been drawn upon.

"The bankers, who received the gold by way of Scandinavia, (a fact which might suggest that it was used to pay for imports other than armament,) were at once struck by the fact that they had received a number of new, unworn sovereigns bearing the date of 1872, but the presumption that the money came from the treasure house of Spandau was strengthened by the surprising fact that the original Bank of England labels of 1872 were found on some of the bags containing the coins. Apparently this consignment of English gold had lain unopened at Spandau since that year."

"Bankers yesterday expressed some surprise that no effort had been made to conceal the place of origin of the gold by removal of the old Bank of England labels, as the knowledge that the war chest is being drawn upon might readily, when it became public, be construed as symptomatic of Germany's position in regard to gold supplies.

"At the opening of the Reichstag last week Dr. Helfferich, Secretary of State for the Imperial Treasury, asserted that Germany in respect of her stock of gold was better off than Great Britain, France or Russia. A few days earlier German wireless news stated that the gold reserve of the Reichsbank on Feb. 27 was $567,500,000."

Lynch and Wright stated that our citizens were quite contented without street lights and were in favour of cutting them off. Reeve Kindred and Scott objected strongly to that statement as being, to say the least, misleading, and the Reeve stumped the two when he offered to resign his seat, with either of them and contest re-election on the street lighting issue. Scott finally moved that the company be given $80 per month. Wright wanted Lynch to second the motion and Lynch wanted Coon to do it.

Several attempts were made to discuss the hall lighting, but the Council adjourned without anything being done.

The Supreme Test of a Healing Agent

Psoriasis or Chronic Eczema Defied All Treatment Until Dr. Chase's Ointment Was Used.

After suffering with the terrible itching of Psoriasis for five years, and being told by physicians that she could not be cured, Mrs. Massey turned to Dr. Chase's Ointment and was entirely cured.

MRS. MASSEY.

You will find this letter interesting, and will not wonder that the writer is enthusiastic in praising this ointment.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes:—"For five years I suffered with what three doctors called psoriasis. They could not help me, and one of them told me if anyone offered to guarantee a cure for $50.00 to keep my money, as I could not be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this ointment enough."

Can you imagine a more severe test for Dr. Chase's Ointment? This should convince you that as a cure for eczema and all forms of itching skin disease Dr. Chase's Ointment stands supreme. Put it to the test. 60c a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

POPULATION DYING OFF.

American Wife of Under Foreign Secretary of Serbia Appeals for Aid.

WASHINGTON, March 19. — The women and children of Serbia "are dying more rapidly than are her warriors on the firing line," according to Mme. Slavko Grouitch, wife of the Permanent Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs of Serbia. The women and children in the cities, towns, and on the farms nearer the Austrian border, are now in concentration carps, wards of the Government, because every man in the kingdom who can walk is in the army. Mme. Grouitch, formerly Miss Mabel Dunlop of West Virginia, recently arrived in the United States.

"They dare not go back to certain starvation," writes Mme. Grouitch to the Berhian Africultural Relief Committeeh of which Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard, is Honorary Chairman. "The food supply is getting low. Unless provisions, and, above all, seeds and agricultural implements are sent immediately, they will starve. But that is not all. Typhus, or spotted fever, has broken out in the concentration camps."

An official report received by the Relief Committee shows that there were 1,000,000 Serbian refugees from the war-stricken provinces during September and November. The territory devastated is about 1,976,883 acres, requiring 282,404 bushels of corn to plant, and Serbia has no grain.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

The little dress illustrated shows a good use of the gored skirt. In this instance there are four gores, plain at the top and flared moderately at the lower edge. There are enough gores to prevent sagging. The dress is slightly long waisted, with a novel belt and pretty collar and neck finish. The striped piping or binding outlines the design in a very pleasing manner. The pattern, No. 7,078, can be obtained in sizes from four to ten years.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

Thousands In Vienna Unable to Buy Bread

VENICE, via London, March 20. — Reports received in Venice from Vienna say that some thousands of the population of the Austrian capital were unable to obtain bread last Tuesday, the new decree restricting production by one-fourth having caused a general dislocation of the entire baking trade. Stocks of flour are declared to have run so low that in many places bakers found it impossible to make bread, even with the less quantity prescribed by the decree.

The supplies of bread made were everywhere speedily sold out, especially in the suburbs, and late customers, unable to obtain their portions, are said to have stormed the bakeshops in several districts. The authorities are reported to have endeavoured to calm the people by declaring that the bread shortage was only temporary. Bread and flour tickets will be issued in Vienna, and in all towns in Austria with a population of more than five thousand, beginning on April 4.

Cattle market receipts, it is reported, have dropped off one-fourth in comparison with the figures of last week, and prices of meat have advanced from two to four cents a pound.

It is stated that the reprisals undertaken by Great Britain and France against Austria and Germany have been reflected by a twenty per cent. rise in the price of coffee, the stocks of which are reported to be short.

Reports also have it that the question of the milk supply in Vienna is acute and that the authorities purpose restricting the sale to a daily allowance per capita through the issue of milk tickets. Confectioners, it is asserted, have been notified to cease using cream or wheat flour in the confections.

The Vienna authorities have issued an emphatic warning against the unemployed in the provinces coming into the capital, on the ground that the resources of the citizens already are being taxed, and that it will be impossible to support any additional persons.

It is asserted that permission has been granted to two thousand Galician refugees to proceed to Denmark to work on the farms there.

GIVEN JAIL FOR SEEING UHLANS

English Stable Boy Has Piquant Adventure in France

Special to the Examiner.

The story of how an English stable boy in the service of a French horse owner has earned ten days' imprisonment by spreading false news is told by the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph. The lad was the victim of his own imagination and many many mixed drinks. He "saw" Uhlan patrols in the wood of Chantilly. He talked of what he had "seen," and French patrols were sent out to fight his phantoms. The dialogue between accuser and accused put the tale in a nutshell.

Accuser: "On January 18, being mounted on a cart horse, you said to a farmer of Luzarches: 'Look out! There are Uhlan patrols in the forest of Chantilly, and I believe they are going to blow up the bridges.' The news soon spread, and, thanks to your stupid invention, French patrols were sent out in all directions, in search of purely imaginary Uhlans."

Accused: "I was riding over to Chantilly to enlist in the English army (which is not there, by the way). I had been drinking, and was rather hazy. It was a black night when I rode through the forest and I did not feel at all comfortable. I thought there might be Uhlans lurking there. When I found that I was not attacked I began to feel very proud and brave, and ended by believing that there really had been Germans in the forest. That is why I told the farmer about the patrols. I wanted to show how courageous I had been. I had really been frightened, and, in the reaction, I wanted to frighten others."

PELL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine saved me when doctors had failed."

BROTHERS DIE IN WAR; HE WILL JOIN ALLIES

POMONA, Cal., March 20.—An illustration of patriotism and love of country, which is declared not to be uncommon among the British subjects during the present war, is offered by Lawrence Ferrell, well known among merchants and others about Pomona, Ferrell is a native of Great Britain.

Ferrell has lost two brothers who went to war from their homes in England early in the campaign. On top of that he has just received a message from the front saying that his remaining brother as shot through the head in a trench and is still unconscious. He, too, will probably die.

HOW TO PREVENT ACID STOMACHS

AND FOOD FERMENTATION

By a Stomach Specialist.

As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach troubles, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and difficulty, is excessive acid in the stomach, aggravated by food fermentation. Hyperacidity irritates the delicate lining of the stomach and food fermentation causes wind which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full bloated feeling. These both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases—and they comprise over 90 per cent. of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking in a little warm or cold water immediately after eating, from one to two teaspoonfuls of bisurated magnesia, which is doubtless the best and only really effective antacid and food corrective known. The acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask your druggist for the bisurated magnesia, as I have found other forms entirely lacking in the peculiarly valuable properties.—F. J. G.

DANDRUFFY HEADS BECOME HAIRLESS

Scalp Dries—Chokes out the Hair And Prevents its Growth.

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

Civic Grant to the Bands

Two Deputations Wait Upon the City Fathers—Matter is Not Yet Settled

Major V. Eastwood of the 57th Regiment addressed the Committee of the Whole Council, last evening, respecting the claim of the Regimental Band for greater remuneration consideration on the part of the city. It will be remembered that at a recent committee meeting it was recommended that the civic grant of $750 be divided between the Regimental Band and the Salvation Army Band. Major Eastwood, in his address to the City Fathers, pointed out that the Regimental Band was essentially a citizens' band and was always available for civic functions. The men received no remuneration other than the regular pay as members of the Regiment, and that this year the drill season was likely to be reduced which would have the effect of cutting down the pay.

Mr. Rupert Gliddon, Bandmaster, said that the twelve or fourteen band concerts which the band produced each year, represented months of hard work. He recalled the fact that the City of Berlin, Ontario, made a grant of one thousand dollars each year.

Mr. Bert Miller, President of the Band, said that he hoped the Council would see its way clear to treat the Band as it had always done in the past. The Band required all the time, money and effort that could be put into it, to keep it up to a state of efficiency. The Band did not make a practice of serenading or molesting the people in any way, and if the grant was cut off, the members would have to depend on their earnings, which was not sufficient to keep the organization going.

His Worship Mayor Buller assured the deputation that the matter would be thoroughly gone into when the matter was brought to the attention of the Council. The aldermen were not in a position to deal with the matter in committee.

Deputation No. 2.

Adjutant McElhiney headed the deputation that appeared on behalf of the Temple Band. He said that the Band comprised about forty members who played for neither remuneration or vainglory. He contended that if the citizens' opinion counted for much the services rendered by the Salvation Army Band were appreciated and their claim to rank as a Citizens' Band received equally as wide recognition. He did not think that the city was favoured with any too much music, and that if there were more Bands he would be willing to share up with the others. If the Council decided to eliminate the grant altogether it would not interfere with the work of the Temple Band. They would still continue their services in the public parks and elsewhere.

The Mayor repeated the same formula that was tendered Deputation No. 1. The matter may be disposed of to-morrow evening when the Council will meet to decide upon the city rate.

CHANGE IN SYSTEM IS RECOMMENDED

By the Committee of the Whole Council—Civic Employees to be Paid by the Council and Not by Departmental Heads

Another link in the chain of civic progress was forged last evening when a Committee of the Whole Council endorsed a resolution vesting in the City Council the power to pay the City Treasurer a stated salary and employ whatever assistance may be necessary and that such assistance be paid by the Council. Since Adam was a boy scout there has existed at the City Hall a system whereby the heads of some of the civic departments were paid a lump sum out of which they were expected to pay for whatever assistance was required. About a year ago Alderman Stratton sought to have this antiquated system abolished, but owing to certain changes that were pending at the time, the scheme was temporarily abandoned. It was rejuvenated last evening, when the question of the treasurer's salary came up for discussion, and despite an amendment, was passed on a division of 5-4. The salaries for the City Treasurer's Department, were arranged as follows:

The City Treasurer will receive $1,400, deputy treasurer $700, and one stenographer $300. This represents an increase of a little over one thousand dollars for the Treasurer's Department.

As matters stood the City Treasurer's salary was $510 and the expenditure for the whole department was $1,850. This was caused by the severance of the Waterworks Department, and a consequent reduction in the payroll. The total amount now to be paid to that department, in salaries, is $2,400.

Business Methods.

In asking for civic control of the assistants as well as the heads of the department, Alderman Stratton said that the Council should pay the treasurer a stated salary and the assistants what they were worth, and the sooner the Council adopted that method of doing business, the better it would be for the city. No business man in town would engage a head clerk, pay him a lump sum and tell him to go and engage three others. There were certain periods throughout the year when the department did not require two assistants, and now that the department was relieved of the work connected with the Waterworks Department there was little likelihood of the department being overworked. Mayor Buller said that if the City Treasurer's Department handled the Workmen's Compensation scheme, there would be plenty of work to do. "Besides," added Alderman Dobbin, "they are handling the Patriotic Fund."

Alderman Edgar was satisfied to leave well enought alone. He was of the opinion that the heads of the respective departments might secure a more suitable class of help if it were left to their discretion.

Alderman Stratton replied that he had no desire to deprive the heads of the departments the right to engage or discharge such employees that might come under their control, but he was convinced that all salaries should be paid direct by the Council. Both Aldermen Green ad Evans approved of Alderman Stratton's contention. A resolution embodying this contention was passed by the committee, also a resolution fixing the amounts as stated above to be paid to each employee in the treasurer's office.

Alderman Edgar moved an amendment fixing the salaries to be paid to the department at $2,100, and that the treasurer secure his own help. The amendment was defeated.

"So Miss Banger played for you? She claims that she can make the piano talk."

"Well, I'll bet if it spoke it would say: 'Woman, you have played me false.'"

Voice of The People

Peterborough, March 22nd '15.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I saw an article in your valuable paper last week signed "Movie Fan," a very good suggestion and improvement to the new theatre. Now I would like to make a suggestion also regarding Tiz-it Theatre.

I am a regular patron of the same theatre, and have always been well pleased with it. The only fault was 'ladies' hats" (and there are some terrible ones). I always seem to get behind one of these and it is very annoying. Now my suggestion to Mr. Clayton is that he would have a slide made for curtain, asking all ladies to "please remove hats." It would greatly improve the theatre in my mind and I am sure all Mr. Clayton's patrons, especially gentlemen, will agree with me.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor for this space.

Nervous Prostration and Heart Troubles

Nervous Prostration, or Neurasthenia, is one of the worst forms of nerve trouble and brings about a general weakness of the whole nervous system.

The symptoms presenting themselves are headache, a feeling of depression, disturbed and restless, unfreshing sleep, often troubled with dreams, 'right when in crowded places, dread of being alone, horror of society, fright of travelling, muscular weakness, sense of fatigue upon effort, etc.

When the nerves become affected in this way the heart generally becomes affected too.

All are curable if taken in time.

Milburns Heart and Nerve Pills are just what you require at this time. They strengthen the nerves and build up the whole system.

Mrs. John Hewson, Caledonia, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know the great benefit your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me I suffered for four years with heart trouble and nervous prostration. I was so bad I could not go up stairs without sitting down at the top before I could go to my room. I could not sleep nor could I lie on my left side, for it would seem as if my heart would stop. I thought my time had come. I was doctoring with the doctor, but didn't get any benefit. I took eight boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and am enjoying good health."

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Aeroplane Trophies Added to War Relics Near Napoleon's Tomb

Paris, March 20—There is not a British traveller who does not take back with him reverent recollections of the Tomb of Napoleon or the Invalides. I went there the other afternoon to see the collection of war trophies displayed in the old Louis XIV. building. The tomb beneath the dome was flooded with that wonderful soft golden light, but I fear it will be some years to come before I can stand bareheaded by that gigantic marble urn again and experience the same sentiments as those inspired in the past.

Early in the war a ridiculously amusing cartoon appeared. It represented the ghost of Napoleon I. dancing a jig on his tomb and shouting "Hip! Hip! Old England For Ever!" I had an idea that when I next saw the tomb I would think of the cartoon, and I did. The Museum of the Invalides is so crammed with war treasures that the collection of the trophies taken by the French on the battle fields of 1914 do not seem to make much difference to its general aspect, but when you come to inspect them in detail you find much to rejoice the heart of the Parisian.

Guns and standards taken from the enemy have always been there. These are added to by a goodly list of booty of both sorts but the old palace has never sheltered till this day specimens of the air craft which are playing such a prominent role in modern war. At the feet of the enormous statue of Napoleon, in the uniform of the French Guard, which dominates the Court of Honour, are two aeroplanes; on his left a Taube, captured in the Meuse district, and on his right a French biplane, which made 120 flights between August 2 and December 24 and has been perforated by more than 400 rifle and shrapnel bullets.

In the gallery at the other end of the courtyard are the remnants of Zeppelin No. 8, brought down by the French troops at Badenville on August 22. These demonstrate the extraordinary thinness and lightness of the metal used in the construction of Germany's aerial monsters. Rigidity is obtained by fluting the metal like the pieces of a meccano set, and the sections of the cradle and supports of the aerostat which are on exhibition look more like parts of some gigantic toy than the framework of an engine of war.

In the courtyard, amid trophies of many campaigns, between the Peninsular and Madagascar, now are placed twenty-four German 77 field pieces taken in action, a couple of 105 mortars and some machine guns. With their elaborately chased barrels, bearing the double device, "Ultima ratio regis" and "Pro Gloria et Patria," and the Kaiser's monogram, "W. R." encircled in laurels, they are objects of great interest, especially to military callers. Some of them have been knocked about and stand as silent witnesses of many a sanguinary struggle; others are so new and unscarred that they might have come straight from Krupp's works with a few of the parts essential to their use missing.

In one of the halls there is a very complete collection of German shells of various shapes and sizes, including the great masses of metal hurled by the "Jack Johnsons" and the "Coal Boxes." Every death dealing implement used by our enemy is represented in the museums, from Uhlan's lances to darts dropped by airmen, bullets and hand grenades, bayonets and daggers.

A New, Harmless Way to Banish Hairy Growths

(Beauty Topics)

By following this suggestion any woman can, in the privacy of her own home, remove every trace of hair or fuzz from her face: With powdered delatone and water mix enough paste to cover the unwanted hairs; apply and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off and wash the skin. This method is unfailing, harmless and quick in results, but care should be employed to get the genuine delatone.

Look not mournfully into the past. It will not come back again. Wisely improve the present. It is thine. Go forth to meet the shadowy future without fear and with a manly heart. —Longfellow.

DON'T HAWK, SPIT, SNEEZE, CURE YOURSELF! BREATHE "CATARRHOZONE"

Gives Instant Reliefs, Clears Out Nose, Throat and all Breathing Organs.

In this fickle climate, repeated colds very easily drift into Catarrh.

The natural tendency of Catarrh is to extend through the system in every direction.

Exposure to cold or dampness intensifies the trouble and nasal catarrh is the result.

Unless a complete cure is effected, inflammation passes rapidly to the throat, bronchial tubes and then to the lungs.

Catarrh sufferers, meaning those with colds, sore throat, bronchial trouble, etc., can all be cured right at home by inhaling "Catarrhozone".

In using Catarrhozone you don't take medicine into the stomach—you just breathe a healing piney vapour direct to the lungs and air passages.

The purest balsams and the greatest antiseptics are thus sent to every spot where catarrhal trouble exists, germs are killed, foul secretions are destroyed, nature is given a chance, and cure comes quickly.

Cold and throat troubles can't last if the pure healing vapour of Catarrhozone is breathed, — sneezing and coughing cease at once, because irritation is removed.

Use Catarrhozone to prevent—use it to cure your winter ills. It's pleasant, safe and guaranteed in every case. Complete outfit $1.00. Smaller size, 50c., at all dealers.

THE RUSSIANS ARE MAKING PROGRESS

QUIET TO-DAY ON THE WESTERN FRONT

GERMANS AGAIN SHELL RHEIMS AND DROP BOMBS IN THE CITY

Bombardment is Continued To-day---Three Civilians Are Killed By a Bomb---French Have Made Slight Progress Near Mesnil in the Chamagne District.

NO DEVELOPMENTS AT OTHER POINTS

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, March 23.—French official.—A German aviator dropped three bombs in the city of Rheims, killing three civilians, according to the war office despatches to-day. The German bombardment of the town reported in yesterday's offical communique, was continuing to-day. The French have made slight progress near Mesnil in the Champaign region. In the Argonne a violent attack near Bagatelle, has been repulsed. Elsewhere there have been no important developments.

100,000 HAVE FLED

LONDON, March 23.—Despite the Berlin reports of an absolute calm in Constantinople, Athens despatches to the London papers today asserted that since the beginning of the Dardanelles operations, one hundred thousand Mussulmen have fled from the capital to the interior. Reports from Athens indicate that the allied fleet has resumed the bombardment of the forts but not on a large scale.

MUTINY BROKE OUT

PETROGRAD, March 23.—Mutiny broke out in the starving garrison at Przemysl, and General Kusmank surrendered to the Russians to prevent a disgraceful revolt, according to the despatches to the war office this afternoon. On Sunday afternoon the Austrian commander ordered 20,000 of his troops to participate in a savage attack upon the Russian lines on the south. Several of the units refused to move. The officers dashed back and forth along the Austrian lines threatening to execute the mutineers. They stood their ground, however.

General Kusmank called a conference of his commanders. At a meeting which lasted until nearly midnight it was decided to surrender. Following a night of hysterical demonstrations, the Petrograd populace continued to parade the streets, waving the allied flags.

THE LAST APPEAL

PETROGRAD, March 23.—In a futile attempt to arouse his troops to one last bayonet charge the Austrian commander issued a most stirring appeal. A copy of his last order wired here this afternoon was as follows:

"Heroes of the Austrian army, I now make my last summons. The honour of our army and our country demands that I lead you to pierce with points of steel the iron circle of the enemy. Then we shall march on until we join the nearby Austrian army. We have shared our last provisions—we must open the way—we shall open it."

ARE MAKING PROGRESS

PETROGRAD, March 23.—Despite the heavy snowstorms, the Russians are making progress between Dukla and Lupkow passes, especially south of the Dukla, where they have pushed an Austrian force to the southeast. Ther is no news of combats around Stanislau in southeastern Galicia, or in front of Czernowitz.

Another Russian force has pierced the Prussian border north of Tilsit, and now occupies the German town of Laugsargen. In Poland there is a lull in the fighting.

NOT YET PURLISHED

AMSTERDAM, March 23.—News of the fall of Przemysl has not yet been published in Berlin, according to the despatches received here to-day. The official statement form the German war office today contained no mention of the Russian victory.

BERLIN'S REPORT

BERLIN, via wireless, March 23.—The allies' aviators have again bombarded the Ostend fortifications, the war office announced to-day. Northwest of Verdun a French aviator was shot down by the Germans. A French aircraft manned by two non-commissioned officers was forced to land near Freiburg, and the officers were made prisoners.

WAS A SEVERE BLOW

BERLIN, via The Hague, March 23.—The German press this afternoon generally frankly admitted to-day that the fall of Przemysl was a severe blow to the Austrian allies, but praised the Austrian defenders.

"We thoroughly agree that the fall of Przemysl has an important military bearing," said the Kreuz Zeitung, but we admit it is a painful blow." Other papers speculated on what use Russia will make of the army thus released.

STORMY SCENES ENACTED

AMSTERDAM, March 23.—Stormy scenes were enacted in the German Reichstag when Socialist Scheidemann urged that the government at once take steps to end the war, according to private advices from Berlin to-day. At the same time Socialist Lebedour, who recently criticised the army measures in Poland, delivered a bitter attack upon other features of the government's war policy. Scheidemann protested bitterly against the government's alleged action in placing a ban on Socialist writings and speeches.

"Now, when we are strong and victorious is the time to tell the country the truth through the press that we favour peace on a reasoable basis," Scheidemann was quoted as saying.

COULD HAVE SAVED PROFIT OF MIDDLEMAN

Bauer and Black Would Have Dealt Directly With Government Their Representative States

THE INVESTIGATION

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, March 23.— The Public Accounts committee this morning heard W. J. Shaver the Canadian representative of Bauer & Black who testified that he came to Ottawa to do business with the Government, but was told by the Government officials that the Government would not do business direct with his firm, but that there had to be a local middleman. Mr. Shaver said that Bauer & Black sold direct to the Russian, French, British and United States' governments at the prices charged Powell. They would have sold to the Canadian Government direct at the same prices they sold to Powell. In this way the profits of the middleman woul have been saved to the Government.

Mr. Shaver said that he had asked Garland, M.P., why the Carleton Drug Co'y should not handle the contract and Garland replied, "No chance; you must get an outside man." It was after this that Garland had introduced Powell and Mr. Shaver had appointed him as an Ottawa agent of the firm.

We can keep a fire going and make lots of tea and soup, etc. Altogether are having quite a time. Expect to be relieved here in two days for a couple of days' rest and then will write again.

RAILBIRDS WERE DISAPPOINTED

Magistrate Dumble unintentionally put one over on the "Rail Birds" this morning when he sent word to the Police Station at 11 o'clock that he was busy at his office and would be unable to attend Court until 1 o'clock. There was a splendid line-up outside the station at 10 o'clock of those who were waiting to satisfy their curiosity, and while away an hour or so, and most of them were back at the time set for Court when they received the information that all was over.

Archibald Waddell and Thomas Newall went into the Boston Cafe yesterday, and after eating a meal refused to pay for it, according to the proprietor, who was forced to call the police. The offenders have lately come from the shanties, and they were fairly well lubricated by indulging in the "Cup that cheers." This morning they each paid a fine of $2.00 in the Police Court.

For a breach of the traffic by-law, leaving his horse on Water Street unattended and not tied, an Otonabee farmer paid a fine of $2.00 and costs of $6.05, amounting in all to $8.05.

William Beaver only had $1.75 in his possession this morning, and his fine was reduced to that amount. He appeared before the cadi on a charge of being drunk, as did Brock Wright, who paid $2.00.

MANY BOOKS GIVEN AWAY

A large crowd gathered at the S. A. Temple last night to enjoy a programme given by the Young People and to witness the giving away of one hundred and forty books to children who attended the Sunday School regularly and punctually. The Sunday School has advanced one hundred per cent. the last year, as also has the finance and now that the new hall at Brownton and Brailey are going up it will, of course, mean a further increase. Fifty-seven workers are busy every Sunday with the S. A. work, and they expect to wind up next year with as much increase as this year.

The Easter week-end will be spent in the interest of the Y. P. Band.

WON'T BE LONG WAR

Sir John French is Quoted by News Agency Correspondent as Saying Decisive Victory Awaits the Allies

AMMUNITION NEEDED

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, March 23.—"Ammunition, ammunition, nothing but ammunition." That is the essential problem which the war presents in the opinion of Field Marshall Sir John French, Commander-in-Chief of the British forces in France and Belgium, according to the Havre Agency's correspondent at British headquarters. "Ammunition is the pre-requisite of all progress and of all pushing ahead," Sir John is quoted as saying in an interview with the Havas correspondent. "Every one needs plenty of ammunition, but the Germans need it more than we did. I have had the feeling for some time past that they were being sparing of their shells. They do not squander them as at the beginning. They are economising because the lack of nitrates necessary for the manufacture of explosives is making its effect felt in Germany. Neither is the morale of their troops the same. One gets from them an impression of fatigue and lassitude. They had based all their calculation on a sudden smashing victory. That plan failed, and the state of mind of their troops has suffered as a consequence. The economic difficulties in the interior of the German Empire are daily becoming more serious. No doubt the Germans still have food, but it is manifest that they are hampered in obtaining their food supply, and that is a great deal."

"I do not believe it will be a long war. Spring promises well for the Allies. We are convinced, I and all those here, that a decisive and definite victory awaits us at the end of all these hard months of war."

Relief For The Farmers

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, March 23—At the first morning sitting of the House of Commons, to-day, a resolution providing for assistance for the farmers of the West, both in seed grain and other forms of relief, was considered.

Replying to W. M. Martin of Regina, Dr. Roche said that both Alberta and Saskatchewan governments had agreed that the Dominion Government's lien on lands covering seed grain would take precedence over all other claims.

Mr. Pugsley said that the Government was going to exact its pound of flesh. It was going to charge five per cent.

Sir Robert Borden, Hon. W. T. White and Hon. Arthur Meighen defended the action of the Government.

They said it afforded security to the holders of mortgages in the East and elsewhere.

OVERSEAS COMPANY WILL PARADE WITH 57th REGT. TO-NIGHT

HE'S OFF TO BELLEVILLE IN THE MORNING

PTE. FRED W. LEACH

One of the 57th detachment which leaves for Belleville to-morrow. Pte. Leach has had eleven years' service in the 57th Regiment, joining in 1904, and becoming a corporal in 1906. Previous to joining the 57th Regiment he was in the 15th of Belleville. He comes of a military family, his father having belonged to the Hampshire Regiment, and fought in two wars. Pte. Leach, who lives at 165 Edinburgh St., has been 26 years in Canada.

Presentation To Pte. Wm. Hall

Receives a Razor and an Address From the Letter Carriers

The Letter Carriers of the local post office said farewell to one of their number last night, in the person of Pte. Wm. Hall, who leaves for Belleville with the 57th deachment of the ville with the 57th detachment of the who has been most popular with his associates, was presented with a handsome safety razor and the following address:

Peterborough, March 23, 1915.

Bro. Hall,—It is with great pleasure that we assemble here at this time to wish you God-speed and a safe return in the honourable position in which you have placed yourself by enlisting in the greatest army in the world, the British Army.

We feel proud indeed of such an army, and very proud indeed of the recruits who are enlisting of their own free well. They are a first-class band of men whom we know will obey their commands and bring credit to their King, their flag, their country and the City of Peterborough, which they represent in this very sad war.

We are glad to see you taking this step of enlisting, as we are certain you will be one of the many of our soldier boys who will bring credit to our city in general.

We hope you will be spared throughout this great war that you may return to your dear wife and family, as well as to your duties in the Post Office.

In conclusion, may we ask you to accept this small gift in remembrance of the pleasant days of labour spent together in the Post Office department.

May we again wish you a good trip, a safe return, a Victoria Cross, and last, but not least, may we hope you are the lucky one to get a crack at Kaiser Bill and give him a close shave if not a deadly bullet.

Signed on behalf of the Federation Association of Letter-Carriers, Peterborough Branch, No. 22,

Thos. Dargan, President.
W. Stuart, Secretary.

CASE ENLARGED.

Magistrate Langley enlarged the case being tried before him during the past two days, that of a man charged with ill-treating some of his stock until Saturday next, when he will give judgment.

Marchout Will Give Citizens a Chance to Say Good-bye to Boys of 39th Who Leave for Belleville To-morrow Morning.

WILL BE BIG TURNOUT

The 57th detachment of the 39th Battlion leaves for Belleville at 8.38 o'clock to-morrow morning, departure from the armouries at 8 o'clock sharp. To-night the overseas detachment will parade with the 57th Regiment at 8 o'clock and there will be a march out down town of the two units, headed by the 57th Regimental Band. That there will be a monster crowd down town for the parade goes without saying. It will be the last opportunity for many citizens to say good-bye to the gallant lads of the 39th, and the people of Peterborough generally will take advantage of the opportunity. A big turnout of the 57th Regiment is exected, as there will undoubtedly be a number of recruits on hand. The overseas men will carry rifles in the parade.

On the return to the armouries the overseas detachment will be the guests of the Women's War Fund committee at a banquet in the band room. A number of addresses will be given during the course of the event. All the members of the War Fund committee are requested to be present this evening.

To-morrow morning the 39th Battalion will parade at the armouries at 7.30 o'clock sharp and will leave for the G.T.R. station promptly at 8 o'clock.

Should be Big Crowd.

Although the hour is not as convenient as that of the Mounted Rifles, there should be a big crowd out to see the departure of Peterborough's third infantry contingent. Everyone who can be should make it a point to be on hand to-morrow morning to adequately show the city's feelings towards the gallant lads of the 39th. That Peterborough should be proud of them is an indisputable fact. In conduct, bearing and training they are a unit that will stand comparison with any company in the division. They have been training here about three months, and in all that time there has not been a black mark against them. They have both shown respect for and earned respect for the King's uniform by their conduct, and it is something to say that neither their own military police or the civic police have had occasion to make an arrest on the street—surely a record to be proud of.

Our Own Boys.

Peterborough has no reason to fear that her name will in any way be discredited by the representatives she is sending forth to-morrow. They are truly our own boys—all but a handful being residents of Peterborough—boys from our offices and stores and our factories, keen, well-behaved and willing. Peterborough has been, and is, sending of her best. There has been no recruiting in Toronto of any kind of material to make a showing in numbers as has been done by other towns in the division. The contingents that have gone from here have been home-brews, men of a stamp that the citizens have been proud to say came from Peterborough, and the boys who leave us to-morrow are worthy followers of the gallant lads who have gone before. That is the reason why every citizen who can arrange to, should turn out to-morrow morning, and pay them a fitting tribute.

How to Pronounce the Place, Przemysl

"Shay-meezle"—with the accent on the meezle—is given as the way to pronounce the consonantal, jaw-breaking name of the Galician stronghold, Przemysl, that has been a hard nut for the Russians to crack, and a harder one for newspaper readers for the past six months. It does not sound a bit like it looks; but that's no matter—it's off the war map now.

TUESDAY, MARCH 23, 1915

MUST BE CRUSHED.

All this war bloodshed; all this expenditure or waste of treasure, is for the sake of one man—at a time—to give individual freedom and individual enfranchisement, and collectively to make communities and nations free. It is a big battle for the right of smaller nations to exist in peace and security, and give the larger nations a right to live their life unharassed and untrammelled by the menace of German militarism. This is directly what Great Britain and her allies are fighting for. German militarism if unchecked is a menace to the whole world. And German militarism will be checked, and not only checked, but utterly destroyed, both in the interest of the nations and of the world, but in the interests of the German people themselves. Through, one may say, centuries of false teaching—in their schools—in their universities—the German people have become so saturated with the spirit of militarism—the doctrine of force, and the cult of "frightfulness," that they are ready to fall down and worship the gods of force and cruelty and autocracy incarnate in the Kaiser. The people of Germany have not only been schooled in the worship of force and cruelty; but have had the vicious doctrine that the end justifies the means so ingrained in them that they submit to anything that is necessary to have these things prevail. In this mood they are ready to accept as right, and righteous, the military outrages on civilians and militants, practiced by the German authorities. Any other view taken by a German—the slightest objection, the faintest hint at criticism—is high treason and lese majestie. An example of how the German people are in slavery to militarism is shown by the nauseating subserviency of the representatives of the people. In the German Reichstag on Saturday, two of the members dared to protest against the barbarities of the German military authorities in their campaign of "frightfulness" against the civil populations. These two members were pounced upon and treated as if they had been guilty of blasphemy—"Shame!" cried the other members, and the Minister of the Interior, Herr Delbrueck, said, in horrified tones, in reference to these protests—"This hour will be among the bitterest memories of every man present. The criticism is unconstitutional and insulting, and"—horror of horrors—"it is directed against the Most-Honoured Army Leader." Can we imagine a more crawling, cringing abject servility towards the head of a monstrous militarism, than was expressed by the slavish attitude and words of Herr Delbrueck, who spoke the sentiments of his fellow members, and the people at large. The spell must have been woven strong that so subjects a brave people to such abject worship of the Head-Hun of Germany, that he must be spoken of in tones of awe, and his most cruel ideals, his most monstrous commands to outrage, must be free from even the breath of question or criticism. A system that has got a great people in its thrall must be crushed in the interests of these people themselves. This war is being waged, not only in the interests of the weaker nations, as well as the strong nations, but in the interests of the people of Germany themselves—in the interests of universal enfranchisement.

Up in Toronto the Queen's Own Regiment has 2300 men on active service and yet was able to turn out over 1000 men on Parade on Saturday. The same showing in proportion can be made here. Do your share by joining the 57th Regiment To-night.

ENORMOUS FIGURES.

While the loss of life in this war is beloud human conception, even if we got full accounts of the casualties, the waste, or rather perhaps the expenditure of money is also beyond conception. Premier Asquith in proposing a further war credit of a trifle like 185 million dollars, with an initial one of 1,500 millions for next year, gave some idea of the stupendous figures of the present struggle, compared with great wars of the past.

The Vote of 185 million dollars brought the total war credit voted by the British Parliament, to the end of the present financial year, or for a period of 240 days, up to 1,810 million dollars. The cost to Great Britain of the first 340 days of the war will be the enormous total of 3,060 millions of dollars.

Comparing this with the cost of other great wars Premier Asquith showed that the cost to Britain of the freat wars from 1793 to 1815—twenty-two years—was 1,650 millions dollars. The Crimean war cost Britain only 350 millions; while the cost of the South African war was 1,055 millions, and this was considered to be a tremendous outlay. Thus it is seen that in one year of the present war there has been spent twice as much as was spent in the twenty-two years of the Napoleonic wars, and three times as much as was spent in the four years of the Boer ar. These comparisons show only Britain's immense expenditure in this war; and stupendous as the figures are, when we add the tremendous expenditure of France, Germany, Russia and Austria-Hungary, the figures become positively stupefying—an aggregate of no doubt, 50,000 million dollars for the first year of this great war—$23 per head for every man, woman and child on the face of the earth.

It is consoling to reflect that with this stupendous expenditure Great Britain's financial resources are left in a position to stand a still further strain, as they will need to do; for there will be no cessation of expenditure till the end is reached, and that end, as expressed by PremierAsquith on the same occasion is this:

> We shall never sheathe the sword which we have not lightly drawn until Belgium recovers in full measure all and more than all she has sacrificed, until France is adequately secured against the menace of aggression; until the right of the smaller nationalities of Europe are placed upon an unassailable foundation and until the military domination of Prussia is wholly and finally destroyed."

When we realize what we are fighting for—realize what great issues—of human life, liberty and happiness are involved, we shall all the more willingly accept the responsibilities and make the sacrifices the occasion demands.

ALLIANCE, NOT TRUCE.

Suppose we all agree to talk about an alliance, rather than a truce, between the two parties in Canada.

A truce means only a cessation of hostilities. It is a negative idea. An alliance is a positive, constructive idea, and such ideas are needed today. The war in which we are engaged is a world-war; it is a war between progress and reaction, between civilization and barbarism, between humanity and bestial cruelty. We believe that Great Britain and its allies are on the right side, and that Germany and its allies are on the wrong side. We do not claim that all our friends are angels, and all our enemies devils. But we believe we are on the right side, on the side of common sense, on the side of justice, on the side of law and order, as against anarchy and lawless violence.

So believing, let us get together. Let us forget all the old quarrels between Grit and Tory, between autonomist and centralizer, between pacifist and militarist. We are faced by a common enemy, a frightful menace to order, to civilization, to justice, to humanity, to the progress of the world. Let us show a common front against that enemy. Then, if we can defeat him, if we can make his insane fury unavailing, we can resume our domestic quarrels and controversies.

We do belittle the importance of these domestic controversies. They may, in some cases, represent conflicts as vital as those between Great Britain and Germany. They must be fought out and settled. But for the present we have to deal with Germany, which, whether from intellectual darkness or badness of heart has thrown itself on the wrong side. We do not take the pessimistic view of Germany. Sometimes the man who talks and acts as if he had neither heart nor reason is the victim of some strange delusion, and may be cured. But whether Germany is mad or criminal, or merely suffering from temporary delusion, Germany must be restrained, or else humanity must abandon its fairest hopes and its grandest ideals.

The Tory is just as much interested in this work as the Grit, the pacifist as much interested as the militarist. We all want to live our own lives, in peace if we may, in eternal conflict if we must. Let us get together and face the common enemy. — Toronto Star.

GOVERNMENT BLUE BOOKS; THEIR USE AND THEIR ABUSE

In the spring of the year come the bluebooks. To the office of the Monetary Times they come by dozens, daily. Their subjects range from how the poor are housed the world over to how the money is spent at Ottawa on public works. Every government department thinks it necessary to celebrate with bluebooks. Usually the Canadian varieties are chock full of statistics, badly tabulated and tumbled between the covers in great haste, duly to repent at leisure in the government printing office. There may be a short introduction to the volume, or a short summary, but that is unlikely. As a rule, the volumes are thrown at an ungrateful public, who turn over the pages as the layman would a treatise on differential and integral calculus, and then they are thrown into the waste-paper basket In well regulated newspaper offices, such as The Monetary Times, and other places, these bluebooks are partly digested and then filed so that help may be obtained to answer the hundred and one questions asked later. But there is no joy in the bluebook. Pleasure does not beam upon its countenance. It is stolid with statistics, fat with facts, chunky with figures, as heavy looking as Gilbert K. Chesterton, but only one hundredth part as bright.

With bluebooks, however, politicians can prove anything. They may call white black to-day and red green to-morrow and the bluebook figures will uphold them. Mark Twain said there were lies, d— lies and statistics. All three are related. All three have chameleon-like qualities of truth. Few Canadians read their bluebooks, yet every Canadian revels in statistics. He gets the bluebook germ but eschews the book itself. He feeds on the bovril of statistics and feeds it out to others; but the stocky cattle of figures he leaves alone. In America, we swamp the European visitor with figures about the size of the country, of the town, the wheat crop, the mineral production and everything else. An Englishman it was who dubbed Winnipeg a city of elevators and statistics. Mr. A. G. Gardiner, the editor of the London Daily News, wrote of John Burns as "a bluebook in breeches," adding: "My brain reels at the thought of a conversation between him and Mr. Chiozza Money ((the English economist), each bringing up battalions of figures to crush the other millions of figures, figures on horseback and figures on foot — a perfect Armageddon of averages and tables and percentages." Oliver Wendell Holmes says that some men lead facts about with them like bulldogs and let them loose upon you at the slightest provocation. Every Canadian has a kennel of statistics, always barking and frequently biting.

The statistics that are dispersed in everyday talk at least have a little human touch about them. The bluebook has not. It is substantial and silent. It does not know an editor. Its preface is as sufficient clothing to its statistical flesh as a fig leaf would be on Sparks Street, Ottawa. One day, Canadian bluebooks, with the mass of valuable information they contain, will be made more human. They will become intimate. Then they will be welcomed with open arms instead of being kicked, as they are now, into a basket or up on to shelves, and after only a very cursory examination. — Monetary Times.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—It it with shame that the fair-minded people of Peterborough read the letter of "Ratepayer" in your "Voice of the People" column. What interest "Ratepayer" has in the 57th Regimental Band or, spite against the Salvation Army Band, is only known to himself, but his letter has failed in its purpose, viz., to put the 57th Band favourably in the public eye.

From a musical point of view the Army Band is at present superior to the 57th Band. It is true that they have their own special kind of music, which is everything that embodies music and harmony, and its instrumentation is perfectly arranged, and is even far superior and more pleasing to the ear than the American concert music which contain parts for the aboe, flute, piccolo, bassoon, bells, etc., which are only effective in the hands of artists, which are rare. The public of Peterborough have shown their preference more than once for selections with a sacred song or tune, with variations and harmony well played, than for American concert music struggled through; (the bandmaster being unable to procure the necessary artists for the instrumentation). Again, Dear Editor, if "Ratepayer" must write in favour of the 57th Regimental Band, let him confine his efforts to his cheque book (if he has one), he will do them more good and they will appreciate it more than they did his malicious letter directed against the Salvation Army Band for some purpose best known to himself. We must leave the question of grants in the hands of the City Council and officials.

I am not a ratepayer just at present, but when I am I hope to have the good sense to leave such problems in the hands of the man I vote for.

Thanking you for your valuable space in the "Voice of the People" column, I am,

Yours truly,
STUART C. LANGFORD.

March 23, 1915.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Re letter of "Ratepayer" in last night's issue, as far as can be gathered from different citizens as to splitting the grant annually made by the Council the cardinal objection is to a grant being made to any denomination. It is also surely not advisable to make such a change anu I sincerely hope the Council will not pass such a scheme. The 57th Band is bound up with the regiment and the city and should receive every encouragement. They have recently taken the band room at the armouries and bid fair to give every satisfaction this season.

Yours truly,
"Interested."

TANGSZARGEN TAKEN.

East Prussian Town Falls Prey to Russian Advance.

LONDON, March 23. — Russian troops continue successfully to prosecute their invasion of East Prussia by way of Tauroggen, and after considerable resistance in which they won an engagement, they entered Tangszargen yesterday, capturing a number of prisoners and a quantity of engineering stores. Elsewhere on the front from the Vistula to Memel no important change is recorded. The claims of the Germans that they have recaptured Memel is not taken cognisance of by the Russian War Office. It is believed here that the report was inspired to encourage the German people.

The Russians appear to be gaining a decisive advantage everywhere in the Carpathian fighting. Stubborn resistance is being put up by the Austrians and Germans against the Russian advance on Bartfield. This is being conducted on the Bartfield roads, the Ondawa and Laborcs river valleys, and on the left bank of the Dan, and progress is being made in all these movements. The Russians continue the capturing of thousands of prisoners, including 50 officers and 20 machine guns in one day.

During the last few days there has been a great movement of troops all over Belgium; says Rotterdam advices. Whole German armies are going along the principal road between Bruges and Brussels. Heavy fighting has been proceeding, and the cannonading is ceaseless day and night.

According to a frontier telegram a German soldier in Belgium stated to the correspondent:

"On one day of last week, if the allies had been able to hold out for a few more hours and could have brought up a few more troops they could have broken through our line and could have gotten through to Ostend. Fortunately we got our reinforcements up first."

German Submarine Off Deal.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

GOSSIP AROUND THE CANUCK LEAGUE CIRCUIT

OTTAWA, March 23.—A lively rap for the services of Pitcher Urban hocker between the Ottawa club of a Canadian League and Fort Wayne ub of the Central League, is looked r before the baseball season gets un- r way. The facts of the case are mewhat interesting, and as local ndom will be especially keen in see- g the young "iron man" back to me parts, are here recorded: Shocker was the property of the rt Wayne club last season and was t to Ottawa with Pitcher Peterson der optional agreement by Claude rnell, owner of the Central League b. Early in the present winter, r. Varnell notified Manager Shaugh- ay he would turn both men over to Canadian League champions, and a result did not reserve them for rt Wayne. Ottawa in the mean- e placed both players on their re- ve list. Two weeks ago Varnell d the Fort Wayne club to a new mpany. The owners, through their nager, Bade Myers, has asked the tawa club to turn both Shocker and terson over to Fort Wayne. And re appears little chance of the nators relinquishing a grip on eith- men as they comprise full-fledged ttels of the local club under every of organized baseball. President ilbronner, of the Central League, inates he will carry the case to National Commission, as he alleges h players were included as part of Fort Wayne club when it was pur- ased.

Shocker led the Canadian League chers last season, and from a six- ing twirler early in the season eloped into the finest spitballer r seen in the league. He was not a good pitcher who knew how pitch, but earned the title of n man" through his desire to go out of his turn to beat an oppos- team and pitch double-headers. pitched four games in eight days Ottawa's last stay at home be- the closing of the season here our Day.

While with Ottawa in 1912, Artie wind was a right-hand hitter. year he was converted into a -hand hitter and clouted 250 in ition to stealing 40 sacks. This ing with Dallas he has been turn- around again and is hitting right ded, and according to the Sport- ing News has improved wonderfully. Artie is showing rare class against the big league clubs now training down in Texas.

COCKNEYS HAVE 16 MEN.

LONDON, March 22.—Manager Reisling, of the London baseball club, announces he has sixteen players under contract for the coming season. Of these only six were members of the London club last year. It is likely that a couple more players may be signed up before the players report here in May, but so far Reisling has not announced just what his plans are.

The men that have been signed up so far include three catchers, seven pitchers, three infielders, and three outfielders. "Doc" himself will play first base, so he has no other first baseman on his roster. That he intends to devote a great deal of attention to getting a first-class pitching and catching department is evidenced from the number of men he has signed up so far for these positions. Of the catchers, only one is known here. That is Jack Danford, who was with the team for a short time last season.

Ottawa Free Press: Jack Mitchell, one of the greatest factors in bringing a third Canadian League pennant to Ottawa last year, is burning up the clay loam on the California infields. "Mitch" was drafted by the Indianapolis AA club from the Senators last fall, and joined his new team the last week of February, going to California, where their spring training camp is pitched. He has been playing short regularly, and in the last five exhibition games has had a remarkable fielding record, accepting 42 out of 43 chances. He figured in four double plays. His hitting has been along the .275 speed, but as he drew three walks in the five games, he is just as hard to pitch to as when he was with Ottawa. He also stole three bases. It looks as though Mitchell will stick in Class AA company, despite the fact that "Red" Corridon, of the Chicago Cubs, is also out for the shortstop position with Indianapolis. Hitting is the only thing that may keep Jack down, but if he improves with the stick the way he did in Ottawa he will easily hold his own. This youngster is destined for the big tent sure.

AVALANCHE IN B.C. CARRIES OFF MINE BUILDINGS

WINNIPEG, March 23.—A Vancouver report which has just reached the city says that a snowslide which came down at midnight, carried away a number of bunkhouses filled with workmen at Britannia Mine, Howe Sound, twenty miles from Vancouver. The mine is several miles from shore and it is impossible to obtain full details of the disaster. One despatch says fifty miners were killed and as many others injured.

The slide swept away a bunk house containing 150 men, a cook house containing 10 men and several private houses, in which were a number of women and children. Several men who were going off the night shift a midnight were also killed.

At last reports rescuers were working on the pile of debris, but few bodies were found. Fifteen of the injured were being brought to Vancouver by steamer. Besides the bunk houses part of the aerial tramway of the mine was carried away.

Sir Thomas Lipton Says Serbia is Full of Typhus Germs

LONDON, March 23.—"Just as it took fire to stop the great plague in London, so fires are needed to clear Serbia of typhus. Infected houses and the clothing of the people must be burned, as the disease is carried by vermin, which is omnipresent," said Sir Thomas Lipton last night in a statement, in which he recounted the appalling conditions in Serbia, where he spent a considerable time in personal investigations.

"The situation is entirely beyond the control of the present force, which imperatively needs all the help it can get, tents, hospitals, doctors, nurses, modern appliances and clothing to replace the garments full of typhus-bearing vermin."

ARE STILL IN ENGLAND

Capt. Cecil Arnott of the Strathcona Horse Writes to His Parents

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Arnott, 208 Rubidge Street, City, have received an interesting letter from their son, Capt. Cecil Arnott, of the Strathcona Horse. The communication shows that in spite of the reports that the crack cavalry regiment had been sent to the Dardanelles, they were still in England in the early part of the month. Capt. Arnott's letter follows:

Maresfield Park, March 7, 1915.

Dear Parents,—Well here we are at last in huts and the usual amount of mud, although the last few days have been fine, and owing to the sandy soil everything is drying up very fast.

We left Pewsey last Tuesday. The train I had charge of—there were six altogether—left at 1.20 p.m., and it was 6.10 in the evening when we detrained at Buxted in Sussex, with a two-mile march to where we are now. It was a beautiful day, and a lovely journey from the bare, windy downs of Wiltshire to the Ontario-like appearance of Sussex. The only difference between this and Ontario is that it is far more thickly populated, the fields are much smaller and there are hedges instead of snake rail fences.

The park on which we are camped was owned by a German, who left England two days before war was declared. The Government naturally confiscated his property, and now the beautiful grounds are all cut up from wagons, horses and men.

We haven't been doing much work since arrival, except get straightened out, although on Friday last we were inspected by Major-General Hopford, who complimented us on our appearance, and said we were the best in the brigade. We start our higher training to-morrow, and I guess they are going to give it to us pretty hard from now on. Yet let them do it, for I am in the best of spirits and fit for anything. We have electric light and hot and cold water in our hut, so we are not so badly off.—With love to all, I am your son,

CECIL.

Pte. Worrall Was Given A Wrist Watch

At the conclusion of the induction service at St. Luke's Church last evening, the members of the choir and the Sunday School teachers, with the clergy, assembled in the vestry to say good-bye to Pte. Sam. Worrall, who has enlisted with the 39th Battalion of the Third Canadian Overseas Contingent. Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., superintendent of the Sunday School, referred to Mr. Worrall's departure as a distinct loss to the school as well as to the choir, where he had always been so faithful in giving his time and his help in whatever capacity they were needed. On behalf of the teachers and the choir, Mr. Turner presented Pte. Worrall with a handsome wrist watch.

The recipient expressed his appreciation of the gift in a few well chosen words, assuring those present he would carry with him many happy memories of his associations with St. Luke's.

Ven. Archdeacon Warren also spoke a few words to the departing soldier, referring to the splendid privilege it was to fight on the side of Britain.

QUESTION OF FARM HELP

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In my work throughout the county of Peterborough, I am often asked by farmers where farm help may be secured. I have had a communication from Mr. H. A. Macdonnell, Director of Colonization Branch at Toronto, advising me that his branch can supply the following classes of men for farm work: Inexperienced men, partly experienced and experienced men. Any farmer desirous of securing help through the Colonization Branch may do so by making application to the local branch of the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Macdonnell also advises me that he is just revising a booklet, "Farming Opportunities in Ontario." This booklet contains a list of farms for sale, giving a very full description of each one. If there are any farmers in this district having farms for sale, if they would advise us of the fact, we would furnish them with a blank form to fill in. Where this is done, the man's name does not appear in the booklet. All farms offered for sale are listed by numbers.—Very truly yours,

F. C. McRAE.

A Right Public Spirit and a Right Public Opinion, the Solution

Of Many Present Day Problems in the National, Economic and Social Life of the World—Venerable Archdeacon Warren's Eloquent Sermon at Induction of Rev. W. H. White at St. Luke's Church

The induction of Rev. W. H. White, M.A., to the rectorship of St. Luke's church, East City, last evening, was marked by an eloquent discourse by Ven. Archdeacon Warren, who officiated in the absence of His Lordship the Bishop. The sermon was especially appropriate, not only to the occasion, but to the very troublesome times through which the world is at present passing. He spoke from the words of the Psalmist, "Creat in Me a Clean Heart, O God, and Renew a Right Spirit Within Me," and in the course of his remarks he pointed out that in the foregoing prayer of the Psalmist lay the solution of the present conflict between nations, the opposition between capital and labour and the enactment of right legislation. The cultivation of a right public spirit and right public opinion would accomplish much in the removal of present day evils.

The service of induction was attended by a splendid congregation, who joined heartily in the responses and the singing, also by a number of the clergy, namely, Rev. F. J. Sawers, M.A., of St. Peter's church, Cobourg, Rev. Canon Davidson of St. John's church, Rev. R. B. Grobb of All Saints' and Rev. Mr. Price of St. George's. Following the reading of the mandate of induction, the people's warden, Mr. George Curtis, presented Rev. Mr. White with the keys of the church, after which the Bible and Book of Common Prayer were given the newly appointed rector by the Archdeacon.

The Sermon.

It would be strange, commenced the reverend speaker, after announcing his text, if at the close of the pastorate of one clergyman and at the beginning of another, the re-creation of a new heart was not present with the members of the congregation. The Lord laid not so much emphasis on repentance as on the necessity of a new mind. If any blessing was to be derived from the ministry of the new rector, the creating of a new [illegible] would be most essential.

This prayer of the Psalmist, Archdeacon Warren continued, had a peculiar value at the present time. People who were unaffected by what was now transpiring were either without the means of knowing, or without an imagination. In these days of warring nations, of opposition between classes, of serious divisions that permeate the national, economic and social life of the world, the fact of a great need was expressed. Was it right to ignore these things? Many endeavoured to interpret the signs of the times, but the question that seems to be worth thinking about was, "How can we improve conditions?" It was not God, but the covetousness and stupidity of men that caused the present war.

What was the solution of these problems? International treaties and legislation was at once thought of, but there were evils at the centre of the government of this country that resulted in it being badly administered. Something else was needed to bring about a right an effective way to remove these perplexities. proper public spirit and right public opinion was necessary. "The question arises," said Archdeacon Warren, "is our religion right? We all have a religion, even the Germans, but theirs is not the religion of Jesus Christ. Taking the civilized world of western peoples, our actual religion has been, I fear, largely false, and it is that which has made the present conflict possible. Thus my text should be the prayer of the whole world to-day, "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me. The solution lay in the creation of new and purer convictions."

Concluding the Archdeacon referred to the services of the church which might possibly be carried out without a hitch, but if the great requisite, the spirit of the Lord, was absent, they would fail in their purpose. That spirit was love and sympathy. "With the mutual operation of the spirit, your clergyman will help you, and you will feel you stand in proper relation to the life of your city, your country and the nation at large."

During the offertory the choir sang in splendid voice an appropriate anthem.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS TAX RATE OF 24 1-2 MILLS

With Seven-tenths of a Mill Added for Garbage Tax and a Provincial Tax of One Mill Making a Total Rate of 26 1-5 Mills in the Garbage Collecting Area and 25 1-2 Mills Outside of the Area.

The tax rate for the current year is beginning to assume material form. Last evening a committee of the whole Council decided to recommend that the Council adopt a general rate of 24⅘ mills on the dollar, with seven-tenths of a mill added for garbage tax in the garbage collecting area, making a total of 25 1-5 mills, which, together with a Provincial tax of one mill, will bring the rate up to 26 1-5 mills.

Last year the rate was twenty-six mills, with one mill added for garbage tax, making a total of twenty-seven mills. Ratepayers residing outside of the garbage collecting area will pay one-half mill less on a rate of 26 mills than they paid last year, and those within the garbage collecting limits will pay four-fifths less on a rate of 27 mills. Just before the resolution adopting the above rate was passed, Aldermen Green and Weir introduced an amendment, "on behalf of the working men," increasing the rate by one-half mill so as to provide employment for the working men in the form of surface drainage construction, for which no provision has been made. One-half mill would raise the sum of $5,761.

AMENDMENT DEFEATED.

Ald. Stratton, chairman of the Finance Committee, submitted that the whole Council was looking after the working men, and had made special provisions for their employment. He was of the opinion that the interests of the ratepayers should be considered as well as those of the working men.

Mayor Buller said that if the Council proposed to commence the construction of a surface drainage system they should go into the matter right. One-half mill would accomplish very little. He favoured a debenture issue for a substantial sum. He was of the opinion that the money could be raised without going to the people.

To this Ald. Green replied "No!"

Mayor Buller referred to a ruling that was made some time ago by former City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall.

This failed to satisfy the mover and seconder of the amendment.

Ald. Green pointed out that a surface drainage system would be a paying proposition, as it would take care of the surface water and obviate the necessity of treating it at the sewerage disposal plant. The surface water would be drained into the river, a course which is permitted by the Provincial Board of Health. Ald. Green was not in favour of fattening the debenture debt, but rather undertake a portion of the work each year, paying for it out of the taxes.

Ald. Stratton—"While I appreciate the position of the working men we have got to look out for the taxpayer. This year the assessment has increased by about a million and a half dollars."

The amendment was defeated.

"THE FISHING HORSE."

Ald. Edgar suggested a number of reductions in the estimates of the Fire Department. He thought that an item of $15 for a dozen stable brooms too high. He was informed that they could be purchased for one dollar each. He wanted to delete an item of $500 for horses in addition to a number of smaller items.

Ald. Green said that there was no doubt but what the department was in need of some new horses.

Ald. Dobbin—"It might make a thousand dollars worth of difference at a fire."

Ald. Green—"One horse is affected with a big leg."

"That's the fishing horse," put in the Mayor.

Ald. Edgar's motion to have the item cut out was seconded by his right bower, Ald. Saunders, and subsequently defeated.

Ald. Duffus said that the department had tried out a cheaper broom, but they would not stand up against the work required of them.

DEPUTATION OBJECT TO THE USE OF ROAD OIL

Upon the Grounds That it is Injurious to Rubber Tires—Automobile Association Will Prepare a Report—Ald. Green Thinks It's Poor Business to Build a Road and Then Wash it to Death

A deputation composed of members of the Peterborough Automobile Association, merchants and others, foregathered in the City Council Chamber last evening, where they were given an opportunity of discussing the oil question with a Committee of the Whole Council. The gathering, with one exception, was opposed to the use of oil on the city streets in any form. The exception was a representative of the British-American Oil Company. He was of the opinion that it would be possible to secure a guarantee from the company, claiming the oil to be free of destructive properties. Dr. Amys, of the Automobile Association, replied that a Bond would be preferable to a guarantee, whereupon the oil company's representative said that a bond might be forthcoming if the automobile owners would agree to pay six per cent. on the bond at the end of the season. This failed to produce any applause such as was accorded Dr. Amys' suggestion.

Will Secure a Report.

Dr. Amys said that after twenty-five years' experience "dabbling" in chemicals he had failed to discover an oil that would not injure rubber. He asked the committee to withhold their decision until the Association had time to secure a report from other towns and cities respecting the use of oil. This report would be submitted to the Board of Works.

The communication which the Association propose to send out to Ontario cities using road oil in place of water, as read by Mr. Keyes. At Alderman Duffus' suggestion a couple of questions were added to the letter, which in the main asks for an opinion as to the use of road oil and its effect on rubber tires. The letter will be sent to the various branches of the Association throughout the Province.

Mr. George Helson, who is connected with the leather industry, said that some years ago an attempt was made to put a rubber tube in a horse collar, but the small amount of oil that was in the leather destroyed the rubber. A ton of leather contained about two gallons of oil.

An Experiment.

City Engineer Parsons said that the good or bad effects of oil used on the city's streets depended upon the kind of oil that was used. He did not think it was possible to get oil that was absolutely harmless to rubber, but it was possible to get good road oil that would not do any appreciable harm. He showed the deputation a piece of rubber that he had experimented with for a couple of years. The rubber had been treated with road oil from time to time, and up to the present, failed to show any appreciable signs of deterioration.

Mr. A. B. Cunningham registered a complaint against the smell that might result from the use of oil. He drew a glowing verbal picture of the workingman coming home after a hard day's work and being compelled to sleep amid the odour created by the oil, concluding with an attack on road conditions in Peterborough.

This was resented by His Worship Mayor Buller, who contended that Peterborough was favoured with as good, or even better, roads, than any city in the Dominion. He had travelled over them on foot and in an automobile, both in Peterborough and other cities throughout the Dominion.

Board of Works Chairman.

Alderman Green, as chairman of the Board of Works, said that he was surprised there were not five times as many people present considering the experience they had suffered a few years ago. People would naturally think that the present intention of the Council heralded a repetition of what occurred a few years ago when oil from the gas works was used on the city's streets. He had watched the use of oil in other cities and was convinced that the asphaltic road oil under consideration by the Council would be free from the evils enumerated by the deputation. He did not think for a minute that it would be absolutely odourless, but a week after being applied it would scarcely be noticeable. He did not think it good business to build a road and then wash it to death. He was a member of the Automobile Association, and was no more desirous of having the tires of his cars destroyed than any other man. One company went so far as to an offer to send a car of oil to Peterborough, and if the results were unsatisfactory the city would not be required to pay for it.

In conclusion the Mayor assured the deputation that the Council would be pleased to hear from the Association whenever they secured their report from other cities.

A DUMMY FLEET.

Passengers at New York Bring Strange Story From Britain.

NEW YORK, March 23.—When the White Star liner Lapland arrived here she brought a tale that the mysterious fleet of dummy warships, said to have been constructed at Belfast under the direction of Capt. H. J. Haddock, Royal Naval Reserve, had sailed from that port on a secret mission. The rumor was that the British Admiralty intended to use them for blocking the Kiel Canal.

These vessels are old steamships bought from the merchant service, and includes ships like the Campania, Oruba, and Orotava, which have been fitted with dummy funnels, wooden turrets and guns, and their holds filled with cement to lower them in the water.

The fleet has been manned entirely by volunteers, as it is a hazardous undertaking, and the captains are mostly retired rear-admirals from the British navy who have volunteered for the war and have received commissions as captains in the Royal Naval Reserve.

AT THE EMPIRE

A film portraying the depths of emotion is "Marta of the Lowlands," which opened Loew's Winter Garden, Toronto, and in which Bertha Kalich shows unusual dramatic powers. This is the feature for the first half of the week at the Empire. The scenes are laid in a beautiful mountainous district and there is throughout the picture a natural tone that shows many of the characters untouched by convention and in the unpolished emotions of the rugged life of the hills. This film is exceptionally strong in dramatic qualities, which Mme. Kalich registers with convincing effect. Two serial comedy reels are real ticklers and complete a good bill.

THE TIZ-IT.

For the first part of the week the Tiz-it programme includes two Indian pictures, both of which have beautiful settings and a good share of thrills. "The Phantom Light" is a two acts, is a pretty, fanciful India play with a treatment out of the ordinary. "A Prisoner of the Apaches" is built on more regular lines and deals with the Indians who infested Paris. It has interesting incidents in its three acts. Comedy features are shown in "A Race for a Bride" and "Father was a Loafer." Manager Clayton announces that he has secured "The Master Key" to be presented in the near future.

THE ROYAL.

The Royal opened the week with a good programme of pictures, among which is a Kalem sea story with Alice Joyce in the lead. "Cast Up by the Sea" is in two acts, and presents numerous water scenes with tained dramatic touch linking up. Maj. S. T. Medd Guest of Brother Masons at Farewell Banquet

Duly Honored by Members of Moore Preceptory and Corinthian Chapter Last Night —Presented With Splendid Masonic Emblem.

A complimentary banquet was tendered Major S. T. Medd, Officer Commanding B Squadron, 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles, in the Masonic Hall, last night, by the members of Moore Preceptory Knights Templar and Corinthian Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons. There was a large attendance of members who joined most heartily in doing honour to the guest of the evening. Major Medd is presiding Preceptor of Moore Preceptory and Second Principal of Corinthian Chapter.

The banquet was held at 6.30, and was under the supervision of Companion Thos. Hooper.

After the toast to the King, Excellent Comp. Lt. Col. Walker proposed the toast to the guest of the evening in a splendid patriotic speech. He spoke of the esteem in which Major Medd was held by the citizens and by the Masonic fraternity. Lt.-Col. Walker dealt with the present crisis, and elaborated the idea with effective detail. A pleasant feature was the presentation of a beautiful Masonic emblem to Major Medd by Ex. Comp E. B. Fowler, on behalf of the members of the Preceptory and Chapter.

Mr. Fowler, in a fine address, voiced the good wishes of the members.

Major Medd made a reply full of feeling and appreciation of the honours conferred upon him by the Masonic brethren from the time he had entered the craft. It was necessary, he mentioned, that those who remained at home should remember their responsibilities, for every one who went to the front, ten were required at home for the work that would be theirs.

Short speeches were made by Ex-Comps. E. L. Goodwill, ex-Mayor Rush, Comp. Major Eastwood and others.

Several rollicking patriotic songs were sung by Comp. Walter Stocker, and a number of choruses went well. Sir Knight John Crane presided at the piano. Ex. Comp. Logan gave several recitations in a happy manner.

The evening was a fine success. It was freely expressed that Major Medd, who held one of the highest honours in the gift of the Preceptory, would be greatly missed, not only among the Masonic fraternity, but as a member of the bar and as a citizen.

Everyone joined in wishing him Godspeed and a safe return. Among the Grand Officers present were noticed Rt. Eminent Sir Knights W. R. G. Higgins, B. Shortly, W. H. Walkey, Dr. Carmichael, Emt. Sir Knights H. R. H. Kenner, J. G. M. Wilson and R. Cotton.

Your King and Country need you—now. Join the 57th Regiment To-night.

THE CHINESE SITUATION

WASHINGTON, March 23.—No reply has been received as yet, President Wilson explained to-day, to the American inquiry addressed to Japan on the Chinese situation. This note, the President said, was designed to develop just what Japan really had in mind in connection with her negotiations with China. Tokio reports that this government's inquiries related entirely to minor matters, the President explained, were incorrect. The questions at issue were vital, he said.

The President is still working on the reply to the British order in council. It has been necesary to proceed slowly on this state documene because of the many involved questions presented.

General Sam Hughes Wants Canadians to Get Lots of Shooting Practice

TORONTO, March 24.— Just back from the frontier and the city of Toronto, General Hughes this morning expressed satisfaction with the way mobilization and training are being carried out in Western Ontario and the Niagara peninsula. "I motored to the various centres where men are assembled, and dropped in upon them unannounced. At every point I visited I found everything satisfactory. The officers and men were in fine spirits and working hard."

"Are there enough men offering or enlistment?"

"We are now starting enlistment for the fourth contingent, and find that more men are offering than we can handle."

Cannot Open Valcartier.

"When do you hope to commence moving men to Valcartier?"

"There are still two and a half feet of snow at Varcartier; we cannot open the camp there until the season has advanced further and the ground is in shape. However, I intend to get the boys out of barracks and under canvas wherever there is a drill area with a range. In the west there are a number of camp grounds to which men can be moved. I want to give the boys shooting practice as soon as possible.

"The first contingent was splendidly trained and have made a name for themselves as shooting men already, largely as a result of the training they got at Valcartier before they left Canada. I want the men who go from Canada to join them to be as deadly with the rifle, if not more so. What the Canadians did to the Prussian and the Saxon Guards who charged their trenches under the protection of shrapnel fire shows what good rifle shooting does.

All Will be the Same.

"Under the cover of the artillery the flower of the German army got within a hundred and fifty yards of the Canadian trenches. Then the German artillery had to stop firing and the Canadian rifles began. What was the result. So deadly was the shooting that not a man of the Germans in the charge ever went back to his own lines and not one of them ever got forward to the wire entanglements in front of the Canadians. The fire was so deadly that the whole of the charging force was laid flat.

"We have a great body of shooting men representing Canada in Europe and we are going to always have just such men there if training in Canada will do the trick."

CANNOT GET STEAMERS

War Has Depleted Lines Running to and From Canada

OTTAWA, March 23.—The House spent practically all of yesterday's sitting in committee of supply. The steamship subsidies, amounting to nearly $4,000,000, were passed after a brief discussion, and the estimates for the Indian Department involving $2,000,000 were reported last evening.

While the total steamship subsidy vote asked was a trifle under $4,000,000, Sir George Foster stated that probably not over $2,500,000 would be actually expended. He said that the arrangement made by the Government for improved mail service between Canada and the United Kingdom had been sadly demoralized as a result of the war. The Admiralty had requisitioned the Canadian Northern vessels, nearly all of the C. P. R. vessels and many vessels of the Allan Line. The steamship companies had, therefore, been unable to comply with the contract, and the payments, on account of subsidies, had been reduced accordingly.

When a vote was asked for the steamship service between eastern Canadian ports and Australia, A. K. MacLean asked what progress had been made by the Minister of Trade and Commerce toward securing a reciprocal trade arrangement with Australia. Sir George Foster said in reply that little had been accomplished. The new Australian tariff increased duties generally and gave a 10 per cent. preference to imports from the United Kingdom. No preference, however, had been given to imports from Canada.

Shortly after the House convened yesterday afternoon the Prime Minister referred to the death of Col. Farquhar, commander of the Princess Pats, who had been killed in action at the front. He said the news would be received with sincere regret by the people of Canada. None of the distinguished men holding the position of military secretary to the Governor-General had been more efficient or more highly regarded.

Potatoes Retailing At 50 Cents a Bag

Potatoes offered at 50c a bag is a promise of the market that may be realized this spring. It is believed that many farmers hold their supplies during the winter to strengthen prices and in anticipation of higher prices in the spring, but the prospects point to low prices just now. One story related recently said the farmers were feeding potatoes to their swine. Citizens may feel secure that for the remainder of the season the prices will be at a low figure.

Canadians Lose Heavily

Deaths Total 194—Were Kept in Reserve

OTTAWA, March 23.—Up to date the total deaths among the Canadian troops number 194. This is the total list of those killed in action or who have died from wounds sustained in action. Twice this number have been wounded. The figures show clearly that the Canadian division is doing its share and contributing its quota to the cause of the Empire.

The heavy casualty lists from the Canadian forces arriving these days with an unerring continuity show that our troops are in the thick of the fighting. The growing list of dead and wounded indicates its terrific character.

A despatch from London says that eight more Canadians have reached Queen's Canadian Hospital at Shorncliffe, bringing the total number of patients since the institution opened to over two hundred. Only one, Maj. Higinbotham, has died.

From what these patients say it is evident the greater portion of the Canadians were held as reserves in the recent costly operations. Their duty was to engage the German reserves if the latter were brought up, but as things turned out the Germans melted away before the British artillery's attack. Nevertheless the Canadians in reserve had nearly fifty of their number laid aside.

The following casualties among members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force were announced from headquarters this morning:

Princess Patricias — Died of wounds, Pte. Wm. Thorburn. Wounded, Lc.-Corpl. Charles Nevin. Seriously wounded, Sergt. George C. Aldridge, Pte. Cecil Miller. Severely wounded, Corpl. J. Cope.

First Battalion—Wounded, Corpl. Albert E. Thomas.

Fourth Battalion—Wounded, Pte. Thomas D. Webb.

Fifth Battalion—Wounded, Pte. John McKenzie.

Eighth Battalion—Died of wounds, Pte. Charles E. Webb. Wounded, Pte. A. J. Webb.

Tenth Battalion—Severely wounded, Pte. Clement Willmore.

Divisional Engineers — Slightly wounded, Sapper W. H. Milbourne.

The following list was issued yesterday:

First Battalion—Killed in action, Lc.-Corpl. Peter Nelson. Severely wounded, Pte. Earl Bain. Wounded, Sergt. T. H. Oliver, Pte. S. H. Raymond.

Tenth Battalion—Wounded, Pte. A. Genest.

Sixth Artillery Brigade—Seriously ill, Gunner J. Higgins.

Princess Patricias—Killed in action—Lt.-Col. D. F. Farquhar.

Fifth Battalion—Slightly wounded, Lieut. David Meikle.

Her Quick Remark.

A minister who recently called upon a young widow to condole with her on the loss of her husband placed considerable emphasis upon the fact that the separation was only a temporary character, and painted in vivid colours the happiness of friends reunited after death. When he stopped for breath the sorrowing one heaved a deep sigh and quietly remarked—"Well, I suppose his first wife has got him again, then."

When the Overseas Contingents are marching down to the station with band playing and people cheering there's a lump in one's throat as he begins to feel that he ought to be out there marching with those brave fellows. You'll feel better if you join the 57th Regiment and realize that you are preparing yourself for the next call. Better line-up To-night.

TEA MARKET STILL ADVANCING.

EXPLANATION DEMANDED.

Holland Sends Note to Germany Regarding Seizure of Ships.

THE HAGUE, March 23. — (Via London.)—The Netherlands Government at noon yesterday, after a meeting of the State Council, forwarded a telegram to Berlin asking for an explanation of the proceedings of the German submarine in taking forcible possession of the Dutch steamers Batavier V. and Zaanatroom, and conveying them to Zeebrugge and confiscating their cargoes. The question whether a protest will be sent to Germany will, it is said, depend on the answer of the British Government.

In semi-official quarters, however, it is argued that the Germans have no right to "capture" the vessels, but it is still uncertain whether a capture has taken place, as the reports of the hauling down of the Dutch flag and the hoisting of the German colors are indefinite. This is one of the chief questions the Dutch telegram asks Berlin to explain.

NO MENTION OF DIMITRIEFF.

Russian General Has Evidently Been Supplanted at Przemysl.

LONDON, March 23.—The mention in the Russian official statement of the decoration of Gen. Seliwanoff as commander of the army besieging Przemysl, has created considerable surprise in London, as it was understood Gen. Rakdo Dimitrieff, was in command. Where he was transferred or was removed is not known.

The London papers print eulogies and the picture of Gen. Dimitrieff as "the hero of Przemysl."

Canadian Aviator Buried.

PRESCOTT, Ont., March 23.—The funeral of the late Lieut. W. F. Sharp, the Canadian aviator accidentally killed some weeks ago in England, took place from the residence of his uncle, J. W. Mills, here yesterday afternoon, their mains being accorded full military honors by the 56th Rifles.

Byng, her fiance, at the front, it has just become known. The marriage of the couple has been planned to take place next month in Beverly, but the war, which called young Byng, who is a wealthy London electrical engineer, to the firing line in the Artists' Rifle Scouts, caused a postponement.

prominent display by the semi-official newspaper organs of the government with supplementary comment to the effect that the Austro-German offensive in the Carpathians apparently had been broken. COMMANDER KILLED(?)

BERLIN, via wireless, March 23.—That Commander R. F. Phillimore of the British battleship Inflexible, was killed in the Dardanelles engagement, in which two British and one French battleship, were sunk, was the report received here this afternoon from Athens. An Athens newspaper was given as the authority for the statement. An Athens paper asserts that five allied war ships were sunk and four badly damaged, including the French battleship Suffren. Shells pierced the sides of the battleship Inflexible, and in the inrush of the water many of the crew of the Inflexible were drowned, according to the newspapers.

The British Admiralty admitted casualties of about sixty aboard the Inflexible.

PROPER EYE TREATMENT.

If your watch was broken you would not take it to a blacksmith, or a gunsmith, or a Jack-of-all-trades but to a watchmaker—a specialist in that line of business. How much more delicate than a watch is the human eye, and yet how many peopeople entrust their eyes, much to the sorrow of many of them, to people who dabble in optics as a side line, such as jewellers, druggists and ten cent stores? The Tait Optical Co. are eyesight specialists; that is their sole occupation—examining the eyes, and making scientifically correct glasses to correct their defects. Does it not look reasonable that they are the safest people to entrust your eyes to? 1d-67

India Takes Over All Wheat Stocks

Special to The Examiner:

BOMBAY, March 23.—The Viceroy's Council announces that the Government has decided to take over all stocks of wheat and to fix selling prices. The Government will export such quantities as may be considered expedient, using the present exporting firms as commission agents. The State will appropriate all inflated profits due to the enhancement of the world's price of wheat.

COTTON SEED MEAL COMES FREE OF DUTY

It will be gratifying for farmers to learn that cottonseed meal is again on the free list, being exempted the other day by an amendment in the war tariff bill when the 7½ per cent. duty placed on it in February was removed. All who imported cottonseed meal meantime and paid duty are entitled to a refund. With cotton prices low this season, in face of war prices in grain, cottonseed meal is the cheaper animal food. Not only this; nothing finishes beeves quite so well as cottonseed cake. Already quite a number of Ontario feeders are using the meal, having imported it in car lots from the other side of the line. This is one way of solving the feed difficulty that has been responsible for the marketing of too many unfinished butchers in the recent past. Cottonseed meal may be purchased at $34 per ton, delivered at Ontario points.

A Photograph of one's self carries with it the personal element so essential to Easter Giving—and it is so inexpensive.

French Capture Important Positions in Lorette Hills

Enemy Loss One Hundred Killed and One Hundred and Ten Taken Prisoners—French Have Repulsed Three Fierce Counterattacks.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PARIS, March 24—The capture of Notre Dame Lorette, northwest of Arras, is the most important gain made by the French in the recent operations, according to an official resume of the last ten days of the fighting, issued from the War Office, to-day.

The Germans on their retreat, last fall, installed four lines of trenches in the hills of the Lorette region. These trenches were supported by strong artillery batteries with heavy howitzers stationed in the rear.

For several months the French have steadfastly battered away at the German trenches. In the last few days, supported by some British detachments, the French have captured all these positions, the trenches having previously been wrecked by mines and French shell fire. The enemy left one hundred dead, and lost one hundred and ten in prisoners. The French captured two machine guns and a telephone station.

Since the capture of the German positions, the French have repulsed three fierce counter attacks.

PUT ENEMY TO FLIGHT

Quiet prevailed on the greater part of the western battle line yesterday, and the few enagements that were fought had virtually no effect on the general situation. The communique issued last evening by the French War Office says that near Nieuport the allies' artillery destroyed several observation points and put the occupants to flight; that at Carency a German trench was captured and destroyed; that the Germans by the use of a burning liquid drove the French back about 20 yards and that two attacks at Lee Eparges were repulsed.

New attempts by the Germans to bombard Soissons were checked by the superiority of the artillery which the allies have assembled at that point. There was no fighting in Champagne yesterday, except that the enemy shelled the advanced positions of the French troops.

Fighting occurred at only two points yesterday, according to the communique issued yesterday afternoon. The Germans made violent counter attacks in the Argonne, but failed to gain. In Champagne the French advanced slightly. Bombs thrown by a German aviator killed three civilian in Rheims.

The German Emperor has ordered the removal to Berlin of valuable paintings and tapestry from his mountain castle on the Alsatian side of the Vosges Mountains. Recently French aviators flew over the Imperial Summer residence, which formerly belonged to a King of France.

German aviators have embarded St. Omer, Lilliers and Estaires, in Northern France, killing seven persons, three of them women, and wounding six.

French Boy Aged 9 Asks Leave to Enlist

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LIMOGES, March 23.—Henri Lacorne, nine years old, wrote to President Poincare, asking permission to enlist in the army. The President replied:

"Your patriotic desire, unfortunately, cannot be realized, the law prohibiting enlistment before 17 years of age; but to be a wise and industrious child is already serving France."

GERMANS FIRE ON BELGIAN CIVILIANS

Special Cable to The Examiner:

ROTTERDAM, March 23. — In many towns of Belgium every man of military age is compelled by the Germans to sign a book at the Town Hall daily to indicate his presence in town. The Echo Belge reports that at Ternath, near Brussels, the young men instead of going singly marched in a body to sign their names, carrying Belgian flags. The Germans, on the ground that this was an illegal manifestation, fired on them, killing two and wounding three.

Turks Badly Beaten in An Attack on Suez

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 24.—A statement was given out by the Official Press Bureau last evening telling of a defeat inflicted on a Turkish force operating against the Egyptian town of Sues. The statement says:

"On the 22nd inst., at dawn, one of our patrols discovered a party of the enemy near El Kubri post, opposite Sues. Shots were exchanged.

"Aeroplanes estimated the number at about 1,000, composed of infantry, artillery and a few cavalry.

"The guns at El Kubri opened fire and inflicted casualties, whereupon the enemy retired and formed a camp eight miles each of the Suez Canal.

"Early this morning, the 23rd inst., a force under General Sir G. Younghusband attacked and routed the enemy, who is now in full retreat.

"A prisoner says this force came direct from Bir-el-Saba, having taken twelve days en route, and that General Von Traumer and three other German officers were with it."

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

A collision between the two vessels was the cause of the newest marine catastrophe, according to a brief wireless messages received. The rescue of both crews and passengers occurred in mid-ocean yesterday afternoon. The location of the disaster is not given.

SOLDIER'S BRAIN PARTLY REMOVED

Patient Shows No Ill Effects, According to French Doctor

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, March 23.—An operation performed by Dr. Guepin, by which part of a wounded soldier's brains was removed without the patient suffering serious consequences, was described before the Academy of Sciences last night by Dr. A. Laveran.

The soldier, Dr. Laveran said, was taken to a military hospital with a wound in the occipital region of his cranium. Splinters of bone causes abscesses to form in the left cerebral hemisphere. These were removed, but fresh ones formed, and Dr. Guepin was obliged on two occasions to remove portions of the brain which protruded from the wound. Thus the patient lost at least a third of the left cerebral hemisphere, but shows no particular signs either of mental or physical trouble.

Cash Wheat Is Lacking

Mills Turned Down Big Foreign Orders For Want of It

CHICAGO, March 24.—Importers of wheat were again in the Chicago market on a large scale yesterday. Against these purchases by foreigners there was heavy buying of the May future, and that month showed a gain of 3½c for the day and rested at the highest prices reached. The cash business at the seaboard was placed as high as 1,250,000 bushels, but at Chicago the transactions were said to have been only five thousand bushels. In addition to the influence of the export business a bullish help was the report sent out by B. W. Snow, the well-known crop expert and statistician. Considerable wheat was bought on this report. It said in part that careful investigation made last fall developed the fact that the Hessian fly is present in the wheat plant over a wide area and to a greater extent than for several years previous; that the next few weeks would bring a great many complaints of the fly presence over a wide area, and that it need cause no surprise if a crop scare of considerable proportions develops.

While the May future advanced 3¼c, the more deferred months in wheat showed gains of 2½c to 2¾c. The entire western country is awaiting the closing of large flour transactions on Dutch and Italian account, and it was said that part of this business has been consummated.

It was reported here that a Winona miller turned down an offer for 350,000 barrels of flour from Italy owing to his inability to secure ample cash wheat with which to make the flour. Winnipeg and south-western markets reported a better trade in cash wheat and flour, although the run of millers say that flour ruled dull, as has been the case for some time past.

Corn and oats were each ⅝c to ¾c higher. The strength in both grains was largely a reflection of the advance in wheat. Shorts were good buyers and the offerings were held tightly. Cash sales of corn were 70,000 bushels at Chicago and in oats 250,000 bushels here, with 150,000 bushels of the latter for export.

117,000 Men and 2,500 Officers Taken Prisoners

Austrian Prisoners Being Hurried Out of Przemysl and Across the Galician Borders Into Russian Prison Camp.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PETROGRAD, March 24.—The Russians have taken at Przemysl nine Austrian generals, 2,500 officers and officials, 117,000 men, 2,000 guns, of which 1,000 are heavy cannon, besides a great supply of war material. The garrison originally consisted of 170,000 men, of whom 40,000 were killed. The number of men exceeds all expectations. The fortress, which now resumes its old Russian name Permysyl, was magnificently equipped in the way of engineering artillery, and was defended with greater skill and determination than the Austrians had shown anywhere else. Day attacks were impossible and night attacks difficult owing to the many searchlights, but the Russians sapped steadily forward, getting their guns gradually into a dominant position till they could choose their own time for the completion of their victory.

Nearly a quarter of the garrison had suffered with typhoid and scurvy. Although the rations were growing more and more limited, none but a few of the higher officers, up to the end of January, knew that actual starvation was impending. The real condition of affairs was learned by the troops when an aviator who was starting with messages for Vienna, was shot down by the Russians and fell within the defenders' lines. After that there was much grumbling in the garrison, and almost a mutiny. Some of the Austrians slipped through the lines at night and surrendered to the Russians.

The investing Russian forces increased in intensity of their bombardment, and the strain on the defenders began to tell more rapidly during February. Many were rendered insane by privations and disease. They filled every available place, but were without medical attention. The death list was very high.

200,000 TROOPS.

PETROGRAD, March 24.—Two hundred thousand Russian troops and many batteries of new artillery were released for the Cracow and Hungarian campaigns by the surrender of Przemysl, it was stated on good authority to-day.

This big Slav army, fresh from the greatest Russian victory of the war, is prepared to strike a crushing blow against the Austro-Germans as soon as troop trains can carry them to the front.

The War Office, thus far has made no official announcement of the size of the Russian army investing the Austrian fortress.

As rapidly as possible Austrian prisoners are being hurried out of Przemysl and across the Galician border to Russian prison camps. Several thousand already have arrived at Kief, their clothing in tatters, and some of them suffering from disease.

Several bodies of Russian troops have marched into Przemysl, but the main Russian force is still encamped outside the town. Before the garrison is permanently located in the Austrian fortress, the sanitary corps will give the city a thorough cleaning. The Russian General Staff fears the spread of diseases that ravaged the Austrian garrison in the last days of the siege.

Men Stood at Salute

As Huge Battleship Sank and Disappeared From View—Sinking of the Bouvet

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, March 24—Standing at salute and shouting "Vive La France," the officers and crew of the French battleship Bouvet, sunk in the Dardanelles on March 18, went down with their ship, according to the Tenedos correspondent of the Athens Patris who thus describes the action in which the Bouvet and the Gaulois were engaged:

"The captain of the Bouvet had been ordered to cross a dangerous mine zone and force a passage to Chanak Kalessi, thus making the allies masters of the straits as far as Nagara. At 1.30 p.m. the Bouvet was five miles from Chanak and was firing at Fort Dardanus. She had crossed two mine zones. The Gaulois followed, firing all her guns. The commander of the Bouvet, by a skillful manoeuvre, avoided two mines, which were exploded by a destroyer, but a third struck her in the region of her magazines and she sank by the head.

"Seven survivors of the Bouvet climbed into a boat and spent the night in a bay on the European side of the straits. They were taken off the next day by a British destroyer.

"When the captain of the Gaulois saw the Bouvet was sinking he ordered "full steam ahead" without an instant's hesitation but this ship had been struck seven times and he was obliged to put back, anchoring off Mavrais Island."

A despatch from Mytilene says a division of the allied fleet is still keeping watch on the Gulf of Smyrna.

A Greek ship picked up a floating mine near Imbros Island and another was found by fishermen near Lemnos.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.
Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

MONSTER PRO-WAR DEMONSTRATION

To Fan the Flame of Public Sentiment in Italy

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

ROME, March 24.—Leaders of the Italian Interventionist party to-day announced plans for a monster pro-war demonstration in Rome, Genoa, Naples and other Italian cities next Sunday.

The aim is to fan the flame of public sentiment and force the cabinet to deliver an ultimatum to Austria that will mean war.

Government officials received the announcement without comment. There was no intimation that any attempt will be made to prevent the war meetings, though it was hinted that a statement might be issued later in the day.

Prince Ernest was born in Paris in 1886. He was the son of Prince Auguste, head of the French branch of the Arenberg family.

"THE GRELL MYSTERY"

By Frank Frocst

"Yes, that could be done. She tore off her glove, and with slim, nervous fingers wrote hurriedly. The sleek clerk supplied her with an envelope, and as she placed her message in it and handed it to him she felt it was a forlorn hope. There was only one other way of outwitting the detectives. Should Grell give any address in his message, she must reach him early in the morning before the police could act. A couple of questions elicited the fact that the paper would be on sale by four the next morning. That would mean another journey to Fleet Street, for the ordinary newsagents' shops would not be open at that time. The brougham turned about and began the homeward journey.

A respectably dressed working man, who had apparently been absorbed in a page of advertisements of situations vacant displayed on a slab in the window, slouched into the office, and a man bareheaded and wearing a frock-coat move briskly forward, apparently to attend to him. Yet it was more than coincidence that they met at a deserted end of the counter.

"That was Lady Eileen Meredith," said the workman, in a quick, low voice. "What did she want?"

"She's guessed that we know the cipher," retorted the other. "She gave a letter to be handed over to whoever brings the advertisement. Here is what she says." He pulled the letter which Eileen had written five minutes before from its envelope: "'The police know the cipher. Be very cautious. R.F. is acting with them.' I'll telephone to Mr. Foyle at once. You had better stay outside."

The second man went back to the pavement and resumed his study of the advertisement board, but a close observer might have seen that his eyes wandered past it now and again to the persons inside the office. Half an hour went by. Then the frock-coated man inside took a silk hat from a peg and placed it on his head. Simultaneously a woman went out. A dozen paces behind her went the workman, and a dozen paces behind him the frock-coated man.

Heldon Foyle had selected his subordinates well for their work. Acting on the policy of leaving nothing to chance, he had taken a hint from the advertisement addressed to Eileen, and had the office watched from the time it opened. It was simple to get the manager's permission to place one man within, and to get him to direct the clerks to pass through his hands all cipher advertisements for the personal column. If the advertisement came through the post, their time would be thrown away. If it was delivered by hand, there was a chance of learning whence it had been despatched. The intervention of Lady Eileen was an accident that could not have been foreseen. In that matter luck had played into Foyle's hands.

CHAPTER XXX.

Between Berkeley Square and Scotland Yard, Fairfield consumed ten cigarettes in sharp jerky puffs. Yet he was scarcely conscious of lighting one. Indeed, as he climbed the wide flight of steps at the main entrance, it seemed as though no palpable interval of time had elapsed since he had been practically turned out of her father's house by Eileen Meredith.

Heldon Foyle put away the bundle of documents that contained the history of the case as the baronet was announced, and waved his visitor to a chair.

"Well?" he asked.

Fairfield shrugged his shoulders. "A nice mess you've got me into," he complained. "Why didn't you tell me you knew the secret of the cipher?"

The detective's face was full of ingenuous surprise as he answered:

"Didn't I? I thought I made it perfectly clear to you. I am sorry that you misunderstood. I should have made it plainer. What has gone wrong?"

Sir Ralph made an impatient gesture. "Oh, what's the use of talking nonsense? You did not tell me that you knew the cipher, and as a consequence Lady Eileen now knows that you know."

The superintendent gave no indication of the chagrin with which the news filled him. His features were perfectly expressionless. A part of his plans had failed from excess of caution. He did not need Fairfield to tell him what had happened. He could make a fairly accurate guess as to the manner in which he had been unwittingly betrayed. His thoughts turned at once to the question of what the girl would do. If he had judged her right, she would try to warn Grell. Either she knew his address or not, but it was unlikely that she did, as they were communicating in cipher. The obvious thing for her to do was to try to stop the advertisement. There was, however, little he could do. He had men on duty in Berkeley Square and in Fleet Street. He would soon hear of any new developments.

"That's a pity," he said reflectively. "It may mean a rearrangement of our plans. And believe me, Sir Ralph, I badly regret now that I did not go into fuller details with you. what happened?"

Stumblingly, Sir Ralph recapitulated the scene at Berkeley Square, giving even the epithets by which the girl had addressed him. Foyle tapped lightly on his desk with the end of a penholder. The event had been as he thought. He looked Sir Ralph straight in the eye.

"She told you that you were a spy—that I had used you as a tool," he said sharply. "You have been hurt by her words. I don't want you to feel that you are anything but a free agent, or to do anything that you consider dishonourable. But I must know whether you are still willing to act with us, or whether you wish to stand aside."

Fairfield threw a stump of cigarette viciously into the fire.

"I am acting with you, of course," he answered sullenly, "though I wish you to ask for my help only when it is absolutely necessary. What I complain of is, that I have not been frankly treated, and that I have been placed in an invidious position with Lady Eileen. You must remember that I have feelings, and that it is not pleasant to be told one is acting as a spy, especially by—by an old friend. You know, Mr. Foyle, that I have only been wishful to serve those I have known."

There was something pathetic in his endeavour to justify his actions to himself. Foyle murmured a sympathetic, "I understand—yes, yes, I know," and then became thoughtful.

"After all," he said at last, "this does not make us so very badly off. You are openly on our side now, Sir Ralph, so there can be no fear of your again being accused of acting in an underhand manner. There is nothing more to be done at the moment. I will keep you posted as to any steps we are taking."

"Very well. Good morning, Mr. Foyle."

The baronet was gone. The superintendent resumed his perusal of documents. He felt some little compunction at what had happened. Yet it was his business to clear up the mystery, and to use what instruments came to his hand, so long as the law was not violated. There is a code of etiquette in detective work in which the first and most important rule is: "Take advantage of every chance of bringing a criminal to justice." In using Fairfield as an instrument, Foyle was merely following that code.

In a little, Foyle had finished and sent for Green. The chief inspector came with a report:

"A woman brought the advertisement to Fleet Street, sir," he said. "Blake has just telephoned up that he and Lambert are keeping her under observation. He 'phoned earlier that Lady Eileen Meredith had been there."

"Yes, I suppose so. What does the advertisement say?"

"He couldn't tell me on the 'phone. He had to hurry away to look after the woman. It is being sent up by taxicab."

"That's good. By the way, Green, keep half a dozen men handy, and be about yourself."

"Very good, sir. Is there anything on?"

"I don't quite know. We may have to go out in a hurry. I'll tell you after we have deciphered the advertisement."

CHAPTER XXXI.

It was an eagerness sternly suppressed that Heldon Foyle took from a messenger the note which he knew contained Grell's advertisement. Although outwardly he was the least emotional of men, he always worked at high tension in the investigation of a case. No astronomer could discover a new comet, no scientist a new element with greater delight than that which animated the square-faced detective while he was working on a case.

He drew out the sheet of paper gingerly between his finger-nails, and tested it with graphite. Eight or nine finger-prints, some blurred, some plain, appeared black against the white surface, and he gave an ejaculation of annoyance.

"The fools! I warned them to handle it carefully. Now they've been and mixed the whole lot up."

He blew down one of the half-dozen speaking tubes hanging at the side of his desk, and gave a curt order. When Green appeared he was engrossed in copying the advertisement on to a writing pad. He laid down his pen after a while.

"That you, Green? Send this up to Grant, and ask him to have it photographed. See if he can pick out any of the prints as being in the records or bearing on the case. Somebody's been pawing this all over, and the prints are probably spoilt. It's been printed out, too, so there isn't much chance of identifying the writing. Anyhow, we'll have a look more closely at it when the finger-plint people have done."

He bent once more to his desk with the copy of the cipher. He knew the key, and it was not necessary to resort to an expert. By the time the chief inspector came back he had a neatly copied translation on his pad.

Government Declines to Remove Property Qualifications.

TORONTO, March 23.—Cities will hereafter be provided with the means for the expeditious treatment of smoke nuisances, and parties which have by unscrupulous methods evaded the present law during the past few years will be brought to book without difficulty. The McPherson bill working towards this end passed a second reading in the Legislature yesterday.

Hon. W. J. Hanna, in answer to a query from N. W. Rowell, stated that legislation would be brought down to settle definitely the jurisdiction of municipalities in granting licenses to pool rooms.

Candidates for municipal offices will require the regular property qualifications for another year at least. In spite of an appeal from Liberal and Labor members in the Legislature yesterday afternoon the Government has decided to make no change until the matter has had special study.

WASHINGTON, March 23. — The rough draft of the representations which the United States will make to Great Britain, and in which such objections as this Government finds to the British order-in-council has been prepared for reference to the Cabinet and will furnish the principal subject of to-day's deliberations. This announcement was made at the White House yesterday, and is accepted as indicating that the administration has determined to await no longer for the supplementary statement which the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs promised in the preliminary note accompanying the transcript of the order-in-council itself.

Invalided "Pats" Return.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 23. — A number of the men from the Princess Patricia's Regiment returned home Sunday on the steamer Missanabie.

Pte. Oscar Tichfield, of Red Deer, Alta., a member of the Patricia's, was brought ashore on a stretcher Sunday morning. He was taken to the military hospital, and will probably be sent home. He is seriously ill.

Another soldier named Herbert Burgess was taken to the quarantine hospital for observation for suspected spinal meningitis. With him went three of his comrades, who had exposed themselves to contagion.

U. S. To Ask Reparation.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—State Department officials have now gathered practically all the data sought by them preparatory to requesting Germany to make reparation for the sinking of the American ship Wm. P. Frye and cargo, by the Prinz Eitel Friedrich.

The American complaint will be that there was no proof that the foodstuffs were destined to the belligerent forces of Great Britain. The general belief is that the German Government will make reparation for the loss of ship and cargo, and that the incident will be closed shortly.

There are 55,000 maple sugar makers in Canada. There are 350 of these affiliated with the Pure Maple Syrup and Sugar Cooperative Association. This seems like an exceedingly small proportion, but already the Association has accomplished good work. They were largely responsible for the enactment of the pure maple amendment to the Pure Food Law of the Dominion.

In their third annual meeting at Beauceville, Que., recently, they set about energetically preparing plans for still further good work on behalf of the industry. Mr. Lefebvre, the secretary, estimated that Beauceville county alone lost $250,000 annually on account of a lack of knowledge in handling the industry. He claimed that 1,000 maple trees would pay the farmer as much profit as 10 dairy cows and with less attention. Among the other speakers were Hon. Mr. Boyer, Vaudreuil, L. J. Dupuis, Ed. Fortin and Mr. John H. Grimm, of Montreal. The cordial good feeling that exists in the Association was shown when all of the old officers were re-elected as follows: President, Gustav Boyer, M.P. for Vaudreuil; Vice-President, C. A. Fish; Secretary, J. H. Lefebvre, Waterloo; Directors: J. H. Grimm, Montreal; R. T. Browne, Hemmingford; L. J. A. Dupuis, Des Aulnaies.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

IN THE BIG CITY

Mother's Advice Not to Be Foolish Was Strictly Lived Up To.

By H. M. EGBERT.

It was Lucy Bentwich's first position in the big city. She had gone there from the little Ohio town in which she was born, taking with her a hundred dollars, the accumulated savings from a year's salary as teacher in the village school. But she was ambitious to do better than she had done. She was a conscientious, clever girl, and an expert stenographer.

"Goodby, dear," said her father, kissing her. "I'd like to keep you here, but I guess the farm ain't for a girl like you. Don't forget to write to me if you want any money."

"I Want You to Give Him Up."

Her mother added more—shrewd advice, though she was but a country woman. Still, human nature is the same everywhere, in country or city.

"I know you'll always be good. Lucy," she said, "but don't ever be foolish. That's where the danger lies—just plain foolishness that gets misunderstood."

And now, with only half her money gone, she had secured a position in the law office of Roderick Branscombe, the young lawyer who was so sought after by clients. At the age of five and thirty he had already established himself as a leader at the bar. And he was as honest as the day—Lucy discovered that very early in her work with him.

He called her into his private office the third week. "Miss Bentwich," he said, "I want you to be my private secretary. Miss Kekewich is leaving to be married. The salary will be thirty dollars a week—please don't start; it isn't too much for you."

Their work threw them constantly together, both inside the office and out. On one occasion Miss Bentwich received a telephone message to hurry to court with a bundle of papers which her employer had accidentally left behind him. Two o'clock found them free—and famished.

"What do you say to a little lunch with me?" he asked.

That was one of the things that girls must not do, Lucy knew. But Mr. Branscombe seemed different. Besides, he was not a married man—or that she felt sure, from sundry communications which she had taken over the telephone for him concerning his housekeeper and other items incidental to a bachelor's career.

"All right," she said, gleefully, and he took her to the finest restaurant in town. Many a client, seated at some other table, looked admiringly at the woman in the well-fitting gown, and wondered who she was. It paid Branscombe to be seen with her, had she only suspected it. But she thought of nothing except that the dinner was excellent, and her employer's manner charming, and that she was very happy.

However, prudence dictated that she should be rather more reserved with him the following day. Mr. Branscombe noticed this, but said nothing. Gradually her manner thawed. They were becoming fast friends. Neither of them suspected that this friendship was ripening into intimacy.

It was a little event that opened Lucy's eyes, though it might have been a big one. Mr. Branscombe had been defending a fellow lawyer against whom a dissatisfied employe had brought a charge of a serious nature. His client was acquitted. On the following morning Lucy, entering the office, heard voices raised in loud altercation, then an oath and a threat.

She ran into her employer's room. The fellow whose charge had failed held Branscombe by the throat, with his right hand he was striving to depress the muzzle of a revolver into line with Branscombe's body. Branscombe held his assailant's hand, but he was no match for him in strength. Inch by inch the weapon was falling into position. Lucy Bentwich screamed and flung herself upon him. That gave Branscombe his opportunity to disarm the man, and a moment later a policeman, whom the clerks had summoned, came running into the room. Then Lucy collapsed into Branscombe's arms.

She must have fainted, for had she been conscious she would never have permitted such a thing—never! And yet that kiss that awakened her thrilled her whole being, so that she could only lie still and motionless in his arms, while he rained kisses upon her lips.

"My darling—my own!" he whispered.

Was this what her mother had meant by "foolishness?" Lucy often wondered in the days that followed.

The building in which Mr. Branscombe's office was situated was a large one in the heart of the business district, and was given up wholly to the offices of professional men, mainly lawyers. Frequent and exciting episodes occurred behind those wooden doors, with their glass insertions and glass transoms that lined the passages. Excitable clients and still more excited witnesses were to be seen hurriedly entering and leaving, always with expostulatory phrases, at all hours of the day. Branscombe's office was not exempt from similar scenes. To prevent the intrusion of persons unannounced, the outer door of the little private office was left unmarked with his name, but the name Branscombe was prominently displayed upon the door of the clerk's room, through which all visitors were admitted. Lucy was greatly surprised, therefore, when, one morning during her employer's absence, she heard the outer door, which was supposed to be locked, open. She looked up. A comely, well-dressed woman was standing before her.

She looked at her so fixedly that Lucy knew trouble was ahead. She was glad Mr. Branscombe was away.

"So you are the young woman secretary," said the woman slowly, with dangerous tension.

"Well, madam, what can I do for you?" she asked. She would not mention her employer's name; she had already learned caution in the struggle with the would-be assassin.

The woman suddenly flung herself down upon her knees and seized Lucy's hands.

"I want you to be an honest woman, give him up to me," she said.

"I don't understand," faltered Lucy, and a sense of impending disaster overcame her, so that she could hardly see. She felt that she was trembling and put out one hand to steady herself.

The woman leaped to her feet; she was menacing now. "O yes, you understand," she cried. "You have stolen him from me; you have won his love, you—you bad woman. He was mine before he ever set eyes on you."

Her voice broke, and, snatching at the document, she replaced it in her gown again.

"I am his wife and the mother of his child," answered the woman, catching at her hand again. "And I want you to be an honest girl and let him go. For he will tire of you just as he has tired of me. He follows every pretty face. You think he will divorce me and marry you, you fool. That will never be. Leave him."

"I had no idea of such a thing," faltered Lucy. She looked into the woman's face. Through the tears that filled her eyes she saw there the look of outraged womanhood that bore sure stamp of conviction. This woman was speaking the truth.

She had been Brancombe's plaything. And how heartless he had been. This had been no sudden and irresistible passion, but cunningly contrived, and she, poor fly, had walked into the spider's trap. She knew now what her mother meant by "foolishness."

"What are you going to do?" questioned the woman eagerly.

"I am going to leave this office and never come back," said Lucy quietly.

"God bless you—God bless you," the woman wept. "You will never regret it."

Lucy put on her hat and pulled on her gloves. There was plenty of time, for Branscombe would not be back for an hour yet.

She unlocked the door and showed the woman out. They stood together one moment in the passage, and the woman raised her hands to her lips.

"I thank you with all my heart—for my boy's sake," she said. "I am sure you never knew."

"No, I didn't know," said Lucy.

They went side by side down the passage, like old friends. Lucy pressed the elevator button and the cage shot down. They stepped in, and a moment later were at the ground floor. They stepped out and at the door came face to face with Branscombe.

"Why, Lucy—Miss Bentwich," he looked at her curiously.

She made to pass him, but as he did not make way for her, she was compelled to wait. The woman at her side waited calmly.

"You're sick—you're going home?" he said, a vague note of alarm in his voice.

"No, I am not ill," she cried. "Are you going to deny your own wife in my presence?"

"My wife?" asked Branscombe, and his eyes fell casually upon the woman at Lucy's side. She might have been a stone.

"My wife? I have no wife," he said, "at present. Why? What do you mean?"

"Won't you speak to him?" cried Lucy in agonized tones to her companion.

"But I have not been introduced to this gentleman," she answered.

"You are not Mrs. Branscombe, then?" cried Lucy.

"I am Mrs. Madeleine Follett. I thought that would at least be clear to you," replied the lady in offended tones.

"Follett!" exclaimed Branscombe. "Why, that's the lawyer on the sixth floor, immediately under my office. Why, Lucy, what on earth possesses that woman? I never saw anyone run for the elevator so hard in all my life."

Has Bullet In His Heart

Some Stories of Wounded Soldiers Now in London Hospital

Among the many curious cases of wounds which have been investigated by the X rays at St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London is one in which a German bullet was found imbeded in the muscular part of a soldier's heart.

The radiographer who located the bullet said that it entered the man's left shoulder and burrowed downward. The amazing feature of the case was that after the soldier had been hit he walked for a mile and a half to an ambulance. He did not realize that he was wounded, he said, until he saw a few splashes of blood.

The bullet was not removed, and the man lived afterward.

This is by no means an isolated case of a man's living, and even of following some occupation, with a foreign body in a vital part. Two interesting radiographs in the laboratory of St. Bartholomew's Hospital illustrate this. One is of a German bullet imbedded in the right lung. It measures about one and a quarter inches long, and the delineation is perfect. The other shows a number of pieces of shrappel in the skull cavity at the base of the eye underneath the brain. The shrapnel entered one side of the cheek and penetrated through to the other side.

Interesting Items in The War News

BY THE PLAINS OF TROY.

(New York World).

How the booming of fifteen-inch guns in the Dardanelles awakes the classical echoes! In this historic waterway, the Hellespont of old, through which the fleet of the allies is forcing a passage Xerxes built his bridge of boats on his way to subjugate Greece and here Alexander crossed to conquer the eastern world. Hard by, and within easy range of a dreadnought's shells, are the plains of windy Troy, over which scout airships hover, uncanny birds whose appearance would have driven the well-greaved Achaeans to their temples to sacrifice a kid or a king's daughter to an offended god.

Perhaps, to make the analogy complete, a landing party of marines ought to camp on the side of Priam's palace and a British middy jump from the quarter-deck to emulate Leander's and Lord Byron's exploit. But certainly as the fleet of the gisaur forces its way toward the city of Constantine, seven centuries after "blind old Dandolo," it is easy to visualise the Venetian gallery in the waters where the giant super-dreadnoughts now lie.

Altogether, the war in Europe has done a good deal for the revival of the "Kultur" that lies in the classics. At the very start, there was the inspiring confirmation of Cæsar's opinion that "of these the bravest are the Belgians," and only the other day there was the story of a French soldier in the trenches on the Aisne following the plan of the Roman General's Gallic War and discovering in him the inventor of trench methods of warfare. And now the warships in the Hellespont revivify Homer and Herodotus.

But while we are applying classical texts to the war, is there a closer parallel, in the devastation of Belgium and Poland, than that furnished by Tacitus: Solitudinem faciunt, pacem appellant—"They make a solitude, they call it peace?"

BARBARIC SOLDIERY.

In a Neuchatel (Suisse) paper, quoted in the Journal des Debats, the following appears over the signature of Dr. Vouga:

"This is an instance which, if necessary, I can swear to. Being at Besancon I saw in one of the wards of the hospital of St. Jacques, a little French soldier of twenty-two who attracted my attention owing to the curious bandaging of his head." (The doctor goes on to give a detailed account, too long and too horrible to quote here, of the injuries received in the head and face by the victim after he had been rendered unable to move by a wound in the thigh. These were effected by the butt-ends of the guns of a regiment hailing from Baden. In the same action thirty-four comrades of the infantry men were picked up, each with a bullet in the head over and above the wounds, which had laid them low). "As I left," adds the doctor, "I said to the little martyred soldier: 'You must hate the brigands.' 'No, sir,' said he, 'we must not be hard on them, they belong to a different race from us.'"

COMMUNION IN A CATHOLIC CHURCH.

The Rev. J. M. Vallance, M.A., chaplain of the London Scottish, who last week got four days' leave of absense from his duties at the front, met with an enthusiastic reception from his people at the Caledonian Church, Holloway Road, London, at a social gathering. He gave a very interesting account of his experiences close to the firing line, and spoke highly of the heroism and patience of the troops. Perhaps the most striking part of his address was an account of a communion service which he held by request in a Roman Catholic Church, the curate of which had been shot dead by the Germans. Three hundred men, representing almost every denomination, communicated, and the service was conducted after the simple Presbyterian form. A communion table had to be improvised out of a couple of chairs, which were covered by a white cloth; the ordinary army ration bread was used, and the common wine of the peasantry, poured into a jug, and then served in small bowls. For an elder to assist him Mr. Vallance commandeered a colonel. The church was packed, and the service most impressive and probably unique—a proof, as he said, that religion is not dead, and a picture of Church Unity actually in practice.

Danger Signals Warn You of Approaching Paralysis

Slowly and Surely Exhaustion Goes on Until Collapse of the Nerves is the Natural Result.

You may be restless, nervous, irritable and sleepless, but you think there is nothing to be alarmed at. You have no appetite, digestion is impaired, and there is weakness and irregularity of other bodily organs. You feel tired in body and mind, and find that you lack the energy to attend to the daily task.

MRS. ALLAN.

You may not realize that these are the symptoms of nervous prostration and the danger signals which warn you that some form of paralysis is the next step of development.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most successful restorative for the nerves that has ever been offered to the public. This has been proven in many thousands of cases similar to the one described in this letter.

Mrs. Thos. Allan, R.F.D., 8, Sombra, Ont., writes:—"Five years ago I suffered a complete breakdown, and frequently had palpitation of the heart. Since that illness I have had dizzy spells, had no power over my limbs (locomotor ataxia) and could not walk straight. At night I would have severe nervous spells, with heart palpitation, and would shake as though I had the ague. I felt improvement after using the first box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after continuing the treatment can now walk, eat and sleep well, have no nervous spells and do not require heart medicine. I have told several of my neighbors of the splendid results obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Don't Be Fussy About Eating

Your Stomach Will Digest any Kind of Food When Given the Proper Assistance.

We are prone to fall into the error of singling out some article of food and soundly berating the fiend who first invented the dish. The habit grows with some people till almost all food is put on the blacklist. This is all wrong. What is required is a little assistance with those agencies upon which scientific students for many years have set their seal of approval because they have become absolute facts. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets for all stomach disorders are recognized; they have a fine record; they are rated reliable, dependable and worthy of confidence just as the president of a big bank puts his O.K. on a depositor's check. And so you can eat what you want, whatever you like, knowing well that should indigestion, sour risings, gas formations, fermentations, or any other stomach distress arise, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in a few moments will put you right.

Coated tongue, bad breath, heartburn, belching, flatulency, bloat—all the symptoms of digestive troubles disappear quickly when these tablets are used. They are not a cure for anything but dyspepsia and kindred complaints. But they have brought relief to more sufferers from digestive diseases than all the patent medicines and doctor's prescriptions put together.

The stomach does the heaviest work of any of the bodily organs, yet it's the one we treat with the least regard. We eat too much of the wrong kind of food at any time. The patient stomach stands such treatment as long as it can and then it rebels. You get notice of the rebellion in the shape of the gases and pains caused by undigested, fermenting food.

IT'S AMUSING TO ME.

Diplomacy is wonderful,
As anyone may know
By reading all the messages
That pass both to and fro
'Twixt nations that are now at war
And neutral Until Sam,
To me it is amusing, though,
The way they all salaam.

For instance, Uncle Sammy wants
To serve his notice to
The English or the German folks
On what they mustn't do.
But ere he jots his warning down
He says, "I love you, oh,
To an extent I'm sure that you
Will never, never know."

It's much like parent who to child
Explains how much it means
To him in pain to hand the child
A spanking on its jeans.
And then the kid tells did he's sad
To cause him so much pain,
But saunters out, and forthwith does
The self same thing again.

LONDON IS NOT DEPRESSED SHOWS NO HEAVINESS OVER WAR

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 23.—"Why London will be empty," exclaimed a society nut to a newly arrived Canadian, when the latter once in happier days intimated that he proposed making his first visit to the world's metropolis.

"But my dear fellow, don't you see," persisted his informant, "the season starts in May and ends the beginning of August, when everyone goes up to Scotland for the grouse shooting. Society departs bag and baggage for its country house, and all the west end mansions are closed. You couldn't choose a more depressing time for running up town."

Nathless this Canadian pilgrim braved the awful prospect of a deserted city, where he still found several million people pursuing their avocations. Saving a few shuttered town houses in Sloan, Portland, and adjacent fashionable squares and streets, little else evidenced the absence of the landed aristocracy.

Not a Gloomy City.

A certain parallel may be drawn between this "empty London" and the "gloomy London" that outsiders often imagine to exist nowadays. Half-lighted streets, certain "hang-up" restaurants bereft of former gay habitues and a more or less general suspension of private entertainments prevail. But theatre-going seems in no-wise to have fallen off. Essaying to enter half a dozen different play-houses the other evening, the writer was met by the invariable statement, "Only box-seats and standing-room left."

In the half-light of the Strand thousands of taxis whirr to and fro in the gasoline-fogged atmosphere, nightly conveying pleasure-seekers. The restaurants are well patronized. London as a whole is not permitting the war to seriously interfere with her recreations.

"They Don't Realize."

"Ah! they don't realize the seriousness of affairs at the front," remarked a grey-beard, born six months after the death of the old Duke of Wellington. "The citizens of London, the people of England, are all too confoundedly optimistic. A general officer back on leave from the trenches has just spent three days as my guest," quoth the veteran to The Telegram, "and he says the situation is most critical yet."

This statement tallies with that expressed by many soldiers returned from the front encountered by the writer both in the north of France and England. Victory must and shall be ours, but the struggle will be desperate. The end is not yet in sight. Such are the opinions of men who will never be beaten —who will fight to the last ditch, but who nevertheless, decry the foolish optimism so often met with here. The English newspapers are offenders along this line with their premature predictions of an early defeat for the enemy. Such statements only tend to lull the public into a false sense of security.

His Six Sons.

"Up near my home in the country a few days ago," stated a grizzled John Bull to The Telegram, "I went to call on a neighbour who had refused to allow even one of his six stalwart sons to enlist. I remonstrated and asked his reasons. "Reasons?", said he, 'Why whats the sense in letting the lads go for soldiers. Six months it would take 'em to learn the trade and before that belike the war would be over. See that?' and he handed me a provincial newspaper. A paragraph based on the logical deductions of some sanguine editorial scribbler assured its readers that October at least would certainly see the Kaiser's hosts crushed."

German Prisoners.

In view of the cruelties and indignities heaped upon British prisoners in Germany, popular outcry here is asserting that Britain is kind to the length of impecility in her treatment of captured Huns. The expenditure of a large sum of public money for the conversion of a fine old park surrounded manor house into a pleasant home for Prussian officers evoked parliamentary interrogations of the Government. The imposing military funeral attending the death of the Bluechers' commander called forth another howl. To think that the captain of the ship that murdered defenceless English women and children should be so honoured.'

"Policy, good statecraft," remarked an English officer discussing these matters with the writer. "The Government doesn't give a rap for these German officers, and if things were different they would get no more than they deserve. All this considerate and apparently maudlin action is to try and bring about better treatment for our own people held in Germany."

A TRAIL OF HEARTS

In the New Haven Millionaire Case —Authorities Are Investigating

Mrs. Virginius J. Mayo, alleged to have been his first wife and the mother of a daughter.

Mrs. Florence Weeks Mayo, of Scranton, Pa., alleged wife No. 2, who insists she married Mayo, a reputed bachelor, in 1890 and had three daughters.

Mrs. Virginius J. Mayo, of New Haven, Conn., his present wife.

"Mrs. Dudley"—Lois Waterbury—of Brooklyn, Mayo's former stenographer and alleged mother of two children as his "love wife."

Lillian May Cook, formerly of Brooklyn; Mayo's stenographer, who shot herself last week.

Susan M. Wahlers, of New Haven, who claims alleged relations with Mayo as his former stenographer.

EW HAVEN, Conn., March 17.—Six women were enrolled in the trail of heart affairs of Virginius J. Mayo, New Haven millionaire. They came from at least three states. The identity of some remained a mystery. With others Mayo's alleged relations were still clouded in a tangle of assertions and denials.

Pennsylvania authorities were today investigating charges of Mrs. Virginius Mayo, of Scranton, that she was Mayo's second wife. They also thought to unful identity of the alleged former wife, whom the Scranton woman asserts died.

The Scranton Mrs. Mayo was reported prostrated and confined to her bed to-day. She has retained counsel. The present (Mrs. Mayo, of New Haven, a former stenographer of her husband, while refusing to indicate her probable course of action, was reported to be planning a divorce suit.

Mayo was further involved by Miss Susan M. Wahlers of New Haven, who claims relations with the millionaire.

The father of Lillian M. Cook, of Brooklyn, Mayo's stenographer, who killed herself last week, to-day was satisfied that the body buried last Tuesday was really that of his daughter.

Mayo continued in closest seclusion. He has practically abandoned his club and authorizes discussion of his case only through his lawyers.

To Have Complexion That Men Admire

"A man may admit, with great sophistication, that powder and rouge are necessary aids to beauty," writes the Countess of Wenick, "yet deep in his heart he dreams of the woman whose loveliness needs no artificial touching up. Women who appreciate this, who give consideration to the masculine viewpoint, avoid using anything that might indicate their beauty is not all their own.

"Such women in increasing number are acquiring the mercolised wax habit. By applying the wax at night as they would cold cream, washing it off in the morning, they secure, and maintain, entirely natural complexions. Their faces exhibit no evidence of having been 'beautified.' Nothing is added to the old complexion—the latter, instead, is discarded. Mercolised wax, procurable at any drug store (an ounce is sufficient), absorbs the devitalised outer skin, gradually, almost imperceptibly. The fresh, clear, satiny underskin which appears, bears a healthy, youthful bloom not comparable with the fixed artificial colour."

We are apt to give up work too soon, to suppose that a single breakage has ruined the cloth. The men who get on in the world are not daunted by one nor a thousand breakages.—John Morley.

"NERVILINE" STOPS EARACHE IN 10 SECONDS, FIXES TOOTHACHE IN 2 MINUTES

It Seems to Possess Almost Some Divine Power Over Pain.

RUB ON NERVILINE

Toothache is usually due to neuralgia in the gums or to the congestion and swelling of the nerve pulp.

As "Nerviline" relieves congestion, you can easily see why it cures toothache.

Nerviline does more—cures any ache or pain—in any part of the body.

It matters not where your pain is. It may be in a joint or muscle; it may be neuralgia or lumbago; it may be a surface pain is deeply situated in the back, side or chest. Nerviline will reach it; Nerviline will drive it out.

What is Nerviline, you ask? Just a liniment, but very much stronger in pain-subduing power than other liniments—one that penetrates more deeply in the tissue than any other liniment. It is a liniment that cures quickly, that gives permanent relief.

You might spend ten or a hundred dollars, but you couldn't buy as much relief as you get from a single bottle of Nerviline.

We guarantee Nerviline; we refund your money if it does not relieve you.

In many lands it is a household trust, a remedy that has justified itself under the experience of those who have used it. Guaranteed for neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, rheumatism, pleurisy, strains or sprains; the large 50 cent family size bottle is more economical than the 25 cent trial size. Dealers everywhere sell Nerviline, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

NO CHILD WAKE UP CROSS OR FEVERISH

Look, Mother! If Tongue is Coated Give "California Syrup of Figs."

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peavish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing". Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but ge' the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

EVEN RUSSIAN IS UNABLE TO UTTER "LWOW"

His Language Has No "l" in the Alphabet—Hartlepool is Gartlepool.

There is no "b" in the Russian alphabet. Therefore the Russians spell Hartlepool, "Gartlepool," and call Field Marshall Hindenburg "Gindenburg." The captain of a Russian steamer greted a friend of mine who had often sailed with him: "Ah! you are going for a goliday, yes? Where is your gusband?"

The Russian alphabet also lacks our "j" and our "w." Jones has to be spent "Dzones." Williams becomes "Vilyams," and an American friend of mine named Whiffen is addressed as "Mr. Veefen." Yet, in spite of these difficulties, the Russians manage to give a very fair, usually an exact, version of English proper and place names. The reading of war news would be made easier to eyes if the names of Russian places, in any case odd looking, could be pronounced at sight instead of being puzzled over and given up as a bad job.

If you were in partnership with a Mr. Smith and persisted in calling him "Smiff" he might justifiably be annoyed. If his house was called "Fernhurst," and you always spoke of it and spelt it as "Wernhurst," his opinion of your intelligence would not be high.

"Lwow" an Enigma.

There need be no difficulty about reproducing closely in English the sound of any Russian name. Why, then do we spell the town which used to be called Lemberg, Lwow? That suggests a pronunciation to rhyme with "now" and "cow." The proper way to pronounce it is Lvoff. How "Lwow" ever came to be printed I cannot imagine. It is spelled with two "v's." Before a consonant the Russian "v" is hard like ours. At the end of a word it is slightly softened and should be represented in English by double "f." Whenever "w" is used in spelling a Russian names it is wrong, for there is no "w" in Russian."

We recognize this by spelling the Polish township where there has been much hard fighting lately, Lovicz. But here, though we get the "v" right, we go wrong in the last two letters. The Russian pronunciation is Lovitch. What the Polish pronunciation is I shall not venture to say. No Pole will admit that any foreigner can ever hope to speak his tongue as it should be spoken. But at all events, to this I can testify — that the Poles do not make the name of that place rhyme with "sticks." As nearly as may be, they say Loxitch too, and they say Lenchitsa when they refer to the town which we spell Lenczica.

Cracow should of course be Cracoff, but that we are not likely to alter. We have sunk too deeply in the wrong hut. Nijny-Novgorod should be "Nishni;" and if we cared for accuracy we should write "Lodzh" or Lodsch" instead of Lodz, rhyming with "rods."

Russian Says "Moskva."

I recollect looking out of the carriage window the first time I arrived at Warsaw and seeing Carsava put up as the name of the station, and wondering if I had come right. Ask an unlearned Russian if he has ever been in Moscow; he will tell you he never heard of such a place. He calls it Muskva. I suppose long ago some traveller thought the "v" was a "u" and called it Muscha. Hence the French Moscou and our Moscow.

Kieff we spell rightly as a rule, though there is a perverse tendency to make it Kiev. But we stick to Saratov and Pskov, which turns two sofe sounding names to unnecessary harshness; and why we continue to miscall a town which is both written in Russian and pronounced Harkoff "Kharkov" is more than I can tell.

Now you think you have convicted me of inconsistency. I can see it in your eye. I said there was no "h" in the Russian alphabet. What about Harkoff then. Well, the first letter is the Russian "x" which can only be represented in English by "h," but which is equal to the Scottish "ch" as in "loch." The tobacco for which the Russian soldier craves is written Machorka, but called Mahorka, with a slightly gutteral sound.—Petrograd correspondence to New York "Sun."

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, March 22.—The wheat market opened unchanged to ½c lower, oats unchanged to ½c lower, and flax ½c higher to 2c lower. The volume of trading was very light in futures and with little or no export or cash business prices declined rapidly. The range in prices before noon was 2⅝c on May and 2⅜c on July, and 3c on October under Saturday's closing figures, with a tendency to go still lower.

Oats and flax were quiet. Inspections on Saturday 390 cars, as against 340 cars last year, and in sight today were 900 cars for inspection, being the largest receipts for some time.

Wheat lost 1⅝c to 2c on the day, and oats 1⅛c to 1⅜c. Flax was 2½c to 4½c lower.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, March 22.—A few loads of Manitoba spring wheat were sold over the cable today for March-April shipment, but the market on the whole is very quiet and ocean freight space very scarce in all positions. The local market for coarse grains was quiet with an easy undertone to the market for oats in sympathy with the decline in prices in the Winnipeg option market. The demand for all lines was limited. Flour continues quiet and the market is without any new feature to note. Mill feed is fairly active and steady.

There is no change in butter, for which the demand is rather quiet.

Cheese is firm under a fair demand for local account.

Demand for eggs is good, but the tone of the market is easy.

Hogs.

Selects, weighed off cars, sold at $9.60, and $9.35 fed and watered, and $9 f.o.b. cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, March 22.—At the Montreal Stock Yards there was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle today, the feeling being firm on account of the fact that the supply was much smaller than a week ago, and the quality better than ever. The demand from packers was good, owing to the near approach of the Easter trade, and a fairly active trade was done, but there was no disposition on the part of buyers to pay fancy prices for stock, as in former years. A few loads of extra choice steers were sold at 8¼, but the bulk of the choice steers from the above figure down to $7.75, while many loads of good steers changed hands at $7.25 to $7.50, and a few extra choice, heavy bulls sold as high as $7.25 per hundred pounds.

The most important feature of the trade today was the decidedly strong feeling which developed in the market for hogs, and prices, compared with a week ago, show an advance of 50c to 60c per hundred pounds, which is attributed to the strength displayed in the Toronto market at the latter end of last week, the much smaller supplies coming forward from the interior, and the fact that packers have been doing a fairly large export trade in this line of late. A fairly active trade was done, as the competition for supplies was keener than usual, and sales of selected lots were made at $8.75 to $9; sows at $6.75 to $7, and stags at $4.25 to $4.50 per hundred pounds, weighed off cars. Five cars of northwest hogs were received by a packer, which cost, laid down here, $8.65 per hundred pounds. The prospects are that prices may possibly go a little higher in the near future.

Trade in sheep and lambs was very quiet, on account of the very limited supplies coming forwards, and in consequence the undertone of the market is very firm, but prices show no important change. A few spring lambs were offered, which met with a steady demand, at $7 to $10 each, as to size and quality. A good trade was done in calves, but, as the offerings were not in excess of the requirements, the tone of the market was steady.

Sentry Shoots Buffalo Man.

BUFFALO, March 23. — George B. Montgomery, of Buffalo, was shot by a British sentry while he was sailing in the harbor at Hamilton, Bermuda, last Saturday, according to information received here last night. One of his legs was so badly hurt that the foot had to be amputated. With him in the boat at the time was his wife and a negro pilot.

The report received here says the boat approached too near the prohibited water surrounding an island where German soldiers are imprisoned.

Great War Cargoes.

Not a Cinch.

"I should think you would work, instead of begging for your living."

"I do, mum."

"You do? Then why are you asking me for money?"

"That's my profession, mum. But if you knew how hard it is to pry a dime out of some folks you'd never accuse me of not working."

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GREY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural colour dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two it becomes beautifully dark, glossy and abundant.

Allies' Aviators Have Dropped Bombs on German Shipyards Doing Great Damage---Troops Landed to Co-operate With the Fleet in the Attack on the Forts of the Dardanelles.

BLOODY BATTLE IN CARPATHIANS

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, March 24.—French official.—Gains for the Belgians along the Yser were announced in the official communique from the war office this afternoon. While the Belgian division made progress along the right bank another Belgian division captured the German trenches on the left bank. The French troops after a hand to hand encounter, captured the second line of the German trenches at Hartmannsweikerkopf in Alsace, yesterday. In other fighting in the same region the French took a number of prisoners, including several Bavarian officers.

BATTTLE IN THE CARPATHIANS

BERLIN, March 24.—via wireless.—All the reports from the Carpathians to-day indicated one of the greatest and bloodiest battles of the campagn is now raging. The Lokal Anzeinger's correspondent at the front wired to-day that a sanguinary engagement is now in full progress but it has not yet reached the point where the probable outcome can be predicted. "The conflict is likely to be waged for some days yet with equal fierceness," the correspondent wired.

The German military critics all agreed to-day that the Russian army set free by the surrender of Przemysl before many days will be engaged in the great struggle for the possession of the Carpathian passes. They pointed out that for the present the Carpathian operations overshadowed the developments in Poland where there is little of importance occurring.

BOMBARDMENT CONTINUED

ATHENS, March 24.—The bombardment of the Turkish fortifications in the Dardanelles was continued to-day. The warships were accompanied into the straits by a number of mine sweepers.

A force of the allied troops was landed on the peninsula of Gallipoli yesterday from the transports in the Gulf of Saros. A general attack upon the fortifications of the Dardanelles is to be undertaken immediately on the arrival of further British and French warships now on their way to join the attacking squadron. The last concerted effort against the Dardanelles positions occurred six days ago, on March 18. The Gallipoli Peninsula is the northern or European side of the Dardanelles.

GENEVA, March 24.—The Italian government ordered the seizure yesterday at Luino, near the Swiss frontier of 29 freight cars, containing graphite, sulphur and other supplies said to have been destined for the Krupp gun works at Essen, Germany. An uncensored despatch to the Tribune from the Austrian border, states that the Austrian military engineers have blown up with dynamite all the buildings between the Suganan pass in Trent and Lake Guarda on the Italian frontier, which would be in the line of the artillery fire.

All persons suspected of pro-Italian sympathy are said to have been sent into the interior to be interned.

LEFT THE SITTING

LONDON, March 24.—Geneva despatches to the London papers to-day asserted that during the vote on the general budget in the German Reichstag, thirty Socialist members left the sitting.

LONDON, March 24.—The British cargo steamer Teal arrived here to-day after a most thrilling escape from a German taube off the German coast. The Germans hurled four bombs, one of which rained a shower of steel darts when it exploded, at the steamer, and then failing to inflict any serious damage, turned a machine gun upon her deck. The only damage done to the Teal was a small hole made by one of the darts in her deck.

"I first spied the German when he was at the height of perhaps three thousand feet," said Captain Hove. "He was dashing down upon us, and when he was at a height of about 500 feet above our deck began dropping bombs. I ordered full speed ahead. The taube followed, cutting lower until it was less than 250 feet from our deck, and we could see every move the German made. The Teal zigzagged and circled in its course until the German evidently exhausted his bomb supply. Then with the aid of his observer he turned the machine gun loose upon us, and gave us about 20 rounds. The bullets shattered all over the deck, but did no damage, and the taube flew away."

PETROGRAD, March 24.—In announcing the retirement of the Russian troops from the German seaport of Memel. the war office today asserted that no serious effort was made to invade Prussia at that point. The Russian detachment reconnoitering near the border simply passed over and occupied Memel without any opposition. Its object was to obtain certain information and when this was obtained the Russions withdrew, the war office said.

BOMBARDED SHIP YARDS

LONDON, March 24.—Five allies aviators bombarded the German ship yards at Hoboken, three miles from Antwerp, the Admiralty announced this afternoon. dropping bombs on the spot where the German submarines were under construction. The works were set on fire and heavy damage is believed to have been done.

One British aviator was forced to descend on account of engine trouble. He drove his machine across the Dutch border and landed in Holland, where he will be interned for the remainder of the war.

Four bombs were dropped upon the ship yards from a height of one thousand feet. Flames were seen to spurt from several buildings almost immediately. An official report from Dunkirk said the British aviators had reason to believe that the German submarines in process of construction either were destroyed or badly damaged.

Men Will Be Taken on for the Infantry and Also for the 26th Battery Third Overseas Contingent

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

The departure of the 39th Battalion to-day does not put an end to recruiting here. In addition to the 26th overseas battery which is still taking on men, the orders are to keep on recruiting infantrymen. While it is not so officially stated, it is altogether probable that the men enlisted from now on will be posted to the new infantry battalion which is to be formed in this division and which will be mobilized at Kingston after the departure of the 21st Battalion. Recruits taken on now will receive $1.85 per day from the date of their enlistment. They may apply at the armouries at 11 a.m., 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. Major Cameron A.M.C., continues in charge of the medical work.

Quartermaster Sergt. Wes. Edwards, the dean of the non-commissioned officers of the 57th Regiment, passed medical inspection yesterday and on his return from Belleville where he is looking after bringing back the uniforms worn by the 39th detachment, will be enlisted in the fourth contingent.

Col. G. H. Ogilvie of Kingston, D.A.A.G., is in the city to-day in connection with appointment of officers to the 14th and 24th Field Batteries, the units of the 10th Brigade, whose headquarters are here. All the officers of the two batteries are on active service and new appointments are being made, which will be announced in a day or two.

Quartermaster Sergt. A. Kent of B squadron, 6th C.M.R., is home for a few days on leave. Farrier Sergt. John Bailey of the same corps returned to Ottawa to-day.

There was a fine turnout of the 57th Regiment last night, 224 being on parade a gain of 42 over last week. This figure will be considerably augmented before the next drill night.

How Lieut. Bill Irving Was Killed

Corp. Stanley Fenwick Writing to His Mother Here Tells of Death of Officer

Mrs. A. L. Fenwick, George Street, is in receipt of a most interesting letter from her son, Corp. Stanley Fenwick, who is with the 2nd Field Company, Canadian Engineers with the first Canadian Contingent. Corp. Fenwick says:

"It is a long while since I've written to you, but really I find that the hardest thing of all to do is to write a letter. We cannot say where we are or give any of the details that really make a letter. Of cousse we have been fairly busy at work, making and repairing trenches, etc Am glad to say I was one of the first of our company to go into the real firing line. Our officer, Lieut. Bell-Irving, myself and three men went up to repair a trench some 50 or 60 yards ahead of the firing line and about 100 yards from the Germans. It was a rather warm spot nearly all the time, but one evening they opened a regular fusilade with machine gun and rifle fire, and I am sorry to say our officer, who was an awfully fine man, was shot through the head.

We have been billeted in several different barns, etc., and have been more or less comfortable, but now we are in a large school, very comfortable, indeed, and I hope we will be able to stay here for a while. There is a brewery just across the road that has been turned into a bath-house. We have a number of large tubs and of all luxuries imaginable, hot water. Just think of it—a hot bath. We had one the day before yesterday, and, believe me, it was worth a month's pay."

Red-coated Soldier Boys Are Given An Enthusiastic Send-off on Their Departure for the Mobilization Camp at Belleville.

BIG CROWD WAS OUT

One more Peterborough contingent has started on its way to the firing line. This morning, cheered by a huge crowd, the 57th detachment of the 39th Battalion, Third Overseas Contingent, left for the mobilization camp at Belleville, to join their comrades of the Division for the training that will fit them to take their places at the front. In spite of the early hour of the departure of the detachment, the citizens generally turned out in numbers and the boys were given a rousing send-off. The streets were deeply lined, and at the station there was a monster crowd to bid the boys God-speed on the first stage of their journey.

The company fell in at the armouries at 7.30 o'clock and roll call found no absentees. Hon. Major Davidson, Chaplain of the 57th Regiment, conducted a short but very impressive service, in which prayers were offered for the safety of the departing soldiers, who recited in unison the Lord's prayer and the benediction.

At 8 o'clock, headed by the 57th Regimental Band, playing "Soldiers of the King" the detachment left the Armouries. The parade was in the following order: 57th Regimental Band, Bugle Band, officers of the 57th Regiment, Major Buller, and other citizens, 57th Overseas Contingent, the Temple Band, the Home Guard. There was a good turnout of the Home Guard, who acted as the escort. As the Overseas boys marched down George Street they were repeatedly cheered, while from the windows of the buildings last farewells were waved. The boys sang "Tipperary" as they marched along, while all along the route people rushed out into the line of red-coats for a final handclasp

At the G. T. R. station the train was waiting on a siding at the rear and the men were quickly entrained, after which the train moved on to the main line in front of the station, where, with their heads out of the windows of the cars, the Red Coats said their final good-byes. There were the touching scenes that have grown, unfortunately, too common, when relatives bade their loved ones God speed, and many women wept as the train commenced to pull out while the 57th Band played "Auld Lang Syne". Three rousing cheers for the Overseas boys were given, as the train drew slowly away from the platform with the red-coated soldiers waving a final adieu. Some of the 39th boys carried Union Jacks which they waved vigorously until the bend in the track carried them out of sight of the crowd at the station.

LAST NIGHT'S MARCH OUT.

The march out of the Overseas Contingent and the 57th Regiment last night gave the citizens as a whole their last chance of seeing the boys who are going out to fight the Empire's battles as Peterborough's representatives. Hundreds gathered at the Armouries to see the units fall in, and the down town streets were crowded with people eager to get a glimpse at the 39th boys.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the parade moved out of the Armouries, headed by the 57th Regiment Band playing the stirring regimental march, "The Lass o' Gowrie." The 57th Bugle Band came next and then the Overseas Detachment, in charge of Lieut. Cameron. They marched in fours, carrying their rifles at the slope, and the men tramped jauntily along with their arms swinging in unison in a manner that showed the effect of their preliminary training. Repeatedly along the route they were cheered, while from the ranks came the favourite query, "Are we down-hearted?" followed by the inevitable "No." Following the Overseas Unit came the 57th Regiment, 224 strong, in command of Lieut.-Col. D. Walker. The number of recruits in line was more noticeable by the fact that many of them wore civilian clothes. The turnout was the best of the season, and in the ranks were noticed some of the older members who had dropped out and who are now coming back to build up the regiment to full strength.

Hundreds of people saw the parade, the route of which was Murray Street, George Street, Charlotte Street, Aylmer Street, Hunter Street, George Street and Murray Street, back to the Armouries.

KEEP DOWN THE DUST.

It is incumbent upon the Street Department, and the Board of Health, to consider whether the presently employed mode of dry-sweeping pavements and sidewalks is not insanitary and prejudicial to the public health. The winter's accumulation of microbe-laden filth left upon the walks and pavements and converted into dangerous dust by dry weather, is necessarily and inevitably plentifully laden with injurious germs. When it is dry-swept the dust raised is carried abroad by the high winds and is breathed in by people frequenting the streets. It is hardly necessary to urge that this condition is dangerous to public health, not to speak of comfort, and should not be allowed to exist. Flushing the streets to remove the dust, and sprinkling the sidewalks before sweeping would be an easy way to avoid the danger of pulmonary contamination of the public. It is not a question of the easiest way, but of the best, or better way, and it is self-evident that flushing the pavements not only makes a better, cleaner job, but removes the danger of raising and distributing the unwholesome and insanitary dust in the air passages and lungs of the people. This seems to be a matter that can well enlist the practical attention of the Board of Works and, if they do not deal with the situation properly and promptly, of the Board of Health. We cannot disregard reasonable sanitary precautions with impunity. Cognate with this is the necessity of taking prompt measures to deal with the dust situation in the streets generally, not only in the interests of health and comfort of the public upon the streets, but of the housewives. House-cleaning will be general soon, and provision should be made that the work is not destroyed by the dust which, if not subdued and kept down, will upset and neutralize very largely the work of the housewife. Wind driven street dust has a way of sifting into the houses through the best fitting windows.

THE BRITISH OR THE GERMAN WAY.

Sir Edward Grey in a calm, dignified and statesmanlike speech, showed that restitution was the right way of righting wrongs—that Germany had provoked the war in order to bring about the subjugation of Europe, and that the first condition the Allies would demand would be full restitution to Belgium. When a great wrong is done, a great crime committed, somebody must be made to right the wrong as far as possible, and somebody must be punished for the crime.

We have an investigation going forward from day to day in the matter of the boots supplied the Canadian contingents. The feature about this is that the investigation seems to be less coloured with partisanship than usually obtains in such cases. We are getting out facts that show that there has been monstrous wrong-doing in the matter of the supply of soldiers' boots; wrong-doing of a double kind—the government—or rather the people having their business done through the government—have been cheated; but not only that and, what is more important, the soldiers have been cheated. They have been sent to fight our battles equipped with "rotten" boots. Their health, their lives, and their efficiency have been imperilled in order, as the effect is, that some rascally contractors or some careless contractors, scarcely less criminal than the other, should reap an extra profit at the expense of the health, comfort, effectiveness and lives of our soldiers. Any investigation will be incomplete, and so far futile, though it reveals all the facts of wrong-doing, that does not lead up to fixing the guilt of the boot scandal, and providing for restitution so far as disgorging dishonest profits is concerned, and the exemplary punishment of the guilty. We want set up to the British standard, set by Lord Cowdray, who demands restitution. Manchester will sympathize with this demand tion to make the Kaiser disgorge and make restitution. Everybody sympathizes with this because everybody regards the Kaiser as a bad man. But is he in reality any worse in principle—than the dishonest boot contractors? He is consistent; he has done what we expected him to do, having regard to his character and his ambitions. We expected him to do wrong, and he has done it. But we expected Canadian boot manufacturers to do the right and honest thing by their fellow citizens, who placed their lives at the peril of war, and expected that Canadian boot contractors, would not turn traitors and aid the enemy by crippling Canadian soldiers with rotten boots. The Kaiser was, and is, a mere tyrant; these dishonest contractors are worse; they are traitors to British interests, traitors to Canadian interests. They have helped kill Canadian soldiers, even before they got within reach of hostile bullets. They have cast a blot on Canadian honesty of work, Canadian loyalty, and Canadian good faith. Is crime to be demonstrated without the punishment being inflicted? Is the wrong-doing to be demonstrated without question of restitution? Are we to be influenced by British principles of honour and honesty, or by German lack of principle, and disregard of the obligations of honour?

THE BAND GRANT QUESTION.

There is a proposal before the city council to pool the amounts of the annual grants to the 57th Regiment and Salvation Army Bands—$300 and $225 respectively—and divide the amount equally between the two organization. The effect of this would be to increase the grant to one band and decrease it to the other. We don't know that there is any objection—none at all on the part of the Examiner—to the grant to the Salvation Army band being increased—but in the public interest this increase should not be made at the expense of the 57th band. Whatever increase may be made to the grant to the former band, there should, by no means, be a decrease in the grant to the 57th. For many years this band has been associated closely and creditably with our city life. Its weekly concerts in the park have given delight to thousands upon thousands of our citizens, who regard "band night" as an event of the week. These concerts given by the band are the fulfilment of a virtual contract with the citizens, for which the grant of $500 is the "consideration." It is well known that the resources of the band are limited and it has to finance things closely to purchase the music of the varied and expensive character required for preparation for park concerts; and any diminution of the civic grant would impair the efficiency of the band in this regard. The 57th band will fill a larger place than ever this season in catering to the public enjoyment. War conditions have deprived the younger element of summer sports such as baseball and other sports and hence the band concerts will be more popular than ever, and their character should not be imperilled by a reduction of the grant. This year, of all, when military considerations take precedence, should not be selected as the year to decrease the grant to the splendid band of the 57th Regiment, the centre and rallying point of the 700 or 800 soldiers Peterborough has sent to the fighting line. The 57th Band won't object to the grant to the Salvation Army Band being increased by whatever sum the council may think proper, but it will have reason to feel that it is not well treated if its own grant is to be lessened to effect such a purpose.

SCOTLAND'S CONTRIBUTION.

Another feature of the territorial scheme is that it induces men who know each other, or, at least, who know each other's outlook upon life, to go together. There is also nothing unsoldierly in this; it was the very foundation of the Highlande regiments, in which whole glens and clachans marched to the colours together, and in some cases they firmly declined to march with the men from other glens and clachans. Perhaps it is this that accounts for the fact that among industrial districts, the South of Scotland has given 237 per 10,000 of her population to the new armies, as against 173 in Middlesex and Surrey, and 127 in the North of Ireland; while the North of Scotland heads the agricultural districts with 85, as against 80 in the West of England and 32 in the West and South of Ireland.—The Graphic, London.

"Hortus" Backs the Kitchen Garden

There are contentment, happiness, and profit in learning to farm in a small way on a small plot of land.

The hot-bed will supply your table with fresh vegetables and lead you into real gardening.

The window box will beautify your home and show you how to grow flowers for market.

A few trees will fill your cans with delicious fruit.

Start Farming in Your Back Yard.

The good, rich earth all around us is continually crying for something to do, and nothing is more beneficial to the mind and body than to work in it.

Is the back yard of your home barren and uninteresting?

If so, why not begin and make it productive?

Growing Vegetables on a Thirty-Foot Lot.

Gardening is infinitely the most absorbing hobby or amusement that one can think of.

The two most important qualifications in gardening are energy and ambition.

Constant vigilance is the price of success.

In his city backyard Mr. Baldwin of Toronto, working before seven in the morning and after six in the evening, has grown as many as eighty-two varieties of vegetables.

A few brains, and a batch of seeds,
A few tools, and a patch of ground.

Why Not Get Busy on Public Buildings?

"Worker" Wants Mr. Burnham to Get Busy on the New Public Buildings in Peterborough

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I see that Mr. Burnham, our member, does not think he should take any interest in the local manufacturers, or give them any assistance towards getting contracts for work. There is, however a place he can do something, if he only will. I see by the papers that the money has been voted and likely paid for the lot on which the new Custom House and Post Office is to be established.

What is to prevent Mr. Burnham from getting busy on this proposition and endeavour to have the work started. It would be appreciated by every one who could get work much better just at present than if done just previous to an election.

Men and teams would be busy on the excavation. Brick makers could get to work and stone masons, brick layers, carpenters and labourers would all be helped. The O. S. of the Trades and Labour Council has handed Mr. Burnham some fine bouquets lately. Probably a recommendation from that organization might stir him up in the above direction.

If it would I wish they take this matter up at once.

Yours truly,
Worker.

FURTHER ESTIMATES.

Main Figures For the Year Tabled In the Legislature.

TORONTO, March 24.— The Ontario Legislature is nearly through with the consideration of estimates. When the main est for the next fiscal year was brought down yesterday, involving an expenditure of $8,735,236, the financial statements of the year closed. There is here also a slight decrease on the vote of last year. One significant feature is that fall fairs will receive their full grant as usual, $75,000 being put aside for this purpose.

The current expenditure for 1915-16 is provided for to the extent of $3,695,836; capital account, $958,400; sundries, $84,000.

Government House gains a revote of $100,000 and $150,000 each goes to the Guelph farm and the Whitby institution. The Industrial farm at Mimico gets a vote of $40,000, Fort William $35,000, and the same amount is given to the preliminary work of the good roads commission.

The sum of $10,000 is provided for a monument to Sir James Whitney; $100,000 for fish fry for restocking Ontario waters, $7,400 for a fire marshal, and $100,000 for the Hydro Commission.

A PRACTICAL LETTER ON THE CITY GARDEN

Peterborough, March 22, 1915.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—After reading several articles in your paper on "Back-yard Gardens," I thought a few lines telling of my experience with one might not come amiss.

Right here, let me say that a small garden in the back yard is a great help to a workingman's purse and, if looked after at all, is by no means a failure.

My wee garden is roughly ten feet by fourteen. On this small piece, last year, I planted fifteen tomato plants of the Earliana variety, and had all we (a family of six), could use and three or four half-gallon cans for winter use.

We also had all the green cucumbers we could eat for table use besides all the pickles we needed for the winter. We also gave away about two dozen large ones and a peck for pickling. I got these by planting a variety which would climb instead of running on the ground. This variety is called Japanese Climbing Cucumbers, and were purchased from Kenneth McDonald & Sons, of Ottawa. They are real climbers and so saved ground surface for other vegetables. I picked one cucumber eight inches long in a small tree about ten feet from the ground.

Between the tomato plants were planted radishes, lettuce and cress, and we had all of these we could use ourselves besides giving some away and giving the hens many a treat of lettuce, (by way of paying for the manure supplied by them.)

Along one fence there is a narrow strip about twelve feet by two devoted to rhubarb, which supplied us for summer use, also a few cans for the winter. I had cucumbers trained on trellis on this fence also.

I had one side of the hen-house covered with scarlet-runners, which acted as an ornament as well as providing quite a few dishes of green beans.

Let me add that I removed about ten wheel-barrow loads of stones from this small piece, so don't let anyone get discouraged if their back yard is full of stones.

I have had this little garden now for about six years, and have plans made for increasing the garden produce this year, but as I have already used considerable space, I think I had better stop.

Hoping this may encourage someone to try a small back-yard garden, I remain,

A Back-yard Gardener,
J. D. WISKIN.

Editor's Note — We gladly give space to the above practical and interesting letter, and shall be glad to publish other similar ones that could be written. We should be pleased to receive two or three a day on this subject.

Be not uneasy, discouraged or out of humour because practice falls short of precept in some particulars. If you happen to be beaten return to the charge.—Marcus Aurelius.

BELIEVED HIM A GOOD MAN

Man Who Lived a Dual Was Thought Exemplary

CLEVELAND, March 23.—"I can hardly believe what they say about Virginius."

The speaker was W. F. Swathell, father of the first wife of Virginius J. Mayo, whose dual life was exposed when the body of Lillian Cook, 18-year-old stenographer in Mayo's offices, was found dead with a bullet hole near the heart. Her suicide, a mystery, was investigated by the coroner at New Haven.

Father-in-Law Interested.

Mr. Swathell, the father, recalled distinctly the events of 35 years ago when young Mr. Mayo became a member of his family. Mr. Swathell is 78 years old, but every day he goes to work as a machinist. Despite his years he manifests keen interest in the latest revelations concerning Mr. Mayo.

"Virginius was a very good boy," said the old man, "and he loved my daughter more than all else in the world. He loved his daughter, my granddaughter, too.

"Mayo's family came to Cleveland from Richmond, Va. They lived next door to us. Foreign families live in the houses in the neighbourhood. But the old Mayo home, as well as our own, still stands.

Mayo now is head of the Mayo Radiator Company at New Haven, Conn., one of the largest companies of its kind in the United States.

Other features developed by the enquiry into Mayo's past seemed to show that:

A woman, Mrs. Florence Weeks Mayo, who claims to be his wife, lives in Scranton, Pa., and had long believed him dead.

That a "Mrs. James Dudley," Brooklyn, was his common law wife.

A girl, Miss Susie Wahlers, 24, of New Haven has been struggling pitifully against poverty for the sake of a nameless baby. Miss Wahlers recently caused Mayo's arrest in a civil case.

Mayo in New Haven on Saturday obtained another postponement of the hearing on the charges brought against him by Miss Wahlers. He was not in court when his attorneys appeared. Miss Wahlers and her baby w re in court.

Was Mayo's Second Marriage.

The records do not extend back further than 1889, when Mayo appeared in Scranton, Pa., with his little daughter. At that time in Scranton, Mayo was supposed to have come from the South. On May 14, 1890, he married Mrs. Florence Weeks of Binghamton, N.Y., This apparently was Mayo's second marriage.

Mrs. Florence Weeks asserted her claim when other revelations concerning Mayo were made at New Haven. She said she had believed Mayo dead several years.

Wreckage of life and happiness seemed to mark a 20-year trail in the past lift of the elderly, wealthy gentle and aristocratic Virginius Mayo. What lay beyond his 20-year trail until yesterday had remained undiscovered.

Killing of Girl Re-enacted To Get Evidence For Police

Authorities Compel Suspect to Pose as Girl's Slayer and Go Through Same Actions as Did Murderer on Fatal Night

AURORA, Ill., March 23.—Clarence Burke, former convict and drug victim, underwent a test which may go a long way towards solving the mystery in the death of Miss Emma Peterson, third and latest victim of Aurora's "phantom murder."

He was an unwilling actor in a dramatic re-enactment of the murder, staged under the direction of Chief of Police Michels. When the curtain was rung down Mrs. Elizabeth Calkins partially identified him as the mysterious "man in grey," who is supposed to have been the Peterson girl's slayer.

Just at 10 o'clock, the hour that Emma Peterson was killed, Burke, wearing a long grey overcoat and black hat, was taken from his cell in the city jail to the scene of the murder. The "props" were then set in an effort to reproduce as nearly as possible events as they occurred on the night of February 25, when the girl was slain.

A crowd was attracted when the big police automobile, carrying Burke and a squad of policemen, swung into Lake Street, and halted opposite the spot where the Peterson girl was beaten to death.

Handcuffed to Night Chief Fred Grass, Burke was led to the sidewalk. A cordon of policemen had been thrown around the block to prevent any possibility of escape. He remained calm as he waited for his cue.

At the signal given by Capt. Grass, Burke started from the sidewalk and walked swiftly to the centre of the street. Then he made a diagonal cut to the west side of the street and disappeared behind a big tree close to the spot where Miss Peterson was beaten on the head with a piece of water pipe.

Takes Path of Slayer.

He carried in his right hand the weapon used by the slayer. He was made to strike at an imaginary victim and then retrace the steps taken by the man who perpetrated the killing. Under the glare of the arc light the onlookers saw him execute a course straight for the Aurora Cotton Mills, where the slayer was last traced.

Meanwhile across the street at the window of her residence was Mrs. Calkins, who heard the girl's screams and who rushed to a front window just in time to see the "man in grey" hurry away. She watched every motion that Burke went through. At the conclusion of the drama Burke was led before it.

She gazed at him a moment and then spoke.

"I hate to say it, but he looks very much like the man I saw that night," she declared. "I may be mistaken, but it is my sincere conviction. He has the same stride as the man who killed Emma Peterson. He is of the same height and weight."

"That doesn't prove that I am the man," snapped Burke.

"I simply said that you looked very much like him," Mrs. Calkins replied. "I am not accusing you."

Burke appeared dejected when he was led back to the patrol wagon and returned to his cell.

"They don't give a fellow a show for his white alley," he declared. "But I'll have the laugh on them yet. And, remember, the last laugh is the best."

Fails to Identify Burke.

Chief Michels regards the developments in the murder case as highly important, despite the failure of Mrs. William Henderson, wife of one of Aurora's wealthiest men, to identify Burke as the man she passed at Lake and Spruce streets shortly before the murder.

In fact, he now is confident that a solution of the Peterson case is near. He is so optimistic that he also expressed the hope of clearing up the mystery in the death of Miss Jennie Miller, another victim of the "phantom slayer."

Edward Utterback's statement, placing Burke within a block of the scene of the attack on the Peterson girl, apparently has satisfied the chief that the prisoner's alibi has been shattered completely. Utterbeck said he saw Burke at Oak Park avenue and Walnut street fifteen minutes before the dying girl was found.

Mrs. Calkin's statement, in my opinion, is significant,' said the chief. "It looks worse for Burke all the time. However, I am not going to be in a hurry to make formal accusations against him."

Chief Michels is said to have 5 witness who identified Burke as the man who, shortly before the murder of Jennie Miller, tried to sell him a Stillson pipe wrench similar to the one with which the woman was killed.

German Enthusiasm Gives Way to Cold Resolve to Win

LONDON, March 20.—A correspondent who has been travelling in the east of France and in neutral countries, and who has had several opportunities for discussing the internal situation in Germany, writes that in many respects the impressions of his informants do not support much that has been published.

His first informant passed through Germany in October and returned from another extended tour only a few days ago. The thing that struck him most was that the feeling of confidence in the result of the war was less marked than during his earlier trip. Nobody, it is true, would listen to the possibility of Germany being beaten, but every kind of opinion was expressed that the war was going to be a long one and that Germany would have to put forth every effort to defeat the Allies.

"You will make a great mistake in England," he said, "if you think that with the cooling of the enthusiasm for the war the determination is any the less to carry it through at all sacrifices.

"Another thing that struck me," he said, "was the intense bitterness against England. When I was in Germany before England was treated with disdain, her 'little effort' was laughed at. Now the word seems to have gone around that if victory is delayed it is the fault of England. My own impression is that the government, feeling it is losing, is fomenting the fierce hatred of England among the masses for obvious political reasons."

With the exception of bread, there is no apparent shortage in any of the necessities of life. The public did not see in the regulations a danger signal. They regarded them as a masterly administrative move. This confidence in the administrative machine is as unbounded as it is in the military machine. What might happen in a few months' time if a military reverse came on top of increased economic pressure my informant would not venture to predict.

Another informant said that Berlin and Munich, among the cities he had seen, appeared particularly gay. He was in a small town in Germany a week or two ago when the bells suddenly started ringing and the residents flocked into the streets and cafes. He asked the Burgomaster what the trouble was. His reply was: "There is good news from Berlin, and the Kaiser's watchword is, 'We must keep the people amused.'"

Life is to be kept normal in Germany, even to the cafes remaining open until one o'clock in the morning; no sign is to be given that the people are feeling the war. But next to the quietness of railway traffic the number of women in mourning was the most significant thing he saw in Germany. In a familiar restaurant where in ordinary times bread is supplied in abundance he found a little roll served with the meal. When he asked for another portion of bread he was told that it could not be supplied alone. To get a second portion of bread he would have to order a "follow" of meat.

From what can be judged from these various informants the situation is this: The government is determined that the people shall not feel the pinch of war so long as it is able to prevent it, and with the middleman under the iron heel those stocks of the necessities of life which remain in the country are being sold at normal prices. But the economic tension is bound to increase during the next few months.

Not an ounce of wheat is getting in through Switzerland now. The vast supplies seized by the German armies in Poland, Belgium and the occupied areas of Northern France, on which they were able to keep the troops going for a time, must be long since exhausted; the present German advance in East Prussia is over territory that is devastated and offers no facilities for an army to "live on the country." The tremendous increase in the German fighting effectives, though, of course, they do not represent any more mouths to fill, react on the civil population, which always has second place in the administrative mind.

In the meantime German credit is steadily dwindling. The 100 mark note in neutral countries will fetch only 91.50, and Austrian currency has suffered even more severely. On the other hand, the British £5 note stands at five shillings, or more, premium, while the value of the French 100 franc note has never been higher, the middle premium being about 8.50 to 8.60.

French Skiiers Dislodge Germans in Fine Camp

BASLE, via London, March 20.—Little has yet been told about the splendid work which has been done throughout the winter by the French skiiers attached to the corps of Chasseurs Alpins on the Alsatian frontier, giving the Germans no end of trouble. I have just been told of one of the latest achievements of the Chasseurs Alpins, in which the skiiers played an important part that led to the destruction of a German battery.

The Germans had determined upon a desperate effort to dislodge the French from Thann, where they are no more advanced now than they were at the beginning, though their labours have been enormous. All the mountain slopes leading up from the plains north of Thann were furrowed with trenches and barbed wire entanglements were spread everywhere to the summits.

In some places they had to use dynamite to blast the rocks in order to continue their tunnels and hollows around the mountains. The labour expended by the Germans in many places, in fact, is described as gigantic. At one spot on the safe side of a mountain slope the encampment of the Landsturm forces became a large village, in which they had canteens, low sheds for reading and recreation rooms during the long winter hours, beer cellars, for barrels of beer were trundled up the mountains, and the entire soldier village was lighted with electricity and supplied with telegraph and telephone service. The electric plant at the same time served as a power house for supplying the electricity for boring in the rocks and preparing the trenches. This may give one an idea of the huge labour undertaken.

French Prepare Attack.

When the French were fully informed of these preparations they undertook action on their side, and prepared a carefully elaborated scheme to drive the Germans from many of their comfortable positions. My informant belonged to the detachment that joined in the attack immediately behind Hartmannsweilerkopf. They picked up a number of sentries along their route and took them prisoners, and the taking of these became quite a sport.

Every man was on the lookout to make a prisoner. Thus they reached the upper sources of the little stream of the Sultz, often mentioned in official reports. The advanced forces of the column consisted mostly of skiiers, who stealthily moved over the mountains in all directions and who seemed to have the gift of inculnerability. They were often fired upon, but they moved along so rapidly, like shadows over the snow, that they were rarely hit. As they approached Freudenstein, an eminence immediately behind the famous Kopf, there was not a hostile soldier in sight. It was a clear moonlight night, the slopes were covered with a perfectly white mantle of snow. Not a dark spot was to be seen anywhere betraying the presence of the enemy. They encamped under the pine trees and prepared to pass the night there.

Orders were given to light no fire nor to show light, even from a pocket lamp. They ate a cold supper and cleared the snow around a small spot in order to lie down. At some distance to their right a German field battery, with its 77-millimetre guns, kept up a desultory fire throughout the night, and was answered by a French battery of 75-millimetres from the opposite crest. They lay down, resting their heads on their knapsacks, sentries were posted, and a number of their skiiers set out reconnoitring. The skiiers disappeared, gliding along under the pine trees like shadows over the snow, and before long they were like tiny spots on the summits and then disappeared entirely.

In Contact with Outposts.

Several hours passed and there was no news, when suddenly there was an outburst of rifle fire. The outposts had come into contact with the enemy, but it was impossible to discover at what point. The noise of the batteries drowned nearly every other sound. Finally two of the skiiers returned and reported that at a certain spot some two kilometres away they had suddenly come upon a German battery concealed in the snow. It was behind the ruins of the castle of Freudenstein.

For fear of betraying their positions the enemy's gunners abstained from firing, but an infantry company started in pursuit of the skiiers and the Chasseurs Alpins and fired at them with their rifles. The Chasseurs Alpins and the skiiers replied, and they saw that two officers were wounded. The Germans picked them up and carried them to the back of their lines. The skiiers meanwhile spread the information about the concealed batteries and gave such precise indications that the battery of heavy guns stationed at a vantage point near Thann was able to open fire on th concealed German guns, which in half an hour were demolished and thrown off their carriages, and the ammunition waggons were blown up.

The whole company of skiiers was ordered forward. In a few minutes they had covered three kilometres and were at the famous Sudel farm. They were within 500 yards of the German positions. The latter waited for them with a number of machine guns carefully concealed at various points. But the scouts had discovered these positions and the order was given suddenly to turn to the left and to take a crest near by, which was held by a small detachment of the Landsturm, who were smoking their pipes leisurely and who expected no attack on their side. They were surrounded and taken prisoners. From the crest the French troops had full command of the Sudel farm, and they opened fire on the Germans, who an hour later retreated from their positions.

King Kept Greece From Joining War

Premier, Ministers, General Staff and Nation Astounded by His Action

LONDON, March 22.—A letter from Athens, dated March 10, received from its correspondent there by The London Morning Post, says:

"The censorship of press telegrams here has become so rigorous it has been impossible to send any information on the political crisis beyond the bare official facts of the disagreement between M. Venizelos with the King, his resignation, and the summons to M. Zaimis first and then to M. Gounaris to form a new Ministry. I am obliged, therefore, to have recourse to The Post to give a clearer description of the causes of the crisis and the various influences at work in the Greek capital.

"It is not perhaps generally known that as far back as the second month of the war M. Venizelos intimated to a representative of the Entente powers that Greece would join their cause actively if the necessity should arise.

"With the recent commencement of operations against the Dardanelles, M. Venizelos, mindful of his original promise and under increasing pressure of public opinion, came to the conclusion that Greece must abandon her neutrality and take an active part in the war if her friendship for the Allies were not to be discredited and her great interests in the Ottoman Empire jeopardized.

"When M. Venizelos laid the proposal for abandoning neutrality before the King he requested his Majesty, before deciding so momentous an issue, to hear the opinions of other political men of the country, after summoning them to a conference at which the Government should lay before them all the facts of the situation. This was done, and at the first meeting, after M. Venizelos had explained the diplomatic situation, it was decided to hear the technical opinion of the General Staff, which was believed to be against the proposed operation. When the second meeting was held the Chief of Staff's objections were understood to have been overruled by a statement made by M. Venizelos with reference to the precise aid the Allies asked from Greece.

"The King reserved decision for twenty-four hours, and the conference broke up with the impression that royal consent to the proposed action was a foregone conclusion. The Government and diplomatic circles, and the Athenian press and public opinion, all shared this impression so entirely that the Kings refusal next day came as a bolt from the blue.

"This refusal as the anti-Venizelos paper explained with much emphasis, was based entirely on military considerations. First, while Greece was to send only a comparatively small force, the operations against the Dardanelles and Constantinople were of such magnitude that a considerable army would be required to assure their success, and as the allies were reported to be sending only moderate forces it would be inevitable that the Greek contingent must later be greatly reinforced, thereby dangerously weakening Greeces defence on the Macedonian frontier.

"Secondly, Greece by entering upon this course of action without a formal invitation from the Triple Entente was doing so without any guarantee for her position on the mainland. This meant if Bulgaria should attack Greece after the latter had sent a considerable portion of her land forces into Turkey, Greek Macedonia would be easily overrun by Bulgarian armies. In that case the allies gave no promise that at the close of the war Bulgaria would be forced to give back what she had captured, especially Kavalla, which it was believed one of the Entente powers would not object to see remaining in Bulgarian possession.

"The King's refusal to consent to the policy of M. Venizelos was undoubtedly actuated in all good faith by a patriotic consideration of the above-mentioned military difficulties. Unfortunately, his entourage is known to hold strong pro-German sentiments. The principal officers of the General Staff are pupils of the Berlin Kriegsakademie and are firmly convinced that Germany must ultimately win this war. This, and not the fear of Bulgaria, is the real reason of their opposition to Greece's participation in the operations against Turkey.

"The Queen, of course, as a Hohenzollern Princess, is wholly for her brother's cause. Hardly a day passes but she receives from the German Military Attache the official German war reports. I am informed by personages who are competent to know that on the evening preceding the King's final decision a long telegram from the Emperor was received at the palace, doubtless urging Greece's abstention from the proposed action. I amalso informed from the same source that the Queen openly declared that if Greece took such action she would immediately leave her adopted country.

"I don't think the matter should be considered irreparable, for the will of the Greek people is, after all, the supreme arbiter of Greek policy and not the will of a small camarilla. The latter will doubtless find in due course that it is useless as well as dangerous to oppose the will of the nation."

COLOGNE LACKS BREAD.

Supply is Scanty and Bakeries Are Besieged.

LONDON, March 22.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from Amsterdam says that the German Socialist newspaper Vorwaerts reports that only with the greatest difficulty can bread be bought in Cologne, where several bakeries display signs reading, "No bread to-day." Those shops at which bread is obtainable, according to the newspaper, are besieged and soon sell out their supply.

The Vorwaerts expresses the opinion that the bread situation is due not to a lack of foodstuffs, but to a defective system of distribution.

Big Jobs

But—to do unusually good work of any kind, fitness of body and mind are required.

Food plays a big part in this matter—food that contains true nourishment. And true nourishment—be it remembered—must include certain important elements which unfortunately are often lacking in the ordinary dietary—especially in white bread. These elements are phosphorus, iron, lime, sulphur, etc., stored by Nature in her field grains, and absolutely necessary for building strong, vigorous bodies and active brains.

Grape-Nuts

FOOD

—made of choice wheat and malted barley, affords all the nutriment of these grains, including these important mineral elements, in form for easy, quick digestion.

Thousands have found that a ration of Grape-Nuts each day makes for real progress towards the bigger things of life.

Life in the Trenches is Nerve Wracking--Snipers Always Busy

NORTH OF FRANCE—"There's nothing very wonderful about being in the trenches. It was rather exciting at first, of course, but now it's dull, even tiresome. Half the time there's nothing to do but smoke and talk. We'll all be mighty glad when things liven up a bit."

Thus did one of the soldiers from Ontario describe his present opinion of an experience in the first line trenches. He had just come back after a 48 hours' "go" at the front, not far from a town we often see mentioned in despatches, and was inclined to be disappointed at finding things so tame. And in truth, most of the men from Canada have found it a bit monotonous after the novelty had worn out. For the most part they have had little to do beyond standing in the ditches for hours on end and firing a few shots at the German line a couple of hundred yards or so away. Yet all the time they are under artillery fire and always there is the possibility of a shell dropping in their midst with disastrous results. But the boys don't think of this. They are all high-spirited and are fairly itching to get into a hand-to-hand scrap. Perhaps later on their desire will be gratified—indeed, it is almost certain to be—but for the present they must be content with trench warfare.

Some of the boys, though, have been more fortunate, or unfortunate, according to the point of view, in the matter of excitement. The Canadians are, as explained in cable despatches, distributed over many miles of the western front and naturally some of them have come in for more or less severe fighting. There have been engagements of varying intensity at several points. Only small sections of the division, however, have figured in these, as the men have purposely been put in the quietest parts of the line until they gain experience.

A platoon from one of the Western battalions had a warm time of it one afternoon a few days ago. At this particular point the British and German trenches are separated by about 100 yards of flat ground, and the enemy riflemen were particularly good shots. They seemed to have every loophole in the parapet of sandbags marked and bullets sang and whistled away with unpleasant regularity. Every now and again one would come through and three men were wounded within an hour. The fusilade was returned, of course, but the Germans kept on shooting. One poor chap was shot through the neck and died in a few minutes. The bullet came through a sandbag, passed completely through his neck and narrowly missed another man behind him.

Rifle Fire Effective.

Another man was just about to take a shot when a German bullet splintered his rifle and lacerated one of his hands. Snatching a spade he blocked the loophole. The tool proved ineffective, though, for a moment later the metal was drilled through by a bullet. The arival of darkness was welcomed that day.

According to British officers who have seen them at work, the Canadians are doing far more than was expected of them. Many of the English army men persisted in believing the story that the men from the Dominion were almost without discipline, but now these same men can not say too much in their praise. Sir John French and General Smith-Lorrien, who inspected the contingent shortly after its arrival at the front, complimented them hightly. Others have become even more enthusiastic.

One officer told me that the boys from Canada had done some exceptionally good work as snipers. One man, the officer did not know what battalion he was attached to but believed he was quite a well-known rifle shot, crept out to a favourable position during the small hours of an exceptionally dark night and remained there for two days without being discovered. He accounted for half a dozen luckless Teutons and escaped unhurt. He had concealed himself in a clump of low bushes with a tiny knoll in front of him to protect him from the enemy's fire. He was not located until late in the second day, when he was fired on heavily. The first intimation he had of the discovery of his hiding place was a bullet that came so close to his head that he could almost feel it. He was just in the act of aiming at a point in the German trench over which he had twice seen a spiked helmet appear when the bullet whizzed by. The Canadian sharpshooter drew back and ducked only just in time to miss a fusilade and was unable to do any more so closely was he watched. For two hours he lay flat on the ground, not daring to move. That night he crept back to his own lines, where he fell into the trench covered with mud from head to foot and utterly exhausted from exposure and strain.

A German sniper who was matching his skill with that of the Canadians was not so fortunate. He had been firing away for a couple of hours and had got the range so well that it was dangerous even to move. The bullets seemed to be coming right down into the trench itself. Finally the officer in charge detailed three men as observers to discover the marksman's vantage point. For over an hour they were unsuccessful. Then a corporal reported that he had seen three flashes from a tree scarcely more than a hundred yards off. It hardly seemed possible, yet sure enough the officer himself detected more flashes and immediately ordered a volley into the tree. "Five rounds rapid" was fired, and no more bullets came out of that tree.

Artillery Fire Splendid.

Another man just back from the firing line told me that one of the Montreal regiments had seen the British artillery do some splendid work. There were some German snipers in a house away off to the right of the trench. This was reported to a battery behind, and in half an hour the building was in ruins. These same men saw two direct hits made on German trenches. Great lyddite shells whined overhead and burst with ear-splitting detonations. The earth quivered under the blows and spouted in leaping columns, from which great clods and fragments of wood detached themselves and were hurled many yards away. Sandbags were scattered and the soldiers occupying the section were either killed by the shells or shot down by the English and Canadian infantry as they attempted to escape.

Yet these incidents are isolated. The great majority of the boys have had little to vary the monotony of their work. A young chap from Toronto who had hurt his arm and was sent down to a base hospital for treatment was especially disgusted. "It's a frost up there," said he, "there's nothing to it at all. It's the same old thing day after day." He grumbled on in this vein for a minute or two, then suddenly broke off with a question: "Is there a Canadian mail in?" he asked, "I haven't had a letter from my girl for nearly three weeks."

COMMISSION WAS $9,111.

M. C. Ellis Says Firm Bought Low To Save Canada Money.

OTTAWA, March 24.—M. C. Ellis, vice-president of the P. W. Ellis Co. of Toronto, told the public accounts committee of the Commons yesterday afternoon that Maj.-Gen. Hughes had acted in the country's interests in asking that firm to do the best it could to get binoculars for the Canadian contingents at as low a price as possible. Mr. Ellis said his firm had scoured the country and the United States for binoculars without saying what they were for, and as a result the binoculars cost between $39 and $40, while the British authorities had to pay a great deal higher price. The class of binoculars which he had purchased for the Government were selling at $55 each.

Mr. Ellis said his company made purchase in this manner to save money for the Canadian authorities. The total commission of his firm was $9,111, and out of that came the expenses.

The banquet last night at Knox Church under the auspices of the Young Ladies of the Forward Movement Bible Class, and the Young Men of the A. S. K. Bible Class, to commemorate the victory of the young men in a membership contest, was largely and enthusiastically attended. Among the guests were Rev. Jas. A. MacKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. H.B. Cowan, Dr. and Mrs. J. Malcolm McCullough, Mr. and Mrs. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew MacKenzie, who are the teachers of the A. S. K. and Forward Movement classes, respectively.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society looked after the serving. The tables were decorated, four empty chair being left at the head table in honour of the four absent members of the A. S. K. Class who have enlisted for overseas service. These chairs were decorated with flags and in each of the four cups were two small flags.

Mr. Stanley Byers, President of the Men's Class, occupied the chair and called a lengthy programme of toasts and musical numbers. The young men were agreeably surprised when they were presented a token of victory, a beautiful banner on which was worked "The A. S. K. Bible Class," by the members of the Forward Movement Class.

When the membership contest was begun, at the first of the year, the ladies had a membership of twenty-three and the men of fifteen. When it closed last night they had fifty-three and sixty-five respectively.

CENTRAL BOARD WILL ADMINISTER ONTARIO LAWS

New Liquor Regulations—Local Board of License Commissioners Will be Eleminated—No Sale of Liquor to Soldiers in Uniform

TORONTO, March 24.—"What Sir James Whitney, when in Opposition, said he would do, and when in power attempted to do, that he would remove as far as possible the liquor traffic from the field of politics, has been carried out by the Hearst Government," said Hon. W. J. Hanna, in introducing the promised amendments to the liquor license law in the Legislature last night. What the Provincial Secretary described as a most important advance in temperance legislation in a quarter of a century was the proposal to appoint "a non-political provincial commission to administer the liquor license law in Ontario."

"The commission to be appointed will consist of probably five men of as high a class as the Government can select, who will be called upon to give all their time to the work and be paid a sum commensurate with the responsibility and duty they are asked to discharge. This commission," said Mr. Hanna, in explaining the provisions of the bill on introducing it for a first reading, "will have assigned to it responsibilities that are to-day assigned to and discharged by the Boards of Justice in England."

The commission will proceed to divide the province up into license districts, and place in charge of each an inspector who will receive a salary that will warrant him giving his whole time to the duties of that office. Under this new arrangement they would expect to have men comparatively competent, or competent in comparison with what they were to-day.

Considerable latitude is to be given the commission in regulating the hours of sale and number of licenses. The Provincial Secretary explained that the Government had decided not to interfere with the hours of sale in taverns until the commission had been in operation and would be in a position to make recommendations to the Government. The commission would have absolute power to shorten the hours of sale, to order the closing of bars in certain localities to meet local or special conditions and could move or transfer licenses as might be considered expedient. In the meantime, however, it was proposed to change the law in regard to shops, and after the first of May all shops in Ontario will be obliged to close at seven o'clock at night. Labor Day was also to be added to the days on which the sale of liquor is prohibited.

Continuing, Mr. Hanna said, that it would be futile to create such a commission and not give it authority to carry out its orders. Along with other provisions for law enforcement it is provided that the commission will have power to suspend or cancel a license, with the approval of the Government. Disobedience of the law or regulations will place any licensee at the entire mercy of the commission.

Along the line of enforcement, the law is to be strengthened. For infractions of the law by hotelkeepers the present penalty is a fine of $100 to $500. This will be changed and the minimum penalty will be $300. For a second offence the present law imposed a short term in jail with the option of a fine. This is to be changed to four months in jail without any option whatever.

Respect for the King's uniform is to be demanded. "We have a condition here that exists wherever the British flag flies," said Mr. Hanna. "We are at war. We have men in training for the front, and as a result of that we have decided in our bill to put in a clause that will mean that the men who wear the King's uniform shall not be served with liquor in any place licensed under the law of this province." This will continue for the duration of the war.

The remarks of the Provincial Secretary were received with much interest by a crowded House. He supported his reference to the restriction regarding soldiers by saying that the observations conducted by the Department all over the province had shown that in some sections where soldiers were gathered the hotelkeepers had voluntarily agreed to stop the sale of liquor to them, and he was assured that, although there might be arguments advanced against the provision, the large mass of the men would welcome the amendment.

Mr. Rowell said he would withhold his criticism until the second reading. He expressed disappointment because the bill, while making a radical change in administration, did not touch the hours of sale or the number of licenses places beyond what was involved in shortening the hours of sale in shops and adding Labor Day to the prohibited list.

Mr. Hanna said that the commission would have in the exercise of its powers just such authority as he had referred to with regard to the Boards of Justice in England, who regulated not only hours of sale but the number of licensed places.

BRUTAL MURDER OF BOY NEAR OWEN SOUND

Was Found Stabbed in the Back Following Outbreak of Fire ---Englishman is Suspected---Invited Victim for a Drive

OWEN SOUND, Ont., March 24.—A brutal murder took place about two miles out of town, in the adjoining Township of Derby, last night about nine o'clock. The victim was John Edward Nicholson, aged 12, son of Edward Nicholson, teamster for the North American Seat Chair Co. Herbert Thackeray King is arrested on suspicion of slaying the boy.

King, it is said, asked the lad to go with him on a drive, with the promise of a shilling if he would hold the horse. An hour later the barns and piggeries of William King, a brother of the prisoner, were found to be ablaze, and people in the vicinity who went out to see what was the cause of the illumination found the body of young Nicholson on the roadside stabbed through the back.

Coroner Dr. Daw was notified, went out, and ordered the removal of the remains to town. King drove back to the livery stable where he got the vehicle, and asked for a faster horse to make another trip, but was not given a change of animals. At 11 o'clock Police Constable Thomas Carson, who had been notified, arrested King on the street.

The prisoner was turned away from his brother's home some time ago. Coming into town he was arrested as a vagrant, and was let go on promising to enlist. He enlisted, but was discharged as an undesirable. He is said to have threatened when turned out by his brother to do something that would cause a sensation, including the shooting of his brother and the latter's son, against whom he displayed animosity. Several shots were heard by neighbors when the fire was discovered.

TURKS AGAIN BEATEN.

Enemy Is In Full Flight Says Official Announcement.

LONDON, March 24.—A statement was given out by the press bureau last evening telling of a defeat inflicted on a Turkish force operating against the Egyptian town of Sues. The statement says:

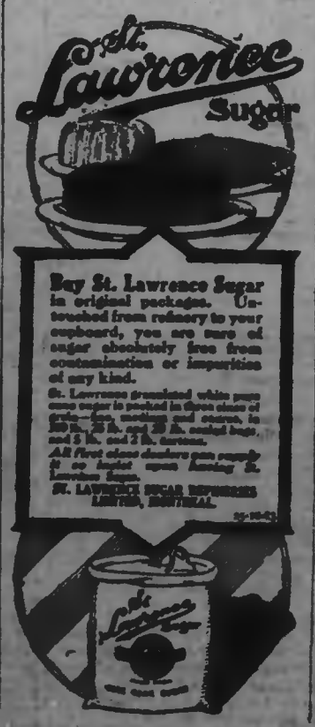
"On the 22nd inst., at dawn, one of our patrols discovered a party of the enemy near Elkubri Post, opposite Sues. Shots were exchanged.

"Aeroplanes estimated the number at about 1,000, composed of infantry, artillery and a few cavalry.

"The guns at Elkubri opened fire and inflicted casualties, whereupon the enemy retired and formed a camp eight miles east of the Sues Canal.

"Early this morning, the 23rd inst., a force under Gen. Sir G. Younghusband attacked and routed the enemy, who is now in full retreat.

"A prisoner says this force came direct from Bir El Saba, having taken twelve days en route, and that Gen. von Traumer and three other German officers were with it."



Local Council of Women's Column

The Matter Published in this column will be supplied by the Local Council of Women and in the interest of their work.

The Executive of the National Council of Women held a meeting in Ottawa on March 11th and 12th. About twenty delegates were present, including Mrs. Neill, President of the local Council of Women of Peterborough. The hearing of reports from many departments of work engaged in by the National Council of Women and animated discussions of the same were features of the two sessions. Public health, immigration, impure literature, in which patent medicine advertisements largely figured, and education, were some of the reports dealt with.

Her Royal Highness, the Duchess of Connaught, who is Hon. Vice-President of the National Council, graced the morning session with her presence.

The all-important subject of the care of the feeble minded was the cause of an interesting discussion, in which the following speakers took part. Prof. Carrie Derrick, professor of botany in McGill, Dr. Helen Mc. Murchy of Toronto, and ex-Controller McCarthy of Toronto.

Prof. Derrick.

Prof. Carrie Derrick was the first speaker. She was careful to remind her hearers that it was not the object of those interested in the care of the feeble minded to endeavour to improve the mentally deficient, because science has shown that it is impossible to alter the inborn characteristics of any animal, plant or person. But it was the object of those interested to have the people placed where they will not interfere with those who are fit citizens. In quoting figures, Prof. Derrick said there were at least 50,000 feeble-minded men, women and children in Canada whose degeneracy is easily detectable, and there are many others who are nearly normal, but who are dangerous and should be dealt with according to their cases.

Lack of Interest.

Dr. Helen McMurchy deplored the lack of interest in this important problem. She called attention to the thousands of feeble minded who were "polluting the current of national life," and declared that those who could, do not offer any assistance in the matter of looking after them. Dr. McMurchy declared that steps should be taken to deal with the problem in such a way that those in every part of the country who are feeble minded might be weeded out and placed where they will be well under control and well cared for. There had been many evidences of activity, she said, but there should be more and more, until the feeble minded of the land have been absolutely controlled.

Marriage License Farce.

Ex-Controller McCarthy of Toronto who has been interested in the problem of caring for the feeble-minded, for many years, said that it would seem that the citizens of Canada were not mindful of the quality of the population, when they will allow to roam at large people who are dangerous and who are a menace to the development and progress of the nation. He thought each city and town should have its local committee and commended the local council of women for the admirable stand they had taken in the matter. He scored the system of selling marriage licenses in Ontario, calling it a perfect farce, and said it was time the government or somebody woke up to the real dangers of such a system that will even sanction the marriage of people who are not fit to take up the reins of citizenship.

Feeble Minded.

A deputation from the Council introduced by Lady Laurier waited upon the Province to urge the appointment of a Federal Commission to investigate and report upon the best means of caring for the feeble-minded.

Statistics were quoted by the various speakers for the appointment of a Commission, showing a disturbing growth of feeble-minded persons in the different provinces, and facts were cited to show that Canada is doing less to care for such unfortunates than most other countries.

The Premier's reply was sympathetic.

Liquor Posters Banned.

CHICAGO, March 24.—The Poster Advertising Co. of the United States and Canada has placed a ban on the advertisement of whisky and other spirituous liquors. It was learned here yesterday. Beer and wines are not included.

No new contracts will be entered into with whisky concerns after May 31, and no whisky advertisements will be posted after this year, according to the resolution.

New Torpedo Invented.

CALGARY, March 24. — A. E. Knowles, of Coleman, Alta., is seeking a patent through a Montreal firm of patent attorneys for something new in torpedoes, and also a device for protecting ships against torpedo attacks. The new torpedo, he believes, will eclipse in destructibility anything of that nature yet invented.

WOMEN OF RUSSIA

Petrograd, Mar. 24.—As the war continues the women on the border suffer the horrors of war and the mothers and orphans left at home are the ones who suffer most. In America are many mothers and daughters, who were left penniless by the war of the Rebellion, but their suffering are as nothing to the women and children left as widows and orphans of the soldiers who have fought and bled for their country in Europe.

Many a mother and daughter have reason to be thankful to Dr. Pierce for relief from suffering and the cure of those weaknesses of their sex, because of his "Favourite Prescription." This tonic, which is strictly a temperance medicine, has cured thousands of those weaknesses, headaches, nervousness, backaches, which are the outward manifestations of disease in women. Correspondence in Connection With Alleged Complaint of One of the Privates Show That the Peterboro Men at the Front Have Been Well Looked After

The following correspondence in connection with a matter in which there is considerable local interest, has been forwarded to the Examiner by Mr. J. H. Burnham:

Ottawa, March 23rd, 1915.

J. H. Burnham, Esq., M.P.,
House of Commons,
Ottawa.

Dear Mr. Burnham,—Some time ago you wrote to the Honorable Minister of Militia and Defence with reference to complaints from Peterborough about certain chocolates and sweaters, socks, and other extra clothing and comforts which had been forwarded for men from Peterborough serving in the 2nd Battalion, 1st Brigade, 1st Contingent.

I forwarded the complaints to Lt.-Col. D. Watson, commanding the 2nd Battalion, and have had his reply. I enclose herewith copies of his correspondence in order that you may understand the situation as outlined by the Officer Commanding "A" Company, 2nd Battalion.

Yours very truly,
Charles F. Winter.
Lt.-Col.
Military Secretary.

Ottawa, Feb. 8th, 1915.

Lieu.-Colonel D. Watson,
Comdg. 2nd Battn., 1st Infantry Bde.,
Canadian Expeditionary Force,
Salisbury Plain, England.

Dear Colonel Watson,—Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P. for Peterborough, has forwarded to the Honourable Minister of Militia and Defence a complaint received through Private Gifford, No. 7623 of "A" Company, 2nd Battalion, regarding certain chocolates and sweaters, socks, etc., which were forwarded for the men from Peterborough who had gone with the first contingent, and which it is alleged were not received by them.

General Hughes desires that you will make an investigation and report as to such evidences as you can procure regarding what became of these presents. Mr. Burnham has been told that enquiry will be made.

The statement is made that the articles forwarded for the men were sold on the boat going over and that one of the non-commissioned officers was court-martialled over the matter.

With kind regards,

Yours very truly,
(Sgd.) Charles F. Winter,
Lt.-Col.,
Military Secretary.

At the Front.

Dear Colonel Winter,—The enclosed correspondence will clear up these ridiculous and malicious statements. Will you please take the necessary measures to have such refuted.

Best regards to the Minister and yourself.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) D. Watson.

From Pte. Gifford,
To O. C. No. 1 Company,
2nd Battalion.

Sir,—Re complaint supposed to have been made by me, I beg to make the following statement:

About the beginning of December, I received a letter from a friend in Peterboro, asking me if I had received any chocolates, socks, or sweater coats, as he had heard that those articles had been sold on the boat, coming across from Canada. In answer I informed him that I had not yet received the articles mentioned. I also told him that I heard a sergeant had been court martialled for selling chocolates, which ought to have been issued to the troops. I have several pairs of socks, two cholera belts, one pair knee caps, wristlets, and a present of cake, tobacco, etc., all of which I understand have been sent from Peterborough. I have received more woollen comforts than I could possibly use, and have had to leave some behind at the base. I should like to make clear to you, sir, that I haven't anything in the nature of a complaint, but simply replied to a question asked me.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) A. V. Gifford.

I hereby state that I am a witness to the writing of the foregoing, and that the matter as referred to, is precisely as related in it. I also beg to state that I distributed all the articles which were received from Peterborough, under the supervision of the Commanding officer of the Company.

(Sgd.) 7576 Fred Howarth, C.S.M.,
ex-Col. Sgt. "A" Co'y,
2nd Battalion.

February 27th, 1915.

From Major G. W. Bennet,
O. C. "A" Co'y, 2nd Battalion,
To Lt.-Colonel Watson,
O. C. 2nd Battalion.

Re complaint of No. 7623.
Pte. V. Gifford and attached letter Lt.-Col. Winter.

Sir,—The attached letter from Pte. Gifford of "A" Co'y, in explanation of the marginally noted subject will no doubt satisfactorily allay the terms of the individuals who are so jealously watching the interests of the noble boys of the Company who are so heroically serving their country in the trenches at the present time.

I might, however, add to it that neither chocolates or sweaters were sent to the Company from Peterborough at any time—what was received of the former was donated by a firm who manufactures it, "Neilsons" I think, and it was not given to "A" Company, but to the Regiment, and it was fairly distributed.

The sweaters received were an "issue" made by the government, and each member of "A" Company received an ample supply; every man in it to-day being in possession of at least one.

None of the generous contributions to the comfort and health of the men of "A" Company which were forwarded from Peterborough were received until about Christmas, and Private Gifford's letter, which had been written some time previously, no doubt stated the situation as it appeared at that time. This could have easily been ascertained by local enquiry.

I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient servant,

(Sgd.) G. W. Bennett, Major,
O. C. "A" Company,
2nd Battalion.

BERLIN IS CHARGINED

Fall of Przemysl a Great Blow to the Enemy—Prisoners Total 120,000

LONDON, March 24.—The official report of the number of prisoners captured after the fall of Przemysl came as a great surprise. The enormous haul of nearly 120,000 officers and men is a great blow to the enemy, and Berlin does not attempt to hide its chagrin at this climax to a series of reverses in the eastern arena.

It is reported that nearly a quarter of the garrison had suffered with typhoid and scurvy. Although the rations were growing more and more limited, none but a few of the higher officers, up to the end of January, knew that actual starvation was impending. The real condition of affairs was learned by the troops when an aviator, who was starting with messages for Vienna, was shot down by the Russians and fell within the defender's lines. After that there was much grumbling in the garrison, and almost a mutiny. Some of the Austrians slipped through the lines at night and surrendered to the Russians.

The investing Russian forces increased the intensity of their bombardment and the strain on the defenders began to tell more rapidly during February. Many were rendered insane by privations and disease. They filled every available place, but were without medical attention. The death list was very high.

Civilian inhabitants, who were unable to escape when the siege began, swarmed about the forts begging for food and refuge, but the commandant was unable to care for them. The death of two prominent generals in February from typhoid tended to weaken the determination of Gen. von Kusmanek, commander of the fortress.

By the end of February actual famine prevailed; scarcely a living animal was left. For weeks virtually the only sustenance was obtained from small supplies of concentrated foodstuffs brought by aeroplanes.

A council of officers daily considered the situation, but not until they were convinced that there was no hope or help from an Austrian relief column did they reach the decision to surrender.

Nieuport, Belgium, was the scene of an allied artillery triumph yesterday. Several German observation points and points of support were bombarded by heavy guns and their occupants put to flight.

A German trench was captured and destroyed near Carency, northeast of Arras, and the survivors made prisoners.

The French generals have strengthened their artillery force at Soissons with long range guns, and when the Germans made a fresh attempt to bombard the town the French gunners opened on the enemy batteries with so heavy and accurate a fire that the enemy was forced to desist almost immediately.

The Germans confined their operations in the Champagne region to a bombardment of the positions that they recently lost to the French. They sprayed a French trench with an inflammable liquid at Vauquevois, near the church, and the French troops had to retreat a few yards.

Two attacks of the enemy on Les Eparges were defeated.

VOTES FOR SOLDIERS.

Bill Regarding Men at Front is Due To-day.

OTTAWA, March 24.—The House yesterday passed through the resolution stage the legislation of the Government providing for the distribution of seed grain to farmers in the prairie provinces, passed Finance Minister White's bill amending the Bank Act so as to permit chartered banks to loan money to farmers for the purchase of seed grain secured by a lien upon the crops to be grown therefrom and devoted several hours in committee to supply to the estimates of the Postoffice Department.

When Mr. White's bill was under consideration W. F. Maclean (South York), R. B. Bennett (Calgary), and W. M. Martin (Regina) discussed the financial situation and suggested reform in banking and currency legislation. Mr. Maclean favored the establishment of a national bank of issue and rediscount, the substitution of national currency for bank notes and the establishment of smaller local banks throughout the country. Mr. Bennett argued that the banks did not receive sufficient money from their depositors to meet the demands made upon them.

Postmaster-General Casgrain, when his estimates were under review, dwelt upon the increase in the rural free mail delivery service, and made a brief statement respecting the parcel post system, which he said so far had been most successful in and about Toronto.

The special committee appointed to revise and amend the Election Act will probably report to the House to-day about enfranchising the soldiers and sailors of Canada. The bill will be introduced to permit volunteers in Canada to vote by proxy. The soldiers at the front will mark their ballots for either party's nominee or for an independent candidate and have them mailed to the proper returning officers without waiting for the official nominations.

Bulgaria Takes Precautions.

LONDON, March 24.—King Ferdinand of Bulgaria yesterday held a two hours' interview with M. Malinoff, the Democratic leader, says The Daily Mail's Bucharest correspondent. The subject discussed was the forming of a coalition cabinet in the event of Bulgaria departing from her policy of neutrality. Later M. Malinoff had a conference with Premier Radoslavoff.

Eight Year Old Boy's Narrow Escape From Drowning in Creek

Allan Gray, Son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gray Fell in at Sherbrooke Street and Was Rescued at Dalhousie Street by Robert Austin, a Campbell Mill Employee.

RECEIVED GOOD CARE

Allan Gray, the eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Gray, 218 Aylmer Street, slipped off the top of the cement retaining wall of the creek at Sherbrooke Street yesterday afternoon about five o'clock, was swept along in the swollen waters to the swirl under the Dalhousie Street bridge, and was rescued when, it is believed, he was going down the last time, by Robert W. Austin, a packer in the Campbell Milling Company's plant.

Mr. Austin was standing at the Dalhousie Street entrance to the mill talking to Arthur Whittle when they heard the shouts of several boys near the creek a short distance away. Running over they learned that a playmate of the boys had fallen in. Austin was standing on the wall just below the Dalhousie Street bridge where the water eddies at the foot of a short slide. Almost immediately Allan Gray appeared at the surface and Austin jumped in and grabbed him. The water was about shoulder deep and extremely cold. With some difficulty the boy was lifted above the wall. Henry Robinson happened to be passing at the time with a buggy or waggon and to save time hurried with the boy to his own home at 229 London Street. Mr. Robinson gave the little chap immediate and effectual attention. As the boy recovered he was able to give his identity and about six o'clock Mr. Gray received a telephone call at Gordon-Davies, where he is employed. Mr. Gilbert Thompson was in the store at the time and drove Mr. Gray in his car to London Street. The boy by that time had recovered sufficiently to be removed to his home snugly wrapped in blankets. This morning it was learned, he was not much the worse for his experience.

Playing on the Wall.

Allan Gray was playing with a son of Mr. John Duigman, Sherbrooke Street, near the creek, which they had been cautioned to keep away from. But the high water during the early spring has a peculiar lure for children. The child fell a distance of ten feet and struck his head heavily, raising quite a lump. He was carried by the water from Sherbrooke to Dalhousie Street, where he was rescued by Mr. Austin at a critical moment. Allan is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Gray and attends the South Central school. Mr. Gray was very grateful this morning for the rescue and attention his boy had received.

USING SOAP SPOILS THE HAIR

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), it's cheaper and better than soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Housewife Talks About Autos and Oil and Street Dust

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I saw by last night's paper that a deputation of automobile owners waited on the City Council with a view of preventing the use of oil to keep down the dust on the streets. They had a perfect right to do this, for they are human, and it is human for people to look out for themselves, with no particular anxiety for the good of others.

They claim that oil on the streets will injure the delicate tires of their machines. This may be partly true and then what? We all know that it is not partly true, but entirely true, that dust injures more than auto tires. It kills our comfort, it spoils our clothing and the furnishings of our houses, and gives the housekeeper more work and worry than any other one thing of its kind. We also know that water is a failure to keep down dust and that oil will do it. When they tried oil a few years ago we never had such comfortable and dustless streets.

Are the thousands of housekeepers not as much to be considered as a few auto owners—all rich men, if swagger and show in rushing through the streets and making a great dust and display, is any sign.

Suppose that they do have to buy new tires sooner. Are they any better to do that than the housewives are to buy new carpets and curtains to take the place of those spoiled by street dust? And the most of this dust is raised by racing devil-take-the-hindmost auto drivers. My husband tells me that autos wear out the streets, and we all know they raise more dust than two or three waggons.

Instead of asking special privileges the auto owners should sing small, considering the way they wear out our streets and raise dust, and endanger, as some of the reckless ones do, the lives of foot passengers.

I hope the Council will think of the housekeepers, who should also send a deputation; though it seems the City Fathers have no particular love for the ladies, especially those who have no votes. Anyway, I hope they will try the oil and if it is as great a success as before they will win the hearts of the housewives of Peterborough.

Yours truly,
Housekeeper.

LONDON, March 24.—The Exchange Telegraph correspondent at The Hague cabled this afternoon he had learned from diplomatic sources that Emperor Franz Josef is endeavouring through the Vatican to obtain Germany's consent for Austria to obtain a separate peace.

NEW WAR VOTE PASSED

OTTAWA, March 24.—In the Commons to day a resolution authorizing a new vote of one hundred millions went through in less than ten minutes. When the resolution was moved Sir Wilfred asked for information regarding the measures taken looking to the security of the Dominion. He said much of this information must be confidential. The Prime Minister in reply said that he would communicate privately to members information on any point desired. This was all the discussion. The resolution passed and the bill based upon it was immediately given its first reading.

BEGINS ON APRIL 15th

OTTAWA, March 24.—All direct war taxes not now being collected will come into force on April 15th. A bill adopted by the Commons today makes provision for the collection of general taxes including stamp taxation, beginning with the middle of April.

Experiences In Trenches

From Pte. Theodore (Barney) Quinn, who played hockey with the Y.M.C.A. City League team, comes a breezy letter to his mother, Mrs. Wm. Quinn, 99 Douro Street, East City. Pte. Quinn, who is with the 57th detachment in France, says:

March 7th.

Dear Mother,—Here I am again, safe and sound, after another four-day trip to the trenches. We, I mean the Canadians, have a certain amount of trenches to hold now, and I think they are pretty safe in our hands. I dare not tell you too much or you will not get any news at all. There certainly are a lot of things I would like to tell you. Last trip our company had to stay in reserve and bring up the rations every night after dark to the rest. It is very exciting when you have a big searchlight turned on you and spect to be fired on any minute. It used to put my heart in my mouth, but comes natural to me now. We only had one fellow shot through the leg in our company, although stray shots are whistling all around after dark. Poor "Scoop" (Pte. O. Tayler, formerly of the Review staff) was carrying some wire to the trenches and had just put it down for a rest when a bullet cut a piece of wire right where his hand was. Another fellow right beside Heber (Pte. Heber Rogers) was killed.

We have three pairs of rubber boots in our section, and get a chance once in a while to dry our boots and socks. Have a little touch of rheumatism, but think it will wear off. Are having a four days' rest now. They say our artillery has been doing some grand work. There were shrapnel shells and "Jack Johnsons" going over our heads and into a fair-sized village at our rear every day. There is not a person left in it, and half the houses and stores are down, as well as a dandy big church. Tony Wood's battalion, the 4th, relieved ours. Have not had a chance to see him since I left England.

We live pretty good in the trenches—that's if you take your own stuff, such as cocoa, milk, sugar, bread and bacon. We have fires outside each day, and with the jam cheese, tea and bacon they give us, we can make a pretty fair meal. Had lots of straw and a rubber sheet and blanket to keep warm in, and did not do too bad.

I hear they are having a hard time to get enough for the third. I guess they are too wise, but if they saw the way the towns and villages are knocked down and poor people turned out of their houses and homes, there would be more doing.

Don't worry. Will be back soon I hope. Don't think it will last the summer.

Geo. Minorgan In Trenches

Pte. Geo. Minorgan, of the 57th detachment in the First Canadian Contingent, writes to a relative as follows:

March 3, 1915.

We are in the trenches. Six of us in each of the famous "dug outs." Mud and water is the order here, but we are still happy. We work exceptionally hard while in the trenches, and do not get much sleep. However, we do not feel sleepy and are contented. Shells are continually coming over our heads, but do not bother us now. The whole secret here is to keep below the parapet of the trench and always be careful and never careless.

I received your letter of the 28th today, delivered to me in my dug-out after only a four days' journey.

We had a heavy snowstorm while coming to the trenches and it has rained all day to-day. We saw a good aeroplane duel yesterday.

We lost three killed and ten wounded yesterday. In the villages near here there isn't a wall standing. You could not believe the damage.

I was in the trenches yesterday and had to stay in the (struck out by censor) one hour as they shelled us.

The boys are well, and so am I.

Will Speak of The Work of Travellers' Aid

Mrs. Burrlington Ham, Secretary of the Y.W.C.A. Immigration Department, at the Port of Quebec, will be in Peterborough, Thursday, the 25th, and Friday, the 26th.

The striking growth of Protective Work done by Travellers' Aid Workers of the Association is shown by the fact that the number of cases helped, rose, in over fifteen cities, in the last four years, as follows: 7,000, 14,000, 27,000, 31,000. In one year 2,796 girls and women received help from the one Y.W.C.A. at Quebec.

Her work may be roughly summarized as—meeting ships—giving out pamphlets containing addresses of Association Homes throughout the country—also papers of warnings—writing special cards of introduction for new comers—and sending lists to each city of those girls who should be visited shortly after arrival.

Mrs. Ham will give an illustrated talk on Immigration Work, at the local Y.W.C.A. Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

The meeting is open to both men and women.

Mrs. Ham will also speak at the Association on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

In the Trenches For Seven Days

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wyatt, 490 Driscoll Street, City, have received a short letter from their son, Pte. Gordon Wyatt, written from some place near the trenches on March 8. Up to that time he had been in the trenches three times and was feeling O. K. The letter follows:

Dear Father and Mother,—I am writing you just a few lines to let you know Howard and I are well and happy and have had a taste of the trenches. We were in them 3 times, 7 days in all. They are not so bad, and if they get no worse than they are now we will not worry a little bit. We have tobacco issued to us. We have seen a good many French towns and some of them are badly damaged. But the Germans are driven back as far as we want them for the present, and we are going to run their heads off in the general advance.

We think the Germans are just about fed up on the war and a few more rushes will put them right where we want them. We are very comfortable and I have stood the severe test better than you can imagine. I hope business is good and that mother and the rest are all well. With love to all, from—

Adds Two Autos To His Livery

Dr. F. L. Robinson received to-day a taxicab and touring car for his livery service. The high cost of feed and the more rapid transportation by taxi explain this addition. The touring car will also be hired for service.

Private V. J. Northcote In Bedford Hospital

Private Victor Northcote, whose home is on Murray street, has written to W. A. Greenslade from No. 1 Genral Hospital, Bedford in Wiltshire. He gave no explanation of how he had come to be placed on the hospital list. His letter made practically no reference to himself and Mr. Greenslade did not know whether or not Pte. Northcote had been across to France.

Important Meeting of Home Guard

A general meeting of the Peterborough Civilian Rifle Association Home Guards will be held Thursday evening at 8 p.m. at the ranges, Murray Street. Every member is personally expected to attend. Do not let any other engagement interfere with this meeting, as matters of the utmost importance in regard to the work of the Home Guards must be settled at this meeting.

While a large number of members have been notified to be present it was impossible to reach them all and officers of companies will please get in touch with their men and see that they are present.

Farewell To Members of B Co:

After the regular drill of the 57th Regiment last evening, the members of "B" Company assembled in their company quarters to give five of their number who left this morning for Belleville with the 39th Battalion, for an informal send-off.

Captain Watt, commanding the company, Lieut. D. Shook, Col.-Sergt. Moore and Sergt. Succee each made a few remarks, conveying the best wishes of men and officers to the departing members. After the speaking, coffee and sandwiches were served and half an hour spent in a social chat.

Scout News

The regular meeting of the Scouts was held last Friday night with a good attendance. The boys were inspected by Rev. W. H. White and he spoke splendidly of them.

The attendance is picking up better now and we hope soon to have a full troop. All boys desiring to join, and who can meet the full requirements, which must be four feet six inches in height and twelve years old.

All members of the Peterborough Boy Scouts are asked to meet on Friday, March 26th at 7.30 p.m. in the armouries.

WELL IN OTONABEE TOWNSHIP LACKED THE "DINGMAN" QUALITY

Failed to Produce a Supply of Water After a Depth of Fifty Feet Had Been Reached---Case in the County Court

"No water no pay" were the terms upon which William Edwards agreed to drill a well for Mrs. Hannah Dickson of this city. Edwards claims that he was stopped when a depth of fifty feet had been reached, and a bill amounting to $125.50 incurred. He seeks to recover this amount through the medium of the County Court unless the defendants agree to let him continue drilling operations in the hope of finding water somewhere between here and Flanders. Mr. G. N. Gordon, who appeared for the plaintiff, said that his client was willing to continue drilling operations providing the defendants agreed to pay two dollars a foot in event of water being secured. Mr. E. L. Goodwill, acting for the defendants, suggested that the plaintiff increase the depth of he well to one hundred feet, and if water is not obtained, no money will be forthcoming. His Honour Judge Huycke characterized the bargain based on "no water, no pay" as a foolish one, and one bound to inflict a loss on either one or the other of the litigants. Plaintiff was willing to drill indefinitely providing the other side would pay him at the rate of two dollars a foot, in event of water being obtained, or extend the depth to one hundred feet, and if water is not obtained, cease altogether on condition that he is paid at the above rate.

The Evidence.

William Edwards, the man who undertook to drill the well on the Dickson farm in Otonabee was the first witness called. He said that he first agreed to deepen the old well and ascertain if it were possible to obtain a larger flow of water. He drilled to a depth of thirty-eight feet, when the casing came off and it was decided to drill a new well between the house and the barn. No charge was made for the thirty-eight feet that was drilled in the old well. When the new well was down thirty-five or thirty-eight feet, witness was asked to go and see Mrs. Dickson and find out if the work was to be continued. This he did. He received permission to drill another ten feet when, according to the evidence of the plaintiff the work was stopped by James Edwards, lessee of Mrs. Dickson's farm. A pump was installed costing $23.50. The well was drilled at a cost of $2 a foot, bringing the total amount up to $123.50. Mrs. Dickson asked for a lower price and after some consideration, witness agreed to accept $100 in settlement of his claim.

Casing was Raised.

To Mr Goodwill, witness said his terms were "no water, no pay," providing he was allowed to continue the work. Witness contended that the work was stopped by both James Edwards and Mrs. Dickson. A small quantity of water was struck at the fifty-foot level. Subsequently witness went out and raised the casing a little, but this failed to improve matters.

Henry Stokes, claiming eleven or twelve years' experience as a well-digger, recalled a numer of conversations that took place between the plaintiff and defendant regarding the work. He had never heard of a lower price than two dollars a foot being charged.

Examined by Mr. Goodwill, witness referred to a conversation that was alleged to have taken place between Mr. James Edwards and Mr. William Edwards, in which objection was expressed respecting the board bill that was mounting up.

The next witness called was Mr. James Edwards, who operates Mrs. Dickson's farm in Otonabee. To Mr. Goodwill, witness said that he was given permission to have a well dug. After failing to get water in the old well a new site for a well was decided upon. Mrs. Dickson was consulted from time to time as the work progressed. When the new well reached a depth of about forty feet, the question of interviewing Mrs. Dickson was discussed. Witness was asked to go and see Mrs. Dickson. Witness replied, "I wouldn't take a farm and go and see Mrs. Dickson about the well digging". Witness recalled a conversation said to have taken place between the two Edwards, in which the plaintiff is alleged to have admitted breaking the casing. Witness denied having made a bargain with the plaintiff about the pump.

Cross-examined by Mr. Gordon, witness said that he had occupied the farm for a number of years. Plaintiff had told him that it might be possible to get water at thirty or thirty-five feet. Witness admitted that he had said, "he would not take a farm and go and see Mrs. Dickson about the well." He was afraid there would be a row. Witness considered that Mrs Dickson who know that a pump was essential to the completion of the well.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

SAYS CANADIAN LEAGUE WILL HAVE GOOD SEASON

LONDON, March 23.—President A. E. Somerville of the London Canadian Leaguers, says:

"With the reduction of players and salary limit the Canadian League clubs should all make money this season, even if the attendance drops five or ten per cent. In London last season there was an increase in the attendance of nearly 10 per cent. over the year before. Baseball has lost none of its interest since last season, and if the success of the hockey season is anything to judge by, the coming baseball season should be the most successful in the history of the Canadian League.

"One good feature about the league this season is that it will have three of its poorest paying towns off the circuit—Erie, Toronto and Peterborough were big losers last season, and their losses affected the other cities. This year Guelph will be added, and although the Royal City has never been prominent for making money by its ball club, it should do as well as or better than the three cities that pulled out. Passing up three poor-paying cities for one that will probably pay better than any one of the three looks like good business, and it is hard to see where the league will suffer by any such move. With the strong cities all intact, the Canadian League should have brighter prospects ahead of them now than this time last year, when they never looked brighter."

FRANK HEFFERNAN TO RESIDE IN NEW YORK

Frank ("Moose") Hefferman, the well-known hockey player, has shaken Toronto dust from his feet and gone to New York to live. His going away was unheralded, and only a few of his friends knew that he had left for the Great White Way to go into business with his brother, who has been a resident of New York for several years.

Hefferman was one of the best known athletes around here, having played on the champion senior O. H. A. team for the last three years, captainnig the T. R. and A. A. two years ago, when they won their second successive championship, and was also a member of the Victorias this season.

He was counted one of the best defence players in the O. H. A., and, while he is a little late this year in going to New York, should round out one of their team next season. In the meantime, he no doubt will be figuring on one of the amateur ball clubs, as he was a cracking good ball player or he may take up lacrosse with the Brooklyn Crescents, as he was so proficient at this game four years ago that Sam Bilsky of Ottawa, tried to sign him up for the Ottawa N. L. U. team.

OTTAWA CONFIDENT OF TURNING THE TABLES

OTTAWA, March 23—The members of the Ottawa hockey team are evidently confident that they will turn the tables on Vancouver in the second game of the world's championship series, which is to be played at the Terminal City to-morrow night. Vancouver won the first game by 6 to 2.

Telegraphing from Vancouver to the club to-day, Captain Jack Darragh said that they had no excuses to offer. He attributed the Ottawa defeat to their inability to execute the forward pass in their own offensive, and to the failure of the defence men in the second period to block the magnificent rushes of Patrick, Taylor and Cook. The Vancouver Club, according to Darragh, scored three of its goals as the result of a forward pass within the prescribed territory.

Coach Alf. Smith also telegraphed that he was still hopeful. He things that the high altitude and the change in the air has had some effec on at least a few of the players. Broadbent and Graham failed to show much of the usual speed lastnight, while Duford was only himself in flashes. However, the Ottawas all came through the game unfnjured. It was one of the cleanest they have been through this winter.

For the second game to-morrow, which will be played under the Eastern rules, Coach Smith will start out with Benedict, Merrill and Ross for the defence, with Gerard at centre, Broadbent at right wing and Darragh at left wing. He will thus reserve Duford, Graham and Shore for utility work. Tommie Phillips and Mickey Ions will again officiate as referees and judge of play, respectively. The Ottawas realize that their championship hope will be at stake to-morrow evening and will go into the second clash full of determination to even up the series with a victory.

Curlers Spent Pleasant Evening Away From Stanes

The curlers discovered last night that they had been overlooking something. The little social gathering to bring the members together for a last time before the premises are locked up for the summer attracted quite a large attendance, and everybody apparently enjoyed themselves. The rooms upstairs have been used to good advantage during the winter, but it is more or less felt that they may still be more widely used during the season for purposes similar to last night's. This event was really an afterthought. Two days ago some one suggested a little finale, and a committee composed of Messrs. Herb Martin, Ray Best, Alex Kay and Charlie Seymour was appointed to start something. They discovered that a piano was essential to success and they cadged R. Sturgeon's. Everyone was so pleased with the effect of the music ringing through the rooms that it was felt a piano should be a fixture and Mr. R. M. Waddell asked Secretary Brownscombe to mention this suggestion to Mr. Thos. Brightman, president of the Curling Company.

Mr. Martin and Mr. Best had everything prepared in spite of the short notice. Mr. Martin acted as chairman and was an unqualified success. It was the first social the members had held and Mr. Martin neatly broke the ice at the outset and the rest was pleasant sailing.

Among the contributors to the entertainment were Walter Fitzgerald in a dance number; Frank Clarke sang his ever-relished watermelon song; Chris. Graham told a few stories, including a new Ford narrative; Mr. Jas. Wilson sang "Mary of Argyle"; Mr. W. Logan added a recitation that was timely and well delivered; R. G. Sturgeon and his son staged an interesting fencing bout with Geo. Giroux and H. R. H. Kenner the respective seconds and Mr. Graham referee; Mr. R. M. Waddell helped things along with a recitation on a curling subject. Mr. L. McGuire at the piano was extra good. Mr. Smith of Hamilton, who was down for the bonspiel, presented his credentials as an old Peterborough boy and lauded the local club on their work and play with a special reference to the encouragement given to the young men.

A vote of thanks was tendered the committee on motion of Mr. R. M. Waddell, seconded by Mr. Kenner. The meeting was concluded by the singing of Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King.

Mayor Buller honoured the curlers by attending the meeting and making a speech, in which he congratulated the club, and told the members that the city had a high opinion of them.

It should have been mentioned in the programme that Frank Clerk and Charlie Seymour were heard in a string duet. Mr. C. G. Graham opened a box of cigars, in addition to the other entertainment he provided.

LACROSSE FANS' MEETING TO-NIGHT

A meeting of lacrosse supporters will be held this evening in the Y. M. C. A. at 8.15 o'clock. It is important that as many as possible should attend. The annual meeting of the O. A. L. A. will be held a week from Friday and if the game is to be played here this season there should be no further delay in making a start It is also necessary that the club be placed on a strong footing and for that reason it is hoped that all those who are anxious to have the game continued this year should indicate their support by attending to-night. The club should be reorganized with a view to permanent work, for otherwise the efforts will be only spasmodic and the best results will not be secured.

Medals for Winners of Indoor Ball League

Arrangements have been made for the indoor baseball league in connection with the 57th Regiment. It has been decided to divide the league into sections, the right half battalian forming one, and the left half battalion the other, the winners of the two sections to meet in the finals. Medals and a pennant will go to the winning team. The following schedule of practices has been arranged. To-night—8 to 9, A and B. Companies; 9 to 10, C and D Companies. Friday night—8 to 9, E and F. Companies; 9 to 10, G and H Companies. Monday—7 to 8, Brass Band and Bugle Band.

57th's Third Overseas Detachment Starts For The Firing Line To-day

AN ENJOYABLE BANQUET.

After the parade the Overseas Contingent were the guests of the Women's War Fund Committee at an enjoyable banquet, during the course of which each man was presented with an appropriate gift of khaki handkerchiefs, gifts which will be supplemented later on by the ladies, who have so ably looked after the comfort of the men now at the front. During the banquet the band of the 57th, under the direction of Lieut. Gliddon, rendered an enjoyable programme of patriotic airs.

The hand room had been appropriately decorated for the occasion with flags and bunting, and the tastefully arranged tables presented a very attractive appearance. An appetizing array of good things had been prepared by Mr. T. H. Hooper, who acceptably catered for the occasion, and the guests of honour did ample justice to the repast. At the head table were Lieut.-Col. Walker, who presided; Captain Spencer and Lieut. Cameron, of the 39th Battalion; Mayor Buller, Mr. T. F. Matthews, Rev. J. R. Webb, representing the Ministerial Association; Major G. S. Cameron, A.M.C.; Lieut.-Col. Miller, Major Eastwood and Major R. T. Hounsell, of the 57th Regiment; Hon. Major (Canon) Davidson, Chaplain of the 57th, and Rev. Chas. G. Smith, of Belleville.

LIEUT.-COL. WALKER.

Lieut.-Col. Walker, in an opening address, said that the 57th Regiment, in sending out its third contingent, had found that the quality of the men was in no way deteriorating. The regiment was proud of the men who were going forth as their representatives. In their weeks of drilling here their conduct had been exemplary, and there was no reason to doubt that they would do their duty thoroughly and well. It spoke well for them when the commanding officer of their battalion had said that they were the best unit coming into his battalion. Lieut.-Col. Walker paid a hearty tribute to the work of Captain Spencer and Lieuts. Cameron and Eastwood, and expressed regret that these officers would not be attached to the 57th Detachment after reaching Belleville.

THE CITY'S GREETINGS.

Mayor Buller, speaking on behalf of the civic authorities, complimented the men of the 39th on their splendid conduct. Their action in going forth to fight the Empire's battles was appreciated thoroughly by the citizens, whose hearts would always be with them. Of no body of men leaving Peterborough would they be more proud than of the boys of the Third Contingent, whom he assured of a grand welcome when they returned to Petesborough.

Lieut.-Col. Miller aroused enthusiasm by a patriotic address, in which he reminded the departing soldiers that they were chips of the old block, descendants of the men who had made glorious pages in British history. They were going forth to fight the battle of freedom, not to take part in a war of aggrandisement, and he had no hesitation in saying that they would be in every respect worthy representatives of their city and their country. He hoped that every man would get a chance to get right on the firing line, and when there he was sure they would act like true British Canadian soldiers.

THE MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

On an eloquent speech, Rev. J. R. Webb, pastor of the Murray Street Baptist Church, speaking on behalf of the Ministerial Association, pointed out to the men that they were going forth to fight the battle of right. There were times when men must fight, and never had men taken the sword in a more righteous cause than were the men who were fighting against the German oppression. The speaker paid a compliment to the men of the other contingents, but expressed the conviction that even more courage had been shown by the members of the third. They were going into the thing with their eyes wide open. They had had time to read of the terrible casualties, the hardships of trench-fighting, but in spite of a realisation of all this they had come forward willingly and offered themselves. Rev. Mr. Webb reminded his hearers of the words of the poet:

"His strength was as the strength of ten,
Because his heart was pure."

He admonished them to keep their hearts pure for the sake of their city and their country, and for the sake of their wives and mothers and sisters and sweethearts.
